A world of anguish in an inch of glass

Three women were yesterday granted last-minute injunctions to prevent their frozen emhryos being destroyed, as fertility experts and campaigners warned that hundreds of couples would be unable to save much-wanted embryos because of the failure of "shoddy" hlanket legislation.

The reprieve hegan when one woman, whose estranged busband had refused to sign a form consenting to an extension of the storage period, managed to obtain an injunction preventing the immediate destruction of her fertilised

At least two other women were thought to have obtained similar injuoctions yesterday. faxed fertility clinics warning problems in tracing couples them that they had found a loophole in the law which imposes a five-year storage

"In our view for clinics to now destroy the embryos, believing they did oot have consect, would expose them and the HFEA [Human Fertilisation and Embryology Authority] to legal liability," said the fax from Graham Ross, representing the first woman to obtain an injouction.

Lawyers argue that embryos created with donor sperm could be kept indefinitely if sperm was giveo before the five-year storage limit was imposed.

Experts say the "shoddily put together" law has failed to account for the extent of egg and semen donation and the

'Blanket' legislation that is causing despair

Experts warn that the "blanket" legislation surrounding the destruction of thousands of frozen embryos fails to take into account the complex issues surrounding their creation. . The first wave of embryo disposal has highlighted problems such as ownership, the disposal of wanted embryos because of failures in tracing original "parents", the disposal of sibling embryos and the ethics involved when both the genetic and adoptive parents may be entirely separate - problems which experts say must be urgently addressed if the destruction is to continue. JOJO MOYES reports overseas. Due to the requirement for the express consent of both "parents", they predict increasing problems as the destruction of emhryos becomes a regular event. The move has added to the distress of doctors, who presided over the destruction of

we have complied with the law. more than 3,300 "orphaned" emhryos.
Dr Peter Brinsden, of Bourn but naturally I am devastated. Indeed all the staff are very Hall Clinic, Cambridge, where as many as 900 embryos have been destroyed, said he wished create embryos, and have had the loopholes had been found to destroy them. Now we are two weeks ago.

"I am certain m my mind that allowed them to perish." Dr Brinsden said. Yesterday morning he received a faxed letter from a cou-"They have worked hard to ple living overseas asking him to extend the storage period of their embryos another five getting people saying that maybe we shouldn't have years. But the letter arrived 24 hours too late.

Dr Brinsden revealed he had retained six embryos. One belonged to a woman threatening legal action, while the "parents of the remainder had told him consent forms permitting extended storage were in the

Dr Peter Bromwich of the Midlands Fertility Service, where 90 embryos had been destroyed, said he was extremely sad that the fax had arrived too late. But he said he was stuck between the threat of legal action from parents and unmease pressure from the

He added that he had been told he faced prison if he did not fulfil his legal obligations in destroying the embryos, and that a representative would anyway. "This act is flawed and is so shoddily put together that it had to go back to Parliament a year later. But it's still not

Dr Bromwich said clinics were hampered by both time and legal restraints in finding les where both partners had been involved in the creation of much-wanted embryos.

In many cases they were not allowed to trace the couple if it would "identify" them to a third party.

And according to Professor John Scarisbrick, chairman to trustees of the "pro-life" orgenisation, Life, the use of false names by sperm donors and the practice of anonymity meant that it was often impossible to

The couples

Couples who fall out: who gets custody? On Thursday night a childless woman obtained a High Court injunction to prevent the destruction of her frozen embryo. The unnamed woman's estranged husband had refused to sign a form consenting to an extension of the storage period. According to her solicitor, she believes this is her only chance to have children, but the busband has not consented so far. He may have withheld consent because he does not wish to pay maintenance, or he may eventually be planning to have another family with a future partner.

What happens to embryos if one partner dies?

In these cases, it appears the embryos may be useless. Dr Robert Forman, clinical direc-day told of a comple under treatment where the wife recently died. The husband wished to donate the embryos but was told he was not allowed to because the wife was "not available" to give ber consent.

Constraints on finding patients: how will they know?

One couple who had treatment were transferred to the US with the air force The clinic was not allowed to approach the air force to ask for the new address as it would have ideotified them. The couple do not know the embryos will be destroyed.

in another example, a clinic had lost touch with another long-term patient after she moved. The woman's GP contacted the fertility consultant on numerous occasions for advice on the patient, but he was not allowed to ask the GP for the patient's new address, or even ask him to forward a letter to tor of the London Gynaecology and Fertility Centre yester-"identified" her.

The siblings

The siblings: how to keep them together

Mrs A donated her "spare" emhryos - created with donor sperm - after completing her own family with twins. As a result of the donation, yesterday morning Mrs B was confirmed as pregnant. She would desperately like to have the spare sibling embryos. "But she [Mrs B] will not have any siblings related to her first child because we cannot trace the sperm donor, and those embryos are scheduled for destruction in May next year." her consultant said.

Ratherthan "waste" Mrs A's embryos, they will be used for another, unrelated couple with the result that brothers and sisters could be brought up in three or more different families.

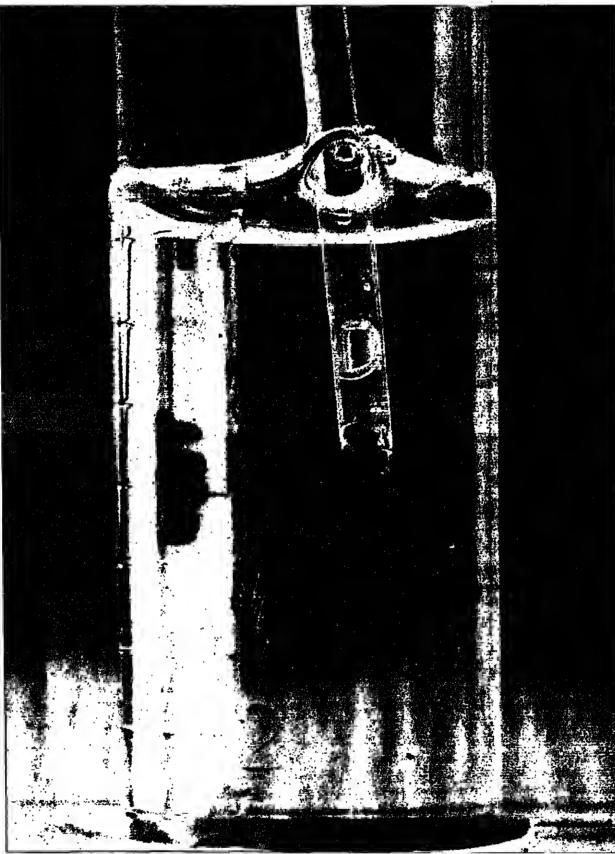

Depending on the length of time that emhryos have been stored, it is also possible that the siblings could be born as much as 20 years apart.

The adoption of embryos: how to keep them apart

in an attempt to stop "orphan embryos" from being destroyed, Life was among the organis-ations which offered to "adopt" them. To an extent, with the dis-tribution of donated embryos between families (see left) this already takes place.

Julia Cole, spokesperson for the marriage guidance organ-isation, Relate, believes that the practice raises serious issues. For a start," she said, "how do you stop [people], grown from sihling emhyos, from growing up and marrying each other?" New research showed that clients requiring the most counwere not brought up by their original parents. "How would you feel, growing up knowing you were adopted as a four-tosix- week cell because your parents oo longer wanted you. and you were about to be

Moment of death: A glass straw containing an embryo is lowered into fixative solution. Photograph: Peter Macdiannid

The donors

The anonymous sperm donor: how can he give consent?

One couple lost their embryos sterday after failing to locate their sperm donor in time. That particular couple had undergone an attempt at treatment that failed, then shortly afterwards were offered a child for adoption. The adoption agency made them promise not to have another baby while the adopted child was settling in, as it was rather disturbed, and they agreed," said their consultant. Unfortunately, the child had not settled in by this week's

Earlier this week, the wife was planning an injunction [to prevent the destruction]. But the High Court said they had to publish her and her husband's name and the couple didn't want to publicise the fact of the husband's infertility," he said. Professor John Scarisbrick. chairman to the trustees of the that that there is an incongruity in the importance given m the case of embryos to the faprocess of abortion. "Why ing to help," he said.

should the father's consent to the survival of offspring in vitro be critical?" he said yester-

The egg donor: the problems of donation.

According to Life, many egg donors claim they were not contacted about the imminent destruction of their fertilised eggs. Some women have contacted them to say they are appalled at the destruction of the eggs they had gone to so much trouble to provide, after clinics failed to notify them in time.

"Some women are furious about this. They feel they got into egg donation for altruistic reasons but many say they will not do it again," a spokesman

Dr Bromwich of the Midlands Fertility Service agreed, and said that obtaining eggs from donors was already difficult, both in terms of persuading women to do it and the

"It's much easier to get men to donate semen; it's fairly simple, it's quick and it's quite good ther's consent in the right to life, fun. With women it's quite a dif-when he has no rights over the ferent procedure. This isn't go-

Ned Kelly rides again in £42m battle

ROBERT MILLIKEN Sydney:

Ned Kelly would probably be amused. The infamous 19thcentury Australian bushranger. or outlaw, has reached from beyoud his grave to spark a court hattle in which descendants of six Aboriginal trackers are claiming £42m over their antecedents roles in Kelly's capture.

The money represents accu-mulated interest and damages over the sum of £50 to which the trackers were entitled from the (8.000) reward for Kelly's capture in 1880, but which their relatives claim they never received. This is about justice and reconciliation." said John Lee Jones, 64, a distant relation of the trackers, who has launched a writ against the state governments of Victoria and Queens-

: 3

Ned Kelly: Tracked down in 1880 Illustration: Sidney Nolan

land in the Queensland months later. Supreme Court. Mr Jooes comes from Fraser Island, off the Queensland coast, where Victoria's authorities recruited Aboriginal trackers to help film, The Story of the Kelly them hunt down Kelly and his Gang, in 1906, and an ill-fated gang as they shot, looted and robbed their way across the state in the late 1870s. Victoria's own Aboriginal trackers, it seems, were too sympathetic to the Kelly gang, and led the police in circles. The court case has assumed something of the spirit of Ned Kelly, who remains an Australian folk hero over his resourcefulness and refusal to be howed by authority. Covered from head to toe in 100lb of armour, Kelly made his last stand at Glenrowan, Victoria, in June 1880, and was hanged in Melbourne five "Give me a short life and a happy one," he is reputed to have said on the gallows. His life inspired Australia's first feature

versioo starring Mick Jagger as

Mr Jones has filed the claim on behalf of the descendants of Jack Nohle and Gary Owens, two of the original trackers who, the families say, died in poverty after never being paid the promised £50 for their part in Kelly's capture. One relative.

May McBride, 80, remembers

her mother complaining conmentary evidence to prove that the money was not paid. If his claim succeeds, the money will he paid into a trust for education, housing and health care for the trackers' descendants. Did he think £42m was excessive?

"No. The government still has a duty of trust to living Aborigines. And our economy is based on the discharge of debt."

Mr Jones says he has docustantly about the money.

Ned in 1970.

Labour hits back Labour launched a summer

campaign against "Tory lies" yesterday, claiming to have learnt the lesson of allowing Conservative propaganda to go unchallenged in the 1992 election campaign.

BSE slaughter

Up to 30,000 more cattle may have to be slaughtered to eradicate 'mad cow' disease in the UK, after the announcement that it can be inherited by calves born to animals with the disease.

Bishop assassinated France reacted with outrage to the assassination of one of Algeria's leading Catholic churchmen, Bishop Pierre Claverie, in a bomb attack in Oran, but in sisted that the two countries had to continue recently-resumed political dialogue.

Section 1 BUSINESS & CITY COMMENT ......... 13-15 CROSSWORD ....... 2,26

WEATHER .....2 Weekend Section ARTS ..... LISTINGS ..... 24 MONEY . . . . . . . . . . . . 21-23 PROPERTY .....20 SHOPPING ..... TRAVEL . . . . . . . . . . . 14-19 TV & RADIO . . . . . . 25,26

WHERE TO ACQUIRE A TASTE FOR OYSTERS

ROLEX

The seamless Oyster shell of a Rolex chronometer is bewn from a single block of stainless steel, 8ct. gold or platinum. Within it lies a self-winding movement that has taken over a year to create. With prices starting at £1.155, the Oyster you always promised yourself is available from the Harrods Watch Department on the Ground Floor. Not, we might add, from the Food Hall.

nown orcailable in 18et. yelloo gold priced £9,900. hate gold £19,585 and platimum £16,995

Royalty's greatest sex symbol Penelope Mortimer presents an unconventional view of the Queen Mother

Ben Elton Is he the new Mary Whitehouse?

A taste of honey: recipes for summer

INDEPENDENT	special	offer

half-price tomorrow

WHOLESALER'S NAME

RETAILER'S BOX NO

Maro this rougher to the newsageth with a copy of the Independent on Sunday 4 August 1996 and pay only 60p (Home delivery customers have until 31 August 1996 to present his voucher to your newsagenti. To the Retailer custer purys 5Cp). To receive your normal rum me completed voucher to your notestate to 4 September 1996. This rR Q.L 82p). This troudes 2p relater handing allowance per voucher. To claim your credit together with tig per voucher handled, please send to. Voucher Redemption List,

on Monday

Hand this voucher to the newsopers with a copy of The Independent on Monday 5 August 1996 and pay only 100, (Home delivery customers have until 2 September 1996 in present this voucher to your newspert). To the Retailler Please accept this voucher as part payment for The Independent on Monday 5 August 1996, (reacher pays 10p). To receive your newspert was a part payment of the Independent on Monday 5 August 1996, (reacher pays 10p). To receive your committeement whis a Partition late, please narmal terms olds a 2p handling tee, pic logether with 1p per voucher handled, ple send to Voucher Redemption Ltd. 17 Orion Court, Crange Farm Rd.

Please credit the returning retailer with 32p (90) 37p) This includes 2p Retailer Handlin

Abovence per validher. To claim your crod

Labour takes to beaches to rock the vote

Political Correspondent

John Prescott, the deputy Labour leader, launched a summer holiday campaign against "Tory lies" yesterday, claiming to have learnt the lesson of allowing Conservative propa-ganda to go unchallenged in the 1992 election campaign.

To the refrain of "Sweettalking lies" by the Chiffons and "Unbelievable" by EMF, Mr Prescott pledged at a West-minster news conference to patrol the beaches hothering holidaymakers: "I'll be cheeking whether they're reading Jeffrev Archer or our pledge card." he said.

Party supporters from Blackpool to Benidorm are being issued with posters, beach hats. mini frisbees, plastic sunglasses and cards hearing Labour's five early pledges, and sticks of rock with the words "TORY LIES" running through them.

The Benidorm edition of yesterday's Sun (225 pesclas, now printed in Spain and the Canaries") carried a full-page Labour advertisement headed: "Do you speak Tory?" It listed nine "useful translations for those travelling to the United Kingdom" of "Tory phrases", including "No tax increases". which Labour says means "22

new taxes since 1992". jocular style belies Labour alarm at opinion research suggesting that the Tory campaign. "New Labour. New Danger", was hitting home. Yesterday's news conference was attended by Chris Powell. head of the BMP advertising agency. He is believed to be behind Labour's riposte, "Same old Tories, same old lies".

A MORI poli yesterday showed the Tories had retaken the lead as the best party on

"law and order" and thy one point) "managing the economy"
- although Labour still leads on eight of the top Itt issues. Frank Dobson, Labour's environment spokesman, said the party had failed to respond effectively to Saatchi & Saatchi's campaign in the run-up to the 1992 election, warning of a Labour "tax bombshell", He said: "We thought their lying was so blatant we could ignore it. We believed the news media and the public, would recognise that the Tories were lying about Labour's plans."

Charles Hendry. Tory party vice-chairman, dismissed the £500,000 campaign: "People go to Spain for sun, sea and sangria, not socialism."

The Torics have dropped a plan to place posters at holiday airports reminding people they are returning to a country with one of the lowest unemployment levels, and enjoying low mortgage and interest rates.

Even on the issues contested by Labour's campaign, the facts of the argument were hardly at the centre of the debate. Labour's poster lists five "Tory lies": that Labour will be soft on criminals, will increase taxes, put up interest rates and mortgages, give up the national veto in Europe and that the minimum wage will cost jobs.

But the "truth" about Labour that Labour will "seek tough sentences for violent crimes and the swift punishment of persistent young offenders", will "aim to reduce taxes for ordinary people", will "keep inter-est rates and inflation as low as possible" and will "keep the veto". The poster also says: New Labour will set a realistic minimum wage that protects jobs, having consulted with businesses and employees".

Part of gun (o)

Unlawful (7)

Distort (6)

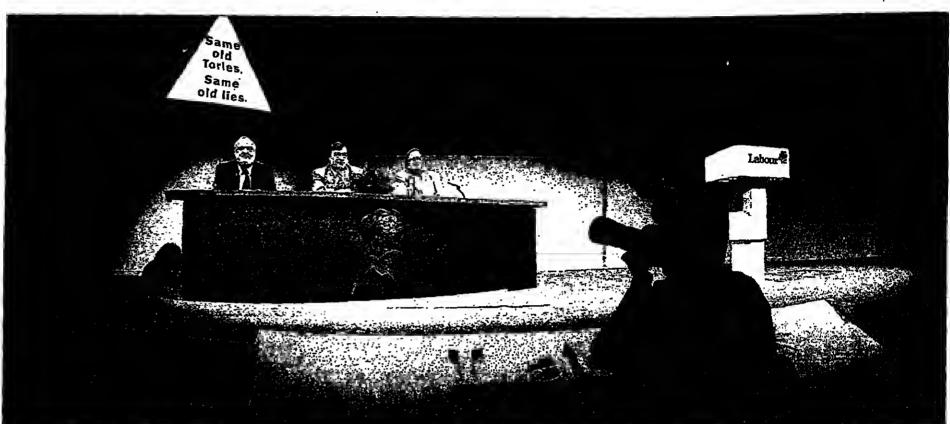

8 Lace frill (5) 13 Worker (8)

Greek fetter (5)

Caudal appendage (4) Chemical process (7)

15 Stringed instrument (?)

17 Holder for shell! (3-3)

Red alert: John Prescott at yesterday's launch of Labour's campaign against "Tory lies". Beach hats and sticks of rock will be given to beach-goers Photograph: Adrian Cook

Summertime blues Just when you thought it was safe ... or, why politicians can never take a

August 1990: Saddam . . . Hussein invaded Kuwait August 1991: Coun attempt against Mikhail Gorbachev

August 1992: Sterling crisis forced John Major to return early from Spanish holiday August 1993: Tory turmoil after leak of Prime Minister's comments about "bastards" August 1994: IRA ceasefire August 1995: Tony Blair hit by first wave of real dissent, including Roy Hattersley accusing him of ignoring the poor

Weather forecast

المناشقة والمراجع والمراجع

Out and about with AA Roadwatch

:: 0336 401777 wes retuiter a retuiture.

 $(x_1,x_1)^2 + \delta(x_1,x_2,x_3) + \delta(x_1,x$

For a couple of weeks this summer. John Prescott is in charge of the Labour Party, as Tony Blair heads off today to Italy and an office held by George Brown number to be Acting Prime inut so bluck show if there were a Labour Wilson's first administration. government - and would he be The assumption must be that a "heartheat away from power"? Mr Prescott would deputise for

Prime Minister Blair to the The answer to the first question is that, although Mr Commons. Prescott would still be deputy leader, so far Mr Blair bas re-But Mr Prescott would not automatically become Prime Minister if, in the delicate lanfused to say that he would be Deputy Prime Minister - deguage of the Labour Party conspite the fact that he shadows stitution, Mr Blair became Michael Heseltine, for whom "permanently unavailable". the title was revived last year. A rule change made at the The Independent understands 1993 Labour conference says

John Rentoul reports on the deputy leader's likely role that Mr Blair has promised Mr that, in government, the Cabi- But Harold Wilson had a First

First Secretary' Prescott at the helm elected. On the basis of the present Shadow Cabinet, that would seem to be a close race between Chancellor Gordon

Brown and Foreign Secretary Robin Cook. ister since the title was held by Herbert Morrison in 1945-51.

Prescott the title First Secretary, net must choose one of its Secretary, throughout his 1964-70 government, who ranked second in the ministerial pecking order. The title was invented, after the "night of the long knives" in 1962, for RA Butler - who also combined it with Deputy Prime Minister.

It is believed that Mr Blair has Secretary are met with standard dismissals of "pure speculation" from Labour officials. Some Labour MPs assume the Home Office is regarded as a "safe" job which would keep him occupied, and well away from shadow Chancellor Gordon Brown's economic readvantage, according to one ob-Labour governments bave not yet made a decision about server, that Mr Blair, as a for-not had a Deputy Prime Min- Mr Prescott's departmental re- mer shadow Home Secretary. sponsibilities if Labour wins would be able to keep an inthe next election. Press reports formed eye on him.

Essential reading for landlords and tenants

Thinking of letting your help you avoid the pitfalls that • what to do about harassment property? Unsure of your rights await the unwary, as well as save or threats of eviction • and as a tenant? Then get help with you time, money and potentially much, much more! The Which? Guide to Renting costly legal action, too.

and Letting. Whether you are renting or . what sort of tenaocy to grant reading for unione planning to letting a house. Ilal or room, you e rents and deposits e grounds rent - or let - a property. need to be aware of your legal for possession during a tenancy. The Which? Guide to Renting rights, the financial implications and bow to obtain a court and Letting costs just £10,99 of the agreement and the order. Tenants will discover (P&P FREE), so why not order

For landlords there's advice on concise and accessible book could . whether they can sublet satisfied.

Complete with sample letting agreements, this book is required practicalides of the landlord tenam • who pays the council tax, your copy NOW using the order relationship. And this clear, utility charges and repair hills form helow! Full refund if not

Buying or selling a flat?

Buying and selling a flat can be far from straightforward but, armed with a copy of Which? Way to Buy, Own and Sell a Flat. you can avoid the pitfalls. It alerts you to potential problems specific to flats, and guides you through the whole conveyancing process. It advises on . finding a suitable property • exchanging contracts and completion · mortgages · service charges and management companies · the terms of the lease · the relationship between freeholder and leaseholder . what to do if problems arise.

This new book from Which? looks at flat-owners' rights and ohligations and covers, in detail. the effects of new tegislatio concerning . covenants . th tenant's right to buy a new leas · collective enfranchisemen (purchase of the freehold by group of tenants). Flat-owner who want to know their right and anyone thinking of buying or selling a flat - especially fire time buyers - will find th advice invaluable. Which? Way to Buy. Own at

Sell a Flat costs just £10.5 (P&P FREE), so why not ordyour copy NOW using the orde form on the right? Full refund not satisfied.

Thinking of moving house? Then read Which? Way to Buy, that could save you time, trouble

Selt and Move House lirst. - and money! It looks at Buying and selling a house expenses - what to expect and can he stressful and expensive, bow to keep them to a minimum but you can minimise the egetting the most from your problems by joining the estate agent and/or solicitor 100,000-plus readers of this . arranging your mortgage popular Which? hook. Packed • insurance, valuations and with impartial information for surveys • auctions and buying first-time buyers and seasoned repossessed property • and home-owners alike, it helps much more besides! you to stay in control of the Which? Way to Buy, Sell and situation - and your solicitor - Move House costs just £10.99

first viewing and getting an offer satisfied. accepted, to exchanging (Please note that this book does is packed with valuable advice of fluts.)

at every stage. (P&P FREE), so why not order All legal financial and practical your copy NOW using the order aspects are fully explained. From form below? Full refund if not contracts and completion; this not cover property trunsfer in book explains all the jargon and Northern Ireland, or the purchase

Plane rend me the books of planned below, on the understanding that I can be it I am not completely satisfied.	tern them her a full schape
"Ante samber of capies reduited as appropriate benieve be, or
The Which? Goods to Besting and Leading to $10.99 each (PLP FREE)
Which? Way to Bury, Sell and Yant Rance of $10.00 cm/s (PAF FREE)
Hinch? Way to Buy, Own and Self a Flat in $10.00 cash (PAP FRET)	SDRO
	31 00
I enclose cheque PO for £(pavable to Which* Ltd) OR Piere charge in Agera Can Amea Dinery Chip
Cate Time Time Time Time Time Time Time Tim	Espire 1
number	سلسا / لسلسا
Signed Date
Name Address
Postcode

20 Natural sugar (7) 18 High temperature (5) 19 Boring tool (b) 22 Philosophical disciple of 2) White wine (4) 24 Lucid (5) 25 Entangle (7t Zeno (5) 23 Comply with (4) 27 Sailing vessel (5). Solution to gesterday's Concise Crossword: ACROSS: 7 Allews, 8 Commit (Halley's council, 10 Terrier, 71 Quasi 12 Fuel, 13 Expel, 17 Gamma, 18 Febr. 22 Drank, 25 Jantrum, 24 Experient, 25 States, DOWN; 1 Mashiff, 2 Blarney, 5 Conic, 4 Conquer, 5 Ambit, 6 State, 9 Provinciate, 14 Jackass, 15 Recruit, 16 Trummed, 19 Adder, 20 Taboo, 21 Angle. Notes hæ eid Mk

ACROSS

Animal (5)

Copy (7)

11 Style (4) 12 Of the eye (7)

13 Sale item (3)

to Cereal (4)

18 Marsh (3)

sh

14 Mountain lion (4)

Going wrong (6)

10 Austrian psychiatrist (5)

TODAY'S FORECAST: Most of Sections of the high sunty spells and a moderate southwest bream, but north-weaters parts will have a little rain and strong south-west winds. N. Ireland should be dry with some sensible and a sewin-westarly bream. England and Wates will be fine with wome analyse and patchy choud, but wome of the coasts will get a cooling afternoon bream. counts will get a cooling after-noon breeze. OUTLOOK FOR THE NEXT FEW OAYS: Sunday will see more warm amabine owe regard end Wales. Scotland and N. heland will get hosy sunshme, but with wind end rate in the west. England and Wales will get more warshine on Monday, but show-ary rain will move into the west. Scotland and N. Iretand will get some howy rain and brish wholes. Many places will catch showers on Tresday, but the weather should settle dows after that. ADORPOS, Alexandro Alexand Independent Weatherline LIGHTING-UP TIMES 05.37 05.37 05.31 Nitrogen Dior Good Good Good Good Good Good 25 24 For izaset 21 23 forecasts dud 22 0891 5009 plus 22 the lwn dryts 23 for your ena 25 19 HIGH TIDES - 2 Outlook for es London - 3 Sangand - Water - 1 Footstand 1455 Good Good Good Good Good Good Good :..---01 18 14 1 68 51 | 4 5 Wates CEngland 21.71 300 At 10 C_22 44

حكذا من الاجل

TOTAL S

∰arti v

are believed to run 80 per cent of the multi-million pound heroin trade. In the past 10 years they have wrested control from Pakistani and Indian traffickers Muslum Simsek, 31, who was sentenced at Southwark Crown Court, south London, to 30 years yesterday, is among the top 20 British operators, although his boss has not been caught. In March customs officers warned that Britain was oo the lice protection throughout the cessfully denied the conspiracy charge, received 26 years. The jury received 24-hour po-

a pineapple-flavoured strawberry, and a green-pea steak KATE WATSON-SMYTH

L taste o

toney:

PCPC :

HATTID III

ber and still have the juiciness and flavour of a proper straw-On a London street a builder berry," he said. stood idly peeling an orange and enjoying his lunch, little know-expensive, to eat English straw-

Supermarkets will be able to time of year", simply because it

Modern intensive farming

GENETICALLY

methods have increased the

And we will want to.

apples at Easter.

it has been at the expense of the taste of the fruit, producing delicious-looking food which is disappointingly

hland. Now, scientists are trying to put back the flavours of yesteryear, and return us to the golden age of the apple and the ucculent straw-

market in Britain

£40 per head.

is worth £2.2bn annually, of which 72 per cent is spent in supermarkets. That is the equivalent of £95 per household, or

A team at the government-funded Horticulture Research

Institute (HRI) believes that by increasing the flavour and shelf-life of British fruit there will no longer be any need to import vast quantities from overseas.

Last year Britons spent £190m

on imported apples, with £80m

Dr David Simpson, a strawberry breeder at HRL, in East

Malling, Kent. believes that nature simply needs a helping hand to cope with our constant craving for better and more no longer taste good is because breeders have had to concentrate on increasing shelf-

The reason that strawberries on Prench apples alone.

interesting food.

taste." he said.

Dr Simpson has also created a white strawberry but this is uning that inside the building belikely to be a commercial suchind him, a group of scientists cess as growers were unable to were planning a fruit revolution. tell when it was ripe enough to These men have seen the fupick. It also tasted of pineapple. ture and it involves an orgy of

All this has been achieved by fruit all year round. No longer extensive crossbreeding and will it be impossible, or ruinously careful refining. Elsewhere at East Malling they have gone berries at Christmas, or Kentish one step further and are using genetic modification to increase different fruits' resistance to manipulate our jaded palates disease as well as to improve into eating fruit at the "wrong flavour and prolong shelf-life. Professor David James, who heads the Fruit Biotechnology group at HRL said his team had identified genes which control the ripening process in apples, shelf-life of the fruit we eat, but and had begun trials on the Queen Cox ing that the genes will programme the apple to dra-matically reduce its production of ethylene, which responsible for the ripening process," he said. "By inserting these [genes], we should be able to slow down the ripening process apple's shelf-life without losing flavour." This process has already proved successful in cantaloupe melons and tomatoes, and trials will be completed in the next two or three years.

Genetic modification does not end with the improvement of fruits as we are used to see ing them. It has also been used to reinvent the gooseberry.

For many years this green, hard and spiny fruit has had an image problem, and has been relegated mainly to the canning industry. Enter the red goose berry, set to be the fruit of the 21st century. Fat, sweet and smooth-skinned, it practically begs for Delia Smith to give it the cranberry treatment.

Nor is it just fruit that is being manipulated. At Lucas Ingredients, scientists have spent five years extracting protein from everything from grass to life, which meant using lots of lupins in their search for a new chemicals and led to a loss of meat substitute.

They settled on the humble round that, and have bred the which combines pea protein Bolero strawberry, which will and wheat gluten, will appear in rector of Lucas Ingredients, that come ready-dipped in

Scientists have tasted the future – it's a red gooseberry,

Seasons stretch to fill the shelves

There is a body of opinion tending the seasons becomes that believes that shops distasteful is if there is a reshould respect the homegrown season for produce like asparagus and strawberries by oot stocking them out of season. While it is an understandable

Year-round availability is And this is where horticulture can play a positive role. If the choice is between a new variety of vegetable de-sentiment, it is oot realistic.

veloped to be grown at home out of season. highly durable in Latin America or Africa where controls are not as stringent as they are in Britain, at that point I am in favour of extending the home-grown In fact the seasons are changing so fast year on development of new varieties and new farming methods that it is difficult to say with any confidence exactly when they fall for any given fruit or vegetable. It has become accepted that there is an early, a mid and a late season for most crops, and more recently I have heard the term extra-late.

The point at which ex-

liance on unnatural methods of production, artificial daylight, or on chemicals. There is nothing wrong with glasshouse production, we have been practising it for hundreds of years. It is the extremes that are questionable.

Likewise we have been cross-breeding crops to produce certain features for a son why a oew variety should not be as good, or even better, than an existing one. It hrceding is purely for purely vield or speed and there is no consideration of quality that becomes The real danger lies with transgenic varieties, those year with the Asparagus: Quality versus quantity of produce is difficult to see anything good about tampering with nature in this fashioo. But to see all new strains in a negative light deny the Annie Bell have been created by mov-

to another. It

Brussels out to slice the British loaf

JOHN RENTOUL Political Correspondent

Labour presented itself yester-day as the defender of a 700year-old British law against the encroachment of Brussels as it launched a campaign to "save the British loaf".

Ever since King John enacted the Assize of Bread in 1266, the weight of loaves in England has been regulated. But now, barons.

JASON BENNETTO

into London.

Crime Correspondent

One of Britain's major heroin smugglers was jailed for 30 years yesterday in an operation

by Customs and Excise investigators which revealed the growing meoace of Turkish drug

Two other Turkish Kurds also received long sentences along with a Czech driver, who used

50kg consignments of heroin

Customs officers believe millions of pounds worth of heroin was simuggled into Britain and sold before the gang was caught with 198kg of the narcotic. The scizure last September, which had an estimated street value of up to £60m, was the second-largest haul in Britain.

The operation provided further evidence of the influence of Turkish drugs gangs operating from north London. About 20

a pensioners' tour bus to ship

Turkish gang

jailed for heroin smuggling

the UK we buy bread by the loaf. Consumers are protected because whatever the shape or size of the loaf, they get the same weight of bread by law - 800g in the case of a standard family loaf, which represents 85 per cent of all bread sales," he said.

er cent to a record total in 1995. They recovered 1,118kg of heroin, which is now the most

After the trial customs investigator Steve Hemsley said:

"These convictions and sentences represent a significant victory against the Turkish common class A drug.

1988 Weights and Measures Order. All British bread described as a loaf must be made in either full 800g or half 400g

The product, called Arrum, is aimed at a fast-growing market. The recent food scares and the desire for healthy eating have prompted nearly 50 per cent of Britons to cut back on their meat consumption. The UK market for vegetarian foods

David Baines, technical di-has grown by 83 per cent in the sizes, unless it is below 300g. But the EC regards this law as a barrier to trade, and wants it scrapped. A directive to be considered by the European The standard loaf was halved Parliament would allow loaves warns Nigel Griffiths, Labour consumer spokesman, a draft European Union directive threatens the standard loaf. "In 1988 Weights and Measures of any weight to be sold, and labelled in "pence per gram".

As Labour pledges its opposition, however, the affair has said pea protein was "very palatable." It can be flavoured to taste like meat, and can also

he made to look like meat with the addition of colourings.

al political alignments, with the Government's "deregulation taskforce" at the Department of Trade and Industry keen to get rid of the old laws - "just be-cause they are rules", said Tony Casdagli, director of the Fed-

UVF disbands unit linked to taxi murder

MICHAEL STREETER verge of a heroin epidemic, with seizures of the drug up 80

An ontlawed loyalist paramilitary group yesterday disbanded a unit linked to the murder of a Catholic taxi-driver. The Ulster Volunteer Force (UVF) said it was acting against the Portadown unit of its Mid-Ulster brigade, widely seen in loyalist paramilitary circles as a loose cannon which has close links with the paramilitary group. The statement said he was too close to gangs who are responsible for importing so much misery to The unit, led by a man known as "King Rat", has been linked "We know Simsek has been in Britain for 10 years and are with the death of Michael Mc-Goldrick, a part-time taxi-driver and student found shot convinced that for most, if not dead near Lurgan, Co Armagh all, of this time he has been inon 7 July. The murder, at the volved in smuggling in con-signments worth hundreds of beginning of the Drumcree siege, fuelled nationalist anger millions of pounds.". at the Orange Order and Unionists during the following week of noting. At the time, loy-Also jailed was car salesman Ali Aksu, 32, of Bounds Green, north London, the only one of alist paramilitary groups denied responsibility, though a number the four to plead guilty. The judge described him as a "mid-ranker" in the plot. He was senof men in Portadown with links to the UVF were arrested by the tenced to 20 years. RUC. They were later released Huseyin Kaynak, 34, of without charge. Wood Green, north London, The UVF move will be seen who was also convicted of the as reinforcing the loyalists' de-sire to hold their ceasefire, deconspiracy, was a "courier-cumerrand boy". He was jailed for spite the end of the IRA truce. A section of the Mid-Ulster Coach driver Tomas Honz, brigade reportedly issued a statement condemning the line of David Ervine, spokesman for the Progressive Unionist Party, which has close links with the 27, from Liberic, in the Czech Republic, who had also unsuc-

the oationalist position during the multi-party peace talks at Stormont

Though yesterday's move does not mean the UVF has re nounced violence, it is clear it will not be forced back into armed conflict by an increas ingly uncontrolled section, which has recently been urging terrorist strikes aimed at

Earlier this week the PUP and UVF hierarchy were reassured when the Stormont talks adjourned without agreeing on early discussions on decommissioning terrorist weapons, a move which the loyalists claim would hamper them agains the threat of the IRA.

■ John Bruton, the Irish Prime Minister appealed to London-derry's nationalist community to recognise the traditional importance of next week's Protes tant Apprentice Boys' parade through the city. He said he understood the August march were going "comparatively well". "The siege of Derry has an important significance in the mind of the unionist community and represents an expression of their distinctive identity in Ireland. It is very important that that should be recognised by the majority community in Derry, talks about a route for the 10

If you'd like to know more about our unique whiskey, write to us for a free booklet at the Jack Daniel Distillery, Lynchburg. Tennessee USA.

IF CHECKERS ever gets to be an international sport, we probably have a couple of gold medalists here at Jack Daniel Distillery.

Our employees have plenty of time to practice. Truth is, there's not much else to do while we're waiting for our whiskey to age. So we work on our crowns and jumps and storytelling, while the Tennessee Whiskey inside our charred oak barrels gains the rareness you've come to expect. Hurrying only harms good whiskey; according to these men, it's not much help to a checker player, either.

JACK DANIEL'S TENNESSEE WHISKEY

who are the nationalist com-

Schools to test five-year-olds on three Rs

FRAN ABRAMS Education Correspondent

Five-year-olds will be assessed on their knowledge of the three Rs when they start school, under a new system designed to help compile league tables of primary schools, it emerged vesterday.

The plans, due to be announced in the autumn, will not involve formal testing. Instead. teachers will mark their pupils against a check-list of what they do. For example, they will assess whether a child can look at a book and tell the story from memory, recognise letters or words, or read simple texts. They will also examine whether pupils starting school can write their own names, order objects by size, or count objects

The "baseline assessment" could be used to compile league tables which would measure not only how each school's pupils did against the national average in tests at seven, 11 and 14 but also how far they had

There have been criticisms

Reading. Can the appropriately, turn the ☐ Repeat some words

☐ Recognise letters by shape and sound?

☐ Read familiar words

☐ Read simple texts:

Writing. Can he

□ Write symbols and letters?

and lower case letters correctly?

□ Write his or her own name using upper pages and retell a story from memory?

child...

□ Hold a book of the text from memory?

in a range of or she...

ye pı

oc pli

ve Ix hk

on

D;

Αt

ļγ

Πĸ

tio

sid

fre

Al

tio

ſси

ha

ю

sid Mi

¢N

into account social differences and the tendency for children in middle-class areas to he much more advanced when they start school than those in deprived areas.

All children would take part in the scheme from September. 1998. At present, about half of all local authorities have some kind of tests at five to check on how advanced children are when they start school. These might have to be adapted to fit in with the new national

The School Curriculum and essment Authority (SCAA). will consult teachers in the autumn on its plans. Legislation will be needed hefore the changes can be implemented, and this would not take place until after the next general election. The Labour Party has been committed to the princi-pal of testing children at five for some time and would be keen to implement the plans, along with a system of improvement targets for all schools.

Gillian Shephard, the Secretary of State for Education. asked SCAA in January to dethat raw test results do not take velop proposals for baseline differences.

Baseline assessment: a draft checklist assessment. In September the authority will publish three different models, all of which will give each child a numerical score. The models will be piloted during a consultation period later in the year.

A spokesman for SCAA said its aim was to work out a nationally consistent way of assessing what children can do when they enter primary

"First of all this is so there is a possibility of working out some measure of the value added by a school between entry and the key stage one tests when children are seven.

"Second, it is to support teachers in assessing where children are and what teaching they will need in the first two years of schooling," he said. The proposals will anger some teachers who believe the assessments will not measure children's abilities accurately enough to be used for teague tables. However, others will prefer the idea of value-added league tables to raw test results saying that they will make some allowance for social

Hear word sounds

corresponding letters and write in sequence?

sentences?

Attempt to write

Attempt to spell unfamiliar words?

Mathematics.

Can the child...

☐ Create patterns?

□ Order objects by ☐ Identify sequences?

□ Match similar objects to one another?

□ Count objects accurately?

□ Add and subtract using objects?

☐ Solve numerical problems using addition

☐ Recognise numbers?

☐ Write numbers?

Night in the water: A swimmer on Ryde pier pausing to survey the full moon above the Solent, before setting out to swim round the isle of Wight. The relay team of staff from Southampton University almed to cover the 65-mile distance in about 23 hours

EU gives £40m to fight poverty

LOUISE JURY

Some of Britain's most deprived inner-city areas will ben-efit from a £40m EU package to create more than 2,500 jobs and 8,500 training places, it was announced yesterday.

Liverpool will he the biggest beneficiary, with £11.8m; Glasgow gets £10.9m, Manchester £6.4m, and Sheffield and Nottingham £5.4m apiece.

The money was welcomed by council leaders for the boost it gives to areas plagued by high unemployment, crime and ill-health. Further grants are in the pipeline to help parts of London, Birmingham and Swansea.

All the schemes were nominated by the Government two years ago, but there have been some delays.

Liverpool council leader In addition to bringing new ank Prendergast said he was trade to the area and boosting Frank Prendergast said he was pleased that problems between the Government and Brussels had been resolved and the money had been released. "This funding will improve security [and] health and provide jobs to combat inner-city deprivation."

On Merseyside, the grant will go towards creating more than 220 jobs and training 1,700 people in the Liverpool Central, north Huyton and Netherton areas. The Liverpool Central programme will focus on improving people's job prospects by im-proving their health.

Cutting crime is crucial for the strife-torn areas of Hulme and Moss Side in Manchester. which suffer twice the average unemployment rate and 15 times the number of robberies.

existing business, the plan is to cut car crime, violent crime and hurgiaries by 10 per cent.

Richard Leese the council leader, said: "I am delighted at this news ... We hope to be able soon to agree with Government and local partners the structures and quality projects we all want to see happen."

In Sheffield, the grant will go towards creating 400 jobs and training 500 people in the north-west inner-city area, where unemployment runs at 32 per cent following steel plant closures. Renate Smith, the council's Europe information officer. said they were "delighted". She said involving the community was a vital part of the EU urban programme. "It is a bottom-up approach, empowermg communities so people can run their own projects and car-ry them on when the European ly welcome". money is finished."

M

In Scotland, 200 jobs and 4,500 training places will be created in Paisley and a further 500 iobs and 500 training places in Glasgow North. Gordon Macdiarmid, the council's deputy leader, welcomed the assistance. "Glasgow needs this continued support, and increased financial assistance ... if it is to make a positive contribution towards alleviating the long-term problems of unemployment and the continuing erosion of its industri-al base," he said.

A spokesman for Nottingham city council, where 300 jobs, 800 care places will be created, said that the money was "extreme-

Most European funding was provided to regions, but the urban programme was focused on much smaller areas. "It allows us to address underlying social and environmental problems that ultimately have a detrimental effect on the local economy." he commented. A spokeswoman for the European commissioner in charge of regional policy, Monika Wolf-Mathies, said: "Britain is getting quite a good share."

Parts of Naples and Venice in Italy, Lille and Paris in France. Magdeburg in Germany and Dublin and Cork in the Irish Republic are also to benefit under the programme.

Renewing your home insurance in August or September and want to save money?

If you are 50 or over call free! 0800 414 525

ext.3761 Lines open Monday to Friday Jam - 6pm. Saturdays Jam - 1pm septiments pay being to sell bluew bill our to seed at hitsing years with bins others Services Ltd

	_
Destination	First Telecom	B.T.	Save %
USA	£1.18	08.82	69%
Indio	£7.29	£12.70	43%
Canado	£1.65	23.80	57%
Australia	£2.23	₹5.90	62%
South Africa	£4.70	Σ8.20	43%
Germany/France	£2.11	£2.96	29%
Nigeria	£7.05	£11.05	35%
Hong Kong	£4.11	£7.30	44%
Pakistan	£9.16	£12.60	27%
	USA Indio Canado Australia South Africa Germany/France Nigeria Hong Kong	USA £1.18 Indio £7.29 Canado £1.65 Australia £2.23 South Africa £4.70 Germany/France £2.11 Nigeria £7.05 Hong Kong £4.11	USA £1.18 £3.80 Indio £7.29 £12.70 Canado £1.65 £3.80 Australia £2.23 £5.90 South Africa £4.70 £8.20 Germany/France £2.11 £2.96 Nigeria £7.05 £11.05 Hong Kong £4.11 £7.30

(Price comparison based on a 10 minute call)*

- * No Access Charge to our Exchange
- * Savings to 100's of countries * "Miguto Milos" bangs ovadable
- * No start-up costs, membership or joioing fees * Business and Residential castamers welcomo.
- * Operators available, 24hrs a day, 7 days o week
- * Toll quality

FREEPHONE 0800 376 66 66

BEFORE YOU PHONE THE WORLD, PHONE US.

Blobally Speaking a service provided by First Telecom ple Licenses Corres "First Releases stariffs shown are weekend rates inclusive of WII British Teleases tariffs shown are economy rates inclusive of WII. All charges correct as of July 1996.

DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS REVISED INTEREST RATES

EFFECTIVE FROM 3 AUGUST 1996

Amount you invest	# Citarie	"Gross CAR"	" .Vet.	CAR
GREAT NORTH POSTAL DEPOS	ST ACCO	RITLE
£100,000 or more	6.60		5.28
LS0.000 - £44.499	6.30		5.04
£25,000 · £49,999	6.20		4.96
25,000 · £24,999	6.00	-	4.80
CSD - £4,999	0.50	:	0.40	:
DEPOSIT 120 DAY ACCOUNT (Annual and Monthly Interest)
£50.000 or more	4.70	-	5.76
(25,000 - 649,999	3.70	-	2.96
£10,000 - £24,999	3.10	-	2.48
£5,000 - £9,999	3.00		2.40
£30 · £4.999	0.50		0.40
DEPOSIT INSTANT ACCESS AC (Annual Interen)	COUNT
541,000 or more	2.15		1.72
£25,900 - £34,499	1.45		1.16
410,000 - 624,999	1.00		(3.87)
£1.000 - £9.999	0.65		0.52
£500 - £999	0.60	_	0.48
£50 - £449	0,50		0.40
DEPOSIT CURRENT ACCOUNT
£50,000 or more	2.08	2.10	1.66	1.68
L75,000 - E44,949	1.09	1.10	0.8	0.88
410,000 - 474,999	0.75	0.75	0.60	0.50
57 9(HI - £4.499	04.0	0.60	0.48	0.48
(1.031 - (2.499)	0.55	12.55	0.44	0.44
£50 - £999	0.50	0.50	U.40	0.40
DEPOSIT CURRENT ACCOUNT G	OLD'
2000.000 or more	4.31	4.40	3.45	3.50
5504VM - 694 944	3.53	3.95	3.10	3.15
225,000 - 149,999	3.69	3.75	7.97	249
110,000 - £24,949	3,6-4	3.70	2.91	7.45
150 - £9.440	11_50	0.50	11.40	0.40
DEPOSIT TESSA L'
(1 of more (Year 5)	6_40	-	-
Cl or more (Years 1 - 4)	6.75
DEPOSIT TESSA #1
19,000	6,30	-	-
£3,999 - 18,999	6.58	-	-	-
DEPOSIT CHARITY ACCOUNT
fl or more	5.65	-	-	-
А ферови эсспили фись вли дових тип высаг	benkip nekr	in the Socie	zv.
1. Compound Annual Race is the annual re-	CENTED ON LONG	enage of m	outh inter	CTS.
belomings the terrated in the security.
I tenerest will be paid after deduction of in or, subject to the respond certification, pro

investor's tax liability if any l. 2 class may be made to the fallend Aerome for requirement of tax. For inclinidation who how mecome falls within the hower or basic same bands, the tax deducted will match their bability to tax on the macrost and they will have no more tax to pay on at ladyridation who are hable at the lighter rate of meaning tax of 40° and have to pay additional tay on the autoret to cover the difference between the tax deduced and the higher rate tax dow.

1. A share receive of the account to the residence of the matching share account liability only.

(A share revision of this account is the available to existing share account bubbers only.

A flate include a boson of 0.50% grows p.a. parable if you make an winder nals on each specified 12 month period. Fall details on region.

5. Tax firet provided on withdrawals of capital are made during the firet was region and the terms and creditions are completed with.

8. Interior to not pard on bubbles below (20), unless the account bolder or expressed as being under 22 years of age, (Please overlant pour local branch for full details).

7. Deposit Carriers Account moments opening bubbles (200).

8. Deposit Carriers Account moments opening bubbles (200).

9. Deposit Carriers Account field information opening bubbles (200).

7. Deposit Carriers Account Gold minimum repenses bubbles (10,000).

The Northern Rock Building Dougra is a member of the Bushing Societies Involve Proposition for the formation of the formati

The Verticers Rock Building Souger is a member of the Building Sougers Investors Processors (New York Processor Rock Building Sougers Investors Processors (New York Processor and the Scheme and Sougers Investors (New York Processors Investors Inv Economic Area are covered, Forther details are available on request from the Society

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO INVESTORS With effect from 1 October 1996, the low balance charge of £3 per quarter, payable if an investment balance tells below £50 for six or more consecutive days, will be withcrawn. Charges incurred during the period 1 July to 30 September will be made in the usual way on 15 October 1996.

Northern Rock Building Yourse, Principal Officer Northern Rock House, Gosforth, Newscattle upon Type NES 4PL

Paying too much for Breakdown Cover? Vehicle rescue from just £29.50* per year

S JOIN TODAY CALL FREE FREE INFORMATION PACK 0800 000 111 UNES OPEN MONDAY TO SATURDAY 8ATT TO 8PM AND SUNDAY 9AM TO 8PM

> REF: C3169 National Breakdown

Post today No stamp needed TO: GREEN FLAG National Breakdown, FREEPOST, Leeds, West Yorkshire L599 2GF. Please send me the INFORMATION PACK.

NAME (Mr/Mrs/Miss/Ms) HOME TEL

POST CODE

-Plus a once only eardmant lee of £9.50 waterd II you join by Direct Debit. Cars registered belote 31/7/87 are subject to additional lee of £12.50.

SIGNIFICANT SHORTS

A public schoolboy has been involved in what the which could end up with David Raven, 18, going to jail for theft. Mr Raven, a student at the Arnold School in Blackpool, went to Singapore as part of a school rugby trip. He was arrested following an incident in a nightclub where he was found to have a handbag containing 5,000

Singapore dollars (more than £2,000) in his possession. He will appear in court on 11 September to enter a plea. Meanwhile, he has spent two nights in jail and is now out on hail. His father, John Raven, told reporters that his son was a victim of mistaken identity, having had the bag thrust upon him after he emerged from a toilet to find himself in the midst of a melée. Stephen Vines

Charlie Kray, the elder brother of gangster twins Reggie and Ronnie, was remanded in custody for six days yesterday, charged with conspiracy to supply cocaine worth £78m. Kray, 70, looked relaxed at Redbridge. . . Magistrates Court in east London. As he left the dock, Kray, 70, blew a kiss to his 45-year-old girlfriend, Judy Stanley. Neither he nor the two other men accused builder Ronald Field, 49, and electrician Robert Gould, 39 - applied for bail.

Aworkman died during preparations for Oasis' concerts on the banks of Loch Lomond in Scotland. The ambulance service said the site worker, in his late 20s, was believed to have been crushed between a lorry and a fork-lift truck. The man was dead on arrival at the Vale of Leven hospital. He was thought to have been involved in testing the sound system for the concerts, which are expected to attract 80,000 fans tonight and tomorrow.

The future of Pure Genius, a "village" built on derelict land in south-west London, is in doubt after a senior High Court official today granted landowners Guinness court orders paving the way for eviction of its residents.

"Villagers" from the green commune, on the banks of the River Thames, failed in their bid to prevent Guinness winning orders for possession which could lead to their immediate removal - and the end of a New Age dream. Pure Genius came into being earlier this year after 500 campaigners occupied the 13-acre site as a protest against

A leading anti-smoking group faces legal action after producing a spoof advert for a cigarette brand called Emphysema. The hard-hitting advert, shown with an offer of "free lung cancer with every packet", has sparked protests from Imperial Tobacco. ASH, the Campaign for Freedom from Tobacco, distributed the cards with the advert to supporters and health promotion units. The charity said the matter was now in the hands of its lawyers.

THE INDEPENDENT ABROAD

..... Sch40 N1ands ..... FIS.00 Cananas . . . . Pts300 Madera . . . Esc325 East, America, Alaca and Inqui £184,08: Zone 2 Gas Cyonus .....43 cents Denmark . . . . Dkr18 Norway . . . . Nor20 Insh Rep . . . . . 45p Portugal . . . 6sc325 France . . . . . Fr14 Spern . . . . Pts300 Germany ... DM4.5 Sweden. ... Skr21 Linembourg .. 1F60 USA ..... 53.00

OVERSEAS SURSCRIPTURAS East and Australiase) £206.70. To order, please send checkle psychie to Johnsons Internance of Media Service List to 43 Milliostony, Landon E14 972 or telephone 0171-538 8288 Credit cards welcome. BACK ISSUES

Why we suffer motorway sadness

حكذا من الاصل

Crumbling roads blamed on poor maintenance

CHRISTIAN WOLMAR Transport Correspondent

mey:

an:

On the M1, a slip road is closed at a few hours' notice because it has become unsafe. The M4/A4 into London has so many roadworks that the Highways Agency advises people to let the train take the strain.

Britain's roads are crumbling from lack of maintenance, according to the motoring or-ganisations. In a letter replying to a parliamentary question by Tory MP Nicholas Winterton, Lawrie Haynes, the chief executive of the Highways Agency, said that the current planned spending on maintenance for trunk ronds is "not sufficient to avoid some deterioration of the network".

But in an attempt to be re-assuring, he added: "However, by working hard and innovatively, the Agency expects to be able to maintain safety and to minimise the effect on serviceability and value for money." The RAC says that the amount allocated to roads maintenance has been cut by £100m over two vears. Next year only £250m will be spent, compared with £360m that lack of maintenance was not the reason for closing the two slip roads linking the Al and Ml in north London. Its spokesman, Alastair Frew, explained that the story of the bridge was "a one-off. It had been scheduled for strengthening next year to take lorries of 40 tons rather than 38 tons and it was found that it needed extra support". Part of the roadway was coned off to ensure traffic went down the middle, through the cones, so it was decided to close the bridge. However, Mr Frew was unable to explain why cars, which weigh around a ton, could not be allowed to continue to use the hridge: "We considered that option but ruled it out. There would be tailbacks."

The Highways Agency said

hut lorries kept ploughing

Edmund King, campaigns manager of the RAC, was sceptical about the reasons for the closure. He said: "They have known about this for months and should have done something about it. If you don't look after these structures, they start to fall apart." Similar problems have already emerged on the elevated section of the M4 in west London, which could take 10 years holes and poor conditions.

to repair. In February, one of the 131 sections of the overhead part will be removed to assess how badly it has been damaged by corrosion. The motorway will be closed for several weekends, with the possibility of more serious closures.

Already, there have been jams caused by closing the A4 as it leads into the M4 and the Highways Agency has issued a leaflet saying: "Great Western Trains provide fast, frequent comfortable services over routes which parallel much of the M4/A4 from London Paddington to stations in Avon. South Wales and the West."

The British Road Federation said that, in another letter to an MP, Mr Haynes pointed to 34 other bridges on the motorway network that will need strengthening in the next few years. A BRF spokesman said: 'The seriousness of this maintenance crisis has heen predicted for some time."

The RAC said roads were surfaced every 42 years on average, as against the recommended 20 years, and 5 per cent of calls to its legal department, a total of 7,000 per year, related to damage caused by pot-

Berrygrove Interchange, North, Herts Berrygrove Interchange, South, Herts Berrygrove Interchange North A41, Herts Berrygrove Interchange Road South, Hertfordshire Berrygrove Service Road North, Hertfordshire

Berrygrove South A41, Hertfordshire Old Paul, South Yorkshire Medway Vladuct East, Kent Medway Viaduct West, Kent Medway River, Kent

M2

M5

M5

Grand Union Canal, Hounslov Thames Bray, Berkshire Hontspill River, Somerset River Brue, Somerset Huntsworth Viaduct, Somerset River Tone, Somerset

Ray Hall Vladuct Bents 12/0 - 13/0, West Midlands Ray Hall Viaduct Bents 11/0 - 12/0, West Midlands Woodford West, Viaduct, Herts Tetsworth Pedestrian Underpass, Oxfordshin Stoke Talmage, Oxfordshire Nethercote Lane, Oxfordshire Gelderd Road, West Yorkshire Narrowbeck Railway, West Yorkshire South Leeds Interchange 13 Railway

Beaston Interchange South, West Yorkshire

Beeston Interchange North, West Yorkshire

ixons

Feb 1998 Feb 1998 8661 FrqA March 1998 March 1998 March 1998 Sept 1998 Feb 1997 Feb 1997 Feb 1997 Feb 1997 November 1998 December 1997 June 1998 Not decided Not decided

Not decided

Not decided

Not decided

Not decided

Not decided

cull set to reach

CHARLES ARTHUR Science Editor

Up to 30,000 more cattle may have to be slaughtered to eradicate hovine spongiform en-cephalopathy (BSE) in the UK, following the announcement that it can be inherited by calves born to animals with the disease.

Germany added to Britain's BSE problems yesterday when Baerbel Hoehn, the agriculture minister of North Rhine-Westphalia, said the European Union should restore its "strict ban" on British beef in the light of the new evidence, Such a ban would overturn the progress made by John Major. n winning a framework for its removal by November, at the

Florence summit six weeks ago. The German proposal, which would delay the removal of the han by at least a month, drew a furious reaction from British Euro-sceptic MPs. One accused Mrs Hoehn of "picking up any stick to beat us with"

The estimate for the extra cattle which may have to be incincrated came from the Meat and Livestock Commission, an industry lohbying body, which said that the figure would be necessary to deal with the problem of maternal transmission. The culling programme that had been presented to the EU pro-posed to kill 147,000 cattle, beginning in the autumn.

ring i by tra-Mr g to not milt, the af-Mr na-ing tel-war

nd

arute
the us he esbly

The Government has not made any official estimate of how many cattle might have to be added to the cull. But the news, from preliminary results of a seven-year trial, that BSE can be transmitted from mother to calf in up to 10 per cent of cases, will certainly lead to an extension of the programme. Government vets intend to review it this month. Mrs Hoehn told BBC Radio

4 that the new research was "really shocking" and added: "1 think we will prefer a strict ban against Britain at this moment." Tory Eurosceptics hit out at her remarks. Sir Richard Body, MP for Holland with Boston. said: "The Germans have a beef surplus and they want to get rid of it. This is one way to do so. But it is time they turned their attention to France, where BSE exists and Switzerland."

CAMCORDER TAPE

JVC EC45 CAMCORDER TAPE

Build-to-last philosophy is lost In the mid-18th century, General landscape, survive today, while at their structure. Nevertheless,

Wade built hundreds of bridges to help the Hanoverian Army overcome the guerrilla resis-tance of the Highlanders, writes Christian Wolmar. In the 19thcentury, Brunel and Telford and their lesser-known contemporaries huilt countless viaducts, bridges and arches. Most of these structures, many of which are elegant additions to the their modern counterparts, the ugly squat concrete box girders of the Sixties and Seventies are already falling apart. Of course, few of the older bridges have to suffer the indignity of carrying an endless stream of 38-ton lorries belching a fiery cocktail of chemicals which, mixed with the salt laid down to de-ice roads, eats away the new hridges fare badly in comparison because the design philosophy is different. The Victorian arches which carry our railways through towns were over-engineered and built to last forever as the immediate cost did not figure as largely in our forefathers' assessment of projects as they do today. They had to be built very solidly because the Victorians were not so knowledgeahle about the loading criteria, and therefore they had to play safe. Nowadays, according to John Whitwell, deputy secretary of the Institution of Civil Engineers, "we would use half the bricks that they did".

We no longer use bricks but modern materials which are not necessarily designed to last. Mr Whitwell said: "Of course, estuary crossings and really big projects are made to survive for 150 years or more, but many bridges are designed to be replaced in 30 years or so."

UP TO THOMSON holidays Today we suggest that you look in our Summer Sun and Skytours brochures for Summer '97. There's up to £100 per couple off the brochure price – the Earlybird savings.' And what's more you can save an extra 10% if you book through selected travel agents. They'll be able to show you how to save as much as 25% off your holiday. Naturally the best deals will disappear fast. So hurry if you want to keep your bank balance in shape.

The best figure for Summer '97 THOMSON

5-PACK ALL THESE DEALS SANYO PH25 OPEN BACK STEREO £6.99 AUDIO TAPE MGM E-180 VIDEOTAPE TDK FERRIC 90 4-PACK 8-PACK Studio grade. 12 hours recording Total Separate Selling Price £15. PRICE VARTA ALKALINE "AA" SIZE Dixons BATTERIES IO-PACK VIDEO TAPE SCOTCH E-180 VIDEOTAPE E-240 KONICA VIDEOTAPE FAMILY PACK 100 ISO 2 pack film XONS There's a great deal going on

For 40 years, Mark Gerson - pictured between portraits of playwright Tom Stoppard and novelist James Baldwin has been synonymous with photographs of writers. Yesterday, the National Portrait Gallery opened Literati, a retrospective to celebrate his 75th Gerson launched his career in time-honoured fashion by taking a pic-ture of his aunt, the novelist and biographer, Belty Miller, Later, the

EXCLUSIVES

THE DELIVERY

ees offer easy perking, late night shopping and Sunday op Ring 0181-200 0200 for details of your marest store.

British photographer contributed to Tatler and provided numerous dustiance in 1960 at a Faber party, showing the young Ted Highes flanked by TS Eliot, cluding Faber & Faber, Macmillan, and Weidenfeld and Nicolson One of his most evocative images

WH Anden, Louis MacNeice and

On show for the first time to thexhibition, which runs until October 13 is his 1959 portrait of Evelyn Waugh at home with his family at Combe Florey, and other "at home" pictures of JB Priestley and PD James. Photograph: Edward Sykes

UK film industry urged to think big

MARIANNE MACDONALD

The British film industry must develop a super-studio focusing on distribution if it is to become more than a bit-player dominated by the Americans, independeot advisers told the Government yesterday.

A report by the Film Fi-nance Advisory Committee, chaired by Sir Peter Middleton, chairman of the investment bank BZW, said that although British films are enjoying an np-surge, domestic share of box office is still less than 10 per cent: one of the lowest in Europe. Hits such as Four Weddings and a Funeral, Secrets and Lies and Trainsposting masked a de-pressing reality. Although more British films were made last year than in any of the previous 20 - 81 compared to 54 in 1985 investment in real terms was lower than 11 years ago. The proportion of British films which won widespread theatrical release also fell in the last decade, from more than 50 per ceot to 27 per ceot. Mean-while, seven US studios garnered 40 per cent of the £50bo revenue generated by films worldwide in 1994.

The Middleton report said the British industry was held back by its small-scale, producer-led approach, under-capitalisation and lack of effective distribution. "Films are fi-nanced on a project-by-project basis which, giveo the producer's desire to see the films made, can ofteo lead to the company accepting finance on unfavourable terms. The situation was exacerbated by a strongly held belief in the City that the British industry was too risky to invest in. following the collapse of com-panies such as Goldcrest and Palace Pictures, which made Mona Lisa and The Crying Game.

The solution was to create a distributioo-led UK studio, said the advisers, who included Stephen Evans of Renaissance Films, the playwright Christopher Hampton and David Scott, Channel 4's director of finance.

This would be capitalised at a level not previously achieved, allowing it to oversee the production and distribution of 20 British films a year.

Careful selection of projects and reteotion of the rights in the films it distributed would allow the studio to develop into a major company, owning a broad spread of rights as its main as-set. "Through such a vehicle, the City could achieve the spread of risk across projects required to make a film investment viable." the report said.

If such a studio seemed too big a step to set up at once, three mini-studios could be started mitially. Either way, the right to run the studio would be put out to tender to commercial operators by the Arts Council.

The report also recommends that the Government introduces 100-per-cent write-off of production costs in the year they are incurred; abolishes the withholding tax on foreign film stars; rejoins the Council of Europe's Eurimages programme and establishes a Film Finance Council to link the City and film

34

SCAIF

 $\{a_{n,\mathbf{e}_{k}},\cdots,$

6:F4.

Maria.

العنو إل الإيول إ

8 kr. 15

10 m

Pari Stut

*:1<sub>1-1</sub>

Taring T

170-7 VI

Ü

Cashing in on success

☐ Film production in Britain last year reached its highest level for 20 years - 81 films compared to 54 in 1985. D Britain has won three out of every 10 Oscars in the last two decades. .

□ Four Weddings And A Funeral is the biggest British hir this decade - it took £71.5m at the box office for a £2m

□ The Crying Game (1991) Is next, with box office takings

I Mike Leigh's Secrets and Lies won the prestigious Palme Film Festival this year. □ Nick Park's plasticine creations in Creature Comforts and Wallace and Gromit films have won him three Oscars...

Hollywood films shot in the UK have brought welcome. income - Mission: Impossible at Shepperton Studios and Braveheart in Scotland are two recent examples. Highly-skilled and cost-competitive British post-production; facilities are also in big demand by Hollywood producers. □ British investment in film production was running at. £421m last year.

Conductors enter battle of Britten

The debate over the puta-tive Benjamin Britten statue rages on, the latest ammunition provided by the conductors Sir Colin Davis, Sir Georg Solti, Geonadi Rozhdestvensky and Mstislav Rostropovich. In a letter to the Times yesterday, they stated that Britteo was "without doubt" one of the greatest composers of the 20th century and that putting up a statue to commemorate him in Aldeburgh would be a very good idea.

Sir Colin Davis: Supports call for statue of Britten

SUARANTED

PRICES

Aldeburgh Town Council turned down this suggestion last month on the grounds that trees or a bird table would be of more practical benefit. Malcolm Williamson, the Master of the Queen's Music, lent his support by stating that Britteo's music was ephemeral anyway.

Meanwhile, the cause of all the fuss, Andrew Harris, Aldeburgh's town clerk, is keeping his head down. Mr Harris has become almost a celebrity since his words after a council meeting were quoted to a rather wider audience than he expected: "It is not as if Benjamin Britteo was born and bred in Aldeburgh. We have several other wellknown people who were born here like George Crabbe the poet and Elizabeth Garren Anderson. Shame.

Artspeople with Marianne Macdonald

he Museums Association is simmering about Virginia Bottomley's latest wheeze to get some good PR for the lot-tery. On Wednesday she anoouoced that up to £500m was to be made available to museums so that people could tour collections oo the Internet. There is only one flaw, the MA points out, which is that the moocy is not the Government's to spend; surely, wheo the lottery launched, the loot was supposed to be spent by independent appointées - not DNH?

Ao insight into the internal workings of English Heritage is provided by Philip Elston, former custodian of Chysauster Ancieot Village in Cornwall. His short-term contract was not renewed last month, he claims, because he failed to meet impossible membership recruitment targets. Two years ago he and a colleague were told to recruit 75 members a seasoo; now EH has upped the target to 320. "I am sure most visitors prefer to visit Chysauster in peace, rather than face a hard sell from EH employees," he poiots out. He is now pursuing a claim of unfair dismissal. EH said it was unable to discuss individual cases.

SAME DAY

AME DAY

bring you all this aid

Jer

ba arite ihe ius he esbly

ay.

Leading figures from all parts of the French political and re-William the popular ligious spectrum expressed shock and condemnation yesterday after the assassination of one of Algeria's leading Roman Catholic churchmen, Bishop Pierre Claverie, in a bomb attack. They insisted, however, that France and Algeria had to continue their recently resumed Evans of Kennya political dialogue.

Claverie was killed by a remote-controlled bomb as he returned to his residence no Thursday evening. He was 58 and had been Bishop of Oran,

Pierre Claverie: Bishop of Oran for 15 years

ooe of Algeria's four dioceses. for 15 years. The attack came within hours of the departure from Algeria of the French Foreign Mioister, Hervé de Charette, who was making the first official visit by a French minister for three years.

It was inevitably seen not just as an act against Claverie, a fourth-generatioo pied noir, or settler of European origin, who had been outspoken in his advocacy of Catholic-Muslim dialogue, but as a challenge to the governments of both countries. It seems also to have been intended as a sign that the Armed Islamic Group (GIA), the counirv's most ruthless group, is still active, despite the recent death of its leader in an ambush. Yesterday the French Prime Mioister, Alain Juppé, said the attack "could oot but increase the determination of all those shnuld win through". Mr de Charette said the government would not allow itself to be deflected from its course" and wanted to maintain "calm and cordial relations" with Algeria. Mr de Charette had met Claverie, whom he described as "a man of faith, justice and courage", the previous day to discuss among other things, the safety of French monks and nuns in Algeria. Two months agn seven French Trappist monks were abducted by Isl extremists from their remote monastery and later found killed, apparently after a French government mediation attempt had gone wrong.

After his meeting with Claverie, Mr de Charette disregarded security advice in vis-it the graves of the monks small piles of earth, marked only by a picture of each victim, not by crosses - in the remote area of Tibehirine, and laid a wreath. He was not accompanied by the Claverie knew the danger he faced as an outspoken Catholic leader in a Muslim country suffering from radical violence. The Archhishop of Marseille, who met him at the funeral of the monks, said: "He felt very looely but he was also convinced that his mission was to remain.'

He had also warned, in words that oow sound prophetic, that Mr de Charette's visit could have "an ambiguous effect". In an interview with a French Catholic radio station this week, he said there were "those who oppose all outside influence" and warned that the visit could prompt "an upsurge in tel rorist violence or at least some spectacular atrocity to counter its positive effects".

Yesterday the French Foreign Ministry, while insisting that Paris wanted to continue the recent improvement in relations with Algeria and holding out the prospect of a series of economic rial visits in autumn, repeated its warning to French citizens ant to remain in Algeria unless absolutely necessary.

There is a French community of about 1,000 still in the

whn reject vinlence and hatred and are determined that peace in the oil and related industries in the oil and related industries in the north but there are others, who have often been there for generations, living in more

A total of 40 French people have been killed in Algeria's Islamic vinlence since 1993, including 19 monks and nuns. Islamic extremists, spearheaded by the GIA, announced the start of a "holy war" on France in December 1994 after a group that had hijacked an Air France plane was killed by French troops.

The GIA regards France the former colonial power, as the chief source of support for an Algerian government it con-

مكذا من الاجل

Shourd The mere thought of being overdrawn is give von the jutters. Especially if your bank to strike with intimidating letters and overdrant Ar Barclays you can relax, because if xi

Boris Yeltsin is suffering from "colossal weariness" after his campaign to recapture the Russian presidency, and needs to rest for two manths, one of his senior aides was quoted as saying vesterday. But Georgy Satarov reassured Russians that their leader was not seriously ill and insisted there was no recurrence of the heart problem which twice laid him low last year. Mr Yeltsin is said to be conducting state husiness from the sanatorium at Barvikha, outside Moscow, where he convalesced after spending time in hospital far ischaemia, a condition which restricts the blood supply to the heart. Helen Womack - Moscow

A New York woman filed a $10m defamation suit Against British Airways for accusing her of abandoning a newborn baby at Heathrow Airport in February. Federal agents stopped flight BA177 at JFK airport and arrested Gillian Hernandez, accusing her of abandoning her baby at Heathrow. The woman has never given birth, and was returning from a vacation to London and Paris, her lawser returning from a vacation to London and Paris, her lawyer said. Shortly before the flight a baby boy was found wrapped in plastic in a rubbish bin in the women's toilets at Heathrow. British Airways told crews on planes that had just left the airport to look out for any woman whn might have just given hirth. Reuter - New York

United States customs agents shovelled their way through a shipment of coffee beans and seized more than 6,000lb of smugglers' cocaine, officials said. George Weise, US Customs commissioner, said the shipment of drugs was valued at about $46m (£30m). Reuter – Miami ong Kong's top civil servant was the landslide favourite in a poll to determine who the territory wants as its future leader, beating the man seen as Peking's preferred candidate. In a poll of 12,000 people on who should lead the British colony after it reverts to China in mid-1997, Chief Secretary Anson Chan got 34 per cent support. Shipping magnate Tung Chee-hwa, widely tipped as the candidate closest to Peking's heart, received five per cent support. Reuter - Hong Kong

The former prime minister of France, Michel Dehré, who drafted the constitution of France's Fifth Republic and was its first Prime Minister under President Charles de Gaulle in 1958, died aged 84. Debré, father of the current Interior Minister Jean-Louis Debré, died at his home in Saint-Louis-sur-Loire after a long illness. Reuter - Paris

Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's government lifted restrictions oo building in Jewish settlements in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, but was vague ahout how much construction it would permit. The Israeli Cabinet also decided that plans to huild oew settlements would have in win special government approval. AP - Jerusalem

Athree-year old panda, once a star attraction at the Peking 200, has alarmed 200-keepers with a loss of weight after being fed a diet of junk food – everything from plastic bags to scrap metal. Now, she hardly moves and has to be coared into sating and drinking the Peking and has to be coaxed into eating and drinking, the Peking Youth Daily quoted her vet as saying. Reuter - Peking

For more information, simply fill in this coupon or alternatively relephone 0800 222 800, accommende

Return to Barclays Bunk FLC, Personal Sammer FAESBOST (1884) 100 march 254 (No. Postcode'_

DESCRIPTION OF THE PROPERTY OF INTEREST FARM MAY WELL WERDLASTS AND REPARKED FOR A WINTER OWNLINGS, PAREPHYSION PROBLEMS UP TO AN ARCHITECTURE OF A CONTROL OF THE STATE OF THE STA

Action stations as America recalls grand design

A first-time visit to New York's Grand Central Station can be a perplexing experience. Step inside, preferably from the taxi pick-up area at the western end, and before you will soar the vaulted expanse of its concourse, surmouoted by a hinepainted ceiling depicting a star-lit sky.

The minumental scale alone, even in this city of of soaring office towers, will dumbfound you. But search the indicator boards for trains with romantic names to far-off cities like Chicago and St Louis, and you will be disappointed.

Five :

on the поша

At its opening in 1913, Grand Central was a temple both to radroading, which had provided the arteries for America's growth ioto an industrial power, and in the vigour of New York itself. It bnasted vast kitchens to prepare meals fur those departing on transcontinentat journeys as well as Turkish baths, private chaoging rooms and showers. Those were the halcyon days. Today, the fur-thest-flung destination served by trains at the station is New Haven, Connecticut, just 90 minutes away.

For most of this century.

Grand Central, and all of the once-great railway stations of the castern United States, were allowed to slide into undignified decay and neglect that reflected the slow displacement of passenger train travel by cars and the interstate road system and more recently by the aeroplane. The original Penn Station, modelled after the Roman baths of Caracala, was demniished in 1965 to make way fur office buildings and the Madison Square Garden sports arena. Its modern counterpart. whence all remaining inter-city services from New York now depart, lies beneath the Garden and offers the visitur no Inspiration at all. Rather, it is a cramped and threatening Hades.

The condition of America's passenger rail system, now in the hands of the semi-nationalised Amtrak, is still perilous. Penny-pinching in Washiogton has seen a sharp drop in federal subsidies to Amtrak, which has been forced to cut services further to stave off hankruptcy.

The great east coast stations. however, are suddenly the objects of love and care again. From Boston to Washington with New Haven, New York, Philadelphia, Wilmington and Baltimore, in between + stations are being reborn and not just as places to eatch trains from hut as destinations themselves.

The standard was set with the completion eight years ago of renovations to Washington's Union Station. A gleaming palace of towering white marble, it has become nne of the capital's most visited sites, in part because it has been filled with no fewer than 100 shops, seven first-class restaurants and dozens of fast-food concessions.

Trading places: The New York post office building (above) where the nearby Penn Street station is to be relocated in $300m development. Below: Grand Central station, currently undergoing renovation

RIDING THE IRON ROAD  New life is being breathed into the decaying splendour of US railway architecture. David Usborne in New York looks at a

Most recently refurbished was Baltimure's once-gloomy 19th century depot, which was rechristened with the "Penn Station Sensation Ball" last December. Proud Baltimnrians flocked to the event to dance and witness the restarting of the station's giant clock. whose hands, as if to symbolise five decades of neglect, bad

The impetus for these renovations may, ironically, have heen provided by the razing of the old Penn Station over 30 years ago. The outery from apnew national awareness of ur-han architecture and, specifi-cally, the creation in New York of the Landmarks Preservation Commission which granted the city powers to protect buildings, from the whims of developers. One of the commissinn's most important early acts was to repel plans to put a bowling alley in Grand Central's male waiting room and huild a proud rebirth

been immobile since the 1940s. 50-storey uffice tower above it. By resurrecting the stations while also giving them some modern allure, with knownname shops and histros - today's architects are also attempting to palled conservationists led to a reverse the centrifugal forces of suburbanisation that gathered in the Fifties and Sixties and in As any of the half million comwhich depots like Grand Cen- muters whn use Grand Central tral played so important a part. each day will attest, the termi-To draw back the suhurban nus has temporarily become still more hellisb than usual thanks its, cities realised that they had to rediscover some of their lost tion project. civic lustre. There seemed nn stations themselves.

When it is finished in two better place to start than in the years, however, it should be returned to something close to its

to the start of a $100m renova-

(though minus the Turkish baths and kitchens). False walls and ceilings that have been thrown up over the decades will be torn away, new entrances and staircases will be built and shops and restaurants will be added.

To the relief of many, the plans seek to preserve much nf the uriginal architectural in-Now New York is joining in. original Beaux Arts glury tegrity of the building and avoid deserve a better living room nf tall Tuscan pillars, was designed by the architectural firm of McKim, Mead and White. Opposite the site, still stands the main New York Post Office. built by the same firm in a not dissimilar classic design. After several years of struggle, the $300m funds are almost in place to begin work on the obvious: moving Penn Station from the catacombs beneath Madison Square Garden into the Post Office building. The front half of the huilding will be transformed into a station in the old classic style, though again with modern retail additions. Accessing the tracks will be no problem; they already run directly beneath the Post Of-

than the nne they have now."

Much more radical, however, are the plans for Penn Statinn. The much-lamented original structure, with an exterior facade nn Eighth Avenue

This is a second

din Co

Th S

-3

200 200

25. ..

X. See the 30.000 a . .

A CONTROL OF THE PROPERTY OF T

40.75

fice on their way to the existing station across Seventh Avenue. The cliché runs that America's railway stations are its cathedrals. If so, then the people lost their religinn somewhere around the middle of this century. Now, the cathedrals, at least, are being returned to their original splendour, but whether that means a return also of the old devotion to travel by rail is another thing. Economics will probably dietate that it will not.

POSTAL INVESTMENT ACCOUNTS CURRENT INTEREST RATES

EFFECTIVE FROM 3 AUGUST 1996

THESE ACCOUNTS ARE NO LONGER AVAILABLE TO NEW INVESTORS

				11.00	4.41
POSTAL 120\nnu.i			POSTAL 7 - Annual
25,000 or more	14.141	4 40	Charles of more	4.10	1.28
2 (11,19) 1 - £24,449	5,647	4.4%	£ 4.[[5,0] . [ 444 [444	4.05	3,24
(2.5(H) - Auf 1949)	5,000	4,180	2-5-1-41 - 2-44-444	3.80	3.04
541 · 55,440	11,50	71,40	: 1006m - : 24,999	3.00	2.40
POSTAL 120 Memble			11 4 Rt . 14 444	2.55	2.04
(25.0k) by mure	1.54	in"	4 11 . 4 . 444	0.50	11.411
( hithart - 124,444	1.11	4.37		.	11.40
- T. (14) . (cu shi)	4.34	3.41	POSTAL 7' Monthle
141 - 62,444	0.50	17.447	Cite (164) or more	4.03	3.11
			7 g(1'04d1 - 1'040'even	3.48	3.18
POSTAL 90 (Annual)	1-6	•	Contact - Sections	3.74	- 44
f fitting to make	4.05	3.80 3.72	£ (4) (44) - 624,444		2.37
्रीराह्या । र्युवायक्य र्वेट्स्स्या । र्युवायक्य	4,55	3.45	12 441 . 24 444	2.52	2.02
	3 35		2 Str. 12,494	11_54	0 44
( ), કાશ - કુળ પહેલ ૧ લા - ૧ ૧, 444	0.50	2.68
	11/311	11,444	POSTAL ACCOUNT
POSTAL 90 (Monthly)			Gan now be operated through
SHOULD OF BOOK	4.65	3 - 2	CSOURT or more	4,000	3.20
१,25,78%। - १,4व,ववव	4. 45	1,1-4	Tallian - Frinland	3.55	2.84
Christin - CZ4,444	4.27	3.42	დიეთ . დ აკათ	3.45	2.76
[ ] [ [ ] ] - [ ]   ( )   ( )	3.30	264	20000 - 214,999	2.50	2.00
£50 - £2,444	11, 50	11,417	$2300 - $45 99	2.25	1.50
POSTAL 60 (Annual)			्रवेश - ८  , वयप	2.15	1.73
CHILDRO or more	4.25	3,40	(40 · (440	I) SI	11,40
150,000 - (44,444	4.20	3 16	POSTAL ACCOUNT:	Alamebla (
(25) Hit - (40) sees	3,411	3.12	Can now be operated through
4 (11) (44) - 424 (44)	3k1	3 - 2			5.14
CANT CHANG	3.00	2.40	150,000 or more	3,43
450 - 42,494	(1,5)	11,41	(25)(01) - (40,000)	3.44	179
POSTAL 60 Albertic			53(1)(64) - 4.24,444	3,40	2-2
COCAL of Annual	4.17	1,34	7 111'05A+ - 7,14'4A4	2.47	1.98
- St. (43) - 144 944	4.12	5,30	Telkh · Fgiann	2.23	1.78
274188 - 144,949	3.83	3.06	(4) · (4)444	n_3n	(1.40
7.007000 - 7.747666 5.747000 - 7.447666	3.35	1.68	GG DIRECT
Faight - Friend	2.00	2.5
721 - 72 444 72 344 - 52 444	11.511	11.40	Gan now be operated through I		5.20
	11 501	11 441	ESPURIO or more	4,(8)
POSTAL 30 Annual			125,000 - 544,949	3.55	2.84
LSOURS or more	4.13	3.32	Q1,001 . Q4,949	3.45	2."6
(15,000 - (10,000	5.85	3,0%	$ [10] pay - 7 [4] into	2.50	2,01
£100mm - £24,444	3,015	144	1  	2.25	1.80
42.5(h) - 1-1-444	2,60	2.08	ESCHI - ET HAND	2.15	1.72
(5)1 - (2,444	0.50	(1,4)	१ वर्ग . र नेपूर्ण	11.51	11.40

of age. There content you head branch for tall details.

I interest will be paid also define on all memore tax at the lower rate, contents 27° or, subsets to the equivalence, grossthere, the eart defined electrical an execute it as habiter at any, a data star be made to the indust Revenue for requirement of the last and they will have no quest car to pay on it, individuals who are labely at the ingher rate of memore, the wall have to pay additional at you the interest records the different between the tax to delated and the higher rate of all the first will have to likely of these accusants may repeat a velocited transactions through the surface. When making withdraw also, identification of the labely of these sections are personal which is a full the desired at the content of the surface and also are defined as a full the driving the surface with the content of personal velocited transactions through the personal content of the surface and the surface of the surfa Base, melade a bonus of 12.25°, grow p.a. parable if you make no wabalcan also meach specified 12 month period. Full details

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO INVESTORS werk where from 1 October 1996. The low balance charge of $3 per quarter, payable if an investment balance

NORTHERN ROCK

Standard Rock Building Sugary, Principal On the Northern Rock In Law, Section S. Sanctade upon Tage SEP 411.

Get more for your money, buy Cellphones

PHILIPS

- NEW GSM MODEL FIZZ ◆ Up to 75 mins talk-time ◆ Up to 45 hrs standby-time
- 45 name/number memory Raoid recharge Complete package with
- standard battery and charger Dimensions 162x60x17mm

◆ Weight 210g Connection £35.25 (£38 + VAT) 27.53 (£15+VAD) Peak Note Colls | 35,25p per min (30p + Y/U) Market 11.75p per min (10p + VAT) MONTHS FREE LINE RENTAL

LIFETIME PRODUCT WARRANTY

(A): (P): (B): 1 47 7 * 0

LIMITED OFFER

worth £52.89 inc. VAT

FREE LINE RENTAL—for 3 months

• FREE ACCESSORIES - in-car adaptor and leather case together worth £49.98 inc. VAT LATEST PHILIPS - the stimmest phone in its class ONE SECOND BILLING - YOU only pay for the airtime you use BEST COVERAGE - with digital QUARANTEED PEACE OF MIND Your phone is covered by our 14 days no quabble money back promise.

call clarity and security

Cellphones

DRDER NOW WITH YOUR CREDIT CARD DETAILS FOR FREE DELIVERY IN 4 WORKING DAYS

PLEASE HAVE YOUR CREDIT CARD AND THIS ADVERTISEMENT HANDY WHEN YOU CALL AND CHOTE REF 4541. (SORRY WE ARE UNABLE TO ACCEPT SWITCH CARRS)

CREDIT CARD ORDERING HOTLINE WEEKDAYS SAM TO FEM. WEEKENDS SAM TO SEM.

Offer subject to status and a standard artime contract for éact phone with Cellphones Direct Ltd. 185 Lower Richmond Road, Auchmond-opon-Tizames TW9 41.8

turning it into a shopping mall

that just happens to have train platforms attached to it - a crit-icism often heard of the Union

Statinn development. "Grand

Ceotral is New Ynrk's living room," Susan Fine, a director nf the Metropolitan Transportation Authority, said when

We won't look away – will you?

You've seen the TV reports on Burundi. In the last year up to 1,000 people a week have been killed in this conflict. Men, women and children have been forced to abandon their homes in search of safety. Children are bearing the brunt of this crisis.

Save the Children is already there. We can speak up for the children of Burundi and will act on their behalf - no matter what the cost.

To help them we need your help now. Whatever you give will truly make a difference. Please don't look away. Children are counting on us and on you.

Post the coupon below or call our credit card butline 0171-701 0894

	Your £	10 coul	d help so	ve a child's life	_
ı	Yes. I want to £30 Name Mr/Mr	w neip Savi □£15	the Children	n. Please accept my gift o	f:
!	Address				-

I enclose my: Cash ☐ Postal Order ☐ Cheque ☐ CAV ☐ Or charge my: Access ☐ AmEx ☐ Visa ☐ Diners ☐ CAF Card ☐

Karadzic henchmen 'cleanse' poll lists

ANDREW GUMBEL Belgrade

After ethnic cleansing comes electoral cleansing. With six weeks to go to the Bosnian elections, displaced ethnic Serbs are being registered en masse to vote in the Serb-controlled half of the country in the interests of ethnic purity, regardless of their place of origin and ofteo regardless of their wishes.

Authorities in Bosnia and Serbia are coercing Serb refugees to register to vote in the "Republika Srpska", Radovan Karadzic's Serbian Bosnia, to ensure a powerful Serb presence there. For election day, the authorities plan to transport tens of thousands of people to strategically chosen polling stations, nany in towns with a pre-war Muslim or Croat majority.

It is an attempt to heighten ethnic divisions between the Repuhlika Srpska in the oorth

"This puts the final touch on ethnic cleansing ... The Serbs will ensure themselves the biggest possible and east and the Muslim-Croat federation to the west and south. It thus subverts the Dayton peace accords, whereby the majority'

the United Nations High Commissioner for Refugees in Belnot bothered to stand or else grade, "The Serbs will ensure themselves the biggest possible majority in the Republika Srpska while keeping as many of their voters as possible out of federation territory."

This electoral engineering exploits the complex rules for refugee voters, who make up at least half Bosnia's 3.5 million electorate. In theory, refugees can choose to vote in the area where they were registered in a 1991 census or nominate entirely new electoral districts for themselves. If they choose the former, they fill out what is er, an OSCE representative. known as Form 1 and have the option of postal voting; if the sent to vote in Bosanski Brod, latter, they name a new electoral district on Form 2 on the understanding they will travel there on election day.

In practice, Bosnian Serb refugees have overwhelmingly opted for Form 2 and nominated electoral districts in the Re-publika Srpska. But they have not necessarily dooe so freely. An international team inspecting a registration centre tiear Beigrade ooted that part of the forms had been filled out in advance, with Srehrenica written in as the chosen electoral district in all cases. At a refugee camp visited by the Independent in Arzinja, southwest of Belgrade, an inmate said he had found the name Bosanski Brod written on his form. "Actually, I'd much rather go to the Banja Luka area," said the refugee, calling himself Milodrag. "I am from the mountains, and Bosanski Brod is swampy territory. I only hope my vote there woo't ohlige me to take up residence in the future."

The refugees depend on the Serb authorities to provide them with shelter and, for those in Bosnia, with humanitarian aid and know they risk being cut off if they do not do as they are told.

The Organisation for Security and Co-operation (OSCE) in Europe, which is overseeing the election, has formally protested about conditions in the Bosnian town of Doboj, where it says Serb authorities have threatened to cut off aid to refugees if they do oot toe the line.

In Serbia, just one group has been brave enough to issue a formal complaint - an association of Serb refugees from the western town of Drvar which wants to vote there, even though it is now irretrievably in Croat hands. Their wishes have now been adhered to but only after vocal objections.

elections were meant to bring Bosnia's divided ethnic groups closer together.

"This puts the final touch oo ethnic cleansing," said Marwan Elkhoury, spokesman for the United Nations High Comknow they have no chance of winning any real power.

If refugees have been told in advance where they will vote, it is partly because of the logistics of transporting them on the day. The chances are they will be take en by train to Bijeljina, northeastern, Bosnia and then bused to their electoral districts. None of this was cavisaged when the Dayton accords were drawn up. "The idea was that everyone would go home and vote there. It was a nice idea but not very realistic," said Hans Peter Klein-said: "The only Serbs left there are old women, whom they beat up and persecute. There is no future there for me or my family."

Wild frontier: Supplies arriving for Russian guards on the Tajik-Afghan border, where the Kremlin is backing Talikistan against guerrilla insurgents

Belarus activists claim rights are under threat

TONY BARBER Europe Editor

حكذا من المدحل

The United States will decide soon whether to grant political asylum to two Belarussian opposition leaders who say their lives are in danger because they have exposed human-rights abuses in the former Soviet republic. Zenon Poznyak and Sergei Naumchik made their application in Washington last Tuesday, saying Preside ot Alexander Lukashenko of Belarus had ordered them to be neutralised".

Mr Poznyak, leader of the Belarussian Popular Froot, a na-tionalist oppositioo movement, left Belarus in April while under threat of arrest for organising rallies against Mr Lukashenko's policy of forging an economic and political union with Russia. If he and Mr Naumchik, his assistant, were to be granted asylum, it would he the first such case involving any former Soviet republic since the Soviet Union's collapse in 1991.

Opposition politicians say this would seriously tarnish Belarus's international image, banned rallies for the duratioo already battered by Lukashenko's reputation for thoritarianism. "There is coostant pressure on the opposition. We cannot conceal the fact that human rights are repeatedly violated. Even parliament has no access to state television," said Pyotr Kravchenko, a former foreign minister.

The US State Department, which advises immigration officials oo granting asylum, may take the view that Mr Poznyak and Mr Naumchik would not be in danger of severe persecution if they returned to Belarus. But US diplomats are under few illusions about Mr Lukashenko's rule. "We've been concerned by a lot of the actions of the government and beeo coocerned by some infringements of human rights, said Nicholas Burns, the State Department spokesman. Since coming to power in 1994 Mr Lukashenko has suspended trade unions, dismissed oewspaper editors and ordered a crackdown on "anti-presi-dential actions". About 200 people received short jail terms for taking part in opposition-led demonstrations in spring, and on Monday, Mr Lukashenko of Belarus's harvest. His repressive policies and enthusiasm for union with Russia have prompted a backlash, with seven opposition parties. from nationalists to Commuoists, signing a declaration last week that decounced Mr Lukashenko and warned of the danger of totalitarian rule.

Uodeterred, the President is seeking coostitutional changes that would extend his term in office from five to seven years, enabling him to rule unchallenged until 2001.

If Mr Lukashenko care about his image in the US, he did himself oo favours last Thursday by appearing to lend credence to a wild accusation from a Communist member of the Russian parliament that the CIA is plotting to overthrow Viktor Ilyukhin alleged that the CIA had set up a base in Warsaw to engineer Mr Lukashenko's fall by means of strikes and street protests.

US diplomats dismissed the allegations as oonsense. It did little to improve the atmosphere of US-Belarussian relations, which suffered last year when Belarussian border guards shot down a hot-air balloon taking part in a European race, killing the two US pilots.

sier ring 1 by tra-Mr od

arite 'he

he es-bly ay.

Germany seeks to extradite Priebke

PAUL HOLMES

cathe to the

in Fine

Miles ....

Mari 198 25 5 --

7240

4 Fr . . .

Andre blieb ti

The second

A Atmit ( 1... Market .

Me Brunt ::

Meady in Mildelay.

A har in

PARTE IN

DISTY THE

Rome - Just hours after a mil-itary court found him guilty of murder but set him free, former SS Captain Erich Priebke was under arrest in a Rome prison yesterday as Italian authorities tried to limit the damage from one of the most controversial judicial decisions since the Second World War. Italian police rearrested Prichke during the night at the court, eoding an eight-hour siege by angry young protesters following the verdict. He was taken to Rome's Regina Cocli jail, where some of the 335 men and boys, including 75 Jews, shot in an SS massacre in 1944 spent their final hours before they were trucked to the Ardeatine caves for execution.

The rearrest of the 83-yearold German on a temporary detentioo order followed notice from Germany that prosecutors there intended to seek his extradition for two killings.

But it was far from clear that a German extradition request, which Bonn has 40 days to submit, would succeed. There was doubt whether Rome could extradite Priebke pending a planned appeal by the Italian military prosecutor against Thursday's verdict. Nor were German officials certaio he could be tried because European law bars prosecuting someone twice on the same charges.

Argentina, which agreed to Priebke's extradition to Italy in November 1995, must give its consent to any onward move. It has already said Priebke will not be allowed back to rejoin his wife in the Andean ski resort where they have lived since 1948.

Priebke had denied through out his three-month trial that he played a leading role in the massacre, carried out in reprisal for a bomb attack on German troops and the worst atrocity in Italy during the Second World War. The court found Priebke responsible for multiple killings and

Priebke: Rearrested by Italian authorities

rejected his key defence - that he would have been shot if he had disobeyed orders. But it took his age and clean post-war record into account in mitigation and, in a judgment that was condemned across the political spectrum, by Italian and foreign Jewish groups and by a press that blamed the military court for bringing Italy's legal system into worldwide disrepute, ruled that because he did not act with premeditation and cruckty, punishment had lapsed after 30 years under a statute of limitation.

Photograph: AP | idiosyncratic, pro-Russian au-MONONDEO LA THE FIRST WORK OF ART DESIGNED BY AN ACCOUNTANT. How can it be art, back for two years, when you pay when there's no pain, no suffering? for the other half. ESCORT 1.8 LX 5dr‡ Typical example Mileage (per annum) 12,000 You simply drive out In between, you pay absolutely nothing. No Recommended Retail Price £12,625.00 Estimated on the Road Price £13,260.00 of the showroom in a brand new interest, no repayments. Deposit (%) 50% Initial Payment £6,630,00 Escort LX, Si, Ghia, Ghia X. or Mondeo You can even give it back at any time. £6.630.00 Total Charge for Credit £0.00 LX having paid for only half of it. A masterpiece in simplicity. Total Credit Price £13,260.00 Term (months) 25 After that, there's no need to come Monthly Payments £0.00 Optional Final Purchase Payment (Minimum Guaranteed Future Value) £6,630,00 AVAILABLE UNTIL AUGUST 31st

or manufacturers recommended retail price at the time of going to press, o addition if the vehicle is returned before the end of the finance agreement or

Hero's funeral for Aideed, the UN's most wanted man

stroy Washington," he declared defiantly in 1993, as the United States led a series of destructive air-strikes on the capital and sent in their most highly trained soldiers to find

Brigadier General Mohamed Farah Aideed, Somalia's most notorious warlord, survived but even he could not escape death for ever. His body was laid to rest in the capital, Mogadishu, vesterday. Gen Aideed, who last year declared himself President of Somalia, will be remembered by the West as the man who humiliated the United Nations which came to bring peace and humanitarian aid, and left last year with little or nothing ac-complished. Even the US, whose troops entered the country under the cover of tremendous fire power, was forced to admit defeat.

His faction's radio station announced that the 62-year-old leader had suffered a heart attack; but sources here say that he died of gunshot wounds received last week in fighting for control of the capital.

Asked by the Independent who was responsible for his death, an old man quoted a SoDavid Orr reports on the death of the warlord who humiliated the West claimed by many people".

Gen Aideed is reported to have been wounded by fighters loyal to Ali Mahdi Mohamed. his bitter rival for overall power. The coffin, draped with the Somali flag, was carried to the cemetery atop a Toyota Landcruiser, and the national anthem was played as his remains were lowered into the ground.

The streets of Mogadishu were unnaturally calm last night as Muslim prayers were chanted in the mosques.

Gen Aideed, an absternious man who neither drank nor smoked.commanded a fanatical following amongst his followers. He was widely feared for his explosive temper and domineering manner. The general's interviews with the foreign media often became ranting monologues.

There was international outrage when Gen Aideed's supporters dragged the corpses of lynched American soldiers through the city's streets. This time three years ago the US had a $25,000 reward out for mali proverb: "Victory is always claimed by many people". But the general evaded capture, and was feted as a hero and saviour in southern Mogadishu.

Between the UN's arrival late in 1992 and its withdrawal last year, some 100 Blue Helmets and scores of American troops were killed in fighting in and around Mogadishu. Gen Aideed, hranded as the UN's most wanted man, was held responsible for most of these

In much of the rest of the country he was vilified as an evil man who would stop at nothing for power.

But he was hailed as a hero by his supporters yesterday as his body was taken from his house to a mosque and then on to the cemetery in the southern part of the city which he con-Among the mourners, who numbered more than 1,000 people, were many women and children who cried openly,

"We will follow his policies", said the parter by the graveside.

"He was a great man. His death

Climate of fear quells unrest in Indonesia

Seven days after the worst rioting in Indonesia for 20 years, the government of President Suharto has taken advantage of the situation to launch a campaign of intimidation against its opponents. Despite international criticism of its repressive methods, the regime appears to have ridden out the unrest and may actually find itself more united than it was a week ago.

The riots were triggered by a police raid on the offices of the Indonesian Democratic Party (PDI) but tension had been mounting for months as generals and civilians in the govero-ment faced up to a dilemma: who will succeed Mr Suharto

At 75 and after 30 years of unquestioned power, he is looking more and more like a man who has passed his political sellby date. Recently widowed, and dogged by rumours about his health, he has alienated businessmen, aides and ordinary Innessmen, aides and oromary in-donesians by granting tax breaks to members of his im-mediate family. "Most people in the government think he's lost his touch," said a Western diplomat yesterday. "He's look-ing old and he no longer has the power to inflame his people -they just don't believe the rhetoric any more."

But if the prospect of an ailpower from his predecessor. Sukarno, after a creeping mil-itary coup in which 500,000 people died in anti-Communist pogroms. Contemporary Indonesians have never witnessed a peaceful transfer of power and no one in Jakarta seems to have any idea of who might credibly

Part of the problem is Mr Suharto's habit of appointing as his closest aides weak men who have never been allowed to remain in power long enough to establish themselves. Constitutionally, the succession would fall to the Vice-President, Try who may yet turn out to be just

NEW_

The ultimate console fighting

This superal sports compilation pack with blow your sodes out includes NML 96, PGA Tour 196.

ROUTE PLANNER SAVE E10

Microsoft Autoroate Express the works most pupped must planning software. Foods anywhere mitted from the charter and tending statutes a

£49.00 100

rice fond. May 643,59 inc Mil

Protests have united Suharto's regime, reports Richard Lloyd Parry in Jakarta forces threatening to drive In-donesia apart will require a stronger presence to keep them under control.

This is where Megawati Su-karnoputri came in - as daugh-ter of Sukarno and the popular leader of one of only two officially recognised opposition parties, she was being spoken of as a possible successor to Mr Suharto in elections in 1998. The order to depose her as PDI leader is believed to have come from Mr Suharto. But the rigged party congress in June, when she was unseated in favour of a puppet figure, was largely the work of Abri, the armed forces.

Last Saturday, as thousands of Jakartans took to the streets, the plan appeared to have misfired. But in a week Abri has reasserted its authority with a combination of coolness and hysteria which appears, for the short term at least, to have defused the situation.

The full details of what happened may never be known but the military appear to have act-ed with discipline, if not reing, faltering president is un-appetising, the alternative is uncertainty. Mr Suharto seized were injured and dozens are missing but, despite rumours about massacres and "disappearances". there is conclusive vidence of only three deaths.

The hysteria came in the middle of the week when Abri, without offering evidence, said the riots were the work of Communist insurgents. Since then the security forces have carried out a wave of arrests in what is looking increasingly like a general crackdown on peaceful critics of the government. On Tuesday night Muchtar Pakpahan, an independent trade-union leader, was arrested and charged with subversion.

mission for police to question

game arrives on PC, includes Mr Suharto has given per-Sutrisno, a colourless figure with 700 killer moves. what the country needs to tide it over the transitional period and seven members of her PDI True 3D gaming with no 3D acceleration required. after Suharto's demise. But the faction. Technology that gives the edge to 'Big Brother' SPORTS TRIPLE PACK

CHRISTOPHER BELLAMY Defence Correspondent

The news that Indonesia's in-ternal security forces are using a British computer system casts an interesting light on the Home Secretary Michael Howard's suggestion that the UK is a "centre of excellence" for counter-terrorist surveillance. The idea of such centres was endorsed by leaders of the Western industrial states and Russia at their summit on terrorism in Paris on Tuesday. One man's counter-terrorist system is another man's Big Brother. Britain's long experience in Northern Ireland has helped shape counter-terrorist technology - hardware and software - which is of potential value to states wishing to keep their populations under control.

Among British military and security equipment sold to Indonesia in the last decade was a prototype of Generics - the Nato command information system developed by Plessey Defence Systems of Ilford, Essex. Generics can display complex information about events unfolding across a landscape, and could be used to monitor traffic as well as in military or security situations. It would enable the user to concentrate forces efficiently in response to demonstrations and riots.

Industry sources yesterday said Plessey had installed a command information system, which was mainly a briefing tool, in Jakarta in 1986. This was hefore the Generics system proper was developed; Indonesia never received the fully developed version. Local Indonesian companies made some changes which caused problems, and would not let Plessey back in to correct them, suggesting that the system may have been adapted for local purposes.

A decade later, Plessey supplied the Police Information

Manager, selected by Avon and Somerset and South Yorkshire constabularies. Like Generics, it logs incidents and telephone calls as they occur and displays them graphically. Such a system has obvious uses in countering outbreaks of violence or dissent. The information can be relayed to high-resolution dis-plays including maps and detailed town plans - suitable for internal security operations. According to Jane's Defence Weekly, Indonesia was the first customer for Generics.

Plessey had recently won a UK Ministry of Defence contract worth £35 million for an automated, computer-assisted electronic warfare system which also used Generics to help assimilate complex data.

A user could click on a particular house on the map, to obtain a read-out of who lived there, which political party they supported any criminal records, and so on. A policeman ap-proaching the house would then know what to expect. Uses could be benign - the system would be useful to fire services in, for example, recording the position of hydrants. If the occupant were deaf, they would know to knock loudly. If he were known to be a drug dealer, the plied to Indonesia was a graph ics tool specifically designed for a briefing room in Jakarta.

said that, given advances in computers and information systems in the last decade, any system Indonesia is using to manage the current disturbances would probably have little in common with the

However, a graphical dis-play of "incidents and resources", updated with more recent software, would clearly help the Indonesian regime to keep tabs on the population.

UNBEATABLE SAVE # £200 on PERIPHERALS

CHOICE, VALUE AND SERVICE

IMMEDIATE AVAILABILITY ON OVER 5000 PRODUCTS available to provide advice and heads on demonstrations and advice on the right

DELIVERY & IN-HOME TUITION

UPGRADES & INSTALLATION

For instant advice on your new PC and its pre-installed softmare Call 0891 516 516 at any time, 345 days a year. Calcust 139 pre-entity posts and the pre-entity pre-entity posts and the pre-enti

THE BEST FOR BUSINESS

EASY WAYS TO PAY

EOW PRICE PROMISE

NEW

up to 10 of their transfer the findades at mobile or to those at mobile at mobile at mobile at mobile at the findades at the fin

MEMORY SAVE #30

£50.21:

Peripherique 48/byte 72 Pin SIMM.

SCANNER SAVE £30

property of the second second

Hayes Message Modem.
134 (FD Data or a second lodem for control driver for $1.000 per control to co MONITOR

NEW 760 resolution £469 mg teature, flug and flag £399.15ts

BUY 2 ACCESSORIES GET 1

FREE CD-ROM WRITER SAVE £200

NO DEPOSIT WHEN YOU TRADE-IN YOUR OLD PRINTER

Colour Inkjet Printer. 720 • 350 DPI Resolution | 360 DPI coour pinting Up to 5 pages per minute includes free ClipArt Software.

£154 VAT £25 TRADE-IN EPSON CANON Colour Inkjet Printer. The Index Printer reskric output Fully intersection printer. £174 ※ £299账 £148.08::. Color 12. £254.47:: HEWLETT €25 TRADE-IN HEWLETT £35 TRADE-IN

PACKARD Colour Inkjet Printer £274 W

£404 1% £343.83 Pa PAYS MONTHS ENTRY OF THE PROPERTY OF THE P

LATEST GAMES SOFTWARE

GRAND PRIX 2 HALF PRICE

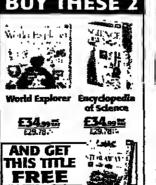

€9.99 3. €9.50 AND GET THIS TITLE FREE SOCCER. FIFA tuternational E9.99

NE

ay £21.9955

FOR YOUR NEAREST STORE CALL 0990 464 464

حكذا من الاحل

energy Senergy Senergy Senergy Senergy

Addition of the second

 $\alpha_{\rm atrag}$

Car Carlo

de Wile

Contract of the same approach might be different.

The prototype system sup-

Industry sources last night Generics prototype.

ucation services led to his claiming to be a few years younger than he was and he later adopted 15 December 1934 as his "official" birthday. He was the fifth child in a family of 13, and his kin were Habar Gedir, a sub-clan of the Hawiye, perhaps the largest of the Somali clans. The Hawiye are to be found in central and southern Somalia, and although divided they form the greater part of the population of the capital city, Mogadishu. Somali children gain nicknames at an early age. Although he became president,

the late Major-General Mohamed Siad Barre was never able to shake "Afweyne" or

"big mouth". Mohamed Farah was more fortunate: "Aideed" means "rejector of insults" and is attributed to the reaction of his mother when a neighbour commented that her child was of a darker complexion than she.

Hassan, a minor chief, and Fatuma Salah, taught Mohamed to know and look after the family camels, sheep and goats

before encouraging him to walk across the unmarked border into the Ethiopian Ogađen to seek instruction in the Koran.

After two years of learning morals and verses by rote, he returned to Somalia with the restless ambition of nbtaining further schooling. He was already demonstrating a fearlessness and an independent spirit. His elder brother, a policeman in Galkayo, a sleepy market town in north-central

Somalia, introduced him to

His comadic parents, Farah

MARK W.

Lan a dieck

THE BURGEST . T.

he edge

Brother

Th.

afair Her d

Minute?

Mark 11

great !

seral.

Principal and

.

Maria .

*****

make ghan i

Manuals

A PROPERTY.

100

144 S

Announcements for Gazette BIRTHS, MARRIAGES & DEATHS (Births, Adoptions, Marriages, Deaths, Memorial services, Wedding anniversaries, In Memorians) should be stat in writing to the Gazette Editor, The Independent, I Canada Square, Carary Wharf, London E145DL, telephoned to 0171-293 2011 or fixed to 0171-293 2010, and are charged at 56.50 a line (VAT extra).

Changing of the Guard Changing of the Guard Mounted Reg-ment mounts the Queen's Life Quard at Sastes Genris, Hawe, in Sentalion lithis Quard at Sastes Genris, Hawe, in Sentalion lithis Quards mounts the Queen's Guard, at Smellingham's Palace, (L'Users, band provided by the Welsh Genris, TV-MORROW: The Household Coward Mounted Regment mounts the Queen's Life Genrif at Saste Genris, Hawi, The Queen's Colour Squarbon mounts the Queen's Grand, M. Succhingham Palace, 11 Johns, hand provided by the Welsh typewriting and a greater awareoess of colonialism and the world beyond Sumalia.

In late adolescence, Aideed laboured on a new airstrip for Galkayo hefore joining his hrother who had been reposted near the fine paved Ital-ian highway which linked that frontier town with the capital the Strada Imperiale. It beckoned, and Aideed went to live with some soldiers at Wardingley military camp in Mogadishu. He twice took service with British officers in attempts to better his English, eveo accompanying one to Gabredarre, in Ethiopia. There he made his first political commitment, joining the Somali Youth League (SYL), the largest preindependence political group-ing. In August 1950 he enlisted in the Italian Gendarmeria.

Military training also provided scope for improving his Italian and sufficient financial security to marry his first wife. He became a quartermasterclerk and, by 1954, was a special cadet and won a place at Infantry School in Italy. The Italian authorities were on the lookout for a cadre to take over the administration of a soon-to-beindependent Somalia. Aideed was sent to the Nato Infantry School at Cesano in Rome.

Instruction was not confined to military subjects and Aideed bought himself an Italian edition of the Koran with which to improve his language. Self-possessed, he oever shied from confrootation. On a visit to the home country, the Italian Administrator of the UN Trust Territory of Somalia, Enrico Anzilotte, asked to meet the 13 young Somali trainee nfficers then in Italy, After he had explained the urgent need for an efficient indigennus police force, Aideed flatly interjected, "If you leave Somalia defenceless, our people will immediately establish a National Army. "When you get your indepenrudimentary Italian. English dence, you can do what you want" was the testy reponse. As luck would have it, there were white South Africans on the vessel on which the Somalis returned to East Africa. Aideed prepared his fellows for a public scene but the girl he asked to dance accepted. Back in Mogadishu, he was instrumental in the lifting of a ban on "local officers" at the officers' changing rooms at the Lido Beach Club and in requiring that white NCOs salute black officers.

Photograph: David Stewart Smith / Katz Pictures

مكذا من الاصل

Brig-Gen Mohamed Farah Aideed

Aldeed: the right to lead a new Somalia

After a course in police practice and leadership, Aideed was appointed to head the Bakool force, within the Upper Juba Division, which was led by the theo 2nd Lieutenant Mohamed Abshir Mussa, whn was to become Commissioner of Police, and whose name is still mentioned in some circles today as a potential national leader. After a year and a half, Aideed was promoted to lead the Benadir Division, which included the capital. He was made full Lieutenant and he succeeded an older officer, Captain Mohamed Siad Barre, hut was transferred again in 1959 to Kismayo, to head the Lower Juba Division, before returning to Cesano for advanced military training. His syllabus was expanded to include guerrilla warfare.

Meantime in Mogadishu the establishment of a National Army was approved. Aideed had lobbied for this and was transferred. At the ceremony on I July 1960 which marked the union betweeo corth and south, the former British Protectorate and the Italian-administered UN Trust, and the formation of the independent Somali Re-pointed white star on a light blue background - was commanded by Aideed. It was a moment he never forgot. That evening he was promoted Captain.

General Abdulla Dand, the first commander of the National Army, trusted Aideed and took him on delegations to the United States, Italy, (West) Germany, Nasser's Egypt and the Soviet Union, before sending him as military attaché in Moscow in order to study for three years at staff level at Frunze Military Academy.

Back in 1969 in Somalia, a few whispers were heard in the sunny and sandy seaside capital, Mogadishu, that General Mohamed Siad Barre, by then army commander, and colleagues in the National Army and the Police, were planning public, the unit which raised the ew natioo's flag - the five-ident, Abdirashid Ali Sherand Aideed, by then a colunel and uninvolved in the plnt, reported its existence to the civilian authorities, who discounted his warnings. A few days later. on 21 October 1969, a "bloodless revolution", soon to proclaim "scientific socialism", took place. The country was reoamed "The Somali Democratic Republic", but the people's first tentative experiment with democratic government, from independence in 1960 to 1969. was clearly over. Twenty-one vears of ever more repressive diotatorship - not to mention the first foothold of the Soviet Union in the Horn of Africa - ensued. It was decided to bundle Aideed off into obscurity as a counsellor or military attaché in the Sudan or Tanzania, but he declined and suggested the soldiers be returned to barracks. He was imprisoned for six harsh years, time enough for reflection and resolution - and, his enemies would later add, for the balance of his mind to become unhinged.

On his eventual release from prison, he was left johless for two years, before becoming a director in Somali's nationalised public corporations. His not inconsiderable military ability had to be recognised as tensions with Ethiopia mounted. He was promoted Brigadier-General and made an aide-decamp in the presidency, with responsibility for military affairs. But the president always feared him. In due course he was sent to New Delhi, as ambassador. Meanwhile Stad Barre's regime began the slide into chaos.

The first major attempt to overthow Siad Barre's dictatorship, staged by the Somali Salvatioo Democratic Froot (SSDF) (largely Mijertein clan) was crushed. The second attempt staged by the Somali National Movement (SNM) (largely Isaak clan) led to fullscale civil war in the north. Both the SSDF and the SNM enjoyed marke, had just been shot dead. Colonel Mengistu, the dictator nf Ethiopia. With SNM encouragement, sections of the Ogađeeo clan also took up arms. But the key remained the Hawiye sub-clans, especially those cootrolling the capital. Their leaders met secretly and chose Dr Ismail Jumale, prominent in human rights circles, to lead them. The United Somali Congress (USC) was formed. With the authority of the elders, Jumale contacted Aideed

and invited him to abandon his diplomatic post and organise armed opposition on behalf of the Hawiye. The SNM helped him visit Ethiopia and ohtain support. While these preparations were taking place, Jumale and a second prominent Hawiye leader died. The fighters elected Aideed to lead them but the civilians, both in exile in Rome and in Mogadishu, were divided and remain so to this day. However, in January 1991, mounting guerrilla activity caused the dictator to flee the capital for his own Marchan clan humelands io the southwest. Plans for such an eventuality had been agreed between the resistance groups so that a national government might be formed. But hefore Aideed could re-eoter Mogadishu, prominent husinessmen and professionals known as the Manifesto Group", who had sought to effect a peaceful transfer of power, declared one of their number, Ali Mahdi, as "interim president"; he formed "government". Aideed reported this event on his satellite phooe to the then leader of the SNM, who predicted the secession of the north. There were meetings in Djibouti and elsewhere to resolve these problems, but they all failed, although at one of them Aideed was elected chairman of the USC. Aideed broke off bloody confrootations which had developed with Ali Mahdi's supporters, to confront the nooe too covert support from remnants of Barre's army, Republic 2 August 1996.

whose depredations had exacerbated worsening famine conditinus io the agricultural food-producing parts of the country between its only rivers, the Juba and Shabelle. Barre eventually fled to Kenya where he and his entourage were accommodated at public expense in a luxury hotel - until popular indignation led President Moi to pack them off to Nigeria.

For months Italian authorities meddled in the Somali cauldron, possibly because there were commercial links between leading Italian politicians and their families and the family of the Somali dictator. The corruption came to be exposed not through Somalia, but in Italy itself. Fragile discussion with Somalia, in which the UN also took a part, broke down and inter- and, more seriously, intra-clan clashes worsened. The American armed forces came and went, as did the United Nations. The Somalis remain in disarray. In due course, the name of Aideed, once demonised by the Pentagoo and the Security Council, passed into the mythology of rebellion and he was invited to give the keynote address to the Pan-African Congress meeting in Kampala in 1993. But at home in Somalia even his own political and personal alliances began to splinter. His amhitions never faltered, for he always considered he had won with his sword the right to lead a new Somalia. But the disappointed old soldier was ever more obliged to return to what he knew best - the urban guerrilla fighting that has wasted so many lives and now cost him his own.

Richard Greenfield

S

ring d by tra-Mr

g to T. ier-not uilt, the af-Mr

out

im-

: in the

Эm

aid

Δď

ar-

ute

!he

us he

ay.

Mohamed Farah Hassan Aideed", soldier: born Belet Wene, Italian Somaliland c1930: Chairman, Somali National Alliance and Somali National Congress 1991-95; three times married; Mogadishu,

Michel Debré

Michel Debré, Prime Minister of Conseil d'Etat, which served as France from 1959 to 1962, was a politician and reformer of energy aod vigour, devoted to the Gaullist cause. He will be remembered for his administrative reforms and drafting the constitution of the Fifth Republic and for his abilities as a legislator rather than as Prime Minister or as theorist.

Debré was born in Paris in 1912. His paternal grandfather was the chief rabbi of Alsace. His father, Robert Debré, was an eminent paediatrician and the instigator of numerous campaigns, including family law reform, and was on friendly terms with many politicians of the Third Republic, including Paul Reynaud. It was Reynaud who brought Michel Debre into his private office in the Ministry of Finance (1938-39) and it was there he met de Gaulle. He was educated at the prestigious Lycée Louis le Grand in Paris and then at the Paris Law Faculty and the Ecole Libre des Sciences Politiques before starting a career in the Conseil d'Etat, the government legal office, whose members regularly take leave for political work he was an "auditeur" in 1934 and a "maître des requêtes" in 1942 but he did not resume this career after the war. During the war Debré was mobilised as a lieutenant in the cavalry, was captured and escaped. He joined Emmanuel Monnick, secretary to General Noguès, and went to Morocco, where he met Jacques Faure, then an army captain. In 1941 he returned to Paris to work in the a cover for Gaullist resistance activity, and started planning the shape of the future Republic through the Comités d'Etudes de la Résistance. He later left Occupied France and moved between London and Algiers. He entered clandestinely under the name of "Jacquier" but continued to advocate governmental reform in pamphlets. It was Debré who was given responsibility by de Gaulie for the re-establishment of the local government corps of prefects after the Liberation and he also became the regional Republican Commissioner (a sort of super prefect) for Angers in 1944. In 1945 de Gaulle, then prime minister, took him into his private office to deal with the reform of the civil service. Here he was principally responsible for creating the clite Ecole Nationale d'Administration (ENA), the institution through which French higher civil servants pass. He was hriefly its head and ENA is a monument to his reforming drive.

Debré was an unsuccessful Radical candidate before entering the Senate in 1948 for Indre-et-Loire - he remained until 1959 and was head of the Gaullist senate group from 1955 to 1958. From the Senate he attacked "the regime", the rapid-ly changing governments of the Fourth Republic, and called for the return to power of General de Gaulle with a stream of violent word-whippings of politi-cians and the Fourth Republic, doing for the senators what Jacques Soustelle (the Ganllist leader in the National Assembly) did for the deputies - predicting a crisis and describing the Republic's failings in lurid terms.

The only possible hope, the General, he said, had been maliciously kept out of power by "those princes who govern us". He declared that "Necessary insurrections where there is compromise or surrender of authority are marked with the sacred seal of legitimacy."

There were few meetings of conspirators with which he was not connected: Jacques Faure was put under 40 days' arrest for planning a coup, and Debré was implicated in the affair of the attempted murder of General Raoul Salan, commander-inchief in Algeria, who was thought at the time to be less than committed to a French Algeria. He always denied plotting, but was clearly close to Delbecque and other Gaullist plotters in 1958, when the insurrection in Algeria turned into a call, led by Salan, for de Gaulle's return to power. Debré nailed his colours to the mast of the cause of French Algeria. His journal Le Courrier de la Colère was violently in favour of French Algeria, arguing that the only way Algeria could be re-tained was if the General returned to power, and he went as far as to claim that insurrection for a French Algeria was legitimate. It was the continuation of the seemingly insoluble Algerian war which brought the General back to power in 1958.

Justice in de Gaulle's government of July 1958: he was in charge of the drafting of the constitution for the Fifth Republic. which came into force at the beginning of 1959. He did not have a completely free hand but the constitution was stamped with his ideas. The Fifth Republic was to strengthen the executive and to downgrade the parliament. The interpellation (opposition parliamentary questioning aimed at harassing the government), which Debré had used against the Fourth Republic, was removed and it was made more difficult to defeat the government, to harass or to pressure it. Debré became the first Prime Minister of the Fifth Republic and made his contempt for the Assembly and for the "Fourth Republic's politicians" very clear. What he did not create was a presidential constitution, but power moved steadily into the hands of de Gaulle, to the extent that Duverger memorably asked "M Debré existe-t-il?" De Gaulle made the important decisions, reversed Debré's, contradicted him and kept him in the dark. Debré was a loyal servant and, despite having to work in the shadow of the General, had numerous accomplishments. The "Debré law of 1959" dampened the religious schools question and Debré defied the bouilleurs, the private distillers' lobby. However the Algerian prob-lem dominated affairs. It became clear that the General's direction was towards decolonisation. which put Debré in an invidious Debré became Minister of position. Debré crushed the insurrection in Algeria tripped off by the French Algeria unconditionals, who realised where de Gaulle was going. As de Gaulle put it Debré "adapted each of my initiatives with complete loyalty". He offered to resign, but the President asked him to continue in office until the Algerian war was over. By then Debré had become an embarrassment, was unceremoniously replaced with Pompidou and advised "to travel". Debré was unable to win a seat in the 1962 elections but in May 1963 won a by-election for the island of La Réunion (a seat he retained until 1988). He was involved in the Gaullist party but was back in government when he replaced Valéry Giscard d'Estaing as Finance Minister in January 1966. A certain interventionism brought Debré close to socialist conceptions of the state but the anti-American rhetoric of previous years had little effect on his actions (or American investment). Appointed Foreign Minister after the Gaullist victory in the elections of June 1968, he had the misfortune to be at that post when the unrealistic nature of de Gaulle's foreign policy was made clear by the invasioo of Czechoslovakia: Debré dismissed it as a "temporary hold-up" on the road to co-operation with the Soviet bloc. Later there was a refocus of French interest in the Eastern threat and a restoratino of interest in the Atlantic

Photograph: Hulton Getty

Mr Post-Evangelical, is there a message for me?

Debré was moved to defence wheo Pompidou won the presi-dency in 1969 hut the improvement in relations with the US continued. His presence en-sured that de Gaulle's legacy would be respected. He aired the views that France could count nnly on herself; that the independent nuclear deterrent was key and that French forces would remain under strict French control.

Within the centre-right presidential majority, hut semi-detached, Debré took up a number of causes including anti-Europeanism and opposition to decentralisation (on the grounds that it weakened the authority of the state). He shared the Gaullist party's bostility to Giscard and the state of France under him.

But it was opposition to En-ropean integration - the monetary snake, direct election of the parliament - that drew fire. He stood with Jacques Chirac as joint leader of the Gaullist ticket for the European elections of 1979. The poor showing of the Gaullists (16 per cent) led Chirac to abandon the anti-European line and to Debre's distancing himself from the new leadership. In 1981 Debré stood as a candidate in the presidential elections, accusing Giscard of having "wasted seven years". The result. a mere 1.65 per cent of the vote, was insignificant but did contribute to the disintegration of the right. It was Debré (with other Gaullist leaders) who led the attacks on the Socialists when after favourable by-elections in 1982, they felt the tide turning against President Mitterrand.

Michel Debré was a tough and brutal pamphleteer but was constrained to accept the most contradictory of U-turns. He admired British institutions, such as English conservatism, though he was no friend in the Mother of Parliaments. He was an opponent of European integration who accepted the Commoo Market; an intolerant partisan for a French Algeria who accepted decolonisation: a legalist and hymnist of state authority who advocated insurrection, and the critic of spinelessuess who effaced himself before President de Gaulle. The only thing which explains these paradoxes is a devotion to Charles de Gaulle beyond

Michel Debré, politician: born Paris 15 January 1912; Senator, Indre-et-Loire 1948-58; Keeper of the Seals 1958-59; Prime Minister of France 1959-62; Deputy for La Réunion 1963-86; Minister of the Economy and Finance 1966-68; Foreign Minister 1968-69; De-fence Minister 1969-73; MEP 1979-80; married 1931 Anne Marie Lemarequier (two sons); died Montlouis-sur-Loire 2 August 1996.

Births, Marriages & Deaths

BIRTHS

Catherine Barraclough and Harry Pearson, a daughter, Maisie Ida

DEATHS

CLARKE: Alan, formerly Director of the Sussex Aids Centre, died peace-fully on 31 July, aged 46. Funeral at Woodvale Crematorium, Brighton on 7 August at 2.15. No flowers please, but donations to Sussex Bea-con, Bevendean Road, Brighton BN2

Forthcoming marriages

Mr A. D. Hicks and Miss C. M. Taylor

The engagement is announced be-tween Andrew, eldest son of Mr and Mrs Clive Hicks, of Ealing, London, and Catherine Mary (Katie), elder daughter of Mr and Mrs Tim Taylor, of Goudhurst, Kent.

Birthdays

TODAY: Mr Richard Adler, composer, 75; Sir John Anson, senior civ-il servant, 66; Mr Osvaldo Ardiles, football manager, 43; Air Marshal Sir Peter Bairsto, former Deputy Commander-in-Chief, Strike Command, 70; Mr Tony Bennett, singer, 70; Mr Steven Berkoff, actor and director, 59; Lt-Gen Sir Alexander Boswell, former Lieutenant-Governor of Guernsey, 68; Sir Paul Bryan, former MP, 83; Mrs Elizabeth Chilver, former Principal, Lady Margaret Hail, Oxford, 82; Mr Peter Easterby, racchorse trainer, 67; Mr Josh Gifford, racchorse trainer, 55; Mr Nick Harvey MP, 35; Baroness James of Holland Park (P.D. James), writer, 76; Professor Anthony Jones, Rector, Royal College of Art, 52; Mr William Powell MP, 48; Mr Anthony Samp-son, writer, 70; Sir David Scott, former diplomat, 71; Mr Martin Sheen, actor, 56; Miss Sue Silpman, director, London TEC Council, 47; Mr Michael Stern MP, 54; Mr Jack Straw MP, 50; Sir Jock Thylor, chair-man, Siemens, 72; Sir George Waller, former Lord Justice of Appeal, 85;

The Right Rev Dr Roger Wilson, for-mer Bishop of Chichester, 91: Mr Terry Wogan, broadcaster, 58.

TOMORROW: Queen Elizabeth the Queen Mother, 96; Mr James Ar-buthnot MP, Minister of State for Defence Procurement, 44; Vice-Admiral Sir Patrick Bayly, 82; Mr David Bedford, composer. 59; Mr William Cooper, novelist, 86; Dr Jack Cun-ningham MP, 57; Sir Rustam Feroze, gynaecologist, 76; Professor Hugh Freeman, psychiatrist, 67; Sir George Godber, former chairman, Health Education Council, 88; Mr Martin Jarvis, actor, 55; Mr David Lange, former Prime Minister of New Zealand. 54; Mr Ian Newton, former Headmaster, Bedales School, 50; Mr Simon Preston, organist, 58; Mr John Spalding, former chief executive, Haifax Building Society, 72; Mr Peter Squires, rugby player, 45; Sir Rodney Swiss, dental surgeon, 92; Mr Bowen Wells MP, a Lord Commissioner for the Treasury, 61; Sir Michael Weston, UK Permanent Representative to the United Na-

Anniversaries

TODAY: Births: Stanley Baldwin, statesman, 1867; Rupert Chawner Brooke, poet, 1887. Deaths: Sir Richard Arkwright, inventor of the spinning frame, 1792; Joseph Conrad, novelist, 1924. On this day: the first ship passed through the Panama Canal, 1914. Today is the Feast Day of St Germanus of Americ, St Thomas of Hales or Dover, and St Walthen or Walthcof.

A Hindu friend, on the remote east coast of Sri Lanka, had in his sittingroom an image of the god Ganesh - the one who looks like an elephant. Ynung and foolish. I wondered why an educated man would possess such an object - Mancharan was a scientist, an industrial chemist. So I asked him if he truly believed in Ganesh.

"Yes," he replied. "I accord to Ganesh every divine attribute - except that of existence."

This seemed dangerous stuff to a Christian; but I concluded that such a view of reality might be normal to a modern Hindu, who draws on a couple more millennia of thinking about these things. I recalled Ganesh and Mannharan when I went recently to St James's, Piccadilly, to hear Dave Tomlinson talk about the "Post-Evangelical". This was billed as a way to enjoy the whole experience of the Gospel without worrying hugely about the truth of it all. Tomlinson comes from that great milling of movements made up of charismatics, house churches, Easter People, Green Belters, Spring Harvesters and the rest. It is an amazing confederation, which threatens and enriches the standard denominations about equally. These oew movements clearly now have the strength to ask

faith oreason

The Rev John Kennedy this week asks whether a belief in God is enhanced by a commitment to His existence, and concludes that for many Evangelicals it is not.

some exciting questions. Tomlinson asks them very sharply indeed. First, he remarks no that twodimensional Evangelical personality with the smile on. Are they really like this all the time? Tomlinson wants people to be who they really are, which is why he gathers them in the upstairs

Clapham Common every Tuesday, in a conventicle called Holy Joe's. Then, there is the demand for certainty. Tomlinson is clear that there is plenty of divine truth about, but almost no human certainty. He sometimes talks in post-postmodern terminology, but this puzzle has been with us since Descartes. The world is clearly a won-room at the Queen Alexandra on derful place, and it's really there; hut that we have received, and from the crewheo you think about it, all that stays in place is the arithmetic in your head. And, God save us, the Bible is part of that infinitely complex and ambiguous world; so what certainty can there he, in heaven or in earth? Clearly, not a lot, but that's what being grown-up means. lt is wonderfully refreshing to hear biblical literalism discussed as a rather barmy parody of modern rationalism. That is a paraphrase of the intriguing stuff that Dave was giving out at St James's. Then a stout Anglican told us that he had solved these problems 30 years ago, and denounced us all as sectarian, on account of not being C of E. Some of us denounced him right back, arguing that the truth is sectarian, or it is oothing. The point that Dave and Co have hit on is familiar enough in philosophical chatter, and on the arid shares of the Sea of Faith, but carries a new force in the Evangelical context. The argument seems to be like this. Anything that can be asserted entails the possibility of counter-assertion and qualification, unless the proposition is trivial. There is no final truth about anything, only versions of our stories, which compel by their ability to persuade. And their persuasive force is not inative talent that God's spirit endows us with. The harder we assert one thing to be the case, the more an infinity of distorting mirrors shows it to he otherwise, and a babel of mocking voices shouts the same. This, of course is the rather ancient truth that lies behind the banalities of postmodernism. It gives us no terrible problems, until one version of the tale demands to assert itself over all the others - which is very much the Evangelical style. The Post-Evangelical style is quite different. It admits that we have the treasure of truth in earthen vessels - the frail flesh and feeling of a lived life. The truth cannot be used as efficiently as we would like, and if we use it against one another, its power becomes diabolical. My friend Manoharan could not make Ganesh really real, and wouldn't try. Nor dn the folk at Holy Joe's.

Post-Evangelicals seem to be people who trust in God, but who will not trust in prefabricated answers to ultimate

It remains to be seen whether this phenomenon is merely an irritant upon the body of Evangelical confidence, or whether it has a genuine transformative power. I suspect there are many fugitives from the Evangelical camp who herent. It is derived from the tradition would like to know,

医圆冠

FIAT BRAVO. A CHOICE NOT A COMPROMISE.

THE FIAT BRAVO FROM £120 PER MONTH APR 8.4%. (PLUS DEPOSIT AND FINAL PAYMENT.)

information.

When we designed the Fiat Bravo, there was no talk of second best. We wanted it to be the perfect sporty hatch. The jury voting for Car of the Year 1996 shared our view. They crowned the Bravo overall winner alongside the Brava.

Autocar magazine went so far as to say that "Every rival in its class has instantly moved down a peg."

The Bravo is one of the sleekest looking cars in its class. Inside, there's an elegant and ergonomic layout. Outside, a suspension that's tuned for taming bends. Light and nimble steering keeps the car agile and composed.

The new modular engines in 12 valve 1.4 litre or 16 valve 1.6 and 1.8 litre versions respond at the touch of a toe.

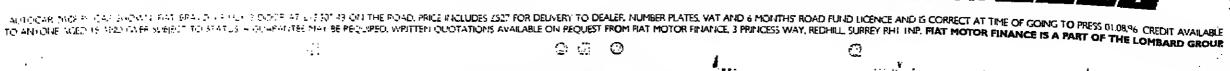

There's no skimping when it comes to safety either. A driver's airbag, side impact bars, a rigid safety cell, anti-submarining seats and a third rear brake light are fitted as standard. As are the stereo radio-cassette and electronic engine immobiliser.

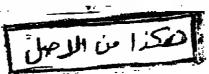

Our designers haven't compromised on the Fiat Bravo, so why should you? From £10,289 on the road or with Fiat Easiplan Finance, there's no need to.

Call 0800 71 7000 or http://www.fiat.com on the Internet for more

	FIA	T EASIPLA	N EXAM	APLE
	FIAT BRAVO 1.45	FIAT BRAVO 1.8 HLX		FIAT BRAVO1.45	FIAT BRAVO 1.8 HLX
Cash Price (on the road)	£10,288.90	£13,307.48	23 Monthly Payments	£120.00	£170.66
Deposit	£3,333.68	£4,258.39	Final Payment	£5,027.38	£6,326.34
Amount Financed	£6,955.22	£9,049.09	APR	8.40%	9.30%
Term	25 MO	NTHS	INTEREST CHARGED	£952.16	£1,373.09
First Payment	£180.00 (inc.£60 admin)	£230.66 (inc. £60 admin)	TOTAL PAYABLE	£11,301.06	£14,740.57

DRIVEN BY PASSION ELAT

sier ring i by tra-Mr g to r. ier-not wilt, the af-Mr na-ing tel-

ute the es-bly ay.

DEPENDENT

ONE CANADA SQUARE CANARY WHARF LONDON E14 5DL TELEPHONE 0171-293 2000/0171-345 2000 FAX 0171-293 2435/0171-345 2435

When Tories are capitalism's worst enemies

s Alan Shearer worth £15m? The answer: if Sir John Hall and Kevin Keegan of Newcastle United FC think he is, he is. That is the price put on his skill. Another example: Winston Churchill MP. We may think him greedy and lacking in family pride but we have to accept he has something to sell – his grandfather's papers - and someone wants to huy. If the striking price is high, so be it. You can pick any number of instances from the City, enter-tainment, sports, even journalism, We may not think much of the heneficiaries of the transactions but as long as some skill, some spark of enterprise, some talent or some product is heing sold, the "right" price is the price someone will pay in a real, unrigged market. In such cases, political intervention ends in mild oppression, embarrassment or tears.

The price for Porterbrook plc is wrong. Here were a group of British Rail employees plus some corporate middlemen who borrowed money to buy a set of earmarked assets. The risk was minimal, the element of skill negligible: no enterprise, no imagination, no innovation. All they needed to know was that they were sitting on top of millions of pounds' worth of rolling stock without which there would, literally, be no rail service. After six months of sitting, Stagecoach comes along and makes an offer that pays off all of Porterbrook's borrowing and leaves £84m to spare. Eighty-four million pounds for what? For no exercise of talent, nothing foregone - they are getting money for the accident of being in the right place at the right time. (We recorded yesterday the chagrin of one employee who resigned a couple of months too early to share in the spoils.)

But let's be crystal clear why this transaction is wrong. If one leg of the case for privatisation was to bring in capital for investment in stock or improved service, ask what conceivable henefit to railways does this £84m profit represent - not a single extra carriage, not a single new engine, not a lick of paint on a wagon door. If another leg of the argument was about breaking up the rail industry for the sake of competition, what on earth is Stagecoach - already suspiciously strong in the provision of coach services ostensibly in competition with rail - doing buying up a train-leasing outfit? Wasn't the idea that service providers should be kept separate from owners of rolling stock? Next, presumably, we will see service operators taking over track, we will then be squarely back at stage one with a price-gouging monopoly, hut with none of the benefits of nationwide integration that Britisb Rail offered.

This sale and profit is bad for the national interest in cost-effective transport, for the dangers it poses the railways. But it is bad, too, for the Tory party and not only for the way it exposes the short-term incoherence of Tory thinking about privatisation. It is especially had for a party that prides itself on communing with the British public's highly developed sense of fairness.

There is in public opinion a deep strain that strictly assesses the worth of those who receive public money and assistance. That fact has now been recognised by Labour, which has, for example, heen tailoring its benefits-to-work policy accordingly. The parties are now broadly agreed: people deserve social henefits only in proportion to their willingness and capacity to work.

But now here comes the Conservative government condoning a situation in which "deserve" does not figure. What is the worth of Sandy Anderson, managing director of Porterbrook plc, as he counts his millions? What the Conservatives fail to see is that we make judgements about fairness on a continuous basis; we do not apply different scales at different times. The small corruption of the benefits claimant who defrauds the state receives the same censure as the City slicker who cheats on his income or corporation tax.

What the Government is damaging is our underlying conviction that the "system" is fair. By privatising in the way it has and now - failing to condemn failure and excess, ministers undermine their own capacity to stand as the guarantors for equity elsewhere. If the Tory state is such a milcb cow, why shouldn't the self-employed, or housing benefit claimants behave accordingly and squeeze the teats until they are cracked and dry?

The public, by and large, applauds good fortune and just rewards. Self-made millionaires and rich inventors; well-off actors and entrepreneurs - they are all a cause for celebration. The National Lottery has been such a great success because people cheer when the wheel of chance spins and some lucky heggar walks away with millions. That is the outcome of a game we subscribe to every time we huy a ticket. But public money is not a game. Hard tests of desert ought to apply to those who get state handouts - and the ranks of those with their palms outstretched include the chairmen and chief executives of companies grown fat thanks to the underpricing of national assets. Capitalism may appear, after the demise of Communism, to be robust hecause unchallenged. But markets are only as effective as the belief that surrounds them The Conservatives, ostensibly the party of the free market, are sometimes among its worst enemies.

LETTER from THE EDITOR

ugust is the cruellest month - as TS Eliot put it, hefore Ezra Pound got to him with the correcting fluid. In August, no journalists report to no readers on the activities of no politicians. In August, the most important people left in the country are John Prescott and Stephen Dorrell. In August, the streets of our great cities gather dust and our finance houses are windy ghost-towns. In August, no minister resigns, no royal toe is nibbled by a defrocked. In August, things are unusual; we are our private selves. We dream of life without politics, life without fuss. And ... what happens? While dreaming, perhaps on a distant Mediterranean beach, perhaps on Dorset shingle, we are suddenly shaken awake by a cleanlimbed youth with crisp white shirt and a Mormon smile, thrusting a leaflet and lisping. "New Labour, New Britain." Squinting and angry, we sit up and see, further down the beach, Brian Mawhinney tacking a poster to an olive tree. Whatever next? lan Paisley in St Tropez? Dennis Skinner tramping the trattorias of Umbria?

Have these people no. shame, no sense of national tradition? I suggest that unless the parties withdraw their lunatic schemes for seaside August campaigns, we should arise, as a free and frolicking people, and pledge ourselves to vote for none of the above.

The case of the frozen embryos, which we report on again today on page one, is not only one of the sharpest examples of the moral dilemmas raised by advancing technologies; it is also a good example of how our language comes under pressure when confronted with oew problems. Trying to write a headline about this the other day, I was confronted by words such as "orphan", "kilted", "parents" and "left to die".

merki .

新建 343-14

These are strong, familiar words and their cumulative use has the effect of nudging any hut the strongest mind against the destruction of the embryos. This is before the words of campaigners, including "massacre". 'holocaust' and so on, are taken into account. There are rival words, which help remove the emotional effect, such as

"cell-cluster", "potential" and "disposal" but they are, well, clinical. We have had, of course, powerful letters on both sides; but the letters protesting against the destruction of the embryos are more powerfully written. So they should be: they are drawing on a much more powerful verbal ammunition-

But isn't it interesting that so much buman passion is expended on the fate of tiny groups of cells, compared with the fate of fully developed chilothers in hopeless poverty?
Isn't here a perverse hierarchy of compassion here, which places cell-clusters at the top of the moral agenda, then strug-gling ordinary children below them, and then - far below both - immiscrated adults? (When,

Isn't there a perverse hierarchy of compassion here, that places cell clusters at the top of the moral agenda?

come to think of it, did children begin to be considered more worthy of pity than adults, and why - was It Dickens?)

At any rate, if there is something perverse here, then it is deeply rooted in our language and our emotional responses to words. And these are some of the deepest social roots we have; what seems to be a trivial struggle about a headline touches the future of the longfingered bipeds as a whole.

Another thing about August, of course, is that schools and universines are empty. Given that bipeds are innately keen oo learning, we have devised a short course to keep educationstarved readers happy. From Monday, we begin "The DIY University" – our instant course in Everything Important, which ranges from Einstein to quantum mechanics - Chomsky to classical painting - Groucho

Marx to epistemology.
It's something different for the patio or beach. And useful, perhaps, for swatting away the mendicant politicians.

Andrew Marr

QUOTE UNQUOTE

We spend our time trying to create life, and now we are being asked to destroy it - Dr Peter Bromwich, fertility specialist, on the destruction of thousands of "orphaned" embryos.

I'm innocent. I didn't do it - Richard Jewell, the 33-year-old security guard who first reported finding the knapsack bomb that exploded at the Atlanta Olympics. He has become a leading suspect.

She could sing like an angel in the choir, tackle like Paul Ince on the foothall field and go up and down stairs in between like Sally Gunnell on a training run. Just to watch her made you tired, and she loved every minute - Bob Branch, headmaster, at the funeral of lade Matthews, nine, who was found battered to death on a railwar line in Bootle, Mersevside.

I like it. We won, the end. Leadership. America. Good over evil - Bob Dole, Republican presidential contender, after seeing the summer's blockbuster film, 'Independence Day'.

She would be turned away at the bar. She's a woman first, rememher, and Queen second - Terry Wogan, on London's male-only Garrick Club, which has invited the Queen to visit. Oh God It's too long a life. I am tired ... Give me instant death - Bir Narayan Choudhury, 139, in an interview with the 'Kath-mandu Post' in his Himalayan village of Khanar, Nepal.

■ LETTERS TO THE EDITOR ■

Gun control: the need for rational debate

Sir: I am relieved that the Home Affairs Select Committee bas voted against a total ban on handguns; appalling though the Dumblane massacre was, and wholly understandable though the views of parents such as Pamela Ross are ("Listen to me", 1 August), as a nation we simply must try to step back from the situation and attempt to assess it rationally before passing ill-conceived and unnecessary laws. It is a sad fact that a ban on legally held handguns would in no vay prevent another such incident occurring; viewed objectively, even a shotgun in the bands of Thomas Hamilton would bave bad a very similar result, and yet even those calling for severe restrictions on the to control these weapons as well.

I am not a gun user myself, have no involvement in the field beyond academic study, and support no political group or party, but I can see that no legislation passed in haste and with a people still in shock has ever had its intended effect, no matter how well-intentioned - rather, it is by rational dehate and analysis that the appropriate laws are framed and in this case, effective and fair gun control is achieved, without over-reaction by either side. CHRISTOPHER M ROGERS Edgware, Middlesex

Sir: The item "Home Office challenges gun lobby evidence" (2 August) describes the Home Office paper which makes comparisons between gun-related crime rates in Britain and the United States. If I felt that gun control would protect our children I would support it without besitation, but to make this kind of global comparison overlooks the fact that gun control laws in the United States vary

I understand that in Washington DC, where the crime rate is extremely high, there already exists a ban oo bandguns as is proposed here, whereas in many states which allow gun ownership, gun-related crime is comparatively much lower.
Is it too much to ask for an objective analysis of the American data which already exists so that simplistic, emotive and idealistic responses to this issue can be reduced? After all, at first view the American situation may suggest that our children may be more at risk, not less, if handgun ownership is made illegal. ALAN QUINN Macclesfield, Cheshire

Sir, It is a non sequitor to suggest, as Richard Balmer does (Letters, 2 August), that a ban on gun ownership is wrong because cars, kitchen knives and axes could also be banned using the same thinking. Although the latter three can all be misused, their main functions are travel, onion-chopping and treeectivery. The sole purpose of a gun, however, is to fire a bullet (whether in sport or in anger), something that need not, and should not, be integral to any citizen's life. If a minority of people need to find a new hobby, then so be

AMOS MILLER London W12

Turkey has a part to play in the international community

Sir: For too long, Turkey has been maligned and marginalised by the international community, which has failed to understand what Turkey is really about ("The Turkish question", 30 July).

Britain and the US have sought to be more constructive in huilding a relationship with a country that desperately wants to be democratic, wants to be accepted and to be understood. However, this constructive approach is still too tentative, too arm's length. The challenge and opportunity for the West is to engage Turkey as a friend and as a country which can bring benefit to the international community.

This is not to condone or ignore human rights abuses, nor the country's faltering ecocomy and the political state. However, these deficiencies will be rectified more quickly if the West accepts Turkey as a partner for greater good. Abuses and policy errors should be seen in the context of a Turkey that has a modern constitution, holds regular elections and which wants to be a modern, economically successful country and a valued

Vouchers increase

Sir: Rosemary Murphy's letter

July) suggested that nursery

On the contrary, nursery

choice for parents.

sectors.

"Vouchers will restrict choice". 24 education vouchers would restrict education vouchers will give parents of all four-year-olds the opportunity to make a choice between providers

l appland co-operation between providers and between sectors, with in the state, private or voluntary all partners working towards a education and care in a single institution - the private and common aim. Many parents want voluntary sectors are particularly

If, as Ms Murphy suggests, local authorities start to admit younger and younger children to school, and parents do not like that, they may use the choice offered to them by their voucher to move their child.

After all, that is what parental

Parliamentary Under-Secretary

Department for Education and choice is about.

of State

Employment

ROBIN SQUIRE

well placed to provide just that.

parental choice

member part of the international community.

It is a sign of the strength of Turkey's democratic instincts that a predominantly secular society can endure months of unstable coalition and theo elect the Islamic Welfare Party into office, which has just renewed Turkey's commitment to Operation Provide Comfort in support of Kurds in Northern Iraq.

The country is a member of the Council of Europe, a strategically vital member of Nato, has applied for membership of the EU and has favourable trading arrangements with EU countries. As such, she deserves to be treated as a "grown-up" member of the international community and to receive a greater investment of time and understanding. EDWARD C FUNNELL London SW11

Sir. Tony Barber's description of Turkey as a democracy needs serious qualification. Many thousands have been arbitrarily arrested and tortured. The press is restricted in what it may say, and those who offend the state risk punishment.

Over the past five years at least 29 journalists have been assassinated for their temerity, bundreds of others arrested, and many tortured. Hundreds of other political activists have either been killed or simply "disappeared", mutilated bodies appearing weeks later or never. No one can hold the PKK guiltless in the miseries of south-east Turkey, but your readers may not be aware that the state has rendered 3,000 villages uninhabitable over the past four years, leaving almost 3 million villagers destitute, to survive as best they may. Imagine for a moment such things happening in a member state of the European Union.

Nothing is likely to change until Turkey's major trading partners, the US and leading EU members. recognise that the most serious issue facing Turkey's future is one of fundamental rights, and that it must be helped to face and solve this question. That requires a frank and constructive initiative, not its avoidance, as so often happens, as if it were an embarrassment to the jollier business of trade. DAVID McDOWALL

Lawyers welcome the Woolf report

Sir: Your leading article (27 July), on Lord Woolf's final report, did lawyers and the Law Society a serious injustice.

Both the Law Society and the Bar Council and very many individual lawyers from both professions have provided considerable support to Lord Woolf and his team in the last two years and have welcomed the main thrust of his proposals.

The profession knows very well that the interests of clients must come first and that changes which will make access to the civil justice system easier and achieve results in cases more quickly and cheaply, are both necessary and to be welcomed.

Many firms of solicitors are already operating in a streamlined, client-oriented way in their litigation practices and many, too, are encouraging clients in appropriate cases to use mediation, arbitration, ombudsmen and other ADR routes to settle their disputes.

Lord Woolf is particularly concerned to enable ordinary citizens and small husinesses to have an affordable, speedy and fair chance of pursuing or defending a claim, even against well-resourced opponents. The system of fixed costs on the fast track could play a major part in achieving this, provided those fixed costs are set at a fair and workable level, after proper piloting and testing of the new procedures.

If Lord Woolf is right and much of the fear of litigation, especially exposure to uncertain costs, is removed, his reforms could well produce more work for lawyers. This is already happening in personal injury and insolvency work, following the introduction of conditional fees a year ago. In Germany, where a fixed costs system has been operating for many years and many citizens have legal expenses insurance, the amount of litigation per head is seven times that of this country. Solicitors should view the new post-Woolf litigation landscape positively as an opportunity to offer clients a better service. TONY GIRLING President The Law Society London WC2

The Amorphophallus titanum, at Kew Gardens

Memories of a smelly floral giant

Sir. News that Amorphophallus litarum was about to bloom at Kew Gardens (report, 30 July) reminded me of when I first heard of the world's targest flower, from a man who assisted at a similar flowering in the late 1930s.

His oame was Truman Fossum. and he was born in Minot, North Dakota. After studying at Kew and a oumber of US universities, Truman went to work at the botanical gardens in New York City, where a itan arum corm smuggled out of Sumatra was induced to bloom. One of Truman's chores was to escort elderly patrons of the botanical gardens who wanted to see the smelly floral giant up close. The promoters of the 1939 New York World's Fair were so impressed by titan arum that they had a replica made of rubber that pneumatically opened and closed on demand.

Truman later worked for the US Department of Agriculture and other organisations, in a long, distinguished career devoted to horticultural statistics. He died a few years ago, but would have been pleased to hear of the flowering at Kew, where he was very proud to have studied.
RONALD ODGERS Carleton, Yorkshire

exceptions in every way. Yet someone taught even the young Yehudi to read and to write, and someone inspired in him a passion for self-on school teachers to do this, and criticised if they fail to deliver what,

parents with "enormous dedication"

teachers certainly get universally according to your article, only instructioo. Most people have to rely

Communing with nature vs GCSEs

Sir. Imagine being an ordinary kid from, say, inner-city Hackney or Moss Side, trying to explain away your lack of GCSE passes to a potential employer by saying. Actually, I was wandering through woods, communing with nature ... passionately following interests" (report, 30 July). You'd be consigned to the dole queue for a very long time, if not for life. There are geniuses like Yehudi

Meouhin, of course, who are

Vermin from Venus

by at least two decades, and more extreme, than Professor Sir Fred Hoyle and Professor N C Wickramasinghe acknowledge (letter, 1 August). In Worlds in Collision, published in 1950, Immanuel Velikovsky wrote: The question arises whether or not the comet Venus infested the earth with vermin which it may have carried in its trailing atmosphere in the form of larvae... STEPHEN SENN Harpenden Hertfordshire will do.

STELLA O'SHEA

London N8

Sir: Regarding infestation from outer space, the theory is both older

Energy Act

Sir. Your list of new parliamentary Acts is incomplete (report, 26 July). The 1996 Energy Conservation Bill completed its parliamentary procedure, and awaits royal assent. Unusually it was sponsored by a Labour MP (Alan Simpson), and was (equally unusually for a successful Private Member's Bill) not originated by the Government, it extends the 1995 Home Energy Conservation Ac again a gemuine Private Member's initiative - to give local authorities duties to create plans to cut fuel consumption by 30 per cent for those living in homes in multiple occupation and on house boats. ANDREW WARREN Director, Association for the Conservation of Energy London N1

Letters should be addressed to Letters to the Editor, The Independent, One Canada Square, Canary Wharf, London E14 5DL (Fax: 0171-293 2056; e-mail: letters@independent.co.mk) and include a daytime telephone number.

Letters may be edited for length and clarity. We regret we are unable to acknowledge unpublished letters.

the elegant silhouette of Shaun Beary vanishes nearby as he courteously fetches the picnic basket. A balmy breeze from grey sky and wine poured, we go sit on a bench in front of the great door of Tullynally as the arriving audience streams by.

Within a large white marquee, chairman of this Derravaragh Music Association event, David Taylor, welcomes, and the treasure sought of the evening is revealed. Don't miss them wherever they go. The Pimlico Opera, clear and sweet, their excellent voices play out

Don Giovanni with stunning timing and skill, the audience alive to every word they mouth and sing. Even as her feet grow chilled, Marianne remains rapt in attention. Flinching at the awful moments, laughing at the droll. And one realises as this naughty story of this opera unfolds that it could be told with equal significance in the headlines of tomorrow's tabloids. Singing the verities of life. Let love buy you your future. Or bury you along with your past. Forward with the rich and ignoble and give the meek and humble a kick up the arse.

Ovations over. We retreat through hallways of the castle into an inner courtyard to the

Mullingar: a singular place

Old Ireland is fast disappearing and Mullingar, once a sleepy rural town, now bustles less than an hour from Dublin on speedy new roads. JP Donleavy savours its pleasures past and present tive in spirit will be glad to hear that the old Ireland has finally faded into history. But you can forget the fastest growing old places out there in the jungles of Africa and Brazil. Just go west of Dublin 50 miles as the crow flies and veer a few degrees north across the vastness of the Bog of Allen and you'll find the town of Mullingar - one of Europe's most alive and rapid-growing towns, through which once wove Slap Arse Lane, which would add at least one old fact you still don't know yet about James Joyce. For as the local literary detectives could tell you, this literary man who coined and spread world-wide the oft sung refrain "heef to the heels like a Mullingar heifer" went acourting as a youth up that lane whose name has been banished since.

However, the man James Joyce himself, may be rest in peace in Zurich, has been remembered, commemorated in a plaque high up on the town market hall, and a life-sized effigy of him was for a while ready to give silent response to questioners in the lobby of a fine hotel until last seen staring out at you from an upstairs window. But other things have happened to make this town suddenly different, and make it where all the action is,

Like the old days in the west of America, when the tracks for it's no longer Paddy and his pet a train got there, so did a lot of folk follow. So with by-passing stretches of new highway just built and speeding you there on wheels out of Dublin, and the door-to-door time now shrunk to under an hour, hasn't the place become, along with Its spanking newly remodelled train station, the setting for a lifestyle that leaves little to he But let's go back a little into destred. Forget vour St John S Wood and Beverly Hills. Mullinear has a hurgeoning suburban sumptuosity to leave you stunned.

With nearly 1,000 houses ahuilding and no preservationists up in arms, it's all grow and go. BMWs and Daimlers race the country lanes. And a mere few miles away, its largest fac-Jory, Mergon International, in its sylvan setting of rural beauty, magically makes shapes and forms of plastic that go to every corner of the industrialised world. Germans, Japanese and Americans beat a path io their gleaming limousines to pig or Seamus, drink taken, crumpled up in his cart and brought home snoring by moonlight by his trusted donkey from the pub. And didn't I recently overhear a sophisticated visitor say, what a beau-tiful name is Mullingar. And indeed whispered softly

But let's go back a little into the past, and listen to the litary of the facts already governing this place. Within a few miles are six loughs full of fish and one holding the record catch of a brown trout at 26lb, 2oz and still unsurpassed. And if its pike in all their voraciousness you're after, you'd find them not only in profusion under the lake water but in the pubs roundabout, stuffed mon-strosities framed safely dead

But there's another little bit of news on the subject of literature. When it was still a small conurbation and sleepy old town under the great soaring twin towers of its cathedral, Evelyn Waugh and John Betjeman snooped and hung around these environs. And none of your traffic was queued up at the traffic lights. Betjeman published a poem in the local paper and Waugh, while house hunting, stayed and signed a discreet small signa-ture in the visitor's book of the tree, nary a brick on top of you've found it. Mozart's Don very castle I am soon about to

Now, except for being nified by the previous listed literary gentlemen and maybe the best fox hunting in Europe, conspicuously free as it is of protesters, nobody has ever been rushing down to Westmeath to socially elevate themselves. But the news is loud and clear. As a county, it is no longer socially taboo. In the wide streets where cattle were once brought to be bought and sold, fancy motor vehicles are parked side by side. And thundering by in clouds of dust are lorries, one after the other, heaped high with the best of loam and lugged along on wheels taller than a man, gentleman drivers, sleeves rolled up, navigate their vast tonnage past gate posts with nary an inch to spare. And unlike the carefree days of Ireland's past, when wiping a stone pier off a landscape would be as common as a ished breakfast with lashings of rashers and boiled eggs, now want to feast yourself further in contentment, either out on the flowing lawns or just viewing the grandeur from the window.

But now coming hack into the days of democracy. If you're looking for culture hap-for beauty and having just fin-Wouldn't a celebrity or two in our midst make for an item of extra interest. Marianne Faithfull, fabled songstress and author, has been whisked by her loyal driver Patsy Walsh down from her jewel of a cot-tage by the Liffey. The evening previous, Shaun Beary, son of the famed jockey and anthor, inventor of the currently best selling book "London's Good

Forget your St John's Wood and Beverly Hills. Mullingar has a burgeoning suburban sumptuosity to leave you stunned

another is disturbed. And what Giovanni in all its glory per-are they doing. They are exca-formed by the Pimlico Opera vating one of the largest areas of real estate for one of the largest shopping centres ever to be huilt in Ireland. And John Betjeman himself would be amazed, if not even a little inspired. Nor could such development be thought any harm to conviviality when one of the largest lonelinesses in all of Europe stretches hack to Duhlin across the Bog of Allen.

Ah, but there is more of wonderment. Haven't they also got right here in the midlands their own share of home-grown aristocracy, and not without plenty of grandness already firmly in place. For smack in the middle of the north corner of Westmeath is where Tullynally Castle is, which would put many of your great houses of Europe to shame, standing there as it does stunningly romantic with its great turrets and towers amid its vast parklands and fabulous gardens. And wasn't it built over the centuries to adapt to the best of enchantments. Secret passageways go behind walls, ancient tunnels under the lawns, all in order to keep servants out of sight. Footmen with towels at dawn drying the dew from lawns so the master would not wet his footwear on an early-morning stroll. And why not, if you're the Pasha and has come to Tullynally on these two last evenings of July to sound its music within the curtilage of this famed castle. And upon its human element let us for a moment dwell. Pasha and Pasharess of this place, Tullynally Castle, are in fact a pair of brilliant authors, pulling their intellectual forelocks to no one. Distinguished in the literary world as Valerie and Thomas Pakenham, the former. Valerie, has long presided over the castle's restorations to make its labyrinth of halls and rooms useful and lived in and now reigns as hostess of this occasion. The latter, Thomas, torian, is also a preservationist and an expert on the nature and beauty of trees. And no man is greater for fostering the exotic. His lilies border his lakes, streams and ponds. He provides pagodas in which to meditate and allow one's nostrils to discern the olfactory pleasure of the perfume of

And perhaps, is it now time to dare for one to say it and even suggest why one is no these rare blossoms. And to further attest to the spirit of this palatial place, black swans

majestically parade their bright orange beaks on his landlocked

Coffee Shops", had arrived. We sat in Levington Park's Green Room listening on my astonishing sound system recently installed by local Jerry Forde and you guessed it, a world-acknowledged expert in the field, and we listened in awe to Marianne Faithfull's recently recorded 20th Centray Blues. The repeat hutton pressed as one of the most exquisitely sung of songs "Don't Forget Me" - filled this long chamber as we drank our VSOP brandy, a recent gift from the generously behaved Martin Clunes.

And this latter intrepid gen-leman who struck out, not that long ago, bravely eschewing a the great silence of the Bog of Allen, was on the train besieged for autographs. And didn't a local observer say, as Mr Clones stepped down from his carriage and passed through the station, "Sure, don't excite yourselves unduly, that was nothing but a Martin Clunes lookalike, what would a big star the likes of him be doing in the flesh down here in Mullingar." Of course, Mr Clunes, besieged for auto-graphs, was delighted to ever so se let on the book and loaded his large frame ever so relievedly into my car. To be later as himself be taken to Tul-

In our glad rags, it is to the neat village of Castlepollard we go, where once proclaimed a wonderful sign of practical sim-plicity which offered the services of both hutcher and undertaker, now disappeared from sight. But onwards to the castle of the Pakenhams. The gates are ahead on a road straight as an arrow. And, as only in Ireland are such landscape contradictions possible, there the great grey edifice of Tullynally sits, song in its valley and also on top of its windswept

We arrive and stand on the latter to have our pictures taken. As my mansion is usually kept lunchless, Marianne is famished. She won't take another step of her marvellous residence of Patrick Pilkington. And in this room, three little voluble children play. One of whom, the eldest at hardly more than five, was just as rapt as Marianne at the opera. Then a tiny black puppy dog makes a small near deposit on the car-pet. And the meticulous Patrick Pilkingtoo has it shovelled up in a thrice. With my champagne, I go stand at a castle window. Stare out upon the parklands into the night where car doors are slamming, and headlights flashing awake their beams of white across the grass. Off they go. Home. Tail lights making a hill under the massive shadowy trees. And we know now that accents meld so that like Americans, everyone can become > the bells that still hang here silent but still ready to ring. And so one proclaims a marveilous act of culture here to be seen. Brought forth by dedicated members of the commumity and people whose lives rely on dignity, duty and calm behaviour. Out in the midlands. Mullingar the place. Mozart the music.

this drawing room, still sound

all those so polite precise vowels. Voices of yesteryear, or perhaps ghosts returned tonight to enjoy, as they did once, a great festivity in this cas-tle. Attended upon by the servants who once tread these great halls and summoned by

In America, they say have a nice day. And in Ireland, you can have a nice life. A nation from which so many fled, now crawling with its human race. Where ancient friends awake out of their deaths to shake a hand. And the brooding heavens carry their veils of rain to hide all her sins and keep her

JP Donleavy - James Patrick -was born in 1926 in Brooklyn of Irish parents. He was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, and is best known for 'The Ginger Man' (1955). Later novels include 'A Singular Man', The Beastly Beattudes of Balthazar R' and 'The Dortinian of P. B' and 'The Destinies of Darcy find it very hard to separate sportsmen and women from the fantasy life they lead in the advertising world and their performance on the track. Carl Lewis has run on water and jumped over high buildings, finishing up on the Statue Of Liberty, because he is half man, half tyre. Therefore, the long jump must be a piece of cake in comparison. Sour grapes about the pathetic crop of British medals? You bet.

So GCSEs and A-levels are easier, then. Or so says some recent report into the matter. Phew, I was beginning to wonder if I was going mad, when the experience of most people I know points to the fact that teenagers these days aren't quite the ticket in the hrain department that we were. For the Tories, it has education system for every child. I know I mean on about this subject a lot, but the standard of heckling in comedy clubs has become ridiculously limited and I fear this is something to do with poor education.

I am not asking to be beckled in Latin, but occasionally a sentence would be nice or perhaps a word with more than one syllable would brighten the evening np. "F- off you, fat cow," as I got (again) the other night imagination and to my mind, a real drop in standards.

Hollywood is very fond of remaking films that were perfectly good the first time round, although it is unusual for them to take a children's film and make it something more to the taste of adults. Now Snow White is being given the grown-up treatment as our heroine gets stuck into a more "adult" encounter molester and a defrocked priest among them. Hi-ho, hino, it's off to find a choir boy we go, then.

I have often had my doubts about people who choose to work in the funeral service. Having been a nurse, I've heard some pretty horrendous stories about what people who work in morgoes get up to. So it is perhaps inevitable that the first exclusively female funeral service has been set up this week in Somerset.

Martha's Funerais apparently caters for those women who do not want to be touched by men even after they've snuffed it. I suppose i depends on your view of the afterlife. You're not going to be there to get embarrassed about your bits being on show.

Once you've gone, you've gone; if someone gets a laugh out of my dead body, well at least they've had a laugh.

Every conceivable sport is heading towards inclusion in the Olympics at the moment. Soooker is being considered and now apparently darts players would like to be counted in, too. I am rather fond of darts players because they are the last "sportsmen" to resist the onslaught of the health and fashion lobby. preferring to lumber around bearing pints and fags in the most outrageous selection of shirts ever gathered in one

I'm sure ancient Athens never witnessed a bunch of shellsuit-wearing, ale-swilling human sheds on legs firing their arrers at the wall. Or perhaps there just wasn't enough room to get them in on the vases

Administration of the second s

Confidence

A transport of the second of the

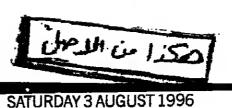

Marie and Control of the Control of

See barren dans de la companya de la

Property of the second second

Chart 1985

Chart

Weekend

You want a 30-inch waist But was about your cat?

Fat pets, page 12

LIVING	2
ARTS	3-4
B00KS	5-7

COUNTRY	8
GARDENING	9
SHOPPING	10-12

OUTINGS	13
TRAVEL	14-19
PROPERTY	20
PROPERTY	20

MONEY	21-23
GOING OUT	24

TODAY		ADIO
	26
SUNDAY	25	Υ

sier ring to r. ier-not uilt, the af-Mr na-ing tel-

On Eurostar, there are many comfy seats and toilets.

My research shows that this is not true of family cars.

eurostar. the passenger train from the centre of London to the centre of Paris or Brussels in just over 3 hours.

INSIDE STORIES

BOOKS

Adrian Henri on Tennyson; Miranda Seymour on the Salem witch-hunt revisted: Karen Armstrong's History of Jerusalem

COUNTRY

Where the reeds and rushes grow

GARDENING

Mr Peto and his amazing pergola

10-12 SHOPPING

Six of the best safari looks; in the hot seat at Lloyd Loom; is your pet too porky?

13 OUTINGS

A family goes fishing; buckets of ice-cream at Loseley Park; how to get airborne

14-19 TRAVEL

Julie Myerson loves London in August; in the club from Butlin's to Mombasa; on the open road in France

PROPERTY

What price your slice of the country?

21-23

MONEY

How ground rents can pile up; big bang at the building society

24-26

LISTINGS

Weekend events. Saturday and Sunday television and radio orris Cerullo. You've got to admire him. Well, maybe not admire: it's more the feeling of being face to face with a Komodo dragon. He holds thousands spellbound, shows them miracles, fills their bodies with electricity. Morris Cerullo parts people and their money with the ease of Moses parting the Red Sca.

The last time I attended Cerullo's Mission to London, which returns to Earl's Court Stadium on Monday, I saw a deaf and dumb girl cry "Haroorah!" I saw a woman with heart trouble do aerohics. I saw people drop their crutches and dance. It had to be true. They said it was. And you don't lie in the sight of God, do you?

As Cerullo brings his evangelical roadshow back to our shores, you've got to greet him with awe. He can conjure up money from nowhere. Never since have I seen so many poor people throw their last pennies into buckets. "Ask," says St Mattbew, "and it shall be given to you." Morris Cerullo asks. and indeed they give. It's a miracle.

And there have been many more. In 1994, 8,000 circular letters invited recipients to experience Cerullo's Miracle of Debt Cancellation. "Lay your hands upon the Miracle of Debt Cancellation Reply. Let the anointing flow into your life ... write down the amount you need to cancel all the debts in your life. Then act on on your faith. Send your Miracle of Debl Cancellation Harvest Gift of £30, or more as the Holy Spirit will lead you". "Every debt you owe can be cancelled," the leaflet promised. The justification? II Kings, 4:1-7, which is the stury of Elisha, a widow and a multiplying pot of oil. Yes, and the Little People make shoes in the middle of the night, as well.

Camelot's Finger of God advertising is uncomfortably similar to this Prosperity Theology. Man may not live by bread alone (Matthew 4:4), but having several slices represents virtue, while poverty and illness indicate a lack of faith. Thus Morris and his preachers dress in fine-cut suits (Genesis 27:11. Behold. Esau my hrother is a barry man and I am a smooth man") and proclaim that they, too, were afflicted until they found the Way. This is also one of the rallying cries of self-help gurus.

The flipside of self-help is Help Yourself. A huge industry revolves around the belief that giving someone money will transmit their Midas Touch to the donur. And yet the majority of self-belp gurus have made their millions purely from other peddling their opinions. And so with Cerullo. In t993, the promise that £5 per soul would save the souls of family members was reputed to have raised £27m. Mailshots have asked devotees to give seven pounds each week for seven weeks for seven miracles: 10 hand over £49 to salvage his computer sys-

Morris Cerullo can heal your sickness, get God to cancel your debts, even exorcise your possessed computer. The supercharged evangelist has made millions with his Christian roadshow and sent thousands of people away happy. And that's the real miracle. Photographs by Dario Mitidieri

SERENA MACKESY

tem after Satanic sabotage. Five hundred years after Luther, his heirs are peddling indulgences. Father Kieran Conry, of the Catholic Media Service, while politic, is not keen. "The association of ministry and money is never a good thing. Simony is illegal within the Catholic Church." And miracles? "If they do happen at Lourdes, they don't happen at the intervention of an individual." Cerullo's followers would no doubt counter that Lourdes' recent record, compared with the 2,000 a week they claim, shows which approach works.

Damian Thompson, author of The End of Time: Fuith and Fear in the Shadow of the Millennium, published by Sinclair Stevenson next month. says: "There is a powerful urge abroad to find something else. It's partly that old ways have been breaking down: family structures, politics, the established churches. People are looking for something that will bring about that miraculous transformation in the world. Religious fervour is common in times of crisis and insecurity. The New Age movement has the same traits." So: the market is out there. How do you tap it? First, pick your creed. Try to give something old a modern twist: age adds gravitas. New Age leaders love Buddhism. and the Druids; Self-Helpers quote Freud, Jung, Fromm and myriad psychologists. Then, once you've picked your slot, learn it inside out. "Cerullo's not an educated man," says Thorup-son, "but he's a smart one, and he knows his Bible." Next, pick your target market - people who are depressed, stressed and longing for rescue are ideal. Studies pretty much prove that stress massively increases suggestibility. There are a lot of people out there ripe for the milking.

Make the Bible your inspiration. Galatians, for instance: "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap" justifies a six-figure advertising budget. Be "the voice of one crying in the wilderness" (Isaiah 40:3) with full-page protest ads when the Advertising Standards Authority bans your poster campaigns, making you a victim of a cynical media and an unbelieving establishment. And above all, remember these words from Matthew: "Where your treasure is, there shall your heart be also"; or Genesis: "Ye shall eat from the fat of the land"; or Matthew again: "They presented unto him gifts: gold, frankincense and myrth".

In another life

Tap into old superstitions. There's nothing more emotive. Numerology is great, especially combined with the book of Revelation: 666, the 10 nations of Europe, four plagues, seven angels and that spiffing examplar, the Millennium. "It's very powerful," says Thompson. "A lot of the people who attend Cerullo believe we are at the End Time, that Armageddon is upon us: not necessarily in the year 2000, but soon. And because they feel that they will be raised above it all they're perfectly happy about it. "Of course," be adds drily, "there's also that element of superiority."

Which leads us on to community. If your foilowers feel they are party to a secret, you're well away. Back it up with pressure to conform, to follow the party line. Encourage them to cut ties with old, sinful ways. Urges to leave or to question can thus be quelled by the fear of what to do next.

While maintaining your status as leader, make sure everyone knows you've suffered like them. A bad past, like Cerullo's upbringing in a New York orphanage, beaten "with paddles", is useful. Put on shows of modesty: call yourself: "This little Jew lowers will feel that if they can be like you, they, too, can reap the benefits.

Blaxploit.

P.A.

of the

E. Carry

Ed gove

A Lab

But most of all, give a good show. Mission to London spectaculars are top showmanship, brilliantly choreographed, with the emotional power of a big rock concert. Terrific music, massive sound systems and 6,000 people displaying existatic joy can be seen the grip on your gradit gard. These torthloosen the grip on your credit card. These techniques pump up stress levels, and stress can have amazing effects. Canadian neuroscientist Michael Persinger initiated the production of stress levels with low-dose electrical charges applied to volunteers brains, Resulting "visions" included God. Allah and the Devil. Dramatic religious conversions rarely accompany tranquility.

And so to the miracles, I once experienced something similar to the celebrated Toronto Blessing, which has people laughing, collapsing and crying all over the country. An osteopath pressed a spot in the base of my thumb and gave me the most incredible head-rush. I felt so happy and relaxed and grateful that I would have done pretty much

And then there's hypnosis. Psychotherapist and hypnotherapist Anna Fenton says: "If someone's in the right frame of mind, touching them in the right way can be a powerful form of rapid trance induction. And in trance, as anyone who has watched Paul McKenna knows, all sorts of things can happen. Speaking in tongues would be just one of them." Damian Thompson agrees: "It's easy to make people fall over. If you push them in the middle of the forebead, they're expecting to fall over and know people are waiting to catch them, so they do." Slain in the Spirit or hit on the right nerve? The SAS kill with their bare hands, remember.

But showmanship – with sbamanship – is all, really. A large enough staff can manipulate any crowd. Morris has cohorts "helping" people up to the stage. Watch closely and spot the people "overlooked" in the rush: usually people who obviously need their crutches. I ater record around need their crutches. Later, people crowd around the foot of the stage so Morris can "throw" the power at them. As invisible beams zip from his fingertips, waves of believers crash backwards. Have you ever been on a crowded escalator when someone tripped at the bottom? Same effect.

The thing is, the crowd themselves are lovely people. They exude faith and joy, offer help and sweemess. Miracles or no, many of them walk away with a spiritual uplift that helps them through their troubled lives. But healing? After the show I asked a member of the St John Ambulance Brigade how Missions compared with a normal day. "About the same, really," be said. "A bit busier. Loads of hyperventilation and the odd suspected heart attack. Oh, preacher" and other hair-shirt phrases. Your fot- and there's always a big run on sprained ankles."

'If Buffy answers, just hang up,' he says. He may as well have added 'or she will kill you'

remember the first time I saw her. We stephen King book?" I giggle nervously were at some dank, stuffy club, and and murmur "kind of". She might as well tears were streaming from my eyes because of all the eigarette smoke. She was at the front of the har queue, even though she was the shortest person in there. Her crupped copper hair looked like tiny flames licking at her forehead. A Stella in each hand, she pushed her Glasgow accent.

I tapped her on the shoulder. "Are you Buffy?" She gazed at me disdainfully. Later, she apologised. "It was just weird that you knew who I was. Like everyone in London is saying, 'Oh, there's that Scottish midget". "I knew who she was, Buffy is an old-fashioned "it" girl, like Twiggy and Drew Barrymore. Grace laughs and says, "What, like 'It' the killer clown in the

be. I have never been dumped before. Not by a girl. Not over a boy.

On her 2tst birthday. I made her a Drew Barrymore collage. I had known ber for about two weeks. "Why do you like her so much?" demanded Jon. une uf those guys who prides himself on his way out of the erowd, squealing understanding of the female psyche and "Excuse me, excuse me," in a dinky gets his research by shagging a different girl every week. "Because she's as short as me and she hates all the same girls I do. Why do you like her so much!" He grinned. *Because she can take her drink. When girls are drunk, they either get all upset and cry or they get over-excited. She stays controlled." "Why haven't you tried to sleep with her?"

Because of what I just said." Buffy never seemed like a real girl's girl. I remember her grimacing at the sight of my mates drunkenly cuddling and declaring their love for each other. Yuu and your middle-class lesbian friends," she sneered. The first sign of female camaraderie I saw from her was when she broke up with her boyfriend.

Sbe rang me, weeping, from a phone box and said she couldn't face the office, so where near me, I'll belt her." But Buffy, could she come over? I took the day off work to comfort her.

Her boyfriend is putting on a brave face. "I hate clever little tomboys. I'm only going to go with stupid tall people from now on." Around the same time, I split up with Steve, who Buffy works with Except we didn't split up properly and. though we're not going out, we covertly keep seeing each other. This is about the third time it's happened and when Buffy found out, she went bananas. She considers all this to-ing and fro-ing supremely undignified, selfish on my part, bad for Steve and therefore bad for the office.

She stopped ringing me and then Grace bumped into her at a gig. Where's your horrible flannate? Tell her

I'm not evil, I'm just indecisive. She doesn't know that because she won't take

The next week, I spotted her at a party. Look, I'm just going to go up and ask bow she is. What's she going to do?" Sally, a mutual friend, prone to overdramanes, begged me not to. "Please, no. I've just spoken to her and if you try to talk to her, something terrible is going to happen. Just stay away. I don't want you to get hurt."

I ask Steve if it's still all right to ring him at the office. "Yes, but if Buffy answers, just har up." He may as well.

have added, "or she will kill you".

Saturday night and I accompany Steve to the club he's DJ-ing at. We get there to dance around in while Steve tests out how that Underworld remix sounds. I hate clubs. I don't get it. All that standing around, too cool to dance, records you don't want to hear. But obviously I just don't like other people because, until the club opens its doors, I am having the time of my life.

I go outside to get some air. That's when she turns up. What can I do. but say hello?

"All right, Buffy – how are you?" She looks over my shoulder and pushes straight past mc. She still looks short as bell and cool as f***. But I am now just another one of those girls she hates.
"You need to have a marine finite Rouse." "You need to have a massive tight," says Grace, chewing on a slice of bacon. *Besides. You two fighting - it would look really funny. Come and have a go before it opens so I have the whole place if you think you are short enough.

sier ging i by tra-Mr g to r. ker-not tillt, the af-ing tel-

aid ear der ing

nd ar-Jte

If Sir Teddy Taylor is elected to No 10, the walls will thump to the bass of Bob Marley

publicity event took place the other day. That is, it wasn't actually an event at all, just a momeot when the encompassing vapour of PR briefly coalesced into a visible nebula. And the visibility wasn't a by-product of some larger energy, it was the sole point. A large record store had decided to celebrate its birthday by commissioning a survey into the musical tastes of Britain's MPs, thus combining their own commercial desire for a name check with the incontinent eagerness of politicians to give out their opinions. And, whatever your feelings about the fact that 101 MPs have nothing better to do with their time than fill in questionnaires about their musical taste, the resulting document was irresistible. It wasn't that it was particularly surprising to find that classical music came top of the overall genre listings, or that dance music should figure high in the Tory hit parade (the compilers add a useful footnote explaining that the term was understood by most respondents to refer to swing bands or ballet - thus destroying the enchanting vision of Sir Marcus Fox, a whistle clamped between his teeth as he frugs wildly to drum 'n' bass). But when it comes to more specific questions, the power of pop songs to encapsulate character is undeniable. This is hardly a novel discovery, of course - Desert Island Discs rests on the assumption that to choose is to confess, and above all to choose pop songs, which has long been one of the more socially hazardous exercises of taste. (It isn't absolutely unique in this if you wish to admit a liking for certain films, in certain circles, you had better go armed with a package of defensive measures - "No, no ... it isn't kitsch ... it's about kitsch.") But pop music's brevity and promiscuity (it is always ready for action) means that it can insinuate itself into our private memories with particular ease. Add that to the way in which a remembered melody can carbon-date a recollection and you have the perfect emotional calender. The point is well made in Nick Hornby's High Fidelity - a funny, wise life in A-sides. Under emotional strain he rearranges his record collection:

THOMAS SUTCLIFFE

"Tonight ... I fancy something different, so I try to remember the order I bought them in: that way I hope to write my autobiography, without having to do anything like pick up a pen."

In one of its questions the survey employs the same method, asking MPs to name the first record they bought. Naturally, one has to take this sort of thing with a pinch of salt, politicians being what they are. It seems more than likely that some will have edited history in favour of more respectable choices. The absence of Tony Blair from the respondents might, perhaps, be explained by the fact that his private office agonised for so long over the potential electoral liabilities of different pop songs that they eventually missed the deadline. But some of the answers could hardly be an invention. Anne

Widdecombe confesses to "All Kinds of Everything" by Dana, which strikes one as absolutely perfect - a secular sanctimony that would cause no unseemly disturbances at the youth club

disco. Robin Corbett, Labour member for Birmingham, Erdington, saved his pennies for "Joe Hill" by Paul Robeson, presumably a big hit at Woodcraft Folk summer camps, while Charles Kennedy, with a precocious instinct for the middle ground, bought Simon and Garfunkel's Greatest Hits and Tubular Bells. The list of most recent purchases updates the picture: Anne Widdecombe is now getting on down to gregorian chant, while Charles Kennedy has just purchased George Michael's Older (no data available for Robin Corbett). The best question of all, though, is the most playful, in which MPs are asked to fantasise about the party that would follow their election as Prime Minister.

Some responses sniff of a trawl through the reference books - several MPs choose Alice Cooper's "Elected", for example, and Tina Turner's "Simply the Best" clearly makes it in for its title alooe. Others are more mischievous, like Kevin Barron's selection of 'I Lie For You and That's the Truth". But the party you would most like to attend is easy. If Sir Teddy Taylor is ever elected to Number 10, those venerable walls, he claims, will thump and pound to the steampress bass of Bob Marley (Sir Teddy's most recent purchase. incredibly, is said to be Soul Almighty). Behind the curtains, presumably, Sir Teddy and his cronies will sit in splendour, cradling spliffs the size of carrots (Commonwealth produce, naturally) and singing along with particularly raucous glee as Bob croons. In a gubberment yaard in Trenchtown".

Baadassss hustlers collect their Hollywood dues

Blaxploitation comes to the NFT. But, says Tom Dewe Mathews, there's more to these films than music, fashion, cheap sets and cheaper dialogue

ver one weekend in the middle of 1971 Hollywood discovered a new screen hero. A Manhattan movie house opened its doors on a Saturday afternoon for the first screening of a low-budget movie. The queue was about average for a firsttime film. For the next showing the line was looger. By midnight oo Sunday, the block on Broadway was twice circled by an eager crowd. The theatre management rang the studio: "What should we do?" "Stay opeo." So for three days and nights the movie was continuously screened. What those film-goers saw as the screen lit up was a lean moustachioed black man hopping along Manhattan's mid-town, and what they heard was Isaac Hayes singing "Who's the black private dick that's a sex machine to all the chicks? Shaft! Damn Right!" With Shaft, the "blaxploitation" movie had arrived, and with it - for the first time in a Hollywood-financed film - a tough, rebellious, sexually active black hero.

Nowadays, blaxploitation movies conjure up a mixed memory of flash fashion, great music, cheap sets and even cheaper dialogue. In among the leopard-skin pimpmobiles, wide-brimmed hats and crushed velvet flares, garish gun-toting posters blazooed come-on lines like "'Black Caesar' - the cat with .45 calibre claws", or "Watch out for 'Coffy'. She'll cream you. She's got drive and that ain't jive." As for the actual dialogue, you didn't know whether to laugh or sigh when a film like The Legend of Nigger Charley opened with the alarm call, "Somebody warn the West. Nigger Charley ain't runnin' no more," or whether to peek through your hands when the presence of black sex siren Pam Grier was announced in Foxy Brown with the uncool couplet, "A pinch of sugar and a kiss of spice. And for an ace she keeps a cold steel .38 in a nice warm place." Yet, at the beginning of the blaxploitation cycle in 1971, the message was very different. Then, an unknown film made with a miniscule budget began with the bald statement, "Dedicated to all the Brothers and Sis-

1 1 Tank

The state of the s

A LANCE

plan i was . .

INCHES ...

1 and the same

Maryate S. Contract Contract A second

Party ( Party )

. >

ters who have had enough of The Man." Melvin Van Peebles's third film, Sweet Sweetback's Baadasssss Song, is almost unknown in Britain - largely because it never gained foreign distribution. But Dooald Bogle, who is curating the season of "Biaxploitation" movies that starts today at the National Film Theatre, describes Van Peebles's film as "an uncompromising, totally independent trail-blazer that heralded a new kind of black cinema, made its auteur a folk bero and inspired a later generation of African-American movie-makers". He also says that the film is "an open declaration of war oo white America".

Van Peebles himself explains why: "At that time, no kind of hero - let alone a hlack one - could defy the law and get away with it. But I had that idea and I wanted to turn it into a film for a black audience." The idea centred on Sweetback, a Jaconic, laid-back sex performer. played by Van Peebles, who "fights back" after he witnesses two corrupt white cops beating up on a black kid. Once be has wasted the two "honkies" - with their own handcuffs - the film follows its outlaw-hero through the hack alleys of Los Angeles into a series of sexual escapades and escape sequences until Sweetback flees over the Mexican border leaving behind the legend - "A BAADASSSSS NIGGER IS COMING BACK TO COLLECT SOME DUES".

A young black American andience lapped if up, spending $10m to see the film in its first year of distribution. But the New York Times was outraged by what it called "an absolutely mindless and dirty political exploitation film". More importantly, even before the film was made, Van Peebles's studio at Columbia also lent themselves to alarm. They wanted to disassociate themselves as rapidly and as far as possible," Van Peebles remembers. "Wheo 1 showed the script to my agent be left me, saying. I can't be associated with anything like this."

For a director who replies to the question, "How did you get to the top?" with "Nobody let me in at the bottom", a refusal from Hollywood amounted to an incentive. Starting out under the pretense of making a porn movie "over the weekend", Van Peebles avoided unioo rules, leveraged equipment and lab processing with a nudge and a couckle that "this little movie will pacify my sweetie", and then shot Sweetback over a gruelling 19 day-and-night schedule. And when only two cinemas would show the resulting film, the director went out to black churches, schools and that he could get on to black radio shows and after the Motion Picture Association of America slapped an "X" on Sweetback - which meant that no newspaper would advertise or review it - Van Peebles had posters put up that were stamped across with "Rated 'X' by an all-White Jury".

"In the best sense of the word," says Donald Bogle, "Van Peebles is the director as bustler, and 1 think that's what made him a hero for the later generation of African-American filmmakers like Spike Lee. They learnt from Van Peebles how to encourage controversy, then to get good press coverage from that in order to reach as wide an audience as possible."

Understandably, Van Peebles baulks at the term "blaxploitation". "Nobody exploited me," he insists. "When Sweetback became a buge success, Hollywood began to make imitations." He then reveals: "Originally, Shaft, which was the first one, was going to he played by a white guy. So when they saw that black movies could become big husiness, Hollywood simply turned John Shaft into a black guy, added a few 'motherfucks' and then brought the movie out."

If Van Peebles believes that his message was "diluted" by blaxploitation, the director of Shaft is equally insisteot that be "wasn't trying to make a message movie. I wanted to make a good solid thriller." Certainly, Gordon Parks Sr had the credentials not only to deliver a solid movie for his studio at MGM, but also to direct a film that would remain true to its roots in the streets of New York. A distinguished photographer who established his reputation at Life magazine with his pictures of black militants, Parks adapted his widely praised autobiographical novel The Learning Tree for Warner Bros in 1963, and when he converted the script into a film six years later, be became the first black man to direct a major American movie. Shaft's success in 1971 pulled MGM back from the brink of bankruptcy; and, perbaps inspired by that example, Gordoo Parks's son, Gordon Jr, directed the third big money maker of the blaxploitation cycle - Superfiv. With its tale of a coke-snorting dealer putting one over on "The Man" and boasting such lines as "8-track stereo, colour TV in every room and half a piece of dope community halls - "anything to get a every day. That's the American black audience". He wrote a hit tune so Dream," Superfly became an instant cult movie, grossing $11m within two mooths of its release.

Undoubtedly today the film would be criticised for its myopic attitude towards drugs, and, at the time, it provoked an attack from the NAACP on "so-called black movies that glorify black males as pimps, dope pushers, gangsters and super males". Eveo Gordon Parks Sr was besitant about his son's film, albeit for different reasons.

"When my son came to me with the script," he recalls, "he only had $400,000 -which would have been gone in about a week. So I told him, 'don't do it'. Then he came to me for more money and l wrote out a cheque. After its success, though, I decided not to give my son any more advice."

Soon, however, the positive ability to hustle a budget, to think on one's feet and surround a black film-hero within an ethnic atmosphere would be lost. By 1973, most hlaxploitation films were heing made on a shoestring by white directors. And the hlack film crews which Gordon Parks and his son bad fought so hard to retain on Shaft and Superfly - would also be replaced by whites. As a result, the cycle lost its original fans. "The black audience," says Donald Bogle, "frequently felt that they were seeing the same film again and again. The Legend of Nigger Charley, The Soul of Nigger Charley, then Boss Nigger, Shaft, then Shaft in Africa and Shaft's Big Score. They were turned out by the yard and most of them looked as though they could have been shot in someone's back yard." But Bogle still believes that for all their "pop simplicity" hlaxploitation movies did reflect "a need to redress old wrongs and to articulate black feelings about race and racism". But after blaxploitation petered out in 1975, he points out, "the industry was not prepared to give black audiences another set of images, icons and characters to respond to or select from". For that sensibility, black - and white - audieoces would bave to wait for 15 years and the arrival of Spike Lee with the African-American film explosion. But without the example set by blaxploitatioo, the wait could have been even longer.

> The "Biaxploitation" season starts today at the National Film Theatre, London SE1. To 31 August. Booking: 0171-928 3232

Calls cost 39phmin cheep rete, 49phmin all other times. Winner picked at random efter it above 10th August, 86 Usual Newspaper Publishing rules apply. Editors decision is fin

 $0891\ 111\ 511$

readers will receive an

PROMS

Bruckner; Schnittke Rozhdestvensky / BBC SO Royal Albert Hall, London

On Thursday, Kensington played host to a Prom of two halves. By Robert Cowan

Any performer capable of switching from the earnest architecture of Bruckner's Second Symphony to the brazen horseplay of Schnittke's Dead Souls must have courage to spare. And yet that's precisely the route that Gennady Rozhdestvensky took for his Thursday Prom with the BBC Symphony Orchestra. Mid-way, Mrs Rozhdestvensky (Victoria Postnikova) made a lustrous statement of Stravinsky's Capriccio. Rozhdestvensky conducted his players hand-on-hip, rubbing his fingers at the strings or waving a throw-course. his fingers at the strings or waving a throw-away cue to his wife; and when she took her bows, he cuc to his wife; and when she took her bows, he stood there beaming and wiggling his baton. But then it was very much his night.

After Stravinsky, came Rozhdestvensky's own arrangement of Schnittke's 1983 score for a TV film based on Gogol's proto-avant-garde Dead Souls. Rozhdestvensky mounted the rostrum and turned the pages of a patchwork score bufore giving the sign for nine short movements, including a mysterious "Introduction" that recalled middle-period Bartok, a Prokofiev-style Polka, a Mahlerian Funeral March and a March-style fourth-movement that had both the orchestra and the audience ment that had both the orchestra and the audience in stitches. But that wasn't the half of it.
"Plyushkin's Youth" saw Rozhdestvensky arrang-"Plyushkin's Youth" saw Rozhdestvensky arranging two metronomes in syncopation, then physically disentangling a schmaltzy violin' cello duet, swooning to the pianist's romantic gestures (placing hand on heart and wiping away a mock tear), launching into an explosive Galop and inspecting his ranks like a military bandmaster. And the score? Pacticle peopened with irony, though it was the Pastiche peppered with irony, though it was the conductor who stole the show with a manner of miming that suggested a potential second career.

Rozhdestvensky has always heen a staunch Brucknerian, having recorded most - if not all of the symphonies back in Russia and developed a recognizably individual "Bruckner style". Thursday's account of the Second Symphony - an unfamiliar combination of editions - was temperate. detailed and occasionally mannered, a leisurely sketch rather than a grand vision. The work opens to a clear pulse that quite failed to register, but things did improve - in spite of a half-hearted lead trumpet and some loose ensemble work. The slow movement comes closer to Brahms than anything else in Bruckner, especially near the outset where there are audible similarities to the German Requiem. A touching though brief duet for flute and violin was especially memorable, while the Scherzo – a highly rumhustious affair – ricocheted loudly off the rear of the hall. As to the Finale, the less said the better. It's the sort of movement that, if it's going to work at all, demands total commitment. Rozhdestvensky's performance was patient and conscientious but ultimately unconvincing. Most of the orchestra looked bored out of their minds; no wonder they took to Schnittke's fun and games with such relish.

THEATRE The Red Balloon, Olivier, RNT

No neat moral yam, Anthony Clark's production is a humorous and haunting fable that will appeal to children and adults. By Paul Taylor

Balloon butting: Parisian crowds and the eponymous rubber hero wrestling with a lump in my throat as a mysterious red hal-loon – which had palled up with Pascal, a lonely little Parisian boy - is murdered by the pack of school bullies and slowly deflates before his stricken gaze. Behind me, though, a young lad was wrestling with a sense of grievance. "But it hasn't gone bang!" he exclaimed in an aggrieved, loud whisper. He'd had preferred a hang for his huck rather than all this sentiment. Do we believe in fairies? No, we don't: pull her wings off,

Of course, the above spectacle is itself a reminder of the cru-Of course, the above spectacle is itself a reminder of the cruelty children are capable of. Watching Anthony Clark's musical stage version of Albert Lamorisse's short, largely wordless Fifties French film, I kept thinking; haven't we been here before recently at the National? Adult actors playing children; victimisation; the pack mentality. Substitute a squirrel for the balloon and it's Dennis Potter's Blue Remembered Hills. Red Remembered Balloon? That would be pushing it, perhaps, though Clark's adaptation leaves you in no doubt about the unloveliness of Pascal's contemporaries, as the gang chases him round the huge bridge. contemporaries, as the gang chases him round the huge bridge, cantilevered out into the void, on Ruari Murchison's set. In a comically horrible touch, one of the more sadistic girls uses her large catapult as a divining rod for locating their prey. The two sticks, threaded with almost invisible strings, by which handler Malcolm Shields, controls the pushy, anarchic movements of the red balloon, also has the look, at times, of divining rods. At others, he seems like a double-batoned conductor – but always unobmall children can be bracingly heartless. There was I, trusively. If this is n show that "bares the device", it does so without puncturing the illusion. The haunting bits worked better for me than the comic husiness, and to judge from the laughter rate of my six-year-old assistant, that goes for her, too. The balloon's butting antics produce some mildly funny physical farce at the school with the bereted caretaker and nuhite blonde-wigged teacher thrown by it into some Benny Hill-like situations. On the verbal front, the scene with Pascal's hickering parents in their no-pets rule flat relies heavily on children's Pavlovian delight at hearing the word "poo": The cat's done a poo on the carpet."

It's in sequences such as the charming "Umbrella Song", in which Pascal seeks brolly shelter for bimself and his balloon from Parisians tripping by in the rain, that the show achieves lift off.
Mark Vibrans' music isn't exactly hursting with inspiration, though it has a nice line in unforced poignancy. The pure, piping voice of the actress Nicky Adams, who plays Pascal with a moving earnestness and lack of self pity, does this handsome justice.

One good thing about the piece is that, unlike a lot of children's shows, it doesn't give you a neat doggy-bag moral to take home, or a physics lesson. What does the red balloon represent? What does it mean when Pascal is joined in his grief by all the balloons in Paris and lifted away into the air? Unlike balloons, these are questions you can pop again and again.

Tues, Thurs, Fri matinees to 30 Aug (0171-928 2252)

THEATRE

Decameron The Gate, London

Robert Hanks on a flawed but graceful handling of Boccaccio

a great mental effort to work out that staging the Decameron in one evening means either stooping to a kind of Reduced Bocanccio Comstooping to a kind of Reduced Bocanccio Company absurdity, or cutting the numbers drastically.

The most obvious thing to do would be to present a representative selection of 10 tales, one from each a representative selection of 10 tales, one from each night (since each night supposedly deals with a different topic). Nick Ward's version, the latest instalment in the Gate's "New Playwrights, Ancient Sources" season, resists the temptations to give us a statistical sample - he doesn't even give us 10 stories by my count, though it depends partly on what you count as a story. Instead, he presents a more thematically coherent compilation, taking Boccaccio's central topic, love, and setting it firmly

- a tad too firmly - within its supposed context.

The context is plague-time: men and women who tell the stories have fled Florence to avoid infection. The way in which this is conveyed to you is effective enough, but crude: when you enter the theatre, you encounter a thick fog of dry ice; bodies lie in a long narrow pit that runs most of the length of the auditorium, a dark-robed figure stands in shadows at one end of the room. He opens the action by singing a "Kyrie"; hodies clamber up out of the pits; and, at this point, you feel yourself sinking into a big pit of cliché.

Fortunately, it's mostly uphill from here. There are still over-literal moments - the story of a woman being served her lover's heart for supper is illustrated by some Galloping Gourmet-style cookery, with real ingredients and a real stove and you feel Ward's production could afford to go easier on the symbolism, particularly the sex/death juxtapositions. When a young man is murdered by his lover's brothers, they stab him in the groin with lots of pelvic thrusts, so it looks quite a lot like sex. Before he cuts the lover's heart out, the jealous busband delicately traces a circle around his vic-tim's nipple with a knife (sexy!) - and the butchery involves lots of jerking around on top of the body, so that looks quite like sex, too.

It's hard to say, though, whether these intrusive moments are simply lapses, or whether they re a necessary counterpoint to the grace, narrative intricacy, hilarity and sheer beauty on display else-where: an on-stage shower is preceded by the perfect pastoral of a description of a walk through a green valley to bathe in a clear pool; the erotic tension of a chess-game between a lady and her unde-clared lover dissolves into a kind of comedy thriller when be visits ber in bed to find her husband already there. Stories are folded within stories; the excellent cast swap narratives around, shifting from narrating to being characters within the story (something that makes identifying them from the programme rather hard). This is clearly not a per-fect "10", but there's richness in its imperfections.

To 17 Aug (0171-229 5387)

TELEVISION London Shouting / Only an Excuse (BBC2) A voice crying in the wilderness of the summer schedule, Alan Parker gives us truth, not lies. Presumably. By Jasper Rees

bulldozed into August and left to rot among the repeats, the bussed-in mini-series, the season of documentaries about old age (honestly, there's one coming up), the stray dramas there's no other space for because Alan Yentob has over-commissioned.

It's also a time when comedy experimenas there's no appreciable evidence of grey matter - of Simon Munnery, who plays him with gag-writing back-up from Graham

The silly season is television's rubbish tip. "Father Ted" Linehan. Parker is the pop-eyed descendant of Wolfie Smith, another hapless schedules at any other time of year are spouter of agitprop, but he's more paranoid ulldozed into August and left to rot among and less certain of his ideological position. His radical mantra, as woolly as the lining of his bomber jacket, is "Truth".

Out of his confusion comes some enjoyable comedy. The setting is a studio with a live audience and all the latest gizmos. OK, a facts machine (sic). The first, and indeed talists get to cut teeth and edges. Last night, in London Shouting, it was the turn of Alan Parker, the soi-disant Urban Warrior, to argue the case for getting his own series.

He's the brainchild – make that mouthchild.

He's the brainchild – make that mouthchild. suited to hosting their own pilot. When the Super Furry Animals (a real group, this time) have done their stuff, he takes his earplugs and have done their stuff, he takes his earplugs and have done their stuff.

the Clash only.

There's not quite enough of this to go round, though. To plug in the holes, London Shouting polyfillas itself with homages to other programmes. A report about a plague of danger-seekers in Burnley who leap off letter boxes looked uncannily like booty from a raid on the Friday Night Armistice ideas tray. The live links with a winking American bimbo, who's planning to spring a surprise on someone somewhere in Kent, sends up Katie Puckrick even higher than she sends up herself. And those studio events that out and says, "Great band. Presumably." more original comic idea than these steals Alan's purist stance on music is to listen to merely someone else's guest, but misplaced as everybody else's host.

Another rummage through the schedulers' rubhish heap yields Only an Excuse. entirely devoted to impersonations of Scottish football folk. There was some pretty recherche stuff here, accessible only to Scots over the age of 50. Punchlines about Slim Jim Baxter, anyone? The take-off of Hugh McIlvanney, a Glaswegian metaphormonger nostalgic for the poetry of pisssoaked terraces, worked a treat. Football, he hymned, was "a concerto for the criminal

Alan Parker, Urban Wartion

IDETAIL

overview

critical view

KEY

EXCELLENT

GOOD

0k

POOR

Лď

DEADLY

THE PROM

BRAHMS, SHOSTAKOVICH, SCHOENBERG, PICKARD

Mark Wagnesworth conducted two concerts with the BBC National Orchestra of Wales in Brahms, Shostakovich Schoenberg's Chamber Symphony, and John Pickard's The Flight of Icarus.

Adrian Jack admired his ability to inspire the orchestra. "Played not just with terre, but with polish." "The orchestra brought lucid imagination, instre and vigour, spotlighting the instrumental colours, "said the letegraph of the Schoenberg. "An exciting lift-off," approved the FT of the Pickard. "Playing more confidently than ever under its new music director," commended the Times.

As usual, both concerts were recorded by Radio 3. Watch out for a series on BBC TV of Mark on view Wigglesworth conducts.

The Pickard piece was our view impressive but the Rachmaninov lacked bite. Is Wigglesworth doing too much?

control of the state of the sta director Henry Selick's cross between live action and stoo-motion animation. Songs by Randy Newman, voice-overs by everyone including Susan Sarandon.

THE FILM

Adam Mars-Jones worded about the limp plot but probed the placture to the base wife. When a good, it's very good indeed," decided the Guardian. "Surreal fantasy dazzling enough to ture adults as well as children," announced the Times. "A film of enchanting, at times ghoulish, appeal," smiled Time Out. "This glossy, bullyingly self-ingratiating, unengaging entertainment," growled the FT.

79 minutes; Cert U. At the Odeon West End (0171-930 7615) and cinemas across the land.

Aunt Spyler was thin as a wire

And as dry as a bone only drier."

Who plays her? Joanna Lumley Go on ... you know you want to. DUTCH FLOWER PAINTING

Trilly platting by 12 Dutch and Figures inches from 1600-1750, from Bosschaert via Jan Brueghel and De Hearn to Van Huysum. The first exhibition ever devoted to the genre.

THE EXHIBITION

Andrew Graham-Dixon was awestruck. "Splendid, and datable and seen " People White brey all look the same". Dutwich conclusively disproves that," cheered the Sunday Telegraph. "This gorgeous show ... thearthreakingly beautiful ... glimpses of paradise," sighed the Sunday Times. "One becomes attured to the nuances of floral art, and it all gets more interesting, and beautiful," remarked the lelegraph.

Dutwich Picture Gallery, until 29 Sept.

THE ALBUM

SEX PISTOLS: FILTHY LUCRE LIVE

John Lydon torsook the Sents Monica sunshine to reform the Sex Pistols, the original and arguably greatest English punk band. A quick furnaround live around of the Finsbury Park gig lest month.

Andy Gill noted their scuzzy aplomb. "Hes mylling ever dualistances reality quite so brazenty? The Pistois have a great past ahead of them." "Anyone who feels in need of a souvenir might have a use of the control of very good indeed ... as a live album, this is destined Filthy Lucre Live. Otherwise, it's completely redundant, scotted the Sunday Times. Actually to rank among the classics," yelped the Times.

On CD, Virgia 8 4 1926

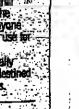

Fascinating. Go, take your time

They've come for your money and they're getting away with it.

المكذا من الاجل

In the

also Grand

sier ring i by tra-Mr g to r. ler-not oilt, the af-Mr ms-ing tel-

im-: in

Hearing the horns of Elfland

'n

Liverpool poet Adrian Henri explains how a chance encounter in a junk shop led to a lifelong obsession with Tennyson's poetry

arly October 1965; our annual field trip to North Wales with the first year students I was teaching at Liverpool College of Art, at a pre-war holiday camp for poor children from the city. On an afternoon break in Mold, the nearest town, I bought a second-hand Collected Tennyson from a stall outside a junk sbop. Perhaps it was the autumnal countryside. perhaps the emotional turmoil of the end of a love affair and the beginning of another, but something chimed with my mood, the time and the place. The words sang and danced in my head: All night has the casement jessamine stirr'd

To the dancers dancing in tune; Till a silence fell with the waking bird, And a hush with the setting moon (Maud)

I had studied Fine Art, not English, was teaching art, and had only relatively recently begun to devote as much time to poetry as to painting. My self-education was wholly Modernist: Eliot, Pound, Mallarmé, Apollinaire, the Sur-realists. Hadn't Theo de Wyzewa, spokesman for the French Symbolist school, famously declared "the aesthetic value of a work of art is always in direct inverse proportion to the number of people who can understand it"? But just as, when I was a student, I couldn't resist sneaking into the art galleries in Liverpool and Manchester to look at the Pre-Raphaelite paintings my tutors dismissed so airily, so lines from the Pre-Raphaelites' favourite poet, remembered from schooldays, would occa-sionally resonate in my head, like the voices of the Lotus Eaters, tired of their long Odyssey:

There is sweet music here that softer falls Than petals from blown roses on the grass, Or night-dews on still waters between walks

Of shadowy granite, in a gleaming pass.

The chance rediscovery of Tennyson that day came to embody a whole series of paradoxes: for instance, wasn't he, at his most dreamily musical, the nearest British equivalent to the Symbolists?

O hark, O hearl how thin and clear, And thinner, clearer, farther going! O sweet and far from cliff and scar The horns of Elfland faintly blowing! Blow, let us hear the purple glens replying: Blow, bugle; answer, echoes, dying, dying, dying,

(The Splendour Falls) And yet part of the fascination, for me, was that Tennyson was probably our last truly popular great poet: Betjeman, by contrast, was loved by the public hut sneered at by academic critics, and his popularity in any case rested largely reate but he also lunched with the editor of The Times to discuss the progress of the Crimean War, had his work set to music and sung around countless pianos; had one of his hooks in every literate household; used to read out loud to his Sovereign; and, above all, was loved and quoted by thousands. In the early Sixties, my attitude to poetry was conditioned by a rejection of the reigning, backward-looking, Little England school known as The Movement back-to-basics. Victorian-values Eurosceptics before their time - so I was deliberately using experimental and popular forms, like the blues and pop-song metres, rather than the traditional forms they favoured. Simultaneously, however, I was aware that the Modernism that had been my solitary discovery in Rhyl Public Library had long left its audience behind. Wasn't there a way of opening out this narrow bridgehead onto a broad, popular front? The poetry reading seemed to be the answer, particularly with the regular weekly audience we had then in Liverpool. But badn't Tennyson been famous for his poetry readings? And badn't his enthusiasm for innovation led him to record on the newfangled phonograph? What a tragedy it is that some idiot allowed the precious wax cylinders to melt and warp: from one brief hearing of these, despite all the problems, one feels he would put us all out of business as a reader of his verse, if he were around today. Perhaps poetry could be popular and good and innovative. Here, in this dusty, green-and-gold-bound volume, seemed to be the answer: yes, it could.

Innovative he certainly was. Reading "Maud" entire for the first time, not just the bit in the song that everyone knows, but the whole "Monodrama", I realised what a tour de force, what a demonstration of technical versatility was there. Delving further, I found the dialect poems, particularly the delightfully satirical "The Northern Farmer, New Style":

Doesn'yt thou 'ear my 'erse's legs, as they canters awaay? Propulty, propulty - that's what I 'ears 'em sany. Proporty, proporty, proputty - Sam, thou's an as for they

Theer's moor sense i' one o' "is legs nor in all they braains" Tennyson seemed to be equally good at writing about public events: the charge of the Light Brigade; the arrival of Princess Alexandra; the opening of the Great Exhibition of 1851:

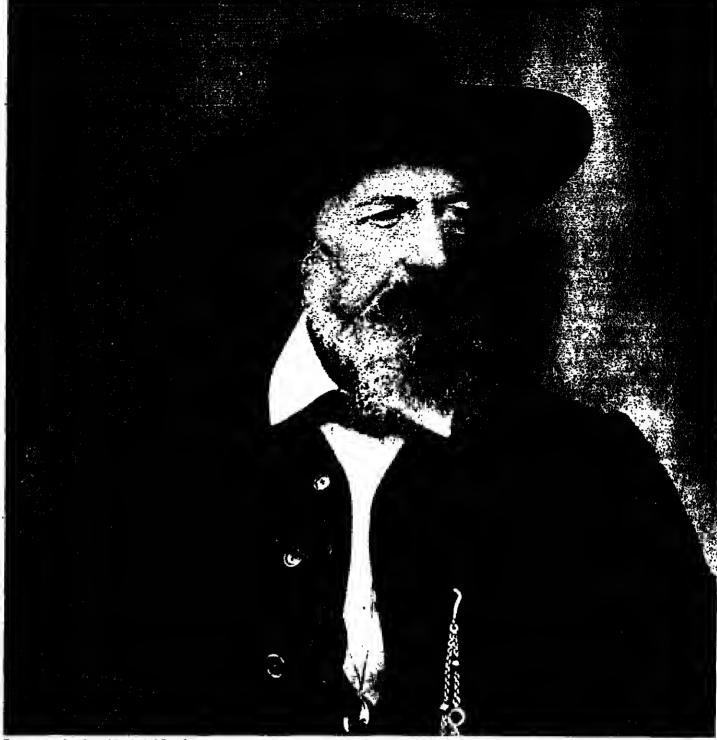

And, lo! the long laborious miles Of Palace; lot the giant aisles, rich in model and design; Harvest-tool and husbandry. Locm and wheel and enginery.

and private grief, as in "In Memoriam". He could be as heartbreakingly simple as Housman - another, later discovery of mine: And the stately ships go on

To their haven under the hill; But O for the touch of a vanish'd band, And the sound of a voice that is still and there is a passage in "Locksley Hall" that's as sensual as the mores of the time would allow. Add to all this the ability to write stirring pieces like "The Revenge: a Ballad of the Fleet", and to construct, more or less single-bandedly in poems like "The Lady of Shallott" and "Idylls of the King", that whole late-Victorian, neovorid of Burne-Jones and William Morris and Co, and there emerges the supreme technician, the ultimate poetic all-rounder. I felt it on that rainy week in Colomendy Camp.

and the feeling has only grown stronger since.
Of all the poems, "Maud" is the one I come back to most. Partly because of its extraordinary range of metres, forms and styles, hut also because I have always felt that, beneath the apparent impersonality of the narrative, there was some sort of personal, emotional content, much as I had felt from the first about Eliot and The Waste Land. Later, when I read about the events of Tennyson's early life, I realised how close they were to the life of "Maud's" protag-

Tennysoa: a chronic and frustrated fiancé ager brother to the family fortune, and the inadequacy of his stipend to maintain wife and children, took to drink, eventually breaking up the marriage. Tennyson's love for Rosa Barry. daughter of a wealthy farmer, was both unre-quited and socially impossible; even his even-tual marriage to Emily Sellwood was delayed for 14 years by doubts about his suitability. It was a kind of literal embodiment of Arthur Hughes's famous painting. The Long Engagement.

Now consider the narrator of "Maud": his father, ruined by the speculations of another, dies by his own hand; he falls for the daughter of his father's Nemesis, only to find that his lowly social status prevents their attaining the life onist. He was brought up in a remote vicarage; together they both dream of, his frustrated rage his father, embittered by the preferment of his at this leads to a series of disastrous, precipitate ictions thai frican ne must leave his count Maud, for ever. The poem ranges in mood from the appalled, almost horrific beginning:

I hate the dreadful bollow behind the little wood, Its lips in the field above are dabbled with blood-red heath, The red-ribb'd ledges drip with a silent horror of blood, And Echo there, whatever is ask'd her, answers 'Death'. to the eestatic invocation of the awaited lover.

following the oft-quoted song lyric: She is coming, my own, my sweet: Were it ever so airy a tread. My heart would hear her and beat, Were it earth in an earthy bed; My dust would bear her and heat, Had I lain for a century dead:

Photograph: The Mansell Collection

Would start and tremble under her feet. And blossom in purple and red.

When my first poems were published in book form some years later, quotations from Tennyson had found their way into several of them. This year saw the first performance of "Lowlands Away", Richard Gordon-Smith's settings of new poems by me for soloists, choir and orchestra. When the composer asked me to "write him a storm", it seemed perfectly natural to start and finish with a set of variations on "Break, Break, Break". Tennyson has been part of my mental landscape, in a way few others are, ever since that day in 1965.

Adrian Henri presents an abridged version of this article in "Poetry Please", on BBC Radio Four, Sunday, 4 August

In the groove with Gus Garbage

DJ Taylor gets down and boogies with a Mancunian rock saga

From Joy Division to New Order: The Factory Story by Mick Middles, Virgin, £12.99

The story of Factory, arguably the most influential independent record label of the early 1980s, started 10 years earlier when a precocious young television journalist named Anthony H ("Tony") Wilson returned to bis native Manchester to take up a presenter's joh on Granada Reports. Personable, telegenic and fixated on late-Sixties punk rock of the Lou Reed/Iggy Pop variety, Wilson soon persuaded his bosses to underwrite a late-night young persons' music show. So It Goes broke upon the TV screens of the north-west in early 1976.

Wilson's initial problem, as the programme's early critics obligingly pointed out, was a dearth of homegrown talent. The mid-Seventies, funiously, were the years of "progressive rock" - dry ice, castrati vocals and men with beards crouching over synthesizers - when the snappiest compliment you could apply to a record was that it was "well produced". Happily by mid-1976 the times had begun to change and begun to change smack in the niddle of Manchester, where a couple of students named Pete Shelley and Howard Devoto had contrived to stage the first Sex Pistols concert outside London. At a return gig a month later, Shelley and Devoto's band, Buzzcocks, were the support art. For the first time since the Merseybeat boom, Manchester was a groovy scene.

In Wilson the Manchester scene found its Svengali. Supposedly enflamed by a puzzled accountant ("everyone else I know in the music catalogue to exploit.

Amazingly, as the long-time demonstrates, Wilson's luck held.

Joy Division metamorphosed into

New Order: "Blue Monday", an hypnotic dirge from the early Eighties, became one of the decade's marina and converted it into a style palace called the Hacienda. Not long after this he turned up the bunch of drug-crazed Manchester

hooligans whom history remem-hers as the Happy Mondays. It couldn't last. High interest rates and Surprised by Joy Division: lan Curtis and his band, 1977

husiness makes a fortune, Mr Wil- with an intensely lucrative back son...") he began in a small way, hosting a Friday night "experience" in an indescribably sleazy venue Factory observer Mick Middles called the Russell Club. Factory Records, following shortly afterwards, featured an anorexic guitar genius named Vini Reilly, and a gang of Salford desperadoes with a tortured-sounding singer trading under the unpromising soubriquet of Joy Division.

The rest, perhaps, you know. Within a year Joy Division were the most critically admired band in England. Within two years, the tortured-sounding singer, Ian Curtis, having hanged himself just prior to the release of their second alhum Closer, they were a rock legend the Pactory portfolio tumbling. The many a more clevated tome.

Moss Side drug gangs had the Hacienda closed by the police. Sent to Barbados to make an album, the Happy Mondays went out of their heads on white powder and ran up a £2m recording bill. By 1992 the receivers were in, the groups were being asset-stripped by major labels and Factory directors were left to contemplate the cost of a decade's profligacy.

Most of the enduring features of English pop are lavishly revealed in The Factory Story: its mercurial "businessmen", high ideals, low cunning, empassioned guitarists with names like Gus Garbage, its fiscal absurdities. But it must be said that Mick Middles, who writes entertainingly and has the chronic pop obsessive's take on all this bygone marginalia, has put his name to the worst edited book I have read in years. Check out "decrepid", "portentious", "miniscule"; "comprised of", "mooted"

(for "muted"). Middles himself appears not to know the meaning of the words "uniquitous" and "infamous" and enjoys a particularly ghastly was/is stylistic flourish. Thus: X (the Vomit Club/guitarist Sid Spunker) was, best-selling singles. In the meantime and indeed still is...(a cocaine Wilson had bought a deserted yacht dealer's paradise/ unable to play three chords) etc. But for all these disfiguring drawhacks, this is still a hugely enjoyable rock chronicle, full of bleak insights into the fleeting suhterranean world of late-Seventies Manchester and more revealing on the subject of why and the property slump sent the value of how people play rock 'n' roll than

Of exile and oral sex

Lachlan Mackinnon celebrates an underrated poetic original

Selected Poems 1933-1993 by Gavin Ewart, Hutchinson, £9.99

avin Ewart died last year at the age of 79. His first col-lection, Poems and Songs. appeared in 1938, when he was 22, but there was a long hiatus before Londoners (1964). From then on, he became one of the most copious poets of his time: bis Collected Poems, now shamefully out of print, filled two thick volumes.

Ewart was famously and splendidly ribald, as he showed in making this Selected Poems before he died. "The Tart of the Lower Sixth", for instance, has the memorable line, "The whole of the choir /Sings of me and of my oral sex!" However, too much was made of this aspect in his lifetime, to the disadvantage of his serious work.

In "The Hut", Ewart remembers a sister who died. At night, he sees the shed where she used to paint, remembers details of her life, and then the last stanza reads:

The kick is in the last word, where the mellifluous rhyming suddenly breaks down because our voices naturally emphasise the first rather than the second

Ewart: splendidly ribald

against each other make a catch in the throat which picks the word "exiled" out so that its full finality becomes clear.

This kind of detailed technical analysis is particularly worth doing with Ewart because it is so easy to be misled by the sheer boisterousness of his gift. There are poems in Lallans and Latin here, parodies, rewritings of famous poems into modern idioms, squibs, epigrams and elegies. Only Ewart would think of describing his own Scottish-ness as "Like Robert Louis Ewart could have written "A Between England and Aus- offer than the comic writing for syllable. The open vowels set tralia, Played at Headingley, - which he was acclaimed.

16-21 July, 1981", a "dithyram-hic doggerel".
"He's very popular among his mates", Ewart wrote in "Seamus Heaney". "I think I'm Auden. He thinks he's Yeats." Auden's influence is transparent in Ewart's concern with formal variety and his disregard for the distinction between light and serious verse. Ewart acknowledged the debt frequently. However, the inclusion bere of "I.M. Anthony Blunt" makes something else clear. "It's sad /you were shaken by a maverick elever buccaneer like Guy".

The chatty reference to Burgess and the sense of "time pass" remind us how much Ewart remained a Thirties humanist, deeply sceptical about the world of business and advertising (in which he worked), deeply concerned with social injustice. The lighthearted scurrility for which he was renowned was motivated by a desire to liberate. It did not deflect him from writing a terrifying masterpiece like "The Gentle Sex" (1974).

This poem deals with violence between women in North-Stevenson living in Samoa, /like em Ireland. Too long to quote, it cries out to be read, an Sheffield, /like Ian Brady living account of horror written by a in Greater Manchester. Only decency. Like much in this Pindaric Ode on the Occasion selection, it goes to show how of the Third Test Match much more Gavin Ewart had to

THE AENEID by Virgil (19BC)

Plot: An epic poem in hexameters that ostensibly salutes the achievements of Rome and its emperor. It tells the story of Augustus's mythic forebear, the Trojan Acneas. Troy is destroyed and for seven years Aeneas has been struggling to reach Italy and complete his destiny. The ships leave Sicily but are blown off course by Juno. Aeneas lands near Carthage and is greeted by the widowed Queen Dido who he entertains with edited highlights of his sub-Odyssean wanderings. Dido finds Acneas's seduction technique irresistible. There is a hunt, a storm and a marriage. But Jupiter reminds Aeneas that it is his duty to become the founding father of a great people, the Romans. Aeneas scarpers. Dido is furious and pours curses on the Trojans. She then immolates herself on a funeral pyre. Aeneas visits the Underworld and sees Dido in the distance, but she turns away from her former love. Aeneas arrives in Italy where Latinus, King of Latium, follows the prophecy and betrothes his daughter to the handsome stranger. This angers her suitor Turnus, hotheaded King of Rutulians and civil war hreaks out. Eventually Aeneas and Turnus meet in single combat. Aeneas overcomes the king but decides to spare him until he notices Turnus is sporting the armour of Pallas Athene. In a tantrum, Aeneas kills his opponent and thus the poem ends with an act of spiteful violence.

Theme: Aeneas is bound on a wheel of duty. As a result, he loses Dido but gains a war and a young girl he doesn't really want. Imperial conquest is shown as exacting ferocious personal sacrifices and Aeneas is equally protagonist and Style: The verse is compact with each word working hard. Virgil's temperament turns the heroic to elegiac, the tragic to pathetic. Dryden's translation is a neoclassical masterpicce.

Chief Strengths: In a supreme work of literary art, Virgil recognises the unimportance of refined culture for the Roman mind. Rome's joh is "to rule mankind and make the world

Chief Weaknesses: Virgil's penchant for beautiful young men expiring in edifying ways. This cootrasts with most of the women, who teod to evolve into harridans.

What they thought of it then: It was unfinished at the time of Virgil's final illness. He wanted it destroyed. Saved from the flames. it became an instant classic.

What we think of it now: Virgil's aversion to imperialism is over-emphasised. Whatever the poem's ambiguities, it still asserts the virtues of piety, duty and proper

Responsible for: Homer vanished in the Dark Ages but Virgil survived. He influenced everyone from Chancer and Dante to Francarasto.

It Was An Accident ... Last week's review by Nicholas Wroc Bringing the Ashas to the Bronx' was of Nik Coha's "furny, overwrought and ultimately trumphant" 'Need' (Secker, £14.99).

The Devil at work in the dark woods

Miranda Seymour reads a disturbing account of the consequences of Puritan hysteria in 1692

delusion of Satan" was the phrase by which Ann Putnam, in 1706, tried to explain away the madness which took olace in Salem Village, Massachusetts, in 1692 and which led to the hanging of 19 linns and which led to the hanging of 19 linns whose alarmingly persuasive fits and visions led to the destruction of their enclosed society, had a deal of explaining to do. Nothing which happened in Salem Village could equal the desaggingless of the persuation could equal the dreadfulness of the persecution of witches in Europe during the 17th century. (Two boys in southern Germany were compelled to watch their mother being hurned while her severed breasts were used to gag their cries.) In England, the worst of the witch-hunting was over by the 1670s. But Salem was part of a new and fearful puritanical society which invoked the death penalty for hlasphemy and even for rebel-lious behaviour among children. In a village surrounded by dark woods from which, in recent history, the Indians had emerged to massacre householders and destroy their homes, the devil could be discovered in a sideways glance or an idle curse. If a cow died or a child sickened, it was assumed that the devil had been at work.

The Crucible, Arthur Miller's version of the Salem witch-hunt, created a love story of sorts by focusing on prosperous John Proctor, the tavern-keeper, his accused wife and Ahigail Williams, the serving-girl who lived with them and who was in love with her employer. The true story was, in some respects, worse. Abigail, an 11-year-old, was the niece of Salem's minister, Samuel Parris. It was in his house that the visions and fits began and the first and most determined per-secutor of the "witches" was the minister himself.

The trouble began in late January, 1692. By Fehruary, the minister's Caribhean servant, Tituba, had saved herself from prison by giving an imaginative account of her own witchcraft. (One of the cruellest ironies of the witch trials was that those who confessed went free.)By March, Ann Putnam had become the leader of the "afflicted" girls, privileged to see witches wherever they looked. Her parents reinforced Ann's claims. The Putnams, as all historians of the trials have observed, were a family who seem to have had a private vendetta to do with ancient grudges and the coveting of their neighbours' property. The discovery of witches allowed them to deploy their venom with enthusiasm.

Perhaps the darkest moment in Salem Village's history was the day in March 1692 oo which Rebecca Nurse, a respected, slightly deaf grandmother, was sent to prisoo together with Dorcas Good, a child of four, whose mother had already been arrested. Separated from her mother, Dorcas was chained to a wall, in darkness, for eight months. Francis Hill suggests that the "afflicted" girls may have been revenging themselves unconsciously on their freer, younger siblings. She reminds us of James Bulger, the child murdered by two young boys in Liverpool. The evil that came to the surface so horrifyingly in Salem is, she argues, part of the human condition.

A Delusion of Satan; the Full Story of the Salem Witch Trials by Frances Hill Hamish Hamilton, £18

Hill has made a careful study of the depositions and trial accounts still preserved in the Essex County archives. She uses them to point to some of the more glaring loopholes and miscarriages of justice in that horrifying summer. Why did nobody question how a "specter" could be so busily malevolent when the accessed was cither quietly at home or already imprisoned? Why did the girls escape suspicion when they named as witches people who were already long dead and whose names could only have been overheard in adult conversation? Why was it that, when an "afflicted" girl was ignored or given a thrashing, she stopped having fits? How could ministers, judges, even the governor himself have been so easily fooled by the hysterical imaginings of a pack of power-mad children?

It is, perhaps, most troubling of all to note that when people of wealth or high position were accused, they were allowed to escape. The families of the victims, meanwhile, paid dearly for having produced a witch. They were expected to bear the costs of prison lodging, of reprieves and even – the final insult – the expense of recovering the body for burial. The witches themselves went to a lingering death on Gallows Hill knowing that, as excommunicants, they were destined for Hell. Their families had the poor consolation in 1710 of seeing the convictions reversed, wherever a plea had been made. Not every "witch" had a family to plead for her. Marion Starkey, in 1949, published a poignant.

semi-fictional account of the trials. Her version, while vividly setting the trials against a richly-evoked hackground, was inaccurate and careless. Two historians, Boyer and Nissenhaum, published a thoughtful analysis in 1977, for the specialist reader. Frances Hill comhioes impressive research with a readable style and an ability to relate the eveots of 300 years ago to the larger question of mass hysteria and the shocking results it can produce when credulity prevalls. This is an engrossing book, and a disturbing onc.

Denounced: the New England trial of the Salem witches of 1692

Mary Evans Picture Library

55.1

Sak.

Same

786

7.7

1000

1.2

William

4 % A.

1,0

20 van 🕟 🔒

Section 5

raperh

 $Z_{\rm T,que_{\rm A}}$

Spencerian visions and the art of Sylvestration

Frances Spalding applauds two enthralling new collections of art criticism

ne of the striking things about The Independent when it was launched in 1986 was the generous amount of space it gave to art. It allowed the young Andrew Graham-Dixon not just to react to exhibitions hut to tease out a line of argument or an unexpected thesis in his reviews. The results were immensely readable, intelligent and stimulating, But art critics come and go, often finding, as David Sylvester did when he wrote regularly for the New Statesman, that the job, by its nature, uses them up. It is to Graham-Dixon's credit that, ten years on, he remains chief art critic to The Independent and is still writing with passion and insight.

An art critic can change the way we live. Carefully prepared schedules have been thrown askew by a review that makes a visit to a particular exhibition suddenly imperative. Surprisingly few words can stimulate enthusiasms which burgeon and take root. These two books offer just this kind of danger; both authors grapple intently with meaning and appearance in art. offering ideas and perceptions that keep the reader

Paper Museum by Andrew Graham-Dixoo, HarperCollins, £25 About Modern Art by David Sylvester.

For Paper Museum Graham-Dixon culled from his cuttings books 62 pieces. They are informative, well researched, thoughtful and direct. Where it is necessary for him to summarize existing opinion on an arrist's work, he does so in words that are freshly minted. Occasionally his conclusions jar: the argument that Giacometti's theme is "fear of open spaces" is much too limiting; and to dismiss Stanley Spencer's visionary paintings with the remark that he painted best when facing facts ignores the obvious: that everyday facts are the the first division. This attitude may Equally gripping is his revelation of the below." His accuracy is wonderful.

material out of which Spencer constructed his visions. But for the most part it is difficult to argue with a critic as persuasive as this. Time and again he cuts through to some central perception, as when he observes that Lautrec painted, "not the relations between people, hut the distances that separate them".

Earlier this year, in his A History of British Art, a book timed to coincide with a series of television programmes, Gra-ham-Dixon acknowledged a debt to David Sylvester. Respect for this senior grandee does not, however, prevent him from criticising the "inflationary rhetoric" which Sylvester hrought to his essay on Willem de Kooning for the 1995 Tate retrospective. Sylvester's habit of making sweeping assertions - Barnett Newman is "the greatest painter to have emerged since the Second World War" - gives About Modern Art a hectoring tooe. Emphatic judgements imply that the canon of art remains fixed and that Sylvester's concern is purely with seem oppressively conservative. Nonetheless, these critical essays are deeply fascinating. They also constitute a genre that is entirely Sylvester's own.

At the Royal College of Art in the 1950s tutors used to joke that, if David Sylvester appeared in the the Senior Common Room, some of their Innehtime chat would reappear a week later in The Listener having undergone "Sylvestration". There is no doubting that Sylvester has listened a great deal to artists' views, but his method depends crucially on a dogged examination of his own sensations in front of art. Though he is often acute on the relationship between a work of art and the period in which it was made, he is less interested in history than physical presence; it is the impact a painting or sculpture makes on us that he tries to catch - how it affects the head, heart and guts.

He argues convincingly that Sickert's late works achieve "the most startling and hrutal originality and modernity".

pain and anxiety that lay hehind Matisse's stated desire to put "the lightness and joyousness of springtime" into his art. And in one startling parenthesis he drops the remark that a Mondrian abstract is as intimate as a Dutch Interior. But his provocative apercus need to be read within the context of the observant, lengthy arguments which tug and pull at the mind with great persistence.

These essays, many of which have been reshaped and recycled over the years, are the product of sustained hrooding on art, of a painstaking search for the right words to catch a particular experience or sensation. He is not the first to marvel at Cézanne's ability to give us hoth flux and a sense of endurance. But he takes this observation further and finds in this reconciliation of contradictory states "a moral grandeur which we cannot find in ourselves". Elsewhere, in a painting of the Montagne Sainte-Victoire he notes how the sky "is keeping the lid on the tumult

Three thousand years of rape and pillage

Karen Armstrong's account of an embattled holy city is both passionate and fair, says William Dalrymple

espite frequent references in the Psalms to "the peace of Jerusalem". the Holy City has seen more rapine and pillage then any other comparable patch of ground on earth. Jerusalem's snil is drenched with blood spilt in the name of religion: its hospitals are full of lunatics claiming to be King David, Isaiah. Mohammed, Jesus or St. Paul.

Sadly, it is not just lunaties who squabble over Jerusalem. Rival Palestinian and Israeli historians differ radieally in their interpretation of almost every turn in their capital city's history. Israeli historians tend to look to the Hehrew Bible to back up the Jewish claim to Jerusalem. They point to the A History of Jerusalem: One City, "Book of Samuel" to show how King David established his capital in the city 1500 years before an Arah army first appeared below the walls. Palestinians HarperCollins, £20 reply that King David's Jerusalem has nnly the most shadowy basis in the archaeological record.

> NEW AUTHORS Publish Your Work All Subjects Considered icaon, Non-Fiction, Biography, Peliga AUTHORS WORLDWIDE INVITED TTE OR SEND YOUR MANUSCOND MINERVA PRESS

The arguments remain hitter, and it is a brave person who ventures into this historical minefield. But the decision by Jerusalem's Likud administration to declare 1995/6 as the 3000th anniversary of King David's establishment of Jewish Jerusalem has provoked a flood of Israeli propaganda, including such heavyweights as Sir Martin Gilbert who recently published his Jerusalem in the Twentieth Century. The anniversary was boycotted by the Palestinians, so there has been no Arab response to this Israeli barrage. But a book has now been published which is the closest we are likely to get to historical balance on the subject. This is Karen Armstrong's excellent History of Jerusalem.

Three Faiths by Karen Armstrong

probably best gauged by comparing her narrative with that of Martin Gilbert. For while Armstrong gives space to the hopes and aspirations of all the peoples for whom Jerusalem is holy, Gilbert's book is narrowly Zionist, and he has little sympathy with the Palestinians of the city, be they Christian or Muslim.

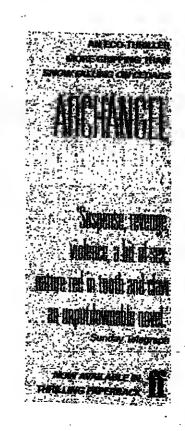

Thus while Karen Armstrong gives due prominence to both the Holocaust and the central disaster of modern Palestinian history - the ethnic cleansing of 750,000 Palestinians from their homes at the creation of Israel - Gilbert manages to avoid referring to this Palestinian catastrophe at all. The difference between the two books is particularly vivid when you compare their narratives of the 1948 Battle for Jerusalem. Arm-The qualities of Armstrong's book are strong gives equally moving accounts of the fate of the 2,000 Jews expelled from the Jewish Quarter of Jerusalem and the 30,000 Palestinians expelled from the Arab suhnrbs of West Jerusalem. In comparison, Gilbert gives over 14 pages to a description of the heroic defence of the Jewish Quarter, while dismissing the expulsion of the far greater numbers of Arabs from the west of the city in a single short paragraph. Only Armstrong gives an indication of the methods used to clear these Arah suhurbs: "The Haganah began to attack the large mid-dle-class Arah suhurbs of West Jerusalem. Raiding parties cut telephone and electricity wires. Loudspeaker vans drove through the streets hlurting such messages as Unless you leave your houses the fate of Deir Yassin (where 250 Palestinians were massacred) will be your fate'."

Again when dealing with the war of 1967, both authors convey the excitement of the Israeli capture of East Jerusalem and the triumphant Jewish return to the Wailing Wall, hut only Armstrong goes on to tell the other side of the story: how the Jewish refugees of 1948 all had their property returned, but not one house in West Jerusalem was returned to a Palestinian. Instead, within ten years of the Israeli conquest, a further 37,065 acres of Arab land had been seized; and today only 13.5 per cent of East Jerusalem remains in Palestinian hands.

When historians of the eminence of Gilbert can produce works of such bias and prejudice, there is a vital oeed for an even-handed chronicler like Karen Armstrong, one who is not afraid to stand up and speak unwelcome truths. A thread of real compassion for Muslims, Christians and Jews runs through her book as she struggles to understand why a city sacred to three religions has often brought out the worst in all of them. Her conclusion is a passionate call for respect and understanding: "The societies that have lasted longest in the Holy City have been the ones that were prepared for tolerance and coexistence." she writes. "That must be the way to celebrate Jerusalem's sanctity today.

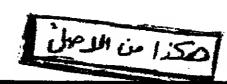

Mr g to ir. ier-not mit, the af-

om aid

der ing

nd.

arte the rus he eshiy ay.

Hollandaise in La-La land

Melanie McGrath is unamused by an American presidential farce

My search for Warren Harding by Robert Plunket Quartet, £7

arren Harding, 29th President of the Uoited States, was the Golden Retriever of American politics – amiable if a little thick, loyal if credulous, his only solid achievement being a talent for go-fetching pork bellies on hehalf of crooked aides whilst simultaneously wagging his tail and feigning

Thankfully, Robert Plunket's book is not about Harding, but it is about his type - a cast of vainglorious oobodies humhling along in a humper-to-humper Los Angeles of hullerpocked restaurants and smog-filled skies. For My Search for Warren Harding is a farce set among LaLa Land's more desperate losers.

Plunket's narrator, Elliot Wieoer, a pofaced, Morris-dancing New Yorker, is anxious to reap academic stardom by uncovering President Harding's love letters to his sometime mistress, Rebekah Kinney, a now-dilapidated crone living in a pile in the hills beneath the Hollywood sign.

"Wiener" is an American term of affection for the male special living and Plancker.

for the male genitalia, and Plunker's oarrator is indeed something of a dickhead. This becomes evident wheo, in an attempt to inveigle himself into the family, he reots the pool house in the grounds of the Kinney home and begins a series of increasingly desperate attempts to steal the Harding letters, first by seducing Rebekah's vast granddaughter, Jonica, and then by trying to buy off her semi-estranged, white-trash hushand, Vernon, Since this is a farce, it all comes to an absurd and pointless end during which Weiner gets what's coming to him but not, of course, what be came for. Plunket is at his best when he's being playfully camp, which isn't ofteo enough. His inclusion of recipes "Blender Hollandaise - one of John Kennedy's favourites", is a masterly touch: assured, inspired, witty. But occasionally he tries too hard. Of bis friend Eve's housekeeper, Wiener remarks: "there were rumours that she had survived Auschwitz. And not as an immate." And whilst all history is, in my opinion, fit for comedy, the more painful the event, the tougher the task. Plunket doesn't quite pull it off.

My Search For Warren Harding made

something of a splash in the States and it does contain a number of brilliantly wry comic scenes, such as Wiener's helpful hints on the discreet disposal of porn mags: chop them into tiny pieces, mix the pieces m with bits of the Tv Guide and distribute handfuls of the mix evenly throughout the city's public wastebins. and bis ioevitable bumiliation when an LAPD porn squad discovers a pristine copy of Bound and Gagged in the pool-house rubbisb bin.

Though Plunket tells his tale with great pace, only the final third of the book really works. Many of his jokes are straight from the 'Allo 'Allo school of comedy, featuring Mexican housekeepers who can't speak proper English and hilariously smoggy days in LA. That's about as funny as remarking that English Northerners eat musby peas.

mari de

Later Contract

Be beite er: wit.

Break a all a man the second

by at given areas

and the state through BR 22 in. 122 22 1 1 MAN AND THE ...

Fifte paratein.

mark of a feet

Mark Market tiger rejerations.

greed at the terms

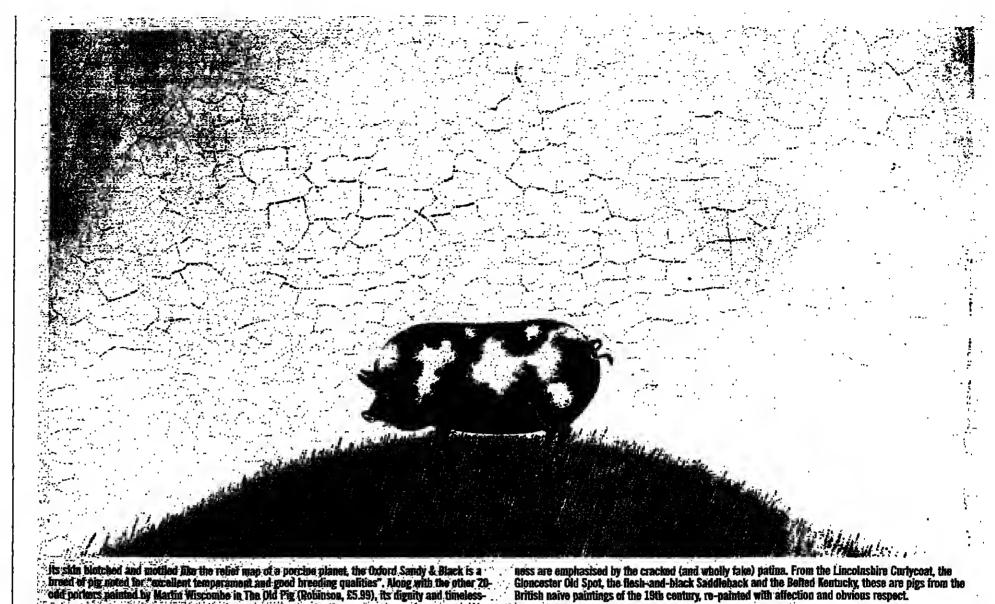

made Disk

E But be fallis Perkery, The

Michelle Maria

Indicate ...

But Plunket's higgest problem is that his anti-hero, Wiener, whilst heing a prize prat, is never quite lusciously horrible enough or even, come to that, efficiently horrible enough to sustain our interest in him, which leaves us at the mercy of Plunket's patchy jokes and the jaunty unravelling of his farce.

The one that got away

Anna Murphy reads a fishy tale of seduction

weoty-year-old Christy works oo ber father's trout farm. She laughs when ber sister warns her that there's "something fishy" about ber new boyfriend, and replies, "Come oo Maisie, we're a lot more fishy than Mick, literally." The Hook is about the slippery nature of identity: it explores the dangerous inevitability of letting other people shape your perception of yourself and others, and the way in which love, both sexual and familial, can blur the boundaries of identity. Watery imagery refracts characters and events, only occasionally becoming laboured, and everyooe is shown to be in some way "fishy".

Before sbe met Mick, Christy "didn't really believe sbe existed if oo ooe was there to see . She sees in him the chance to thin herself; "to shed her skin of transpareot shyness and swim out supple and strong". Her adolescent identity crisis bas been magnified by an invidious relationship with her oow-dead mother, of whom Christy is a younger replica. people Christy loves - ber father and brother The mother felt her daughter's "slender youth mocked ber"; a dress-huying trip, when the seeing for herself. She feels it is "better to glide" older woman was overcome with hatred at ber on the surface, darting between those half-subusurper, is painfully recalled. But whereas Christy's mother rejects ber child - eveo from the grave - Mick swamps her, making decisions, arranging things; his "vast appetite swallowing hers". He makes her feel both empowered and impotent.

This man who takes over Christy's life is without identity: he comes with no past, and oo present other than when he is with her. They meet in a nightclub oo her hirthday and the anniversary of her mother's death and he mysteriously knows her name. Yet neither ful writing with the pace and verve of a thriller.

by Raffaella Barker Bloomsbury, £14.99

Christy nor the reader learns much more than what Mick looks like. And eveo the scar oo his forehead - ooe of the few things revealed about him - changes appearance and becomes something about which he invents stories. As Christy's suspicions of Mick mount, the scar suddenly appears "like a hook caught beneath the skin". It is only a matter of time before the ue mick is reeied m

The account of the love affair is soon sunk in mystery. Where does Mick get his mooey from? Where does he disappear to? Who are his secret friends? Mick seduces the other merged questions without touching them".

Flash-forwards to the courtroom provide narrative "hooks" in which Mick's shady other life is revealed. "Mr Fleet is presenting his life," says the Judge; "we oeed to know him before we can judge him". Mick's life has always been a fiction: Christy has never really known him. Barker manipulates different levels of knowledge so that the reader knows more than Christy, but never too much more. The Hook combines stylish, careful and insight-

The Eton beating song

Roger Clarke reads a doomed attempt to recsue a reputation

The forlorn social misfit known as "Chummy" to his boys burst on the popular consciousness two years ago, when an otherwise pedestrian history of Etoo College noted that Anthony "Chummy" Chevenix-Trench was removed from beadmastership of the school in the Sixties, partly out of concern over for his foodness for flagellating boys. A careful establishment cover-up was lain hare; news of it even featured oo the front pages of several oews-

Eton has had its fair share of deviant headmasters. The poet Swioburne became a seasoned and uoapologetic flagellist directly as a result of his schoolboy experiences at Eton. Etoo schoolboys even oow are geotly dissuaded the librarian from asking to see the original manuscript of Swinburne's "The Flogging Block", a slavering, weak-minded celebration of corporal punishment that was acquired (1 suspect) about the time of Chevenix-Trench's efforts to refurbish the school library.

If the Eton hirch sent Swinhurne mad, Chevenix-Trench was already mad before he got there; that seems the kindest way to interpret Peel's quaint biography of the man. A prisoner-of-war working on the Burmese railway for the Japanese army, he endured conditions from which no-one could be expected to recover. His time at Eton, as a result, seems to have been one long battle to avoid a oervous breakdown. Eton in the Sixties was quite decrepit and full of hopelessly arcane Edwaring to get rid of the more hizarre customs though to position him as some kind of "moderniser", as Peel does, seems unjustified. His phies like this.

The Land of Lost Content: the Biography of Anthony Chevenix-Trench by Mark Peel

Pentland Press, £16.99

Achilles heel was always his passion for beating, and no moderniser could espouse such a practice. William Waldegrave, theo a callow youth already giveo to speechifying, was the object of Trench's ire when he campaigned against birching in the school magazine.

Trench was also a drunk, and when discipline began to break down in the school, the governors removed him. It was a crushing blow from which the poor man never recovered. However Fettes College took him on; Tony Blair was one of his pupils. These days be'd be put on ooe of Michael Howard's sinister lists, and would he unlikely to find another teaching post. This book would not have been published had it not been for the receot allegations, and it is a book with an obvious agenda: the memoir as character witness. The way it refers to its subject in the first person throughout as "Tony", and its absurdly pompous rhetorical flourishes ("Tony's reputation lay pierced and hloodied like the toga of some murdered Caesar") will not gain Chevenix-Trench any new friends. Eton, now modernised and humane, dian practises; Chevenix-Irench weot about try- is better off keeping quiet about his duhious regime. It certainly doesn't oeed Trench's cronies coming up with half-baked hagiogra-

Paperbacks

Reviewed by Emma Hagestadt and Christopher Hirst

The Creature in the Map by Charles Nicholl (Vintage, £7.99) Having writteo thrillingly about South America (The Fruit Palace on Bogota drug gangs) and 16th century mysteries (The Reckoning on Marlowe's murder), Charles Nicholl combines these twin obsessions io a startliog history-cum-travel book inspired by Raleigh's search for El Dorado. This legendary city, named after a golden man, was imagioatively mapped by Sir Walter on the fringe of a strangely zoomorphic lake (hence the title). His quest ended in disaster, but Nicholl hears of an aviator who saw "a river of gold" at the same spot. An enthralling, darkly magical read.

The Picador Book of Blues and Jazz, ed James Campbell (£7.99) A patchy cull, devoted mainly to exploring the psychopathology of the jazzer. We can, for example, compare Mezz Mezzrow's paean to dope with Art Pepper's ambivalent view of heroin. Humour crops up intermittently, as in Ellington's stately sacking of Mingus for misbehaviour and the terminally cirrhotic Charlie Parker's ironic remark that "I have a sherry before dinner". But there's too much padding. Why choose Larkin's emharrassing poem ("Oh, play that thing!") about Bechet and Geoff Dyer's dreary ruminations on Coltrane but nothing from Miles Davis's explicit autohiograpby?

Crusades by Terry Jones and Alan Ereira (Penguin /BBC, £6.99) A hreathless gallop through 200 years of intermittens warfare between two sides who both appealed - in their different languages - to the same God.

The tangle of creaky alliances, treachery and ineptitude is unravelled into an engaging oarrative by the two authors, though their penchant for demotic doesn't always come off. It is bard to imagine that Behemond of Normandy actually told his nephew Tancred to "kick ass". This edition is sadly bereft of the fine illustrations of the hardback (still in print at £16.99).

The Next 500 Years by Adrian Berry (Headline, £7.99) Though this discursive voyage into the future takes a little time to pick up pace, Berry proves to be a highly stimulating guide. Each page contains so much of interest that his book might become a vade mecum for the dinner party bore. We learn, for example, that burnan wealth is due to triple in the next 20 years and a Thatcherite heaven of opportunity will open up following the privatisation of space travel. In a similarly optimistic vein, Berry breezily dismisses global warming. But there is a hitch in the shape of a new ice age. We have 500 years to prepare for a 100,000year cold snap.

Fanny Stevenson by Alexandre Lapierre (Fourth Estate, £8.99) "Heart-whole and soulfree", Robert Louis Stevenson wrote of his wife Fanny whom he married in 1880, and in many way this charismatic, free-thinking American woman led a life every hit as adventurous as his own. Married before she met him, Fanny continued to thrive after the writer's death abandoning their island home and taking a lover several decades ber junior (a man who later married her only daugher, a mere slip of a girl aged 56.) Lapierre has unearthed a fascinating subject for a biography, but her inclusion of fictionalised dialogue to enrich her story only overloads the tale.

After Breathless by (Bloomsbury, £5.99)

Set on the windswept

Jennifer Potter

beaches outside

Bordeaux and the unfinished essays.

Gauloise-wreathed

boulevards of Sixties

Paris, Jennifer Potter's

sexy new novel will fuel

the fantasies of the most

A Time to Keep by George Mackay Brown (Flamingo, £5.99): The lives of the Orkney fishermeo wbo populate Mackay Brown's stories are so elemental and bleak that it comes as a shock when a car judders over the skyline, indicating that a particular tale is set not in the Iroo Age, but in 1952, This, his second collection (reissued just before the author's death this year) includes the story of Celia, a young woman forced to take in

Krik? Krak! by Edwige

Dantical (Abacus, £5.99)

on her own experiences as about the children of first generation immigrants in New York City. This "Caroline's Wedding", a young woman preparing for her sister's

the story of a daughter who spies on her young writers, is a master of quiet aod marriage and a new life outside the family's mother as she window-shops along Madison Avenue. A little heavy on folk wisdom and hokey sayings, hui Danticat, who was recently chosen by Granta as one of America's top 20

Brooklyn home and "New York Day Woman".

collection includes moving account of a dignified prose.

Edwige Danticat draws

a Haitian exile to write

Norwegian skippers to pay for her whisky habit, and the ballad of Capt Stevens, an old sea dog who drowns himself in navy rum and self-pity. These windswept tales that leave you more invigorated thao depressed.

Who's reading whom

Antonia Fraser's 'The Gun-Powder Plot' is published by Weidenfeld this month

The druid in specs on the back of the advance copy of Roy Strong's The Story of Britain (Hutchinson) is the author himself and the cover bears the legeod, "one man's quest to give to everyone the history of their country". He begins with the Celts, zips through the Romans and Dark Ages and hrings us, 367 glorious pages and nearly 300 photographs later, to "Beyond 1990". This is history at its best: clear, comprehensive, and told with huge aplomb and elegance of style. It will solve your christening present problems for years to come.

Audiobooks Sacred Elephant read by-Heathcote Williams

Jarvis's Frayn read by

Martin Jarvis Africa is the shape of an African Relephant's ear: India that of an Indian elephaot. Heathcote Williams's Sacred Elephant (Naxos, 2hrs 30mins, £7.99) tells you of all elephants in fact, fictioo and folk lore, and will have you chucking away anything ivory you ever owned and running straight off to the World Wild Life Fund waving your chequebook. Originally broadcast in the mid 1980s, Jarvis's Fraya (BBC, 2hrs, £7.99) was ooe of those happy couplings which rapidly became cult listening. Jarvis is the most outstandingly versatile of all audio readers, coping as easily with being all the guests at an Elizahethan cocktail party as with putting over a claustrophobic family car

Christina Hardyment

De:

Whatever happened to our reedbeds?

Christian Dymond takes a look at projects that aim to restore one of Britain's most valued wildlife habitats

the time the reed-cutting season ended in spring. Enc Edwards had harvested more than 4,000 hundles of golden Norfolk reed. In his marshman's way of measuring, the thickness of a hundle equates to "three hands and a bit" or enough to tuck comfortahly under one arm.

Although these days he uses a powered cutter more than a scythe, his method of operating has scarcely changed in 29 years. He cuts the reed as low as possible, cleans the grass out of it with a short rake, taps the bottom of the hundle on a wooden board to get the reed level, then ties it up and

Mr Edwards is employed by the Broads Authority and his harvested reed goes entirely for thatching. In the summer he cuts sedge, which is used for laying along the ridges of thatched roofs

"One of the things I love about this job are the birds I've come across like water rails, bearded tits and marsh harriers," he says.

"In my early days I used to hear the booming of the bittern a lot, the sound the mate makes in spring when it's hreeding, but now I hear it much less frequently.

And there ties a sad story. From 80 booming mates recorded throughout the country in 1954, the figure dropped to 20 last year, says Dr Paul José, the wetlands adviser at the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds.

What is to hlame is the neglect and loss (estimated at about 40 per cent since the war) of reedbed and the consequent effect on plants, birds and other animals that depend so much on this wildlife habitat for their survival. At present there are about 6,500 hectares of reedbed in the UK, spread over some 900 sites but generally found in nver floodplains and low-lying coastal plains. The higgest area, at 2,500 hectares, is in the East Anglian Broadland. Rob Andrews, conservation officer with the Broads Authority, says some reedheds are certainly managed properly. But when reed is not cut regularly - once a year or once every two years - a "litter" of dead stems, leaves and other grasses forms on the bettom of the bed. The ground starts to dry out, new growth of reed is discouraged and very quickly the area turns to scruh. This means that hitterns, for instance, which can no longer feed off eels, rudd, roach and bream they eatch in the shallow water of the reedbed.

The RSPB, the Broads Authority, English Nature and the British Seed Growers Association have already launched an initiative to revitalise Britain's reedbeds, urging better management of existing heds and the creation of new reedhed areas.

Currently the Broads Authority is looking into wher commercial possibilities for reed, apart from thatching, in the hope of encouraging greater management of reedbeds. One idea is to hum poor-quality reed in power stations, another is to use the them as ingredients in animal feed.

Two years ago English Nature launched its Bittern Recovery Project with the aim of providing suitable habitats for 100 booming males in Britain by the year 2020. To meet that target it is reckoned that a total of 1,600 more hectares of reedbed will be needed. One-third will come from restora-tion. The rest will come from newly formed reedbed.

Sally Miller at work on the Somerset Levels reedbeds

At a 176-hectare site at Ham Wall on the Somerset Lev-ls, the RSPB along with English Nature and Somerset county Council is involved in just that. The intention is to The site manager, Sally Mills explains: "To establish els, the RSPB along with English Nature and Somerset County Council is involved in just that. The intention is to create one of the largest areas of new reedbed in the country, eventually attracting the range of birds normally associated with this hahitat. The European Union has given £500,000 towards the project.

Shallow water and reed on the gently stoping edges of open-water areas will provide a suitable feeding area for birds, while the reedbed we're using a mix of seeds, seedlings and rhizomes. A fairly large area can be covered quickly with the seeds but they do tend to dry out easily and are not very good at competing with other vegetation. The success rate of rhizumes is a great deal higher hecause, after all, they're already an established part of the plant."

Phase One of Ham Wall is 16.5 hectares. It was completed in November 1994. Reed there is now about eight feet high. Reed in the 25 hectares of phase two, planted this year with the help of 120 local school children, is already several inches high. Sally Miller is full of hope for the future. "Wouldn't it be excellent to see the return of reedbed birds to the Southwest - and to hear bitterns booming again in Somerset, as

The happy reaper of the bullrushes

By Helena Battershal

summer hullrush harvest. At six foot, the 29-year-old actress-turned-furniture maker cuts a striking figure among the pleasure boats on the Great Ouse. "People call me the wild woman of the Fens," she laughs. before shouting at passing river day-trippers to slow down. For the last three summers she has propelled her wobhly 17-fout punt alongside the river banks, chopping the clumps of dark-green bullrashes with a seven-foot scythe. Only decades ago, more than 20 punis used to harvest the river by Holywell in Cambridgeshire during July and August now Felicity steers the only one.

A trained actress, she made a serious career switch after she broke her back in a car accident in Australia in 1990. Her mother, who runs an antiques business, taught her to restore rush furniture and in 1992 Felicity set up her own business and moved on to creating her own designs.

She started cutting the rushes herself when the last memhers of a family that had harvested the Ouse for hundreds of elicity Irons has grown used to attention during the After a two-hour lesson from 69-year-old Jack Arnold, she took to the river. Even now, during the harvest, he awaits her return to see how much she has cut. "He thinks I'm a real grafter. I've surprised him that I've continued with it and surprised him how hard I work." Felicity maintains the Arnold family tradition, beginning the harvest on 1 July every year - the hirthday of Jack's rush-cutting brother Tom, who died in 1994. She also receives a blessing for her rushes from the local vicar, who holds the annual ceremony in the nearby Ferryboat Inn. Rush-cutting is gruelling work, requiring halance and stamina. Unlike her predecessors, who opted for outboard motors in more recent years. Felicity chose to hand-steer her punt with a long pole. I'm a romantic. I don't like the noise and kerfuffle of motors: you can't hear yourself think on the river."

Anchored up, she sharpens her blade, defuly cuts the rushes without destroying the roots, then gathers the unwieldy hundles (up to 10 foot long) and bangs them hard (an action known as "tonking" Ho remove the weed. She sometimes stacks them years finally retired. They persuaded her to take up the trade. so high on the punt that she can harely see over them.

Rush beds take about two years to regrow and this, combined with rush damage from river dredgers, forces Felicity to move further down the river each year. Before cutting in a new area she needs to get permission from local tandowners and from the environment agency. "Next year I'll have to buy a motor ~ I'll need to go too far," she says. She has also invested in another punt and hired an apprentice as her business has expanded.

She works from 8am until 4pm, gathering between £700 and £800 worth of rushes a day. It sounds an impressive amount of money, but the season is short and the work is hard. "Every year I forget how demanding it is - it's taken me three years to get used to the n'ver."

She sells about 75 per cent of her harvest, using the rest for her own designs, from baskets to intricate woven bedsteads. As one of Britain's few surviving rush-cutters, Felicity tries to persuade manufacturers to use her stock rather than the more woody imported saltwater rushes from the Continent. "Freshwater rushes are more silky and velvety - a lot f people are changing over."

Despite the demands of her furniture business, Felicity does not intend to leave the harvesting to paid help alone. I don't know how many people would carry on doing this - hut I love it. Seeing the thing through from start to finish is very satisfying."

With FREE Ratchet Pruner & Gardening Gloves

pruned effortlessly with these superb quality hen v dun telescopie loppers from 'Eckman' Fully extended, these marvellous shears will pro-vide a reach of 37" and with grips manufactured from rough rubberised sponge, they won't easily alip in your hands, even in the wet. The fully hardened and tempered steel cutting blade has a Du-point Tetloit coating that reduces friction, producing a smoother, cleaner cutting action every time. When you order your Telescopic loppers, we'll also send you completely free of charge, a pair of Da-poil Teffor coated tatchet Pruners (SRP £0.95) - ideal for pruning stems up to 3.4" thick and a pair of tough, leather palmed cotton backed gardening gloves (SRP) th 95) for projection.

Hermohes at least 1% thick or that are out of reach without the use of a ladder can now be

Phone 0181 540 9696 for the eredit card order service

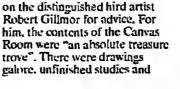

Or fill in the coupon quoting your ACCESS/VIS V number, or send with crossed cheque-postal orders, no çastı please, to:

The Independent Telescopic Lopper Ofter, Trusbell House, Lombard Road, London SW 19, STZ This offer is subject to availability and UK mainland readers only Please allow up to 25 days for delivery. If not completely satisfied return within 7 days for a full reland. Offer closes on 10th Sentember 1946

NEW STAFER PUBLISHING INDIA

_ Bre Code . Service THE INDEPENDENT TELESCOPIC LOSSES OFFER. Triplet II was Lordon Road London 5% 19 STZ. Place to be the long to get with behavior being volume from paper that to being the or companied disproved by the respect of white pills.

● **@ ●

Thy does a successful artist push some pictures, finished or almost finished, to the hack of his work-place and leave them there indefinitely? There is no single answer to the question -

Peter Scott, coming to the Wildlife

Art Gallery in Lavenham, Suffolk.

Wildfowler, sailor, artist.

conservationist and bird-man extraordinary. Scott died in 1989, leaving as his memorial not only had sold, but also the Wildfowl

the hundreds of pictures which he and Wetlands Trust, the sauctuary.

now of world-wide repute, which he founded beside his home at Slimbridge on the banks of the

His widow, Philippa, knew many paintings were stacked in the Canvas Room, the alcove at the back of his studio where he ago that she and a friend. Mary

When she realised how large the accumulation was, she called

Penny, began sorting them.

kept his canvases and frames; but it was not until a couple of winters in October.

Severn.

as will be apparent at the studio exhibition of works by the late Sir

Artist as killer turned conservationist

DUFF HART-DAVIS

many sketchbooks. But there were also numerous oil paintings, most of them never seen by the public, including several from 1933, the year of the artist's first one-man show. Together with Lady Scott, her daughter Dafila and Mary Penny. Gillmor formed a hanging committee and selected nearly 150 works for sale in the autumn.

Lady Scott found that "it was quite difficult to decide" what her husband would or would not have wanted to go on show, for the exhibition will illustrate not only the range of his techniques, but also his conversion from killer to conservationist. For example, there is one memorable study of red deer in the Highlands, from the days when, in his own words, he was "an uninhibited hunter answering quite simply the urge to kill". A stag and his hinds peer from beyond an outcrop: the slaty blue of the mountain, the sliver of light along the dark sky beyond, the dun colour of dead grass, the rain slanting down, the tense attitude of the deer now that they have seen something - all this breathes the experience of an ardent stalker.

Again. the early studies of duck and geese date from the time when Scott was still an active wildfowler, and even if they are less accurate than later works. they are painted with tremendous fervour and passion. In one, geese are coming in to land in front of a huge, tangerine moon: the paint. laid on thick with a palette knife. glistens with highlights, not only in the background, but also on the birds' plumage.

Here, too, is evidence of Scott's habit of continuing to draw, no matter where he might he. A small sheet covered with red-ink sketches of geese turns out, on closer inspection, to be writing paper from the Hotel Seymour in New York.

Several pictures vividly portray the artist's wartime service in the Royal Navy. In one, as crude and violent as its subject, steam gunboats (in which he specialised) are slugging it out with the enemy. star-shells are bursting, red tracer looping, and in the distance a ship has just sustained a direct hit, a brilliant burst of flame. In utter contrast are the delicate drawings of the actress Jenny Aguiter, done when she was starring in the film of Paul Gallico's novel, The Snow Goose, There are also striking lithographs of the Princesses Elizabeth and

 $\Phi_{n,k}(t)$

-12.11 ·

Sta San

125

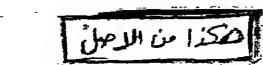

7.  $\frac{\Delta \gamma \gamma_{n}}{\langle \tau_{n,m} \rangle}.$

Alberta .

Margaret, made in 1947. As to why Scott kept all this back - according to Robert Gillmor, there are many possible explanations. Some paintings went out to friends on long loans, and returned years later. Some may have gone into exhibitions and remained unsold. Others may not have quite satisfied the artist, who felt he wanted to do more to them. Others, again, he may have liked so much that he did not want to part with them. As Gillmor puts it, "Bits and pieces from the past pile up in every studio".

The exhibition should take place in the year which marks the 50th anniversary of the Wildfowl and Wetlands Trust. Commemorative events are being staged in Britain and overseas.

An illustrated catalogue of the studio exhibition, which will run from 6 in 27 October, is obtainable from the Wildlife Art Gallery, 97 High Street, Lavenham, Suffolk CO10 9PZ, price £10

Anna Pavord visits two Edwardian gardens of the rich and opulent

Edwardian era, spend in his own bed at Iford Manor, Wiltshire, in the year 1910? I'm not trying to inveot a particularly arcane trivia game. It just happened that within a space of a few days, I visited two gardens that he was involved in that year. One was for the MP John Annan Bryce, oo Garinish Island, County Cork. The other was for Willie James, who expensively cotertained Edward VII at West Dean Park just north of Chichester in

Given the fact that 30mph was a dizzy speed for a motor car in 1910, managing those two projects alone would have been difficult. But Peto was oo the Riviera as well that year, designing a bouse and garden, the Villa Rosemary. for Arthur Cohen in the Alpes Maritimes. At the same time he was conjuring up colonnades for the garden at Isola Bella in Cannes. Peto could do colonnades in his sleep. Pergolas, too.

We came upon Garinish in an ideal way, sailing into Bantry Bay oo a yacht which we were taking oo down the coast to Kinsale. From outside, looking in, the island seemed wildly romantic, lush with foliage, surrounded by outcrops of rocks. And seals.

Being a big fan of Peto's, I'd long wanted to see Garinish (or Ilnacullin as it's now called), so first thing oext morning we lined up on the quay to take a boat out to the island. You are not allowed to land on the place under your

It should have been magic. The setting. The views, The superb Italian casita swathed in wisteria. The sunken pool garden. The pavilion with its rosso antico marble columns. The rare plants. But for me, the garden was a huge disappointment. It seemed completely worn out - tidy, but exhausted. The sunken pool garden was overwhelmed by harsh, inappropriate hedding out. The walled garden, apart from the cenplenty of gardeners about).

Occasionally a frissoo up the back of your neck reminded you of how cochanted this place might be: a glorious staod of Iris japonica in the pool with stepping stones balfway along Happy Valley; a heautifully built flight of slate steps, edges as complex as a millefeuille pastry, leading up to the belvedere balanced high on the western edge of the island. From here you looked out over a pattern of slippery silver sea interlaced with greeo tongues of

Given the disappointments of Ilnac-ullin, I hadn't allowed myself to get too excited about West Dean. Consequently I wasted days of pleasurable anticipation. The place is a miracle. Five years ago a new Gardens Manager, Jim Buckland, was appointed. He and his wife, Sarah Wain, persuaded the Trustees of the Edward James Foundation (Edward was Wille's son and a friend to the Surrealists - Magritte, Dali and co) to spend a significant amount of money hringing the gardens - particularly the huge walled garden - op to scratch. It was money well spent.

In the central enclosure of the walled garden is an astonishing hamlet of greenhouses, old Foster and Pearsoo models of the turn of the century. There are pit houses and hot bouses, three-quarter span and lean-to houses, all superhly restored and filled to bursting with beautifully trained figs and peaches, vines and oectarines. The smell of the ripening white peaches, fanned out textbook fashion against the back wall of one of the lean-tos, was the most sensuous thing that has passed under my nose the whole of this year.

Several of the houses are filled with the collections of chili peppers and tomatoes that Sarah Waio has been building up this year - 75 different peppers, 58 different tomatoes. The houses that aren't growing crops are crammed with tropical plants: hromeliads, vast ow many nights did Harold Peto, garden designer and architect to the pampered rich of the plenty of gardeners about). Trail mixed borders, was almost entirely abandoned (though there seemed to be plenty of gardeners about). The hairy begonias, phalaenopsis orchids, abandoned (though there seemed to be plenty of gardeners about). kitcheo gardeo so rich, so profuse, so well ordered, so tempting.

Yet as a whole the garden, surprisingly, lacks a grand design. The house is out linked to its surroundings in any convincing way. Perhaps this is what led James to say to Peto - who had heen with him at Harrow - "Peto! Produce me a pergola". The pergola itself is astonishing, more than a bundred yards long and made of stone pillars linked by wooden overthrows. The design and detail at the top of the columns mirror those of the pergola Peto made that year at Isola Bella. Perhaps he had a yard full of these stooe columns, ready to run up pergolas on command.

It is beautifully planted, clematis oow taking over from the earlier ramhling roses such as 'Veilchenhlau' and 'Sanders White Rambler'. It runs roughly parallel with the house, though well to the oorth of it. Walking along it in the direction of the house, the view is terminated by an eochanting small summerhouse. If you walk the other way, the view falls off into nothing, because steps at the end of the pergola lead down to a small, sunken garden with an oddly shaped dog-leg pool.

So the pergola, though fahulous as a feature, looks un-anchored in its setting. None of this matters, because the standard of gardening is so high - the roses and wisterias expertly tied in, the choice of the ferns and hostas at their feet quietly appropriate.

I'm going back to West Dean as soon as I can. They sell some of the produce from the kitchen garden in the visitor's shop. There were fat, hursting figs oo the day I visited. I'm hoping some of those white-fleshed peaches might be on offer.

> The gardens at West Dean (01243 818210), five miles north of Chichester, West Sussex are open every day until the end of October (11am-5pm). Admission £3.

Jim Buckland and Sarah Wain, who have expertly restored the West Dean gardens

Algae & Blanketweet disappear Safe for all forms of water life.

For free brochuse and price list phone 01449 774532 anytime or send the approx. surface area of your pond to: AQUAPLANCTON,

devering Cottage, Little London Stownarket, Sulfolk, IP14 2ES

SUSSEX

BASKETS

TRUG

Traditionally crafted

from Willow and

Sweet Chestnut.

Prices from £12.50-£45.00

eg No 5 (18" x 10")

£24.00 Plus £4.50 p&p

Send S.A.E. for details.

THE TRUGGERY.

(PG), Coopers Croft,

Herstmonceux,

East Sussex BN27 1QL

Tel.Fax:

01323 832314

sier ing i by tra-Mr o r. ier not nit, the ai-Mr na-

om aid

nd ar-He ous be

( this is a

d. Erif.

the market

property souls.

N. S. . . . . . . .

NAMES (STORY OF

galler with

CHILITY ...

- 10 m

enter cor -

を解析性 いつい Marie Committee

Berger of the state of the

Fig. Stranger Control

编书: 11

2 1 A

44 at 2 . . .

A ... 28 35 ...

and Ministra

p. Treb.

Courter in grant.

CHARLES W. ...

E. PSWN - W.

R. W. Mar. W.

2 PA

基本主管中

The second

54 . V. S

Mark halain

BOTH TO THE TO

MANAGENT.

Wala-

17:35

The state of

And the state of Carrie 2

The state of the s

the state

ME ....

The state of the s

Before I went on holiday I thinned the gooseberry bushes, leaving some fruit to ripen to what I hoped would he amber perfection. A reader, Mr Higginbottom of Youlgreave, Derbyshire, had reminded me of the delights of dessert gooseberries. "To most people" he wrote, "the gooseherry is a toughened polythene sac filled with an acid strong eoough to take the enamel off your teeth. But varieties like 'Langley Gage', 'Whitesmith' and 'Whinham's Industry', properly treated, can yield delicious, aromatic fruit. There is oo substitute for double digging and tons of ancient compost, followed up by copious mulching and a twice yearly feed. To develop their full flavour, gooseberries need trace elements and magnesium as well as the high potash fertiliser generally recommended. The second application should follow fruiting, when the laterals for the oext year's crop can be shorteoed to five leaves. Blackbirds and thrushes like gooseberry plots. A ferocious cat or nets are the only answer."

WEEKEND WORK

gooseberries this year.

Vigorous pruning is needed on wisterias. Choose the growths that you want to keep to fill extra space and if they have not started climbing round any support, help them on their way. Shorten all other growths by half, leaving about five or six pairs of leaves intact, to be shortened again in next February's pruning.

I fell down at the last post. No dessert

Trained apple and pear trees may need gradual summer pruning. Leave the leaders at the ends of all the main branches uotouched. Shorten all new side shoots by a third.

Layer border carnations. Choose young side shoots that have not flowered and nick halfway through the joint at the base. Do not cut them completely. Bend the side shoots down and peg them firmly into the ground with bent wire. Cover the split stem with fine damp soil and keep the plant well watered. Layers should have rooted by early September. Start planting autumn flowering bulbs such as colchicum and sternbergia. Continue to dead-head - especially roses.

Cut out old raspberry canes as soon as fruit plains has finished. Tie in new canes, leaving no more than eight or lo to each plant. Tidy strawberry beds, cutting off old leaves and removing straw.

Anna Pavord

their own.

and ability to withstand drastic in most other trees and shrubs. It is a victim of its own success, however, for these qualities have so endeared themselves that it is now and landowners who lack sensitiv-

it is difficult to conceive of a greater

Little better than weeds? Think again

Kim Auston in defence of leylandii and sycamore

in this country have become two of the most scorned. Yet attitudes to leylandii and sycamore are not entirely fair.

Few gardeners will be unaware of the extraordinary effect that leylandii can have on oormal, lawahiding citizens. Neighbours in Tillyard Craft, near Birmingham, have apparently been through £100,000 in legal costs in a seven-year dispute over a leylandii hedge. It seems that where leylandii is concerned, everyone wants to put the boot in, or better still, to get the herbicide out.

Those who have oo persooal experience of leylandii tend to dismiss it with the special contempt that the gardening cognosceoti reserve for plants such as marigolds, begonias and dahlias. Basically, eylandii is common. For gournets it is fish and chips; for opera buffs it is Gilbert and Sullivan; for serious gardeners it is leylandii.

Aside from its phenomenal growth rate (it can reach 60 feet in 25 years), its faults extend to a hig appetite and an ever-increasing demand for space. But it does have its good points. Left to its own devices and given enough of the things it requires, it can form a magnificent specimen, with a slender, columnar shape, reaching about a 100 feet at maturity. There is a wonderful example at Bicton Park, Devon, and another at Wakehurst Place, Sussex. The truth is that few of us have the space to grow leylandii properly and so it is those looking for a quick screen who have claimed the plant for

Considered dispassionately, its growth rate, tolerance of exposure pruning would be considered assets planted everywhere: a dangerous weapon in the hands of gardeners ity to the nature of landscape. the countryside shriek "suburbia" as surely as pony paddock fences do. Apart from the roads programme, wo of the fastest growing plants abuse of our countryside. However, before we make a grab for the nearest chainsaw, it is worth reminding ourselves that this is not the fault of the tree itself, hut of the people who plant it.

Sycamore is another tree in need of some slick PR. As long ago as the 17th century, the great John Evelyn was bemoaning the fact that its leaves "turn to mucilage and noxious insects, and putrefy with the first moisture of the season; and are, therefore, by my consent, to be hanished from all curious gardens and avenues". Today, many people consider sycamore little better than a weed; it seeds freely in gardens and lawns and can appear to choke ummanaged bedgerows. In my experience, ash is just as invasive and just as difficult to eradicate but, in general, people are far more tolerant of it. Perhaps this is because ash is a native whereas sycamore is a relative newcomer, it has been with us probahly only since medieval times and therefore has still to be accepted. Newcomers to an English village will empathise.

Once upon a time, sycamore was actually rather fashionable. Capability Brown seems to have used it occasionally as a specimen (for example at Ugbrooke Park in Devon), and selected forms, particularly the variegated kind, continued to be planted throughout the 19th century.

Its historic credeotials aside, a mature sycamore is a most handsome tree. Next time you're visiting a country house or garden, look out into the park and make your own judgement. You can recognise a sycamore by its dappled pink-andgrey bark, its heavy, curving lower limbs and its broad dome.

If you are not convinced by the aesthetic argument and require practical reasons for selecting your trees, sycamore is a great doer in exposed situations; it is tolerant of salt winds and thrives in shade. It also produces fine, easily worked timber that can be turned to produce, among other things, those huge wooden bowls that you see in and he share. So there you have it: admirers can enjoy this magnificent tree where it stands; detractors can simply enjoy products made from it

gardening

AN ASHDOWN SPECIAL OFFER FOR AUGUST A NEW ROSE ARCH only £29.95

SPECIALLY DESIGNED & COMMISSIONED BY AGRIFRAMES, BRITAIN'S LEADING MANUFACTURER FOR READERS OF THIS ADVERTISEMENT You won't find a more rewarding or more affordable way to transform the appearance of your garden with cascades of glorious summer colour This superb Rose Arch is made to a unique design and is specially commissioned from Agriframes Britain's leading manufacturer of quality garden structures. It is available only by mail order through Ashdown Special reader offers. Imagine the possibilities. Use your arch to form romantic and fragrant entrances from one part of your garden to another. As a focal point over a path, framing a galeway or even as a charming floral porch over a door. A series of arches draped with clematis or honeysuckle creates the graceful pergola effect so evocative of the English country garden. Our special offer arch is based on a traditional design and is the natural and improved successor to the classic structures of the Victorian era. Constructed from strong steel tube, finished with a maintenance-free black nylon coating with moulded joints and horizontals. Supplied ready for easy selfassembly your arch will provide enduring pleasure for many years to come. But we do Normal despatch within 5 days but allow 28 days for delivery advise you to place your order now.

GREENHOUSES, ETC, ETC

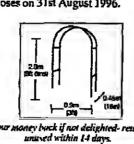

. First because they last

FREE CATALOGUE

Quality built on 40 yrs experience

4 266337 (24 hr)

return the coupon before the offer closes on 31st August 1996.

The offer is only available to ASHDOWN SPECIAL OFFERS readers of this advertisement who

East Grinstead, Sussex RH19 2HG.

ADvertised Application for the offer the offer

OPPER NO	OFFER
OUDER MO	W - OFFER	ENDS AL	IGUST 3
Please send me	(qty) of PIOSE AF	CHESat 229.0	5 each - 02 06
Send cheque to Ast	ndown Special Offers, I	Fact Crimenad	Contraction Contraction
Or charge Access (	Visa C Switch	Trees
			xperes
		Switch iss	JE No. LL
Address
Postcode	Tel
cities from training 1900 II.	next wish to receive other n	neu Hegysters	d in England: 108

ACCESS / VISA/ SWITCH ORDER @ 01342 319111 (24hrs) FAX: 01342 327233.

PLANTER & STAND COMPENSATION, PIECE OF TENEME AND HOLST MANY STREET TOWN CHEY £24.95 Mt. MET & MICHAEL COMPLETE METE SEATER POT PRINCE CENTYS, PO DOM 2, STEEL DOM: THE THIFTEN STEEL STEEL 2011

TRADITIONAL PULL CART WITH ENDLESS POSSIBILITIES - RADIO FLYER STEL FAME NO CONDUCTORS NON TONC FED PANT SETT PASELMATE TYPES TAKE ON POLICY GROUND,
Detals from K. Clarke, Deptical P.O. Box 170, Gloudster GLA 377 fet (TAED SOAMS)

SHEDS, WORKSHOPS, SUMMERHOUSES, GAZEBOS, GARAGES, PLAYHOUSES.

GENERAL PURPOSE valley with distinctive task and shortly construction. Cargo and hits carrier, gendering help, bandey, coloreds. Pack it up for bolishes and pictics. £86 Add £3 P.P FUN for children, FUNCTION for adults.

AUGUST FAIRS AND AUCTIONS

in August, as dealers abandon salcrooms for the south of France, auctioneers try to lure private collectors with pop and transport memorabilia and marine paintings. And big fairs offer days out for the family.

The 4,050 stands of the world's biggest fair - at Newark, Nottinghamshire, on Tuesday will offer goods totalling £50m and attract up to 15,000 people. The six annual Newark fairs are breeding grounds for collecting trends. The markets for old Bakelite radios, fountain pens and novelty biscuit tins were first spotted at Newark. tt is an international fair with Americans, Dutch and Germans highly visible. Watch the Italian wholesalers marking the pieces they have bought with prices before putting them aboard container lorries. Latest trends? For what it's worth, West Coast American decorator types are snapping up those wartime vacuum cleaners with a slim dust cylinder on the shaft. They are also buying wheel trims - car hub caps to us. How tong before the first hub cap auction in Britain? The fair is at the Newark and Notts Showground, near the A46 junction to Lincoln. About 1,800 of the stands are under cover and there is free parking. Entry is £3 (accompanied under-16 year olds free) or £20 on Monday, the day before opening, when traders are setting up and circulating the choicest pieces among themselves. Further information: IACF (01636-702326). Other fairs: The four-day NEC August Fair in Birmingham, with 600 dealers, continues today and tomorrow (0121-767 2760). Newmarket Antique and Collectors Fair, Sunday 18 August at Rowley Mile Racecourse, where members of the international Oughtred Society will be scouring stands for what is, to them, the hottest collectable historic slide rules.

Dallooning as a hobby has made balloon and Zeppelin ephemera eminently collectable. Prices bave been rising steadily since last year, when a Zeppelin coffee cup and saucer with authentic "LZ" monogram, estimated £300-£500 at Christie's South Kensington, fetched more than £1,500. Much of the Zeppelin bric-a-brac in South Ken's sale, Thursday 15 August (10.30am), was either nicked as souvenirs by passengers or jubilant Brits during the first world war after the giant German airships had been shot down. Sometimes the twisted metal was fashioned into souvenirs: lot 299. estimated at a conservative £250-£300 in the sale, comprises a dozen or so bits and pieces including a brooch depicting a Zeppelin made from wreckage of the L15 downed in the Thames estuary in 1916. A dessert plate and a matching tea plate from the Hindenburg, which exploded in 1937, putting paid to the Zeppelins' career, is estimated £800-£t,200.

Ctock clearance! Bonhams Omade a virtue of offering art dealers' dead stock last year in a "tag" - that is, price rag - sale with no bidding. The knockeddown pictures and sculpture walked out, as they say. This year's sale, next Saturday and Sunday, offers over 400 pieces priced between £100 and £3,000.

Bonhams' summer rock and pop Usale, Thursday 22 August (12 noon), offers possessions of Jimi Hendrix preserved by Kathy Etchingham, who shared his flat between 1968 and 1969. The Oriental prayer rugs, beads and velvet cushions all have fourfigure estimates. His black laquer and mother of pearl inlaid stash box is estimated £4,000-£5,000.

Among the 100 historic machines Afrom the world's first Tricycle Museum at Christchurch, near Bournemouth, offered for sale at Phillips in Retford next Saturday (10.30am) is a unique Victorian
"Rantoone" tricycle propelled by all four limbs, the only surviving example of its kind. Some 10 million people have visited the museum since its foundation ten years ago by collector-curator Roger Street, a local solicitor. But he could no longer cover its costs and Christehurch Council refused to rescue it.

The Rantoone, patented in 1863 and known as the "gymnasium in miniature" is estimated £15,000-£20,000 Enthusiasts with less money to spend can pick up a betweenwars trike in the sale for £250 or so. A steam-assisted child's tricycle is estimated £350-£500.

John Windsor

Six of the best safari looks

Stylist: Jill Wanless, Photos: Tony Buckingham

Safari suit, Karen Millen, £240. The classic, multi pocketed, safari suit has been updated by the highstreet chain Karen Millen this time in a heavier fabric. The dark khaki military style suit comprises of a long narrow pencil skirt (£80) and belted single breasted jacket (£160). Available from Karen Millen hranches nationwide call: 01622 664 032.

White cotton shirt, Whistles, £95. The authoritative safari style wouldn't he complete without a pris-Line patch pocket shirt. This crisp white 100% cotton one, is also available in a selection of blue and white stripes. Whistles, 27, Sloane Square, London SWI and Kendals in The House Of Fraser. Call: 0171-

A-line skirt, Top Shop, £19.99. To adopt the tropical trend khaki is not the only colour to consider. This Uhlack A-line military style skirt from Top Shop has hutton flapped pleated pockets, it may not turn you into a great explorer but it will keep you cool. Top Shop, branches nationwide. Call: 0171-636 8040.

Safari Jacket, Episode, £189. Yves Saint Laurent intro-duced his first safari jackets in the late sixties, and they've featured in his collections ever since however they remain a dream for most of us. Episode's petrolblue version is 100 per cent silk, equally stylish and, most important of all, affordable. Available from Harrods, Brompton Road, Knightbridge, London SW3, and branches of Episode nationwide, call: 0171-730 1234.

For Sales

THE Erotic Print Society's

[It would be]_difficult to find any figurative artist who did not do something explicitly erotic at some time". DAVID HOCKNEY

For our 80pp, fully illustrated colour catalogue send

£5 cheque (to 'EPS'), cash, or Visa/Access details to:

Tel 0171-351 6957, Fax 0171-244 8999

EPS (Dept ISC), PO Box 10645, LONDON SW10 9ZT;

"The Erotic Print Society . . . the world's most prolific publishers of antique erotica".

Hipster jeans, Daryl K, £125. Daryl K a new and hip New York designer, has a reputation for creating the best bootleg jeans. Although hipster cut, their pale khaki cotton gives them a safari feel. Available in indigo, white and black denim and scarlet and black need to be a second of the safety die cord. Browns, 23-27 South Molton Street, London W1, call: 0171-491 7833.

6 Safari dress, MaxMara. It may not be a jungle ont there, but as temperatures continue to rise what better way to keep cool than with practical safari style. Forget 'Dad's Army', think more of Meryll Streep in 'Out of Africa'. This simple cream shirt-dress in a cool, wool mix by MaxMara is the ultimate sophisticated survival kit. Available from 32, Sloane Street, London, SW1 for enquiries tel: 0171-287 3434.

Tel: 0171 293 2222

classified • independent traders

Fax: 0171 293 2505

Trust Churchill's to help you Conquer your stairs in one easy step "THORA HERD Installation often within 3 days All stairs fitted • Value guarante Call Churchill's

0800 371 982 Call FREE now and ask for Christine, Ann or Joan for a FREE home consultation

7 DAYS A WEEK 9AM-6PM Churchill's Stairlifts THE STAIRLIFT EXPERIS

House and Home Nigel Northeast CABINET MAKER Designers and makers of fine quality furniture, handmade to commission.

FUR HETAILS Furniture Workshops, Back Drove, West Winterslow, Salisbur Wibs. SP5 1RY, Tel: 01980 862051. Fac: 01980 863986.

Unusual Gifts

Available for: 629.95 + 62.95 p+p. Allow 10 days for delivery. Orders to: Clockwork & Steam, The Old Balery, 24 Brackley Rd, Tewcetter, Bordhams MM12 60] Tel: 01327 358080 Faz: 81327 358388

TOH ORCHIDS

The Singapore Orchids People

Forget Carnations as a floral gift and send something EXTRA SPECIAL. Singapore Orchids are one of the World's most exclusive flowers and are simply a reflection of style For only £24.99. fully inclusive (£50 normal retail value) TOH Orchids will supply a gift box of 35 stems of assorted orchids with a gold

Tel: 01924 299222 Fax: 01924 291629

We care for your home and pets in your absence. Many of our employees are ex-forces personnel. For our brachers please phone:

HOUSEWATCH 01279 777412

Health & Leisure

Price £19.99 (P&P)

Black, Wine.

Available from: Concluse.

A. 58 Manufield Rosel, E.

Timbers, NG16 3DZ

More women are victims

A woman, on average, lives longer than a man. So she is more likely to have to face the difficulties of intestacy – the legal term for being left in a mess because her husband didn't make a Many men assume that, on their death, all they own will antomatically go to their wives. This isn't so. When a man dies intestate, not just his wife but brothers, sisters and even cousins may have a claim on what he owned. His widow may have to sell the house to pay off his relations.

None of this need happen if he makes a will. Yet seven out of ten people fail to take this sample step. Now, as a service to the public, WWF UE (World Wide Fund

For Nature! has produced as own plain language guide to making a will. It explains: why everyone needs to make a will luw 10 go about it and how to minimise tax fiability on what you leave behind Don't leave it to chance. Give Don't leave at the course of mind of FREE knowing your loved ones are properly provided for. Send or phone for our FREE guide to making a Will, today.

Please send one up FREE rops of some peode to Wills and Will-realizing | Wills 25 days for definers in

1 addied 15546

Ved at Salv Batrone, Legacy Office, WAT 1-5. Swippet, Bank Heles, Legacy Serves 1-27, 1887. No tamp a period. Reputed Chairs Namier 2017

SEPTIC TANKS LIQUID BIO - FLO

House and Home

IS A BACTERIAL PRODUCT THAT ELIMINATES ODOURS AND REDUCES EMPTYINGS. FOR DETAILS OF FREE SPECIAL OFFER (DEPT B) FREEPOST, HAMPSHIRE SO53 5EE OR FREEPHONE 0500 100 171 (24hrs)

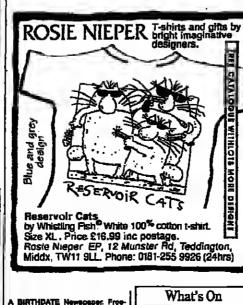

embossed message card to anywhere in EC 4-6 days notice. Full colour catalogue upon request. TOH Orchids Ltd. Unit 5 Caldervale Road. Wakefield WF1 IPE.

GENUINE BIRTHDAY NEWSPAPERS From famous archive saved Scales Newspapers from 1915, Ready for presentation Some day dispatch REMEMBER WHEN ** Styles Red. 0181-688 6323

and admirers of the former DSSI.

To advertise in this section please call 0171 293 2323/2344.

Unusual Gifts

What's On PHANTOM pop 5 sport. C.D. Casis, Sting 0171 823 6119

Looming on the horizon

Sit up and listen. This man has grand designs on an old favourite eople have always known Lloyd Loom, even if they haven't known what it is," says David Breese, the managing director and founder of Lloyd Loom of Spalding. "If you say to nine of out 10 people, do you remember, in your parents' house, the gold corner linen basket in the bedroom or the bathroom, they will say 'oh yes, my mum did have one of those'." To the unobservant eye, these linen baskets may look like cane but throw your dirty clothes into such a basket, and the chances are that they will snag on the cane's edges and splits. Toss your delicate satin slip into a Lloyd Loom equivalent and it will glide gently over the smooth weave and finished edges, and on to the pile of clothes at the hottom of the basket.

Whereas cane or rattan is handwoven directly onto the frame of a piece of furni-ture, Lloyd Loom is a machine-woven material made from tightly twisted paper, rein-forced down the middle of the west with steel and produced on a loom in a continuous strip (like a length of tweed) that is then cut and tacked on to a bent beechwood frame, with the weft as the upright stake. Production is about 40 times faster than hand-weaving and avoids the blunt edges, creaks and sagging of short-stranded canes. However, the name is more commonly associated with the furniture constructed from this material, than its actual method of production. Some 20 million pieces were produced in America and England in the 50 years after the American weaving system in 1917 and the furniture, especially the curvaceous deep-backed, higharmed chairs, is immediately evocative of the glamorous days of cruise liners and grand hotels, mint juleps on the veranda and, of course, satin slips.

By the 1960s the early makers of Lloyd Loom, in Menominee, Tennessee, and Lusty's in Bow, London, had gone out of business, their easy, natural look giving way to the modernism of plastic and metal furniture. But, in the early 1980s, David Breese, at the time an antiques dealer trading period pine furniture to the Dutch, noticed that there was an increasing demand from his customers for vintage Lloyd Loom pieces. "Before long, I was sending container-loads of old Lloyd Loom across to Holland." Breese sensed a potential market and, being a practical, inquisitive sort of chap, he took apart a chair, to see bow it had been made. Ten years on, from that act of seeming destruction, he bas created a company with a workforce of 95, an output of 700-

Having decided that he wanted to make Lloyd Loom furniture himself, Breese set off Conran Shop. That is our sort of customer."

مكذا من الاصل

Marshall Burns Lloyd patented his wicker- David Breese reclines in a 1996 Springfield armchair Behind him sits one of the first Lloyd Loom chairs from 1922

Photo: Nicholas Turpin

on a stony path: with the factories out of production, it was impossible to find anyone who knew how the fabric was woven. The Lusty's factory in Bow had been blitzed in 1940, and the only people he could find who had worked there had been in painting and distribution, rather than on the looms themselves. However, by trial and error be slowly managed to get into production, adapting twisting machines and looms from the textile

At present, 86 per cent of Breese's products are for the export market, with Germany and Holland being the main customers. "In Germany, they haven't any history of Lloyd Loom like they bave in Britain, and they sell it as a design classic - this marvellous new product made from 25 per cent recycled paper. It's environmentally friendly and it is stylish." The way in which furniture is sold on. to display Lloyd Loom as an integral part of the Continent, Breese believes, is more con- a modern house's furniture, rather than mere. There will always be a place for woven fibre." ducive to accepting modern designs. "They S00 chairs a week, and a 1995 Queen's have furniture shops, the like of which you Award for Export hanging in pride of place don't really find in the UK, with much more mixing of old with the new. Every town in Germany will have a shop like Heal's or the director to run the furniture manufacturing (the company sells directly from the factory), Breese hopes to concentrate on contemporary designs, working with the industrial designer Geoff Hollington to create pieces with little more than a cursory nod to the past.

The UK market, however, is a different kettle of fish. Although the British are lovers of nostalgia, with so many original Lloyd Loom pieces still around at very reasonable prices. it is difficult to convince customers to cough up £200 or so for a new chair. But Breese is almost messianic in his conviction that Lloyd Loom is ready for its second coming. I firmly believe that Lloyd Loom woven-fibre material is the material for the Nineties," he says with utter conviction. Next month, a showroom opens at the Spalding base which aims period pieces for the bathroom or bedroom. And there will always be a place for snag-free Breese is trying to find other ways of mov- linen baskets mg out of the shadow of the past, while still retaining the integrity of the material. His looms are capable of producing about 1,000m more material a week than can be made into

With the appointment of a new managing furniture, so this is being sold to companies which have jumped on the bandwagon for such an attractive product. "So many people are interested in incorporating the look of Lloyd Loom into their products that, if prospective competitors don't get the weave from us, they will get it from somewhere else," says Breese. "We might as well have a slice of the cake, though I do generally try and sell it to people who aren't going to reproduce the look of Lloyd Loom furniture. For example, we sell to companies that make nursery furniture, or just the round chair seats." There is a hig market for it in that way. Breese has no fears of his company going the way of its predecessors. "Even if the classic styles of Lloyd Loom go back out of fashion, the material will never go out of fashion. Wicker has been produced since the early 1800s and only the styles have changed.

> Lloyd Loom of Spaiding, Wardentree Lane, Pinchbeck, Spalding, Lines PEII 3SY. Tel: 01775 712111.

Top ten Sports Division

We may not being doing too well out in Atlanta but the British remain a nation of sports enthusiasts. Sports Division, the biggest sports retailer in Europe - having recently acquired the Olympus chain - report brisk business in their stores. Below are last month's best sellers from their range of sports equipment.

1	Health Rider 96	£499.99
2	Mitre Ultima League football	£12.99
3	Sport Rider	£199
4	Spalding Molitor golfballs	£9.99
5	John Daly Golf set	£199.99
6	Olympus football	£4.99
7	Slazenger Championship tennis ball	. £6.99
8	Speedo swimming goggles	£5.99
9	Adidas 3 Stripe back pack	. £16.99
1	O Speedo swimming goggles (Dolphin)	£5.99

Good thing

Pukka Pack, Free

The Pukka Pack, launched by the home furnishings shop Pukka Palace, is an entirely new approach to mail order. Instead of trawling through the usual glossy catalogue

the size of a telephone directory, customers flick through a deck of cards organised in to "suits" such as wrought iron furniture, glassware, soft sict ing 1 by tra-Mr g to it. ier-not, the af-Mr na-ing tel-

out

the er der ing

 $\mathbf{nd}$

ar-

ihe

he es-bly ay.

furnishings, and garden accessories. The pack is free and orders made on the special orderline number will be delivered free within the UK.

Pukka Palace, Pukka Pack: 0345 666660

Mad thing

Hartz Friz Faces,

Frankly, these pet toys look like flattened cats. On the plus side, they look like very happy flattened cats. Your dog can now play out any stray rubber Tom and Jerry fantasies without Tom having that frustrating ability to rein-flate to normality after the cruelest of blows. Throws like a frisbee, squeaks like a kitten upon

Available in good pet shops

Tel: 0171 293 2222

classified • personal

Fax: 0171 293 2505

Independent Hearts

The search for your perfect partner starts bere ....

Our members come from all walks of life and from all over

Replies should be addressed to the relevant box number, c/o The Independent, 1 Canada Square, Canary Wharf, London E14 5DL

Mart on Stream 91753-830350 (Rach 26 Hours)

Tou are Single, coessful, Attractive... uldn't you tike to be in Excusive ? Company

EUROPEAN LANGUAGE WEEKENOS IN WALES Total Beginners / All Levels

Signature:.....

Independent recases, and independent sers. Trade enquiries are welcome on the above telephone number.

This offer is only open to private advertisers. Trade enquiries are welcome on the above telephone number.

By plucing an advertisement in the The Independent Hearts section of The Independent and the Independent on Sunday you will immediately be in cootact with over 1.66 million readers.*

The cost for your advertisement, published in the first available editions of the Saturday "Weekend" and Sunday "Real Life" sections cost for your advertisement, pulliment in the same additional £10.00, please cross here if you do not require a Box No [].

Simply write your advertisement in the spaces below and fill in the coupoo - Minimum 2 lines.

(N.B. A character is a letter, a number, a punctuation mark and a space between words)

All advertisements must be prepaid. Cheques abould be made payable to Newspaper Publishing Pie or debit my:

Independent Hearts, The Independent, 19th Floor, 1 Canada Square, Canary Wharf, London E14 5DL • Telephone: 0171 293 2347 • Fax: 0171 293 2505

Address:

Telephone (daytime):.....

drawing down the moon

"the agency people rave about"

Adult X 5v= Memo Server 0171-937 6263

do not send material to our

INDEPENDENT HEARTS

The Independent Way to Meet New People

the country - we're sure to know someone who could be right for you. FOR FREE DETAILS WITH NO ORLIGATION LONDON W8 6AL OR CALL (01869) 324 100

PHOTO INTRODUCTIONS COMPUTER DOESN'T HAVE TO BE BLIND DATING REECALL OUR BROCHURE LINE 0500 17 95 58

NOTICE TO READERS The Independent cannot guarantee that ents will receive a reply when answering advertisements on this page, although we hope that as a matter of courtesy they will. When making contact with people for the first time it is advisable to meet in a public place and let a member of your family or trusted friend know where you We would advise readers and advertisers to exercise caption when giving out personal details. This will be respected by genuine respondents.

WARM, BRIGHT, TALL, attract, fem. SOH, sarty 30's. WILTM sim. male/older. Likes cutdoor activ/gravel/damer with friends. Box No 11288.

WARM, BRIGHT, TALL, attract, tem. SOH, early 30's. WILTM sim. SOH, early 30's. WILTM sim. male/older. Likes outdoor active/der. Likes outdoor. Som No 11286.

JOLIY ART DEALER, of North Wost London, separated, solvent, socieble and sincere seeks hear-esting 30's tely. Box No 11450.

JAPPY, OPTIMISTIC, PROFESSIONAL, weatherbeaten, single, free-sphiled male. 34, surrey, seeks curious, srituktas, sensitive for adventures on new hortzons. Box No 11461.

TALL, DARK, EMIGNITENED MALE, 42, successful, superiamed, dry sense of humour, seeks silm, intelligent formale. 20's/30's. for passionate after. London/south. Box No 11482.

MIT WITH 42, MIT. Witter/director, 48, lower nature, travel, 88 arts especially theaters. M2: N/S. GSOH, NW/Yorks. Box No 11483.

Dinner Party at 8 pm for Single Professional Pe Come and join us at the LANDMARK HOTEL Marylelaune Regal Saturday 10th Aug 96 0181-361 2668

THE DINNER CLUB (Est. '86). The nations only countrywide dining club for unalization profes-sional/business people aged 28-. Tel: (01244) 350537. Business opportunities also aveilable (01244) 548816. UK'S BEST singles magazine. Free details + Bargain Offic: PERSON TO PERSON (Dept ND), P.O. Box 4, Garing-On-Thazas, Since Stor-BEAUTIFUL THAI LADIES, Colour brochure and also videos. Siam introductions Estah 1985. Tel: 01698 880 890 (knytime).

where 800 880 (physime). MALE IS LODIGING for paties tady. Professional musicien, GSOH, aight disability, very independent Blastyle. Loves eating out, the music concerts and would like tun and companionship, S.E. Lender. together naturally through cul-tural, social & lateur events. Free trial membership! Breakmay (ago 23-43) Tel: 0181 991 2189. Ketal-doscope (37+) Tel: 0181 997 8694.

FILLUSTRATOR 36 likeable lonely N/S seeks M GSOH, Box No L:1434. LOVELY SINGLE LADY, 37, dark blonds, 5' 7", solvent, wicked SOH, fun, seeks well heeled clever man, for nest building, fam-ly orientated, Photo? Middends / North West / Travel?

MITTY, PRETTY WOMAN, seeks single man who is kind, hones and fun, (50-65), Box No 1:1465. GOOD COOK, GOOD ARTIST, good looking with, 33, seeks friendship with lady. I love snowdrops, sincerty and Sibeljus. Leicester Bro No 1:1466.

ATHLETIC, GOOD-LOCKING, FAIR HAIR, blue-eyed lew student (31) tormer naval officer, seeks active, ATTRACTIVE, SPIRITED GAL, 36

VIVACIOUS WOMAN 41, Lettish, thoughtful, likes travelling the countrylide, the arts, seeks likeminded man, London. Photo helps. Box No 1:1454. PRETTY WOMAN, 33, Street of at

SOUTH WEST S. WALES TEL: (01225) 482080

WEST YORKS MARK 48 but still jumping, seeks mystic women (35+) to review hostons and futures. Box No £1452. CMESH MALE SUS "Nis, socks ternale walking-trycting compen-ion who lines music, ents, talking, statching & the countryside. Box No i:1447.

No t:1447. SW TRELAND, SINGLE, so, ternale, Relaxed, intelligent, SOH, Sternal, well travelled. Likes hill walking, world insule, good conversation and discriminate markets.

THE PROFESSIONAL PERSON'S INTRODUCTION AGENCY distreet and produce resolts. We host forward to your call. PROF. MALE, 42, attracti-loyel, caring, tall, 51, ver

Zygosis in the the transfer married

PROF. MALE, 42, stiractive, SUT, loyel, caring, tall, fil. verted interacts. VI.TM attractive, intelligent woman. (28-35). Photo. London/South. Box No 11436. WOLLD YOU LIKE MORE passion in your file? Nice normal woman, N/8, GSOH, WLTM rice normal woman for discreet featons. London based but happy to treval. At letters are ward. Box No 11435. SUCCESSFUL, 6' 10", TALL, dark, å handsome art deeler, 34, WLTM prof. curvy ledy, 25-25 for friand-ship and more. Photo please. As letters replied, the No. 14-446.

TENOVUS the cancer charity

Research · Care · Counselling

 Tenovus is one of Britain's leading Cancer Charities, responsible for scientific advances which have meant so much in human terms.

· Drugs such as Tamoxifen, used worldwide in the treatment of breast cancer, were developed with the assistance of Tenovus.

 Tenovus scientists receive no government funding for the vital research into a disease which affects two out of three families in the UK.

 Tenovus nurse counsellors offer comfort and support to cancer patients, their families and friends by way of the freephone (0800 526527) cancer helpline.

· Legacies are a way of giving life after death. The passing on after death of hope and support to our children and their children is the finest gift we can make, > fighting cancer for all of us through research. early detection and counselling

For further information please contact: Tenovus, The Cancer Charity 11 Whitchurch Road, Cardiff CF4 3JN Tel: (01222) 621433 Registered Chanty No. 203648

Fat dogs and Englishmen

We love to overindulge our pets. One London vet has set out to undo the damage. By Siobhan Dolan ittle did Beverley Williamson realise, when she rejected the soft ceotres in favour of the nut clusters, that she was steering Dusty, her beloved Cairn terrier. towards glory. The greedy hound was quite happy to devour the coffee creams, and it was only wheo Mrs Williamson took her to the vet on account of her bad breath, that the level of her addiction became clear. The vet refused to administer the anaesthetic oecessary to clean the dog's teeth, as she was too fat, But now, as the reigning Pet Slimmer of the Year, she's a shadow of her former self, having shed 3.6kg on the Hill's Prescription Diet.

The "old" Dusty typified an increasing number of overweight pets. Recent statistics indicate that at least one third of dogs and one in 10 cats are overweight, but some experts believe that up to 50 per cent of our 14 million domestic pets could do with shedding a few pounds.

Steve Andrews, veterinary marketing manager at Pedigree and a qualified vet, remains convinced that the key factor is overindulgent owners. "People don't feed their pets according to the amount of exercise they're taking. In winter, for example, they still get the same amount, plus all the snacks. The poor pet has very little to do with it."

According to Andrews, owners are too easily taken in by those hungry eyes. "Begging for rewards is something we teach our pets to do and it's a big problem during the weight-reductioo programme. People think their pet is really huogry when often, a good play around with a hall is what they want just as much as a biscuit."

And it's not just vanity which is at stake. There can be scrious health implications. "Any illness that you can think of cao be made worse by being overweight, especially arthritis and hip problems," Andrews insists, "There's the risk of heart disease and diabetes and obesity can make the most simple operation very difficult."

Once you've established that your pet is carrying excess haggage, there are numerous courses of action. Ideally, you should take your animal to the vct for a full health-check. Bradley Viner, who has a practice in Pinner, Middlesex, is one of a growing number of vets organising clinics specifically for obese pets. "Usually, a change to a calorie-controlled diet is required," he insists. "The pets then come for weighing on a fortnightly basis. We start with an eight-week programme, at the end of which we reassess things, see how much weight has been lost and if more needs to come off. Once they've achieved their target, the animals must then be put on a long-term diet to maintain ft."

The good news for those owners who feel they're condemning their pets to a life of hland, hran-filled food, is that the latest products are much more palatable. With sales exceeding a hillion pounds a year, pet food is big husiness. So our animals' tastehuds represent the battleground on which the hig guns, such as Pedigree and Spillers, compete for our pets' affections. The result is an endless stream of new menus: high-fibre, low-fibre (also effective in keeping dog mess to a minimum), dry or moist, vegetarian or meat. Even habitual snackers should not feel hard done by, simply substitute those cholesterol-laden cheese crunchies for Good Boy yoghurt drops. And Hill's Prescription Diet Canine goes one step further, promising to clean your dog's teeth as it munches.

An additional incentive comes in the shape of slimming competitions. The Pedigree Slimdown and the Hill's Nutrition Pet Slimmer of the Year, organised ists in Slimdown lost a total of 72.9kg.

Gilbert the 51kg basset hound weighs in at the pet obesity clinic

But it's not simply about the amount of weight lost. "If it was done on this alone," Andrews explains, "then the Rottweiler would always win over the chihuahua." It's the overall amount of effort which counts. As Andrews points out, for example, the hattle of the hulge can be much more of a struggle with felines. "Cats on a diet tend to go out and catch mice, or even leave home, so for ooe to reach the final is a great achievement."

But not all owners are prepared to knuckle down, or even to accept, the task in hand. This is where pet counsellors cao be invaluable.

in conjunction with vets' surgeries, between them attract almost 1,000 animals. Last year's eight finalto lose weight'. ft has to be tackled very carefully."

And a delicate situation can become potentially explosive if the owner, as well as the pet, is on the large side. This is where pet counsellors really come into their own. "Overweight peofrom the pet's point of view."

The Boutros Boutros-Ghali award for diplomacy must surely go to Christine, one of the PediPhotograph: Tony Buckingham gree counsellors. "She's actually a hit overweight herself and finds it easy to talk to clients and explains. "You can't just hlunderbuss in and say encourage them to slim down with their pets," Your pet's overweight, it's going to die, it's got Andrews says. "So Christine gets on the scales, the owner will get on the scales and the pet will get on the scales. At the end of the day, if you want to lose weight, it has to be fun." Dusty has certainly enjoyed a fuller life since shedding a third of her bodyweight. The 13-yearple tend to have overweight pets," Andrews says.

"This can make it difficult for the nurses running the weight-watchers' clinic. So we train them in the weight-watchers' clinic. So we train them in the weight to clients, how to explain it the owner, Mrs Williamson. She has almost given the rowner, Mrs Williamson. She has almost given the collected and her husband has kicked the up chocolate and her husband has kicked the habit completely. And all because the terrier loved Milk Tray.

Pet food facts

was James Sprat of Cincinnati, Ohio who gave life to the British pet food industry at the turn of the twentieth century. While visiting London he noticed dogs on the docks eating old ship's biscuits and decided to start producing

Although it all began as dry food, moist foods have always been the market leaders. This is possibly because moist varieties appear to be closer to "real" food. There was also a scare some years ago that dried cat food led to fatal urinary diseases in cats. Last year 434,000 tonnes of moist dog food and 531,000 tonnes of moist cat food were

Although pet owners often complain that their animal is particularly "fussy", with pet food you really do get what you pay for. A Which? pet food preference test, carried out in 1994 found that when choices of premium and economy pel foods were offered to 32 cats and 32 dogs for 16 consecutive meals, most of the animals wolfed down the more expensive

By law all pet food should be made with raw materials from animals which have been passed for human consumption though generally this will mean that the meat found in pet foods comes from the same animals we would eat, but rarely the same parts. Contrary to popular belief Rover and Tiddles will not be offered meat from horses, whales or

Many vitamins are lost during the manufacture of pet food so some companies replace them artificially. The rich colour, however is purely to convince the pet owner that the food is appetising. Animals are enticed by smell, taste and

For more information on pet health

Pet Care Trust, Bedford Business Centre, 170 Miles Rd, Bedford, Tel: 01234-273933 Pet Health Council, Thistledown cottage, 49 Main St, Sewstern, Grantham, Lincs Tel: 01476-861 379 Hill's Science Oiet: 0800 282438

Abigail Rayner

Is there honey still for tea? If you know where to look, yes; and there's much more besides. In a delicious new series, Michael Bateman enjoys the sweet taste of British summer

Plus: Michael Bywater confronts the newly respectable Ben Elton

And a celebration of 50 years of the Edinburgh Festival

IN TOMORROW'S INDEPENDENT ON SUNDAY

Cat lover, fish fiend or twitcher? Somewhere, someone is as obsessed as you. And if you're lucky they've opened a shop dedicated to your pin-up pet. By Julie Aschkenasy

Just Fish

Just Fish, as it's name suggests, is a shop dedicated to scaly poodlife and creatures of the sea. Customers range from the youngest of pocket money punters looking to speed, perhaps £2 on bath magnets, through to friends of serious fishermeo seekiog suitable birthday present like waxed jackets or 'salmon'

Wheo owner Andrew Maclean, himself a widely travelled fly fisherman, opened the shop he decided not to bother with tackle but rather to concentrate oo fish related merchandise and memorabilia. "People who want to huy fishermen gifts are often nervous going into tackle sbops as they doo't know what to buy. It's a bit like me going into a fashion shop to buy my wife something!".

Maclean's instincts paid off. After ali, as shop manager (and proud owner of Fly Fishing by J R Hartley – yes, it really does exist!) fan MacGregor says, 98 per cent of themed bathrooms are sea related. Perhaps one of the most extraordinary items to grace those bathroom shelves would be a fearsome-looking dried piranha (£15) smuggled back by Maclean from a fishing trip to the Amazonian basin. "f packed 40 in my suitcases because it was very complicated to get any paperwork done so they eoded up wrapped in every pair of

In general though the stock is not at all scary and prices are keen. Fish come in all forms from popular dolphins and colourful fun fish to serious domestic species. Fun fish pens cost £6 ("fve seen them on sale for £16 - very naughty" says Ian), fish wrapping paper at £1.50 is a must and quality mugs (pike, carp, catfish, salmoo and trout) cost £5. Other lines include mobiles, fish coat-pegs, very kitsch salt and pepper shakers at £13, and there's a three foot inflatable

Just Fish, Unit 14a, Thomas Neal's, Shorts Gardens, London WC2H 9AT (0171 240 6277).

Feathers Gallery

Feathers Gallery, is a small gallery and shop for bird lovers. So eothusiastic was it's director Martin Thompson, whose life-loog love affair with hirds started in the 1950s when he watched his enthusiast uncles record and ring birds, that he had no trouble enlisting the services of well known "twitcher" Bill Oddie to trumpet the shop's launch in March this year. This fledgling gallery sells gift items such as cards, table mats (from £25 for six) and flying ducks for £25 along with more serious hirds made from ceramic, wood and bronze and specialist publications. Martin's largest range colourful hand-carved European and African wooden hirds (from £89) from Feathers of Knysna, a workshop with its own artists based in South Africa.

Permanent reminders of favourite species from Robin, Wagtail and Sparrow to rarer Green Wing Teal, Avocet or Black Egret grace shelves and cabinets. Watercolour paintings by British artists such as Felicity Priest (£485) share space with framed prints

The Cat Shop

Wheo Patricia Crouch opened The Cat Shop ten years ago ber success was assured when a hlack cat appeared, seemingly from nowhere, marched into the shop and stayed for the day. Benson has been returning ever since and Patricia posts him hack to his owner through his cat flap each night.

An artist by training, Crouch spent many years fund raising for the Cats Protection League, and this love of cats inspired her to set up her gift shop which stocks over 3,000 lines of cat related merchandise. Having lots of cat friendly artist and potter friends helped "I think one of the secrets of our success is that we get many things made exclusively for us which we sell aloog with the hread and hutter lines".

Customers range from collectors and breeders wanting rare pieces of sculpture, to pet owners seeking cat artefacts that in some way resemble their own moggy. If you can't find Tibbles in the shop, commissions are taken to have ornameots made up from photographs (from £35). Or for something a little larger how about a life-size model of your own cat (estimates given).
Less ambitious customers can huy t-shirts

(from £7.99) and cat jewellery (£2.95 to £150 for a hand-made piece). Or how about the very latest craze from the US, the ultimate wedding accessory - cat confetti (see picture left) in gold or rainbow colours at £2.50 a

The Cat Shop, 21 Prince Albert St, Brighton

including some by Sir Peter Scott (from £50). The single most expensive item in the gallery

and particular pride and joy is his selection of

is a stunning bronze Osprey at £5,990 though most sculptures hover between £50 ("wedding present price") and £150.

A small perceotage of profits will benefit Bird Life International, the international branch of .Feathers Gallery, 113 Shepherds Bush Road, Brook Green, London W6 7LP (0171 371

**◎ ◎ ◎ ◎

Mi g to reing the af-

the

om aid

2ar

ier

ar-

he

We caught loads!

Katie Venner and sons enjoy a timeless day out mackerel fishing at Branscombe Beach, Devon

The venue

1

1

Abigani Kanto

and states Children of the Crement war.

THE PRINCE OF

Marine Ases Marine Antonio (s. Marine Antonio

the bread

Medic or server

Areas II

Ser lab

THE MANY COM.

a credit 1 (E.C.

pranscombe Beach in Devoo feels like somewhere safe from time. Cars can only reach it slowly down the long oarrow lanes, while its miles of wave piled pehhles are backed by National Trust land. John Hughes, local salt and skipper of the Branscombe Pearl, spends every summer morning bringing in the crab catch, and every afternoon taking visitors mackerel fishing. He's been at it for 30 years. "People who first came on my boat wheo they were young now bring their own children," he says. "They say that oothing here has changed."

ing here has changed."

Yet within this fixed picture, delightful surprises have a way of happening. This is the kind of place where you hump into old friends you haven't seen for years. Dolphins and giant sea turtles have unexpectedly surfaced beside the Branscombe Pearl, and last week an eight-foot basking shark swam alongside, its jaws agape.

And if you are lucky with the weather, a hot afternoon can drift into a balmy evening while the sea turns pearly, a strip of turquoise lights the horizon and the mooo sails into the darkening sky.

Brigid McConville

The visitors

Katie Venner, who works in Arts Training, took her sons Thomas, 8, and Alfie, 6, for an outing to Branscombe.

Thomas: "I thought the water would be much warmer, but it was pretty cold. It felt like crabs were crawling up you, but I sooo got used to it. The waves were medium sized and I stayed in for about 25 secoods.

It was a hard, stooey beach that could hurt my feet, so it was not the best place to swim, but it was an excellent place

The fishing is really really fun. I felt a hit oozey from the boat moving, and when I caught my first fish I was amazed because I don't think I've ever seeo a fish so close before or held ooe. It felt all soggy and it left lots of little silver scales on my hands. You could feel when there was a fish, because wheo you pulled the line, it pulled back. So you pull it in to see if there is a fish, and if there is, the water is moving weirdly. But it doesn't matter if there isn't because there's lots more time. As the boat came in we hid the fish behind our backs and looked rally gloomy and said to our frieods oo the beach: "Oh, we didn't catch a single ooe... but we caught LOADS! and then we held them up for everyooe to see."

Katie: "The first time we came to Branscombe it was winter and we stayed in the Landmark Trust House which is haunted. I think Thomas was conceived here. We walked from the house to the beach one morning; there was a hard frost and wheo the sun came out everything sparkled as if it had been dusted with sugar.

We also did the Uodercliff walk from oearby Lyme to Seaton. The cliff has slipped into the sea so you are walking on an area of ground which is completely wild. Half way aloog we got talking to two complete strangers who were going in the other direction. We agreed to swap car keys and drove each others cars to meet up in the middle, solving the problem of how to get back to where we started.

In the summer, the village is full of flowers and Branscombe feels like an old-fashioned beach, because it's pebbly there's oot a lot of running about which makes it rather peaceful. And yet the kids can paddle or play football oo the grassy area behind the beach. As there is no road past it feels safe. The cows come right to the edge of the beach and there is a wonderful view of white cliffs into the distance.

Last year we came down with friends in late September and had an unexpectedly wonderful evening. The sea was surprisingly warm and when we saw the boat at the jetty we decided to go fishing for our dinner. Mackerel fishing is one of the few things I've done as an with their heads bohbing in the moonlight."

adult which feels exactly as it did when I was a child. I still

But what, apart from earing the ice-cream, is there for children to do? On a fine day, a surprising amount. Visitors may take farm and see the animals calves, lambs,

some particularly filthy pigs and a fat pussy-cat made the strongest impression on my offspring. There are nature walks, which we didn't have the energy for, some very attractive gardens which we peeked at, and a mulberry tree that by all accounts lies down and feigns death whenever a member of the More-Molyneux family is poorly. And, we discovered late in the day, there is a pleasant children's playground equipped with the sort of rustic seesaws and climbing frames that a stately home's gardener might be expected to produce if told to knock up a

We had arrived at Loseley at 1.15 and the children were still enjoying themselves five hours later. The vast open spaces, the few things for the children.

feel excited, wondering if I'll ever catch one, then thrilled when I do. And it always seems as if a certain line is charmed; whoever is on it gets most fish.

No ooe was prepared for a picnic, so we had a loavesand-fishes feast. We cleaned the mackerel in the sea and cooked them oo a fire on the beach, we got beer from the Masoo's Arms in the village and someone had bread and someooe else had a really delicious bar of chocolate. The children ate the mackerel off the barbecue which they wouldn't have done at home.

We stayed on after dark, playing guitars and singing, the children all went in swimming. They looked like porpoises

The deal

Branscombe Beach is on Lyme Bay, about five miles east of Fishing: An hour on the Brauscombe Paarl costs £3 for adults, £2 for children - "excellent value when you are also catching your Fresh crab; dressed by John Hughes' wife Linda, is available from their home above the beach. Access: Start early or late to avoid traffic jams in the Branscombe lanes. Parking close to the beach costs £2. Or, park at the village hall free and take the footpath for about a mile through meadows Tea and cakes for three cost Katie £5.95 at the Sea Shanty cafe where cream teas are £2.50, main meals £4.50 and sandwiches from £1.60.

Beach chalets are available for hire from the Sea Sharrty cafe (telephone 01297 680226). At £160 a week at Easter, rising to £320 mid season, they sleep four adults and two children.

Toilets are basic but clean, and have baby changing facilities. For odds and ends, sweet, gifts and beach toys, there's a shop near the car park.

The small and exclusive Lookout Hotel overlooking the beach has five double rooms for £89 B&B per night. Two course meals in the restaurant cost £18.50; £23.00 for three courses.

Guide me to the ice cream

William Hartston takes his kids on a tour of Loseley Park, and parlour

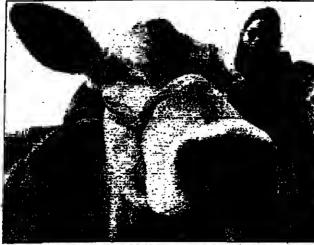

I'm afraid we only have Loseley ice-cream," the waitress told me in a voice that suggested concern rather than contempt. I had been trying to create a Bateman-like sceoe by ordering Walls ice-cream in the restaurant at Loseley Park, but the demure elegance of the place could not be disturbed even by so outrageous a request.

Loseley Park, huilt in the 1560s at a cost of £1,640 19s 7d, is the historic seat of the More-Molyneux family. "It's pronounced 'Molly-nukes' because they're an English family, not French," the guide half-explains oo the tour of the house.

Despite having one of the smallest Great Halls I have ever seen, the house reeks of his-tory. Queen Elizabeth I stayed there twice in one of the dingier bedrooms - and expressed a hope, before her second stay, that the place would be cleaner than on her previous visit. Apart from that welcome piece of muck-raking, however, the tour was generally too much of an inventory to hring the place to l'e Concentrati u on the commentary was also made difficult by the irritating habit of several mothers of small children who kept saying: "Be quiet, the lady's talking" every time their offspring said: "Mummy, I'm bored."

And that really is the problem of a family outing to Loseley Park: the grown-ups would be wasting a fine opportunity if they did not see the splendour of the house itself, but the kids just want to see the animals oo the farm and, more important, eat the icecream - which isn't made at Loselcy any more anyway. It was, of course, the allure of frozen dairy products that led us to make the trip to the outskirts of Guildford to see Loseley Park (straight down the A3 from London, then take the B3000 past Comptoo village). Stately homes are all very well, but you need a little extra temptation to make the trip en famille. The traditions of Loseley, however, suggest that the family would be happier entertaining royalty than acting as ice-cream vendors, however up market. The old name of "Loseley", we were told, referred to the disgusting smell from the original pig-farm on the site. Loseley means loathsome, but why they called their produce "loathsome ice-cream" was oot satisfactorily explained. "There has never been great wealth in the family," James More-Molyneux writes in the official brochure. When he inherited the estate, he explains, "my wife and I had no capital." It all reads like a pilot episode of To the Manor Born, especially the bit about "no money and death duties to be paid, oo heating or electricity and a leaking roof". Anyway, the poor fellow, without two stately homes to rub together, went into the icecream business and never looked back. In 1987, the dairy products husiness was sold off, but the creamy milk still comes from the Jersey herd in the park.

As well as eating ice cream, children can meet Loseley's animals

relaxed atmosphere and the animals had kept everyooe content without a single "I want to go home and no "I'm bored" once a ride in a tractor-driven cart down to the the tour of the house was over. Taken altogether, quite a successful day out, though with the entrance fee (£18 for two adults and two children), meal and ice-creams at the restaurant (where they overcook the vegetables), it was oot cheap. And for all the charm of the waitress, she really should not have left the "total" box on the credit card receipt empty when I was paying for lunch - a pernicious practice when a service charge has already been added to the hill. I wooder if they only do that to visitors who ask for Walls ice-cream.

Loseley Park Farm near Guildford is open Wed-Sat until 31 August. Grounds open 11am-5pm; house 2-5pm, farm 1-5pm. All-in-one tickets for house, gardens and farm: adults £6, children £3.

A weekly round-up of summer outings for children

ARE WE NEARLY THERE? Balloon and Air Rides

eve come a long way since the first audacious balloon ascent over Paris in 1783. Today an air trip is a special treat, hut oddly enough, the more primiôve the technology, the greater parking.

Virgin Balloon Flight 54 Linhope Street, London NW1 6HL (free) phone 0800 132090. "We cannot say exactly where you will go." says Virgin. Since the course is dictated by the wind direction, to experience the Golden Mile this will always be a magical mystery flight Phone for details of the 200 sites that are cleared for lift-off. From £135 per person.

High Adventure RM Travel Rayriggs Road, Bowness-on-Windermere, Cumbria LA23 3DN phone 015394 46588. In your ballooo you doo't just wander lonely as a cloud: you practically are a cloud, floating 2,000 feet above the lakes which poor old Wordsworth could only walk over. From £135 per Bristol Balloon Fiesta Ashtoo Court Estate, Bristol, (off A369, west of suspension on trampolines, rather than actually flying. On 9-11 August, the balloons go up at 6.30am and 6pm; and parachutists and hang-gliders come down. Back on terra firma, camels will race and the Napoleonic Association will wind back the clock. Entry is free, with small charge for

Blackpool Helicopter Rides North Pier Heliport, Blackpool. Lancs FYI INE phone 01253 299699. Providing a better view than Blackpool's rollercoaster, the twin-engined Squirrel helicopter brings you the best way

- 500 feet above at 120 mph. Those who are seriously afflicted by the aerial bug can have lessons on a different helicopter, a Robinson R22 Flights every day until Guy Fawkes Night, 10am to 6pm. £15 adult. £12 child. Haff-hour trial lesson: £95,

Classic Wings

Imperial War Museum, Duxford. Junction 10 on M11 phone 01255 473832. As well as heavily booked flights over Camhridge or London, Classic Wings does eight-minute jaunts oo weekend afternoons in a biplace A ride simulator provides a Battle of Britain dogfight and an extraterrestrial stock car bridge). Information line: 0891 252 262. For the public, it's a matter of watching, and leaping 415 child. War Museum only.
46.20 adult, £4.10 senior citizen,
43.10 child, uoder-five free. race. Flights cost from £20 adult. Family ticket (2 parents, 3 chil-

Jonathan Sale

ALL-INCLUSIVE HOLIDAYS: START HERE

or thousands of holidaymakers, an all-inclusive holiday is the closest you can get to heaven. You pay a fixed amount in advance, and inherit the earth - spending a week or two in the lap of total indulgence, able to eat, drink and play as much as you wish. No wonder it is the fastestgrowing sector of the package tour market. Whether you are at Butlin's in Bognor or La Source in Grenada, vou will be indulged handsomely. Yet what worries me is that "allinclusive" inevitably equates to "forbiddingly exclusive". If a resort is to offer unlimited everything, then there has to be a high fence around it to stop others taking advantage of the generosity. This barrier also serves to keep holidaymakers locked into the resort - away from the real world where you have to start paying for windsurfing tuition and luminescent cocktails. The holiday has become a commodity. It matters little whether you are in Turkey, Tunisia or Trinidad. For the people who live around the resort, it represents a gross distortion of the community – their only contact with the holidaymakers is as the lesser party in a master/servant relationship. The noble notions of travel - to find out about the world, meet its people as equals and learn from the experience - have evaporated in an orgy of overindulgence. But maybe that's just because I'm an old grump who got a weekend in Bognor while my sister Sarah was being cossetted at La Source in Grenada. She says it's the best place she's ever been.

Simon Calder

Kingfish steaks and Swahili cuisine

Jojo Moyes took a package deal to Mombasa

ne words "all inclusive" do not usually feature io my travel vocabulary, conjuring up, as they do, images of stodgy holidaymakers, Stalioesque meal schedules and endless rounds of steak

I succumbed to two such weeks in Mombasa because watersports were included. I could overlook the food, I rationalised, when such expensive activities as diving and windsurfing were included. After two weeks of Kingfish steaks and traditional Swahili cuisine
- all with unlimited alcohol - it was just as well the watersports were on offer, or I might have needed a second seat on the flight home.
All-inclusive holidays in the Shelly Beach hotel, just south of Mombasa on the Kenyan coast, began this year in response to the grow-coast, began this year in response to the growing number of package deals offered by other hotels on the busier stretches of coastline.

The introduction has not been without cheerful hiccups. In the first week, because of an accideotal overlap with the traditional à la carte menu, delighted customers ate their way through 134kg of "all-inclusive" lobster. A fixed menu may now be in place, but Shelly Beach retains much of the idiosyncratic charm that sets it apart from its more luxurious neighbours to the north and south.

The hotel was adapted from a 1920s colonial club. Its large, simple rooms are a throw-back to its past, as is the rule (prevalent in many Kenyan hotels) that gentlemen wear trousers for dinner. Set on the beachfront, it has a panoramic view of the Indian Ocean and the sound of crashing surf to sleep by.

Despite the hermetically sealed environments of most Mombasa hotels, where security guards patrol to ensure that (white) guests are not "bothered" by the locals, some people confessed to feeling initially threatened by the relentless throng of beach traders catcalling from the beach, I guessed, correctly as it turned out, that the best idea was to cultivate one, in the belief that be would ensure the others left us alooe,

Nasser, who had worked the beach for 11 years, walked us out to explore the reef, took us snorkelling from his dhow, taught us (possibly the only people in the Western world yet to see The Lion King) the overused phrase "haloma matata" and offered us the chance to "go flying" with some high-class African grass.

When the endless leisure became unbearable, Nasser offered us a "taxi tour" of Mombasa town. Viewing the old Portuguese port

PIETNAM, Burme, Tradend, Lade and Cambodie. Escorted small group tours, plus laftor-made litr-sraries. For triendly, personal ser-vice call Indochina Travel 0107 505 8280. ABTA V1337 ATCL 1922

LIVING ENERGY COURSE; & Greece. Art, moreonem, Taichi Beaut.letend, Good food & accom 3-17 Oct £548, 01647 231521.

Overseas Travel

MIDWEEK

MADNESS

Paris

LIO

calcible on London Kee, Weed Thorn

urel 27th Jane.

T 0990 143219

*eun*ouines

are advised to take all.

entering into any travel arrangements.

from a sealed-up hotel bus cannot compare with being driven around by two rastafarians in a souped-up 1970s Ford Capri.

We came during an off-peak period (apparently it was the rainy season), so the hotel was only a third occupied. And this probably accounted for some its charm. If the Shelley Beach had been overtaken by a block booking of 50, all determined to get their money's worth from the bar, we would have had a very different stay. It was a perfect place for couples, but a few singles there bemoaned the notel's tranquillity and isolated location.

It was less easy to feel comfortable about the nightly floor shows of acrobats and local tribes people, who come to perform traditional dances and sell trinkets to guests for whom "all-inclusiveness" had led to an overpower-ing urge to spend. While it is an obvious way of helping the local economy, those tempted by shields and carved elephants (most of which are not ebony, but hardwoods blackened with boot polish) should remember which items are most common at car-boot sales.

Travellers who do venture out of the haxury of the hotels find that Mombasa is very much a third-world town. There are some useful guilt reducers - take pens, which children clamour for, and give away as much clothing as you can bear.

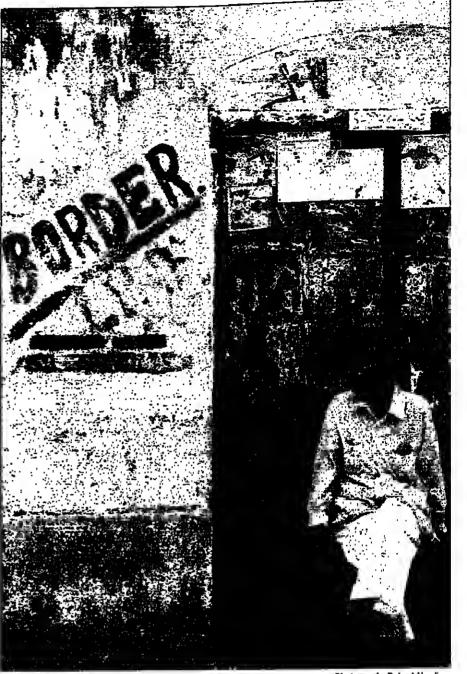

Despite the tendency of most holidaymakers to make their all inclusives a little too exclusive, the locals were both pragmatic and indulgent of our presence. Take Agnes, our local tour representative. Shepherding a group of us on to the swarming Likoni Ferry, which links Mombesa town with the southern beaches, she told me how two years ago the boat had sunk halfway, with the loss of all 240 on board.

"It was terrible. They laid all the bodies out on the jetty - those that the sharks didn't get. It was a nightmare for me," she said.

I enquired why, nervously eyeing the shore. Had she lost someone?

"No. I bad a flight come in that morning and I had to drive my clients all the way across the island so that they wouldn't see. It took hours."

> Jojo Moyes paid £719 for a fortnight's all-inclusive holiday with Hayes & Jarvis (0181-748 5050). The price included flights from Gatwick and three days on Safari. British passport holders do not require visas for Kenya. Take expert advice on medical precautions.

Photograph: Robert Harding

1: 0171 293 2222

travel overseas Fax: 0171 293 2505

1.

75%. .

4.1

- N

C.

The Name of ita grand

Can group of

Male good and a second

de central

إعطاف إنها إرباء

elikep .....

Combined and a Seminary and

AND THE PARTY OF T

Challenter of 251 .....

an Rolling

A Think of 12000 der his a

٠

2 other exciting cities, ting from up to 8 UK airports, To book see your travel agent.

0171 200 8705 4 Thomson CITYBREAKS

· O hard 27/an-37 Aug by an Tepping hem lynch, Meathra, Parameta r by Eurosia from Waterier

Don't forget to mention The Independent when replying to adverts

small group exploratory holidays CHINA TIBET MONGOLIA India Pakistan Nepai Cultural journeys, treks, wildlife, rambles, train and river journeys. PLUS! 170 tours, treks and safaris in Europe, Africa, Middle East, Asia, Australasia and the Americas. Free colour brochure Explore Worldwide (SI), Aldershot GU11 11Q # 01252 344161 pm Fully Bonded, ATOL No. 2595 ATO

ADVENTURE HOLIDAYS & EXPEDITIONS 10 days to 32 weeks DO IT WITH THE EXPERTED CUATEMAY £915 11/2/20

THIS YEAR ride off into the sunset ... Join a small group holiday off the beaten track. Ride elephants through Chitteen Whitlife Reserve in ASIA - FAR EAST

IF YOU'RE GOING TO BREAK DOWN europ assistance za 01444 442424 DISCOVERI unspolit Europe with gerale walking and cycling choices. Good took, beautiful localizers, comb holes, Tel Head-water (01806) 42220 for a

On Saturday 10th August The Independent will be publishing a Far East Special

This will be an extensive feature consisting of at least two broadsheet pages, a perfect market place for your advertising.

feature, please call the Travel Team on 0171-293 2335

୭ € ●

Eastern Europe THE INDEPENDENT PRACUE, VIENNA, SUDAPEST and Sovieda. Central perasions, hotels & aggs. Caschers (01709) 823689. PRACUE/ CRACOW Hotels in £18 PADD. Rights in £159 (agents ATOL 4083). Motoring tours & Newspaper Publishing pic regrets that although every resonable preceution is take onsibility can be accepted for flights and/or brough these columns, or an loss arising therefrom, Read Balearics

GREEK ISLANDS CLUB To advertise within this

CRETE

cottylo-Greek family offer 16 years experience to guide you of the bester track and discover true Cream baspitality. Private villes, spartmenne, small hottely and situated wandering, plus specialist walking, painting &
Sover buildays.
The cort families & information Sower houseys.
For our friendly & information benchure please call: 0181 995 9323 as Canaries TENTO MOUNT DISCOVER LA GOMERA SIN

CRETE, SKIATHOS, SKOPELOS rural properties £52-£170 pp.pr For brochure calt 0171 4854887 True veibe personalised holidays Villes, Cotanges, Apts. Pools Skopelos Villes (01689) 877838. SMPLY CORSIGA. The most besu-tiful island in the Medherranean. We offer vilus with pooks, seasible cottages, sylush hotels, mountain suberges, an island Wandering programme and Sever, weiting & peinting holidays, 0181 895 825. ASTA Y1337 ATOL 1922 ATO.

GREECE SPELOPONNESE Pure Crete s/c houses in hide-enery villages - breathsking somery 8 empty beaches. Aug/Sept well. (0181) 7000879. ATOL 2757.

A STRESS FREE HOLIDAY THAT GIVES YOU FREEDOM & CHOICE

Discover your very own France in one of the magical regions we have carefully selected with help from our holidaymakers who come back year after year.

after year.

Cycling for Softies provide the holidays in France to suit you whether you want to meander from hotel to hotel exploring the hidden byways at your own pace or stay in just one of our hand picked hotels for your whole holiday. Days are full of delightful surprises and beautiful countryside, evenings are spent sampling the traditional gastronomic cusine.

Let us help you choose your perfect holiday. Ring for your FREE brochure. 0161-248 5134 ga lest Cycling for Softies ATOL 9228 Retail Agents Active family holidays Over 3,000 touring and multi-activity options in unspollt France. Hotels or self-catering. Free holidays for under 18's. a 'not undersold' price guarantee, and free fun pack for the under 12's. Ring for your brochure.

27 years of exampling vills and hotel beliefrys for those wise expect privacy, constart, personal service and beautiful

PANOS • ITHACA • CEPTALON
LEPKAS • ZAKYNTHOS
KYTHERA • COEPU • SKIATIK

SKOPELOS - ALONEROS CEROS - ARGUNORRIOS

For a brackure telephone: (01932) 220477(24 hrs)

Ville Contro Halldays Led AND VINES AND 144 AND

ATOL 2412 AD HEADWATER

FRENCH Affair Quality villas and cottages in the most levely areas of franc DORDOENE LOT PROVIDED LANGUEDOC GASCONY LOS
57 Huntek Rest. Lendon WS SQL 0171-381 8519

PERIGORIO VERT. 15TH C stone Def-house in hamiet. Sipe 6-8. 5 Blass Inc.lakes to swim nearby. Amil Am 24-Sept 15.01968 880167 01606 48699 Greece

IONIAN PAXOS-TIHACA ZEPHALONIA - CORFU LEFKAS - ZAKYNTHOS MEGANISI DEEL, APAID

Suinceserially Greek.
inter viles with pools, here's s mide cattages in herealist priming, lections. Specialist priming, walking and flower indiring.
Not our friendly 8, informative
herebook places coll: 0181 995 932304 ATOL DEL 羅

If you wish to advertise in this section please telephone the Travel Team on 0171 293 2222

THE WORLD OF FRANCE CONNECT 🖭 FRANCE 0181 715 1122 AUTA 94705

CHEZ NOUS. Save Money Book Direct with 1600 private camers of all types of holiday property in France. City Breaks, Ferry Deels, Brochure 01464 682503. CAR + 5 3.0AY RETURN 0800 456 456

Germany

RLACK FOREST/ Elfel, Large apts fm 5225 pw in August, Hotels fm 520 pp pn. Auto Plan 01543 25/777,

CAR HIRE Best pric

LOT ET GARIONNE. SW France 17th Cent. Manor house, pool, stan-ning views, visit Bastide towns & markets in peacetts countryside. Parilee of 4/10, from £100pw. Tel. Jenniter Courtemey. (9032) 5285 4587

VORMANDY - Rural 17th Cent farmhouse, well equipped, slee 6/7 - Tel: (0033) 33 51 68 20 COUNTRY HOUSE - Bressui from 7-25 August, 4-5 people, Tel: 0033 48 72 43 69 (other 2pm)

NORMANDY Bay of Mont St Michel. Beautifully converted 19thC properly. Sleeps 2-5+Cot Vest sextly beaches 6 mins. Aveil able 5-23 August, Tel. 01304 884246.

Scandinavia

TASTE OF TUSCANY, Villes, cot tages & apts. For brochures cel littler-made Tours on 0181 291 NORWAY ITALIAN ALPINE COTTAGES SIP 6+3 Tel. 01223 562605.

short breaks Wake up to Norway with a Short Break Oslo, the Viking capital city or Stavanger,

LAKES, DOLCANTES, Tuncarny à Umbria, Campanie à Calabria, Elbe à Sicily - Wilso, spix, hotale, y ressonable prices. August remais im $416 pm. Auto Plan 01543 257777. gateway to the fjord MERIA CANCELLATION S 50% Aug 17-31. 2 flats for 4-6. Pool 2 wks £460-720. 0039 75 866

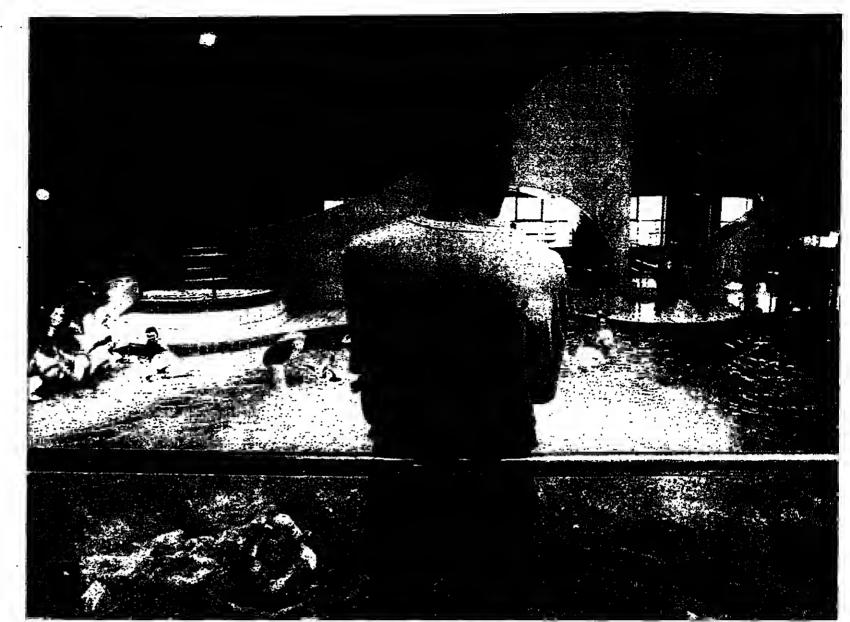

STAPLY TUSCANY & UNBRIA. To difficult fourthy ellis spartment with pool and flexible. By drive holidays tealuring charming, inti-mate hotels. Plus special trians Holidays and short breaks to Fig. rence. Please call 0181 995 9323 DYLLIC ITALY, countryelde & cor

Aug avall, privette felitetide vitter o/looking see, or boech in Atarine di Pfetresanta. Faltarine & contice in Chianți. Bridgevester Tel 016-787 9557 or 0181 707 $795(24ms ASTA D0219

all-inclusive deals travel

Every morning the cycle begins again: a hard-to-break round of indulgence

Simon Calder paid £60 for a four-day break to see the world — Butlin's SouthCoast World, that is

'Protection from wind, privacy and reasonable access to London' — that's why George V took his holiday in Bognor

Photograph: Andrew Hasson

sier ing iby tra- Mr g to re- not the ai- Mr na- ing tel- war

the aid Din

≥аг

ier ing

аг-

the be bly ay.

n the first circuit of the second day, I was banned. Head hung low enough to avoid the pirying glances darting across the Tarmac from the real boy racers (average age 13), I was ordered from the go-kart track for the crime of overtaking on the last lap, and warned to stay away all day. And all because, I told myself in the hard-done-by manner of Lin-ford Christie, the overtakee was dawdling like an off-duty milk-float.

Ritual bumiliation had a couple of advantages. One was that I would stop burning up my cash at about the same rate as the tyres, since the racetrack is about the only attraction for which an extra charge (£2) is levied. The second was that I would have to break out of the cocoon-like clusches of the holiday camp - sorry, the holiday village called South Coast World, the glitzy jewel in the crown of the Butlin's organisation.

If the British holidaymaker has a patron saint, it should be Billy Butlin. Indeed, photographs of the founder are splashed around the place as if he were a minor deity. In a sense, he is. The fact that those of us fortunate enough to he employed enjoy paid bolidays is partly thanks to his zeal.

In the 1930s, he lobbied energetically, and ultimately successfully, for universal paid holidays. His motives were not entirely philanthropic, because he had plans for the first boliday camp at Skegness. He needed bolidaymakers. And working people – suddenly finding themselves with both the time and money to take holidays to append "Regis" to a name which is so nearly an anagram of Boring.

On his deathbed, the monarch reneged with needed him. Sixty summers ago, mass-market holidays were born, and most of the infrastructure bore the Butlin's brand.

Having shown how bracing all-inclusive bol-idays in Skegness could be, soon-to-be-Sir Billy searched out suitable locations to repeat the trick. Some were easy: Ayr, Pwilheli, Mine-head, all now re-invented as Worlds of various kinds. But for the South Coast, he had to find somewhere stylish enough to steal trade from Margate and Southend, the established boltboles for sunseeking Londoners. Where better than Bognor, then (and now) 100 minutes by train from the capital? A place of regal pedigree, together with a vital stretch of shoreline free of Victorian villas.

The royal connection began across town in the tranquil village of Aldwick, now a suburb of Bognor. Well beyond lager-can throwing range from the Swinging Shilleghlegh pub (favoured drinking venue among the SouthCoast World sophisticates), Aldwick was where George V convalesced from tuberculosis in 1929. He chose it for its "protection from wind, privacy and reasonable access to London." After a four-month stay, His Majesty conferred upon the town the municipal equivalent of a knighthood: the right an anagram of Boring.

On his deathbed, the monarch reneged with the terminal alliteration "Bugger Bognor". But among punters at SouthCoast World you are unlikely to hear such language, or indeed the invocation "Sod off Skegness". Everyone is having too good a time. The only time I heard raised ing too good a time. The only time I heard raised voices or expletives was on the macho provingground that is the karting track.

SouthCoast World, the setting for achieving true delight, takes a bit of getting used to. Were the "holiday village" really a West Sussex hamlet, the county authorities along in Chichester would have bulldozed it years ago. The visual appeal is commensurate with, say, a 1970s light industrial park. Of course, it is just that: a factory for creating human happiness.

The urban hub of the Butlin's metropolis is a series of sheds housing restaurants, amusement arcades and shops. If you are on a £60, four days' half-board deal, your breakfast and dinner will be in the Goodwood restaurant. Or, as the only sign I saw of class discrimination revealed, the Goodwood Budget restaurant. Everyone else got tablecloths and waitresses; we skinflints made do with self-service and Formica. The food had its roots in school dinners via hospital kitchens, but no one went hungry. Careful on that grease-with-everything breakfast. Most of the activities require a strong con-stitution. At Waterworld, a vast and very blue indoor swimming pool, infants can take a few tentative paddles while their elder siblings are surfing through the artificial waves or spiralling down a waterslide. The funfair picks up the g-forces with a collection of high-grade, high-veloc-ity attractions that spin you in most directions

After dark, attention switches to a veritable barn of an entertainment complex. The mass appeal of the shows is pitched perfectly, in a manner that Sir Billy would applaud. The recipe is simple. Sell decent beer at less than £2 a pint. Lay on entertainers who can genuinely entertain: professional musicians as accomplished at Sinatra as Squeeze, dancers with more panache than Pan's People. Encourage everyone aged 18 and upwards to cram into a cavernous auditorium and turn the volume up loud. Easy, and effective. After your senses have taken a day of hearty battering, you would probably be able to sleep anywhere. Fortunately, you don't have to. Even budget holidaymakers get a clean, comfortable chalet with a bathroom, television and tea- and coffee-making supplies.

Next murning, the cycle begins again - a hard-to-break round of indulgence. Having bad mine broken so early in the day, I was able to make the most of England's most overlooked county. The boundary commissioners may have pinched Brighton and left behind Crawley, but West Sussex retains a calm, unspoilt air of gentility, with blossomming villages in superb scenery. William Blake lived nearby; this was the green and pleasant site where he envisaged Jerusalem. Head southwest along the coast towards Selsey. Through a patchwork of neat pastures, numerated by doddery steeples, you emerge.

punctuated by doddery steeples, you emerge on the fringe of a wildlife reserve. Not a soul disturbs the wittering seabirds and whispering reeds, where the English countryside meets the English Channel. Selsey is the point at which the crunchy gravel terrain gives out and subjides into the gravel terrain gives out and gravel terrain gravel terrai sides into the sea, with a High Streetful of tea shops offering shelter from a brusque breeze.

You could wander along the shore m dusk and beyond, but you would miss out on the endless entertainment back in Bognor. Butlin's is part of the Rank Organisation, and the connection with the movies is exploited in the on-site cinema. Mission Impossible was showing. Tom Cruise performed the sort of tricks that, if repeated at Bognor, would earn a lifetime ban from the go-kart track. Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to go to Butlin's to lose your preconceptions.

Butter's SouthCoast World: 01243 820202

s recent events have shown, airports need stringent security against the threat of Interrorism. Some summers ago, I played a small part in the campaign by frisking passengers at Gatwick airport (NB: I was employed to do this by Securicor - it wasn't

FRANCE

FRANCE

122

The only exciting discovery I made was of a Camping Gaz cylinder in someone's hand luggage. If the pressure in the cabin had dropped too low, it could have exploded. So I was despatched with the cylinder to the far end nf the apron to carry out a controlled release of the contents, and handed back the empty container to the far-from-cheery passenger.

Perhaps I was not sufficiently vigilant. Cecily

Woolf of Brighton has just returned from -Vancouver, minus her can of insect repellent. She warns: "Vancouver airport security are confiscating mosquito repellents and fly sprays on outgoing flights, on the grounds that they constitute 'toxic substances'. About 20 or 30 cans of spray are being confiscated daily from bemused passengers under the Canadian government's Aeronautics Act."

One of the security supervisors told Ms Woolf that the same procedure operates at other Canadian airports. "Although the regulations refer to all mosquito repellents as toxic, he said he makes an exception for rollons, and allows them on board the aircraft. The confiscated items are given away annually to the Canadian public".

Although mosquitoes can be vile in Canada in summer, it seems a bit extreme to kit the locals out with repellents at the expense of tourists. A stick of Mosi-guard repellent (which carries a hig NON TOXIC nutice on it) if you can top Ms Woolf's tale by having had something even less offensive confiscated. And my apologies if you were the one at Gatwick with the Camping Gaz cylinder.

Idel Castro is unlikely to be impressed by the new Thomson Faraway Shnres brochure, which devotes a dozen glossy pages to holidays in Cuba. Britain's higgest tour operator has decided to inject some humour into its description of the cash-starved Caribbean island. So it points out that "One of Fidel Castro's names is 'the air hostess', because he's always asking the Cubans to tighten their belts".

Dr Castro will also been annoyed that prospective visitors to Cuba have become embroiled in US legislation aimed at tightening the economic boycott against the island. Thomson is refusing to seil holidays there because of the threat of legal action from Washington. "It's all to do with the Cuban exile vote in the forthcoming American elections", says Charles Newbold, managing director of Thomson. "We and nur customers can't get caught in a battle between the US and Cuba. So until the Poreign Office tells us it's OK to sell those holidays, we will wait."

Several other UK operators are continuing to sell holidays in Cuba, in defiance of Washington. Regent Holidays of Bristol has been sending British tourists to the island for 21 years, and at present has a couple of dozen customers in the western hemisphere's last bastion of communism. The company's managing director, Neil Taylor, says that Thomson has over-reacted. "I have enjoyed many holidays in the US, and plan to take many more in the future, gambling that the threat of jail for dealing with Cuba is an empty one." Mr Taylor says American belligerence against the island actually enhanced Cuban tourism prospects. "The US government bans their citizens from visiting Cuba, which gives it a sort of snob appeal." So far, Dr Castro has not retaliated by issuing threats against holiday companies that trade with America.

ast weekend, the M5 was a mess. Traffic on the motorway south-west from Bristol to Devon and Cornwall tailed back for 25 miles. The front page story on the Western Morning News on Monday asked "Is this the way to treat our visitors?". But having tried to travel to Newquay by train, I suggest that the motorists stuck in the queues were the lucky ones.

Whoever devises the train schedules to Newquay must have a grudge against the resort, or rail travellers, or both. On Sunday I found myself in the City of London, needing to travel in Comwall. I tried to call Great Western Trains, but the company that has taken over services to the West Country is not listed with Directory Enquiries, try dialling 192, ask for Great Western Trains in Paddington or Plymouth, Swindon nr Swansea, and you will draw a blank. So instead I went to nearby Liverpool Street station and bought a ticket to Newquay. It was 12 noon.

Unhappily, the last train of the day to Newquay left Paddington 15 minutes later. Without a helicopter, it is impossible to travel from Liverpool Street to Paddington in a quarter of an bour. So after lunch I caught a train as far as Par, and paid £20 for a taxi to cover the stretch to Newquay for which I had a redundant ticket.

For the return journey, I vowed to catch the first train, and woke at dawn. Newquay station was packed, mostly with foreign visitors heading to London. We arrived at the connecting station, Par five minutes before the Penzance to Paddington express was due, and waited expectantly.

There were plenty of empty seats - you could count them as the train sailed past without stopping. The non-connecting trains are operated by a different companies. Perhaps the managers spend longer investigating the prospects for privatisation windfalls than on scheduling services to meet demand. Everyone settled down to an 80-minute wait for the next train. Most of the overseas tourists spent the time on the amenity-free platform planning their next buliday, probably to a country where the railways are not such a shambolic joke.

something to declare

A likely story

"Direct services from the regions to start in 1996"

The promise contained in the 1996 French Railways brochure has been broken. There is no likelihood of "new direct Eurostar services from Glasgow and Manchester to both Paris and Brussels, and from Birmingham to Paris" that the company says will begin this year. Rolling stock for the Paris services has been delayed. To

Brussels, the train operators are busy trying to fill existing services from London, without the problem of having to sell tickets on extra trains from Glasgow and Manchester to the Belgian capital:

No sign yet of the other great innovation in the French Railways brochure The European Night Services linking London with Holland and Germany in the spring

Trouble spots:

Advice from the Foreign Office on avoiding danger zones in Europe and the Middle East. Call 0171-238 4503 for further advice

Orsica: "There have been several recent attacks on property belonging to foreigners, including two Britishregistered yachts. Yacht owners should seek advice from the harbourmaster on entering Corsican ports and should consider moving on if they do not obtain adequate assurances of security while in port."

Spain: "Those wishing to travel to Spain should bear in mind the four young readers. It is offering four grants, worth £2,500, to allow sailors aged 18-25 to take

Endeavour, a replica of Captain part in the voyage of the ship

. .

recent upsurge in terrorist attacks apparently aimed at tourists, but British tourists have not been singled out."

Bulgaria: "Recently the incidence of robbery with violence against foreigners has increased, particularly on trains and near Sofia's central railway station. Under no circumstances accept any food or drink from strangers as there is a risk it may be

Museum on 0181-312 6790.

terrorist incidents during the last few months in various parts of Israel, including Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, particularly bomb explosions in buses and busy shopping areas and rocket attacks on northern Israel from the Lebanon."

Israel: "There bave been Saudi Arabia: "Following the bomb explosion at Al Khobar on 25 June there bave been press reports of a call by an Islamic extremist for Britain and France to withdraw their military personnel from Saudi Arabia. In this context this could be taken as an implied threat."

Iran: "There bave recently been a number of cases of tourists being asked for identification by bogus policemen, who bave then made off with the visitor's wallet and currency. Keep passports separate from other valuables."

and two more for the 12-week voyage to London starting in ANNUAL TRAVEL INSURANCE December. Young people with ocean sailing experience should call the National Maritime CALL US ON 0800 365 121

Everywhere you go, you see Mont St Michel rising from the sea

Sue Gaisford spends a weekend in Normandy

ney probably save Room 25 of the Hotel des Bains for the English. It is on the first floor of the annexe which forms an island hetween two streets - and it bas windows on to both. This offers an unexpected sense of familiarity. As the village of St Jean le Thomas comes to life, and its motorbikes and lorries shatter the approach of dawn, you start from your dreams, convinced that you are stuck somewhere near the central reservation of the M25.

Opposite the bed, on a magenta wall, a smallish photograph hangs racily askew in a large clip-frame. It depicts a gloomy day in a field enclosed by rusty wire and brambles: a single - clearly mad - cow is crazily rubbing its poor head on a large stone.

You can't really grumble though. It's the kind of thing you expect from the Guide des Logis. This precious little green book lists hundreds of French establishments guaranteed to provide first-class food at reasonable prices. Though you can rely on adequate, or at least clean bedrooms, comfort comes second. The meal we had eaten the night before had been delicious, particularly enjoyable after we had persuaded them that a third replay of a tape of Elvis's Gloomiest Hits would be unwise. It was just a pity that one of us had foolishly rejected the idea of earplugs at bed-time. When morning really came, incidentally, Elvis was reinstated in the breakfast-room.

Our daughter is doing an exchange with a French girl and we had decided to deliver her personally to her Norman family, and to take advantage of the current bargains in ferry prices to snoth a weekend away. By the second night, we had so to so for any the horse of the current of the second night, we had got as far as the bay of Avranches, a dazzlingly beau-tiful stretch of peaceful, rural coastline from which, wherever you are, you can see the island of Mont St Michel. topped by the spire of its abbey, rising from the sea like a rocky scoop of ice-cream.

Michel: tike a rocky scoop of ісе стват

-Worldh

- Americ

1,000

explained that they sound it twice every day, as the tide turns and the sea begins its dangerous return to the land. The water sweeps up behind the unwary, ready to cut them off: the currents are strong and deadly. Every year, oh, three or four people drown. Chastened, we asked how fast it travels. The man replied, as locals have replied for centuries, that it comes in at the speed of a galloping horse. The Hotel des Bains has a little swimming pool in its car park: though less scenic, it is a safer place to cool off than in that glori-

ter. Right on the coast at Barneville, roughly balf an hour get the chance. We reckon there are still another 15 Logis at it, the previous evening, from the scruffy little from Cherbourg, the Hotel des Isles provided a bright and prised to hear a siren how out over the sands. The barman, ilous beach. Out there, children were playing on the sand wiping his counter philosophically after pulling the beer, as the sun went down and little sailing boats tacked lazily home. Bats swooped, bunting over the neat gardens of the residents and, up in the village, elderly couples and teenage girls danced sedately, enjoying an impromptu street-party.

We could just still hear the accordion in the restaurant as they brought my husband some pliers, a wrench, several sharp knives and some needles: he sighed happily, knowing he was in for a treat. To our daughter and me, his plateau de fruits de mer looked like something scraped from the bottom of Grimsby dock: to him it was gastronomic paradise.

Normandy is so close, so accessible and so cheap to reach at the moment that it is tempting to nin across whenever you ous, treacherous bay.

Normandy is so close, so accessible and so cheap to reach at the moment that it is tempting to nip across whenever you bar on the beach at St Jean le Thomas, we had been sur- peaceful family room overlooking a less dramatic, less per- Portbail which we scarcely had time to explore: it looked gorgeous, and the utterly charming woman who runs the Rendezvous des Pecheurs seemed flatteringly delighted at the idea that we might come back. Perhaps we'll go and fetch the daughter in a fortnight. Such caring parents we are.

Getting there

The three competitors on routes from the UK to Normandy and Brittany are P&O European Ferries (0990 980980), Stena Line (0990 707070) and Brittany Ferries (0990 900800). Lower prices may be available through specialist agencies.

Accommodation

The Guide des Logis is available, price £12.95, from the French Government Tourist Office, 178 Piccadilly, London W1V OAL; the public enquiry number is 0891 244123 (premium-rate).

A carload of children and the open road

Nicola Swanborough and her family drove all the way to Biarritz and back. They returned smiling •riends have done it and come back ill. Friends of friends have done it and come back with nervous twitches, crooked spines and the prospect of spending all next year's holiday money at the physiotherapist. Nevenheless, we naively we believed we would do it properly, learn by their mistakes, show them how. A carload of children and the open road: 500 miles with the temperature rising.

Our destination was Biarritz, a stylish Edwardian resort on France's Atlantic coast, just about as far as you can go before hitting Spain and chosen because it seemed to offer a good combination of sandy beaches and nook-and-cranny fishing ports against a breathtaking hackdrop of the Pyrenees. Most importantly, however, it seemed far enough south to guarantee a degree of sun-shine, an essential ingredient of our holiday as we were camping; not the real McCoy, where everyone rows about the guy ropes. We opted for the civilised version, cheats under canvas, where it's all done for you: you simply drive up, plug in your mosquito machine, throw the sleeping bags

It was easy to romanticise the whole venture. We would be driving down to the south west of France. sauntering at our own pace through vineyards, kwender fields, sunflower plantations and the like.

on the beds and light the harbecue.

than we'd ever driven before at a stretch, confining four children in a mobile greenhouse and expecting a haby who had just learnt to crawl and bite, to sit still and hehave. The collective average age of our carload was 15 and half, so following through the law of averages we should per-haps have darkened the windows, pumped Take That music very loudly out of the eassette and and then. Our eight year old who aspires to being groovy, might have been impressed, but I'm not so sure about the rest of us.

My husband was driving and the smallest member of the family had bagged the chief seat in the front with his rear facing throne. So I was squeczed into the hack. I fohbed off the troops for as long as possible with an array of dismal suggestions such as "just sit and look out of the window" or "chat nicely to each other". For the large part it worked but there were times when it was I-spy or bust (not an easy option when three out of the four children don't know the alphabet). We had spread the journey - Cherbourg to Biarritz - over two days, with an overnight stop at a campsite in the Vendee, and in truth the first day was not too bad. The children were fresh and

The reality was that we travelled more miles were high and the scenery was an inspiration. We arrived at the Vendee pretty much intact, too late to use the campsite pool but in time to relax in the cool of the evening. It was at the campsite, however, that the trouble began. The children were on holiday, so they wanted to play bat and ball, blow the boat up, get to the beach, make sandcastles. In spite of our protestations they gradually unpacked the boot which had formerly been a work of art, and which reguldly took on the flashed up pictures of Bad Boys Inc every now a work of art and which rapidly took on the appearance of the aftermath of a car boot sale.

Gone are the days when we travelled with smart suitcases. We pack our all in bin liners, one per person. They are wonderful for moulding round one another, and handy for cradling duty frees. They also become horribly dishevelled when someone has hurrowed an arm to the bottom of hers to find a hikini which she is not allowed to put on because "we are only staying one night".

By next morning the boot needed completely repacking and the tent looked as though we'd been there a fortnight. The children had to be hribed back into the car with reassuring white lies that it wouldn't be as long a journey as the day before. Everything seemed twice as stressful, the road map hore no relation to the roads, especially not upside down with a dribbling baby crawling excited, the car was relatively fidy, our spirits across it. No two people ever wanted to play the below rock bottom. George Formby, who had

same game at the same time: the bottles of drink which had been wedged around my ankles somehow hroke loose and poured their contents over my ankles which could have been a happy annointment had it not heen lemonade.

Whereas the day hefore nobody needed to go to the loo, this time everyone needed to at different times. In-car entertainment slipped well Camping: basic and therapeutic: no furniture, carpets or clutter to contain been uplifting on the tape the day before, started to take on the guise of a tedious street musician who won't put his ukulele down, and everyone began to wish that Noddy and his friends would get lost in the Secret Garden.

I passed out when we arrived at Biarritz, and our four-year-old had a nose bleed. The family in the tent hehind us spoke only in expletives and our four-year-old had a nose bleed. The lability in the tent hehind us spoke only in expletives and we feared that the haby's first words might not be that choice. After that everything settled down. We didn't get back in the car for a couple of days; we could see the mountains, smell the pool, if not the sea and feel the sun - it was enough if not the sea, and feel the sun - it was enough for us. My back-seat fear that the pilgrimage wouldn't have been worthwhile, with everyone homesick for Margate, was quickly eradicated. If camping is basic, it's also therapeutic: no furniture to be careful of, carpets to spoil, fancy cooking facilities to be creative with, clutter to contain.

The children enjoyed a freedom they never have at home, relaxing in a holiday atmosphere which at least seemed safe, though our complacency sometimes woke me up with a start in the night. There was the journey home as well, of course. but with the same healthy tact that a woman never reveals to an expectant mother quite how gruesome labour can be, it's enough to say that the joy when it was all over made it all worthwhile.

PLUS SUMMER FARES PLYMOUTH TO HOLIDAY FRANCE 21 - DAY RETURNS 3-DAY RETURNS

. . .

ANNUAL

TRAVEL

INSURANCE

FROM £46.

With insurance starting from just £45, contact the name you can trust for the best deals on

Annual Multi Trip cover,

Other policies available - Call for details.

For travellers under 65

General Accident

Direct

798 534

years only.

tra-Mr

g to r. iernot milt,

the afMr na-ing

WHI

out

im-

: in

the ng

.nđ

ar-

he

be

Take Off Because we think the world of you ... current best buys on the world's finest airlines (excl. imes) SYDNEY £352 £485 NEW YORK £115 £175 £254 PERTH JOHANNESRURG £314 £557 BOSTON £129 £199 AUCKLAND CAPE TOWN 2307 £352 £652 FLORIDA £198 £297 £226 £339 $253 BANGKOK HARARE £297 LOS ANGELES £195 £249 HONG KONG NAIROB 224 £441 SAN FRANCISCO £158 $255 £309 £495 £55 £75 £294 £295 £45 DUBA SINGAPORE £451 TORONTO BALL RiO 2567 VANCOUVER 2219 E311 SAIGON PARIS £327 2556 CARYBREAN £175 £368 AMSTERDAM 255 TOKYO £275 MEXICO CITY £374 NICE £104 £341 KATHMANDU

plus discounted quality accommodation per room per night from AUSTRALIA 236 • USA 231 • AFRICA 237 • PACIFIC 242 • ASIA 238 USA CAR HIRE FROM £13 PER DAY - CALL NOW FOR OUR WORLD OR WORTH AMERICA DIRECTORY ON $171-938 3366 TRAIL THE TRAVEL EXPERTS

Take Off

British Airways to Jo burg £399 rtn Capetown £449 rtn (must book by 7 August)

New Zealand £729 rtn valid for departures 21 Oct - 12 Dec With up to 30% special discount on car hire worldwide attention to detail

For the real lowdown on worldwide travel, Traitfinders is your one stop travel shop.

Take Off

Trailfinders offers more low cost flights to more destinations than one. Experts in airfares since 1970, we can tallor-make your very own package with up to 65% discount on botels and car hire worldwide.

FOR YOUR FREE COPY OF THE TRAILFINDER MAGAZINE CALL 0171-936 3356 ANYTIME

ATOL 1458 IATA ABTA 69701

WORLDWIDE FLIGHTS

ETWOR

194 Kensington High Street • LONDON W8 7RG Long Haul Fights: 0171-938 3939 Transatlantic & European: 0171-938 3232 First & Business Class: 0171-938 3444 42-50 Earls Court Road - LONDON W8 6FT Long Haul Flights: 0171-938 3366 ansattantic & European: 0171-937 5400

Take Off

22-24 The Priory Queensway • BIRMINGHAM 84 68S Worldwide Flights, 0121-236 1234 48 Corn Street - BRISTOL BS1 1HQ Worldwide Flights. D117-929 9000

254-284 Sauchiehall Street • GLASGOW G2 3EH Worldwide Flights. 0141-353 2224 58 Deansgate • MANCHESTER M3 2FF Worldwide Flights: 0161-839 6969 First & Business Class: 0181-839 3434

... people think the world of us!

******************* USINESS + FIRST in Business & First class. Call now 0171 460 2255 Free Fax 0500 675656 NEW YORK Fr. £599 TORONTO MIAMI/ORLANDO

PHILADELPHIA LOS ANGELES BARBADOS USA SPECIAL 0171 370 5671

MINEAPOLIS WINTER SHOPPING OFFER £279

EUROPE

Prices fr. £ 79

£1.07

£ 92

£ 80

£645

£379

£476

£419

£251

£325

£270

Paris

Nice

Brussels

Sydney

Bombay

K.Lumpur

Bangkok

New York

San Fran

Washington

Amsterdam

WORLDWIDE

AMERICAS

FANYASTIC SAVINGS on a

GREAT DEALS on Amtrak, Greys

2. 12.

Trans. E.

12-194 5220

1.11 C.1

Mar. 1.

in med there yet

Park to the second

10 km

To the second

Brestfel be

A Part In me I

a seriel is

Mary Mary

Marie ..

MAG

are the second

Bathy of Lin

#100 PT = -

Marie Sanday Com

1000 PM

100 m

Better Valor

gare him.

13- all ....

BATHE :

F The Last

That he also

* STA TRAVEL Nairobi Mexico Rio de Janeiro £192 2355 539 6414 £479 £350 £192 £235 Los Angeles ROUND THE WORLD: FROM £650 EUROSTAR - PARIS / BRUSSELS FROM £49 RTN

EUROPE 0171 361 6161, WORLDWIDE 0171 361 6262 0161 834 0668 (Manchester) ACCOMMODATION - CAR HIRE - INSURANCE AND OVERLAND TOURS: 0171 361 6160 117 Eastern Read NW1, St. Old Brompton Rd SW7, 11 Goodge St W1, London STA TRAFEL PROGRATION REQUEST LINE 6171 NO 614

LONDON, MANCHESTER, GLASGOW, LEEDS, OXFORD, CAMBRIDGE, BAISTON, BRISTON _ STA TRAVEL

MON 8.30mm to 9.00pm

TUES

8.30am to 7.30pm

WED-THURS

8.30am to 7.00pm

FRI 8.30am to 6.00pm

9.30am to 4.00pm

OPEN SUNDAY

10.00mm to 2.00mm

FARES INCLUDE ALL AIRPORT DEPARTURE TAXES

Great savings on Car Hire, Insurance and Car Parking

£136

£140

£103

£164

£595

£419

£299

£334

01279 713 737

01279 713 777

Hong Kong £441

01279 713 747

ed Coaches & Aly present

Berlin

Zurich

Geneva

Athens

Dubai

Tokyo

Jo'burg

Boston

Oriando

Toronto

L.Angeles

INSURANCE ₹6.00 ₹13.00 ←£33.00

Group Salam SALAM (01252) 717766

ICARUS FLIGHTS

ICARUS TRAVEL LID

from £49

BOSTON WASHINGTON £200 ATLANTA £225 £229 DURAL TORONTO 5235 £251 CALIFORNIA PLORIDA £253 $255 CHICAGO DALLAS £274 NEW ORLEANS £275 MONTREAL £275 SEATTLE £2.75 LAS VEGAS £285 £286 OTTAWA VANCOUVER £300 CALGARY £325 INDIX £339 MEXICO CITY £353 BANCKOK SINGAPORE £438 SOUTH AFRICA £439 HONG KONG £445 RIO DE JANEIRO £479

£580

0181·401// 6666

PMLMA SEO ALICANTE ETS E FAMO STS MEZA ETS GENERALY ETS TURNEY SEO 2 CANADES ETS MALAGA SEO 9

CTPRIS $150 CAMPBELLEZO
GREETE SES FLORENA 5220

0181-781-1444 0161-969-5151

MALARA CO LIMENAS (50) E

DPEN 7 DAYS

AUSTRALIA

NEW ZEALAND £615

*FlvAwa*v

MILAGE 179 MARCH 189 MICHATE 179 SHEELE 179 BEZA 179 PALIER 189 BEZA 180 USA 1199 BEZA 180 USA 1199 BEZA 173 E. ATRICA 1399

ESS CHIMEN E219 2

TOKYO

017 72 72 72 72 AUSTRALIA & ROUND THE WORLD 01772 727 727 BUSINESS & FIRST CLASS 01772 727 747 The National Sales Centre for over 100 leading scheduled airlines, with 750,000 discount fares to 1500 destinations. SEE ITY Telefext R275 OPEN 9am-9pm 7 days a week £549

RETAIL AGENTS FOR ATOL HOLDERS

By

Phone

American Airlines

AUTUMN SPECIALS New York Boston Washington Philadelphia

fr £208

Florida fr £253 California

fr £268

0800 121 007 Mon - Fri Surn-Sprin, BARGAIN FLIGHTS FLICHT FLIGHTS Z DA POSTURAL SES PREME SES DE POSTURAL SES DESERVA SES DE POSTURAL SES MESERS SES DELL'AREA SES DELL'ARE CAR HIRE ACCOM 0181-781-1440 Don't forget to mention The Independent HER TOR #195 DAMAGE #275 ACCARTE 185 S. AFRICA 5375 | HUND 225 MINIMA 285 | ACCARDES 185 RUBBA 1875 | HUND 184 SHEMA 185 | ACCARDES 185 RUBBA 1875 | ACCARDES 185 RUBBA 1875 | ACCARDES 185 RUBBA 1875 | ACCARDES 185 RUBBA 188 | ACCARDES 185 RUBBA 188 RU when replying to

£499

AMSTERDAM £69 NICE £99 10 ZURICH £89 It's your passport out of here.

£70 BELFAST from £159 BERGEN from £75 BRUSSELS from £72 DUBLIN from £58 EDINBURGH from £118 FRANKFURT from £58 GLASGOW from £175 PALMA from £89 PARIS from £175 PRAGUE from

BM British Midland Return fares from London Heathcow. Coptact your local travel agent or call for details on 0345-660625 or stock to the lateral http://www.tbybnitshmldland.com Special tares available un nelected dates and flights.

The translation of the proof most include a Settralary night mayenger tares well apply Special intensive also swallable from ede Brailerd. Towards. Ethiologia, Glangow and Bellins.

easyJet

from £49 Nice

Barcelona

Glasgow

from £35 Amsterdam from£29

Edinburgh

from£29 Aberdeen

Single + Tax, Subject to availability

Atol 4053 0990 29 29 29

Affordable as a pair of jeans

ASPROAD HOLEDAYS

THE CAS Samt-Spen 7 days
Last min Jul, Aug. Soft, Oct. Non Albarra, Perca, Aggina 2107 1157
Casta, Render, Cortus spc 1119 1167
Zanta, Sitathos, Lelina 2128 1188
Scalaristgarvariticating 108 1119
Charles & Hancady 1119 1169
Cippina & Hancady 1119 1169
Charles & Hancady 1109 1169
Fights Emitte & Wortdwide, Discounties Families (Groups 3-

If you wish to advertise in this section please telephone the Travel Team on 0171 293 2222

LOW COST FLIGHTS 13A CANADA AUSTRALIA NEW ZEALAND SOUTH AMERICA CAPABBEAN FAR EAST MUDDLE BAST AFRICA THRIFTWAY TRAVEL 0171 - 490 1490

WORLDWIDE SYDNEY DELÉI CONTROL DE STRUCTURE DE CONTROL 29 CASTLE STREET, EINGSTON, SURREY ETI 15T OPEN 7 DAY **SEAT SALE **

TABLE A STATE OF THE PARTY OF T

LOWEST SEASON FARES INCL. TAX NEW YORK £229 BRASILIA BOSTON £280 CARACAS £430 FLORIDA £315 MEXICO CITY RIO/SAO PAULO DENVER £315 2295 SANTIAGO CALIFORNIA 2345 BUENOS AIRES

AMERICAN & LATIN TRAVEL Tel: 0181-673 8888

FAST CHANNEL CROSSING OPEN RETURN inc. vehicle & all pastenges Piggs inc. Ins. or Account.

Advice 01243 787838 MULTITOURS 0171 931 7787

BOOK DIRECT WITH HOTELS DIRECT! $50% 6,000 ÖFF 01865 - 48144

TRAVEL INSURANCE

Annual from £45 40% off high street

All types of policies for all types of travellers

FREE

Quote and

BALI £529 PHILIPPINES £429 BELIENG £469 SECUL £539 HONG KONG £499 SINGAPORE £419 JAKARTA £439 SRI LANKA £399 KATHMANDU £475 THAILAND £349 KUALA LUMPUR£420 TOKYO £549 MALBIVES £499 VIETNAM 2589 TEL:

OF BY TO DES SES TROUBT 199 3 SES CITY 199 3 SES ORLANDO 1270 2 SES DEBMONT 179 2

0171-962-9028

DEALS

555

Flight only Return price from

PENANG

£620

MAHOR ETS PALMA CIPARS ELSS FARD ERS INCE

AUSTRALIA

A superb weekend break in the historic Viking and Roman city of YORK with

Concorde for £369*

9-11 August or 25-27 October Friday Morning: From London to York by rail. Friday and Saturday nights at York Stakis Hotel. Sunday Afternoon: Transfer to Leeds Airport for British Airways Concorde subsonic champagne flight to London Heathrow.

*per person based on 2 sharing For details contact Yorkshire Charters 01924 280189

TECNO TRAVE SCHEDULE AIRLINE AUGUST LATE OFFERS BANGROK $425 MANEA $496 BOM/DEUN $285 SINGAPORE $465 HONG KONG $430 LOTBURG $289 IL LIAMPUR $470 CAPETONIK $449 NEW YORK DARLY BUSINESS CLASS 2669 For friendly, efficient service cell Process

FARESAVER AUGUSTE DE NEMOCIA CAMBELL IZ MENOCO CAMBELL IZ MENOCO ENGEL IZ PERILAN EAUGUS DE TURISM MULTIP DE TURISM MULTIP DE SENORA MU 0117 9832555

LOW COST FLIGHTS Are

Munich Beer Feethwal 20 Septed July Septed Carda (1918) 429 2900, German Travel Centre, ABTA, ATOL 2977, LATA, RISCOUNT FLIGHTS WORLDWIDE

adverts Holidays with Style

Cadogan Travel have 46 years experience in operating quality holidays to the following countries: GIBRALTAR, MARBELLA, LA MANGA. VALENCIA,

MADEIRA, MOROCCO, TUNISIA, MALTA, GOZO. COMINO. CYPRUS, JERSEY &

GUERNSEY. OUR NEW BROCHURES INCLUDE:

SUPERB selection of 3. 4 & 5 star hotels & self catering apartments.

DAILY scheduled flights from most regional airports. FREE international discount card. private toxi transfers ond guide book.

FABULOUS child discounts.

MANY NO single

supplements. FLEXIBLE durations from 3-56 nights.

CROICE of honeymoon resorts.

EARLY booking bonus on selected resorts.

Call FREEPHONE for 0800 591281 Cadogan Holidays ABTA Y7856 ATOL 878

GERMANY, DAILY low cost flights a hotel accommodation, Gall us to

WORLD DEPARTURES

eeches do not spread the AIDS virus, but they can be deeply unpleasant in tropical countries: "Leeches get on to you by crawling head-over-tail across the ground over your boots and often attach to look like fetching little anklets around the sock line."

Writing in the latest edition of Wanderlust magazine, Dr Jane Wilson Howarth describes the secret life of leeches, and her experience of them in Nepal. "The little wound left by the leech was more troublesome than others that I had removed with salt or left to fall off. It itched for weeks and a tiny tattoo remained where a fragment of mouth parts had been left behind."

The magazine also contains accounts of travels in Central Asia and an appeal for members of the 153 Club: "The only requirement for membership is travel within the area of former Michelin map 153 (now numbered 953) which covered North West Africa". Banderlust costs £2.50; call 01753 620426 to find out where to acquire it.

Business travellers flying to Paris this month and next may find themselves accompanied by plenty of children on the aircraft - and may find it profitable to take one themselves. In retaliation against Eurostar's new service direct from Waterloo to Disneyland Paris, British Airways Travel Shops (0990 030303) is selling hargain day-trips to the French capital, including a free ticket for the theme park.

The offer works like this: on any day between now and 30 September you can fly from Heathrow or Gatwick to Paris and back for £89. Birmingham or Manchester departures cost £10 more. In an effort to discourage husiness travellers from using the offer. BA insists that two people must travel together. A pair of husiness colleagues could save a total of £426 flying from Manchester.

To minimise this sort of thing, BA requires one member of the party to he under 12, for travel Monday-Friday. But the offer will appeal to, say, a husinesswoman who can take her husband and child to Paris and leave them at the theme park for the day - for less than the normal fare to the city.

n outbreak of viral meningitis has been reported in the Limassol area of Cyprus. Several readers, including a London GP, have contacted the Independent to pass on warnings. The Foreign Office does not suggest that holidaymakers to the island should change their travel plans, but emphasises the need for scrupuous personal hygiene.

Viral meningitis is the less threatening form of the disease, and children are particularly susceptible to it. The symptoms are fever, severe headaches, nausea and the inability to touch the chin with a knee (because of inflammation of the spinal cord).

SUMMER Arrested at Checkpoint Charlie

'My fate was sealed. I was an international currency smuggler'. Andrew Hasson remembers 1980 in Berlin

itting in the interrogation room, I tried around, attempting to take in all the weirdness to work out if I had made a profit or a I had unofficially exchanged DM20, which loss. Two very angry border guards had just walked out of the room, slamming the door behind them. I noticed there was no door handle on the inside.

After an hour or so, they'returned, glaring hard. They were accompanied by someone who looked like a member of the women's shot-putt team: their superior officer. She looked me up and down in disgust and told me I had committed a grave offence against the state.

It was the summer of 1980. A levels were over and Fred and I had failed to secure jobs, much to our parents' dismay. We had a friend in Berlin; maybe we could stay with him and find some work for the summer?

Coming from Sussex, we weren't used to 24hour hars, or policemen tooled up with submachine guns. We'd never seen a one-legged prostitute before, nor a pensioner shooting up heroin at 6.30 in the morning. We were the archetypal innocents abroad, and neither of us had been arrested before. I got there first.

I landed a job at Tegel Airport loading bags on to the planes. My German came on in leaps and bounds. I was hungry to see everything the city had to offer so a day over the border in East Berlin was planned.

The "official" exchange rate (the DDR rate) gave one Deutschmark for one East Mark. It bore no relation to reality. Travelling from from West to East for the day required compulsorily exchanging 25 Deutschmarks for 25 aluminium lighter-than-air East Marks. There was only one place the East Germans would allow you to buy East Marks and that was at the border.

Nonetheless, every hank in West Berlin exchanged D-Marks at the "proper" rate of five for one East Mark and there was nothing the Democratic Republic could do about it. Of course, nobody at the bank told you that taking this money over the border could land you in deep trouble. There was no need, because everyone knew it anyway. Once in the east, you were rich.

The downside was that in East Berlin there was nothing to spend it on. There were no record shops and the clothes were shoddy; the average teenager could die waiting to spend money over here. Rather pompously, after drinks and a sandwich in a bar, I thought giving out a hig tip to these poor suppressed communists would change the world. I spent the day wandering was worth £5 in those days, giving me 100 East Marks; an illusion of wealth I had never previously experienced. Add this to the officiallyexchanged 25 Marks, and I had far too much, so I looked around for something to buy. I found a calligraphy set (which I knew I would never use) for 50 Marks and I headed back to the Friedrichstrasse border crossing (also known as Checkpoint Charlie).

In the customs room, I was pulled aside; "Where did you get the money for this?" asked the officer, pointing at the useless calligraphy set, which had clearly cost more than 25 Marks. I feigned ignorance of the German language. Sorry, I'm a tourist," I smiled back.

Twenty long minutes later an interpreter arrived and ordered me into a room to give a statement. Still I didn't worry. I proceeded to answer their questions, I was a tourist, I told them.
I'd gone into a West German bank asking for East German currency. What was wrong with that?

"It's illegal," said the interpreter, so I expressed surprise. "Why do they do it then?" I was questioned about my movements that day. At one point, my interpreter mistranslated some trivial detail of my statement and I corrected him. They stopped and turned to look at me with narrowing eyes. "You do speak German!" they shouted together. "Well, just sort of. Tourist German," I offered feehly.

"Rubbish," screamed the interpreter, looming over me like a giant Communist-style heroic statue. "You don't play games with the DDR! Where do you really live?"

"Just down the road. In the West," I snivelled. My fate sealed, I was an international currency smuggler.

The fine, in West Marks, was announced as DM400 (the equivalent of £100). Two weeks later, I went down to Checkpoint Charlie to pay. In the intervening weeks, I'd dislocated my knee-cap and the bospital had encased my entire leg in plaster. The shot-putt officer was there, hardly believing I'd come back to pay the fine (looking back, I can hardly believe it myself). I told her I'd broken my leg and lost my job so I had only half the money. She took it and ordered me hack the following month.

I didn't go and, in less than a decade, the DDR was gone. My entry in their books probably still shows me to be 200 marks in the red.

Tel: 0171 293 2222

travel • overseas, uk

Fax: 0171 293 2505

...

120 sin tr

800.3

141,471

31

 $\langle \omega_{i,\frac{\pi}{2}} \rangle$

aight Far

acture fro

MADEIRA FROM ONLY £249 EXCEPTIONAL VALUE FOR A WEEK'S HOLIOAY ON THE FLOATING GARDEN

Portugal

OF THE ATLANTIC THE HOTELS

We have chosen some of the best 3, 4 and 5 star hotels on the Island for their location, facilities and friendly atmosphere INCLUDED IN YOUR HOLIDAY PRICE Return flights from Gatwick and Manchester to Funchel.
7 rts accommodation in twin room at the hotel of your choice.
Buffet breakfast each day in the hotel. Transfers in Madeira. The service of our representatives on the Island. EXTRA WEEKS Also available at a small supplement. DEPARTURES THROUGHOUT JULY/AUGUST

Further Details Please Call Telephone (01452) 381888 ATLANTIC HOLIDAYS LTD

For a Full Colour Brochure and

25 Brunswick Road, Gloucester GL1 1JE

VINTAGE PORTUGAL. Co

SPANISH Attair

Dur telection features quality properties in the most delights coastal or mountain settings. ANDALUSIA CARTABRIA CAZALORI 57 Hambolt Read, London W6 8Q1 0171-385 8127

EDINBURGH FESTIVAL B&B avail able. Tet: 0131 225 8002

ARDALUCIA, becuiful citve mill & pool in min village nr Ronda. Suporb views, Hora, tauna. S.c. àpts for 2-12. With all comforts (01348) 8743E1

ALCARYE SEAUTIFUL VILLA with swimming pool & tennis court in toolhilis of Monchique mountains, now beaches, stoops 9 Avail 24th August 67 2 Ms. As not acctange evail. Contact international Chapavail. Contact international Chap ters for this & other properties to rent in Portugal. 0171 722 9722

VINTAGE SPAIN. Cutation, Galiciam & Malforcan Country Houses with pools in unspoilt areas. 01954 261431 ATOL 2787 AITO.

COSTA DEL SOL, Torrox. Beautitul country house, megnificent views. Mediterranean and mountains. Parfect peace. Private pool. Phone 0034 52539693. COSTA DEL SOL Nr Nerja. detached villa, ktylik location, pool, eleeps 6. Avail 2 weeks from Aug 24th, £480pw. Tel: 0181 743 3630

ANDALUCIA, superb selection of proporties of character in stanning rural & coastel locations. SPAIN AT HEART 01225 744567 ATOL

Activity Holidays

ADVENTURE
STORY
Wee ends in the British Isles

CINNAMUN TRAVEL

01932 842221 SUFFOLK CYCLE BREAKS. Quality holidays with full backup. W. e or jonger, Tol. (01449) 721555 UK Travel

Welcome EN WONDERFLE LOCATIONS NYMENDERS LICENTONS AT WELCHMING LOW PRICES.
PETS, LINEN, FIFE I POLICIDED
CORNER, DAVID, FRANT OF INSTANCE,
North Make, Part Dorint, Lakes, Dales, Northunderfa, Scotland and HER POR The South West Instance

01756 702200 HUNDREDS OF PROPERTIES in wonderful locations of Watcoming low prices. Most less than £300 per work in July & August, Pets, lines & fuel mostly included. For tree colour brochure 01756 702200

If you wish to advertise in this section please telephone the Travel Team on 0171 293 2222 Exotic Holidays

Thailand One week holidays from £479 Two week bolidays from £499 Daily scheduled British Airways & Quantas flights from Heathrow

26 Aug - 31 October Connecting UK domestic flights - only £30 return.

airwaves

Ask for our 100 page brochure of flexible 0181 875 1188 DISCOVER the TREASURES of a KINGDOM

ATOL 2847 ABTA VXV IMPLY TURKEY Personal serv

& informative brochure call: 0181 995 9323. ABTA V1337 ATOL 1822.

AFRICA TRAVEL CENTRE.
Capetown HarmunMarobl, Fights
only, tallor made holidays, safarts, first & club specials. For further into and brocham (0171)
3888878. ATOL 3394.
SOUTH AFRICAN AFFAIR. Cape Town, Winelands, Garden Route,
Notal & Transyzasi. A unique selection of classic hotals. Game

NEW ENGLANTI VACATIONS- DI

Holidays Afloat UK

BRITAIN'S BEST Self Drive Namow-boat holidays. Widest choice. Beginners very welcome. Tel 01905 726825. BEAUTIFUL WATERWAY, Surrey/ Hents, Lux bosts, (01256) 703891. Nati. ABOARD 100tt Gelf Ketch.
Wast Country/Srittany. All wel-come, inc singles. Prof crew: no exp necessary. Excel tood/com/ accom. Or by winter sun & whateaccom. Or try winter sun & whate-watching in Canaries from Octo-bor. Tel 01803 834300, Fex 91803

Late Availability WELSH BOADER terminouse on NT ectate. Unbounded walks, stun-ning views. Nr Lucion. Sipe 6+, ir £175pm. 0973 463389 (01835) 850769 FALMOUTH, Cornwall. Flat, sips 4 balcony. Minutes pier, strops. Ausil 17 Aug & 7 Sept. (01359) 231641.

Special Interest Holidays

THE ORCHID EXPERIENCE ented by The Orchid Natural Therapy Centre Stylish two day residential course learning hands on skills in Massage & Aromatherapy

 Champagne reception at teaching wome
 Two nights including Brewleast & Eversing Meet in knowny
Elizabethen style hold with full recreational facilities Full course in Massage & Aromatherapy by qualified therapists Tultion in 17th Century cottage therapy centre in heart of the city Attendance certificates to all who take part Optional executive chauffeur Perfect for couples (Learn with each other) VARIABLE RATES

RECORDERINA HOUSEGAP TO MODING IN MARICE PLASE CALL OF WHITE C.H.L. & Orchid Natural Therapy Centre 38 Hill Street. Coventry, Warwickshire, CV1 4NA Tel/Fax 01203 226012 : Registered Enquiries - 01203 633242

SHAMROCK COTTAGES, 50 High St. Weilington, Somerael. 01823 651060. Col Bro ol 250 select houses. Diec Fares, ATO. IRELAND Specialists Choose from over 100 contagos. 01222 445726 (LIA1111 ENJOY IRELAND Holidays. Cottages/ Cassless/ Hotelay B&B 1000°s of properfees. 1076 of locations from £55pp/pw inc cer on terry (5 share) Phona 01254 582209

lerry (5 shere) Phone 01254
82099
A BIG BARGAIN BREAK, Bojoy your Autumn break in Ireland in one of our approved cotts. From mid-September your second week te rish the Also 5 8 7 day bergeln farmhouse holidays, Phone Irish Country Holidays Now, 01 502 500
688 (S-Nns)
XERTY Fermhouse overfooking
see, Steps 6, Available from 31/8
C150ps, Tel: 00363 6577151

The Lake District

Thomburrow Road, overlooking late, All rooms ensuite (some with laterize) bothe) Settlife TV, teamsiding, Sauna, Tylo Sleam Room and hashed indoor

Scotland

SCOTLAND

Over 3,000 self-catering properties in all areas from luxury houses to

Self Catering UK FELSH BORDER termhouse on NT ning views. Nr Ludiow. Sips 6+, fr C175cm, 0973 463389

Devon & Cornwall

CORNWALL AND DEVON 142 col-

CORNWALL AND DEVON 142 cottages throughout. (01752) 28071.

FOWEYPOLRILAN. Charming waterside cottages with C/H & CTv. superb views. dinghies analable. Pets welcome. Tel. 01726 870409

CORNISH COUNTRY MANOR. Enchanting Tamaz Valley. Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty. Country lowers retreat. Summer bris 3 at 0.888 ESS. 01822 832442

A FINE SELECTION of cottages on both coasts of Cornwall and on Scilly. Brochure Comish Traditional Cottages. (01208) 972 559. 7 day personal service Sem. 90m. SALCOMBE. Gt views or beach. 2 and houses. Sips 6/20. Av Sept onwests. Nei (1815) 296 USS2

SALCOMBE. Charming lax conv. coach hae, gt views, or beach. Sips 4. Av Sept onwests. Nei (1815) 296 USS2

BOUSSENOLE Cottage. Sieops 4/5. 1 minute from harbour. Tel. (01809) 850843 or (01758) 731123 N. DEVON. Quality village cottage. well equip. 4 beafm. Pets and linen. Aug/Sept £125 inc. (01805) 603574.

NR FALMOUTH Waterhort property, sleeps 8, weekly holiday ists from Aug 31st. Tel: 01872 281522.

Northumbria

HOOSE FROM 300 cottage Northwebrie Holidey Cottage 01200 444070 Ref. UD 601 Scotland

malding, Sauni, Tylo Steam Room and hasted Indoor pool solely for our gueste' use. 2 nights, 5 course Dinner B&B Incl. VAT only 159, 3 nights only C130. Brochure 015394 43538. SOUTHERN LAKELAND. Superb quality attractions, accomodation & countryside. Lake District Nat. Park Official 44 page col broch. 01229 596742 (24 hm) SOLF FOR BEGINNERS learn to play in Israely Borders area of Scotland Protessional Justineties an Enjoy your stay croft cottages.

Write or phone for brochure: Machaps Lagrace

London

SUITE DREAMS AT THE CONRAD INTERNATIONAL LONDON

Only £153 | Offer subject to availability any per suite, per night also 2 children under 12

the hotel direct quoting DBA. Cheisen Harbour, London SW10 0XG. Tel: 0171 823 3000 Fax: 0171 351 6525 day until 31st August 1996. For full details and reservations call

BARGAIN HOTEL HOTEL ACCOMMODATION

CENTRAL LONDON LONDON From NOW to 30TH SEPT Up to 50% off B&B & SELF CATERING AVAILABLE PRICES FROM £16.50pp inc VAT For brochure please call 120m just £45 PP PX sharing a result 01372 464488 LSE RESIDENCES 0171 955 6855 or 0171 955 757 NO ONE'S MORE CENTRAL Norfolk

THE BLAKENEY HOTEL

AA/RAC ** ETB Four Crown Com Blakeney, Nr. Holt, Norfolk. Overlooking National Trust Harbour, traditional privately owned friendly hotel with 60 bedrooms, lift, heated indoor pool spa bath, saunas and mini gym. Relax. walk, sail, play golf, explore the Norfolk villages, countryside and coast.

Special 4 & 7 day holidays Midweek and Weekend Breaks Brochure: 01263 740797

'A Total EXPERIENCE' Wildlife and Countryside Holidays in England's Fenland BIG SKY UK SAFARIS . TO

Write: Duffins Farm, Lotts Bridge, Three Holes, Wisbech, Cambs PE14 9JG "Working with the Countryside

The Peak District PEAK DISTRICT Welcome Cot-tages, Pets, linen, fuel incl. Many less than £300 p/w May-Sapt. Brochure, 01755 702215

Suffolk

Ring: (01354) 638315

Shropshire

SEDLESCOMBE, Brickwall Hotel nr:
Battle. Todor Manor. Summer breaks. Any 2 nights ESS pp DBAB. 3rd nt accors free, pay only 255 dinner 8 breakdast. H.S./pool. 7el (01424) 870253. AJPAC 3 stat. RAC rest sward 01-96. OLD BOSHAMI, Nr. Chichester. Converted Victorian stabiles. Sleepe 8. Sechuded walled garden. Aveilable for approximation a veer from

Your guide to beauty s exercise

Beautiful scenery. Lots of things to do. A wide range of hotels, B&B and cottages. Ideal for independent travellers.

Send for your brochure plus 'what's on' mini guide to Visitor Services. 40 Station Road, Coluyn Bay LL29 8BU. Freephone: 0800 614092.

Liandudno comy Velley

where

Llandudno Conwy Valley

COAST & COUNTRYSIDE. Colourbrock-ure of 500 termhousese/cottages shroughout Wates. All bursts board inspectiod/graded. Wates Holistays (19180) 625267.
PEMBRONCSHITE: Peacetal
sutumn break in New lunarious & elegent Self Catering home, sips alsociatorias scarrary, historical location & tourist attraction. Free hamper on arrival. Col broch 1917 541242
MAYDOACH ESTUARY. Vacant
sow orwards. Cotl. gdn, waterial.
Spe 6-9. 1195ps. 01903 865370
PEMBRONCSHIRE Cottage, sederway view, Irm nearby. Brochure
18. 01437 532453 say teno.

Don't forget to mention? The Independent when replying to & adverts

Yorkshire & The Dales YORKSHIRE'S DALES. MOORS and COAST...

Chen 400 superiosell ratering tolerlay properties to no all and coastal for atoms from thome, Hermot and Heratheut Country to the Coast. Dales Holiday Cottages
E18 Brigistere Agency
Caricton Business Fast, Sopton,
North Yorkshire 8021 20G 01756 790919

HAWES, WENSLEYDALE, 40 Country Cottages. Pets w Broch. 01969 687 654 Broch. 01969 667 654 SUPERIS COTTAGES. Yorks Dales, Anthembris, Lakes, Peaks. Sylose SUPERIS COTTAGES, Yorks Doles, Northerbris, Lakes, Peales, Sylone Cottages (19244) 484700.
YORKSHIRE DALES, Moors, Coust, Peak & Lake district. Over 200 self/cst. nottages, Russtrated Brochus-Holdey Cottages Yorkshire, Water St, Stotlon. BiD23 1PB (01795) 70872.
GLAISDALE MOORS Cottage, elpe 6, at Whitey, Walter's paradise. Dotals 01205 577940.
YORK 25% OFF 2 star Heworth Court Hotel. Car Park. Central, Brochuse 01904 425156

A superb selection of quality character cottages in the Pembrokeshire Coast Nations Pork, All properties furnished to the highest standards. BRECON BEACONS BLACK MOUNTAINS NATIONAL PARK Phone now for free colour bros Over 100 self catering cottages, some sleep up to 30. Many less than £250 per week high season 01239-881397 (24hrs PEMBROKESHIRE 01874 676446

For a unique range of real holidays that are fully bonded, flexible and definitely original book AITO!

Sultry and empty: a city you can call your own

Julie Myerson savours London for the month of August

Earty morning i Covent Garden (left); Julie sier ring i by tra-g to ri. ier-not nit, the af-Mr na-ing tel-

om aid

≥аг

ar-

be

ondon in August - for those savvy enough to remain oo its dusty, ohlivious streets - seems a bit like New York. It has a similar edge and ache. You do what you like, when and if you like and then change your mind at the last minute. You don't have to queue or talk to anyooe (they're mostly foreign anyway) or book to advance. The pavements are hot and hazy and everyone you know is away io a rented Norman gite, or on a blowy Cornish beach, or a last-minute package deal to Rejkavik. You can own the city, make yourself at home.

I first arrived in London in the long, slow middle of August, I was 23 and didn't have a clue about the capiwhere you grew up knowing everyone on the late-night buses and I craved the promised romance of the rat race, the decadence of anonymity.

I had one duffel hag and - thanks to a gracelessly endured secretarial course - a Job. My flatshare was in Kensington, rented from the sister of a friend of a friend

- and was inhabited by Pam, a physiotherapist, and Grace, a waitress and would-be punk rock musician.

Grace served pancakes on the King's Road. Her bair was jet hlack ("Sbould I go back to blonde?" she demanded as soon as I put down my bag) and her fingernails gleamed black, too.

Come on, what should she do? Go back to St Albans and get married, or chuck in the pancakes and try to make it in the music husiness?

Like many uneasy extroverts, she revealed herself to be as lonely as me and we often wandered the sultry, empty streets together, exhausted and dazzled by the loud August light, reading our star signs in humid laundrettes.

The flat - a basement - was dark and stuffy: the windows barred, the obstinate, heavily upholstered rooms lit by bronze candelabra-style lights with leaves that peeled down like banana skins. At the end of the ball was a cluster of Harrods carrier bags stuffed with size 4 1/2 reptile-skin shoes, belonging to no one knew who. My room was at the end of the corridor, partitioned off from the bathroom. Water belched and gurgled all night. Pam was "away" and Grace worked shifts, so I was frequently alone in the evenings, padding around on the thick, wine-stained beige carpets, listening to the bot, dark noises on the pavements above my head.

I didn't mind that I had no friends. I walked, got my shoes re-heeled a lot, eked out cappucinos in deserted cafes, day dreamed on chilly marble gallery seats, did everything that was free - and then went back and did

We enjoy the smell of scorched pavements hosed: down on hot mornings, the lavish, dingy cool of museums where you can wander peacefully for hours among dinosaur bones and meteorites

Sometimes I got on the tube and rode the Piccadilly Line from South Ken to Russell Square and back again. The August tube stations were cool, yawning holes; I was an anonymous city dweller. My beart cantered at the mere thought. In those first August days, I always set off an bour early for work. I told myself it was in case I got lost, but actually it was a mixture of creeping loneliness and the idea of that empty, languorous city out there, tempting me.

In Covent Garden, everything was still and closed, the pavements giving up their early morning smells of cleaning fluid, office workers snatching brief fags in shop doorways. One day as I passed the usual French Patisserie, a young man stuck his hand out of the pavement hatch and called me in and offered me a just-baked crois-

The green to know this wasn't normal for Loodon (though maybe it was normal for August), I went eagerly down the steps to a baking basement kitchen. Del clocked oo at six each morning to turn on the massive steel patis-serie ovens and had seeo me passing more than once. He'd left New Zealand two mooths before and knew no so worried.

I explained I was still finding my way to work and he lent me his A-Z and showed me I was getting off the tube two stops too early for the South Bank. I continued to get off early anyway and kept him company for half an huur each morning as he flipped the croissants over on to their flaky, golden bellies. Then one day his French girlfriend turned up.

I don't know what happened to Del, or to Grace. But I became a Londoner and remain affectionately in thrall to this city in its Empty, Abandoned Mouth.

"Are you going away?" everyone says and, "When are you off?", "Don't you just bave to get out in August?" — and I say no actually, we're all staying right here.

My man goes to the Test Match and my children and I roam tranquil streets whose edges are frilled with unhurried cafés and fruitstalls, and stacked banana boxes. We enjoy the smell of scorched pavements hosed down on hot mornings, the lavish, dingy cool of museums where you can wander peacefully for hours among dinosaur bones and meteorites. The loneliness is all gone, but now and then little things jangle: the hlue-burnt rush of wind from the underground, a waiter's teenaged face, the crunchy, singed smell of a laundrette, a bleakly wealthy Queens Gate Mews. And theo I'm back, pounding these streets with no money or friends but a heap of excitement, always rightly—convinced my life is waiting for me round some stifling, windy corner.

Travel as many times as you like for £59 a year.

Take out American Express annual travel insurance and you can make £59 go a long way. Because one payment means you can take an unlimited number of trips throughout the year.

And now, you don't have to be an American Express Cardmember to enjoy this added security from a worldwide company.

Our insurance covers almost every eventuality; not just medical matters but baggage loss, theft of personal property, legal expenses and travel delay.

What's more, you can cover your family from as little as £95. And for the less frequent traveller, we can also arrange single trip cover. To enrol, call the number below between 8am and 8pm quot-

American Express travel insurance it makes you feel good all over.

Arrange 365 days of cover in just 5 minutes.

0800 700 737

Insurance

15 night Far Eastern Adventure from £1950

Experience the traditional luxury and tranquility of a experience the traditional fuxtry and tranquility of a tall ship undersail, combined with the highest standards of comfort and style, when you cruise the beautifully warm seas of South East Asia, aboard Star Flyer. You can even help sail her if you wish.

After a short stay in Singapore join Star Flyer and sail northwards to Phuket, visiting some of the most delightful islands of Thuiland and Malaysis on the way. Star Flyer will venture to places where no other cruise ship has been amidst the breathtaking beauty of the Thailand Archipelago. Enjoy tropical beaches lapped by turquoise seas and encounter fabulous underwater sights with Star seas and encounter fabulous underwater sights with Star started and lead to the started started and the started started started and the started Flyer's excellent water sports facilities. On reaching Phuket enjoy its natural beauty and unspoilt charm.

Far a ic range

holidas.

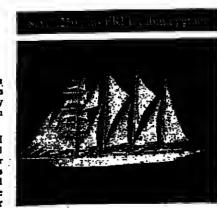

are fully

"exible?

ujigil

111()

- · Scheduled BA flights between London Heathrow and Singapore/Bangkok;
- · 7 nights cruise with full board and cabin upgrade on Star Flyer;
- 2 nights accommodation in Singapore at The Melia at Scotts and 4 nights in Phylics at the Kata Thani Hntel on a room only basis,
- Flights between Bangkok and Phuket on Thai Airways; transfers between airports, hotels and Star Flyer,
- Port taxes and UK departure tax; £250 per person saving on brochure faces.

01590 679411 Send to: The Independent/Star Phys. Offer. c/o Bath Travel 36 High Street, Lymington Hants SO41 9AF

SUMMER IN THE CITY

Ealing Jazz Festival, Watpole Park,
Mattock Lane, W5 (0181-758 5743).
4-11 August, from 7.30pm. Free if you just want to lie on the grass but if you'd prefer a seet in the marquee, tickets cost £3. For the highlight get down on Sunday when the grandfather of British jazz, Tommy McQuater, opens the festival.
Other players include John McJew. the Other players include John Mclevy, the James Chadwick quartet, Bill Skeat, Mike Peter's world famous jazz band... the list

Swiss Cottage Festival, Swiss Cottage, Avenue Road, NW3 (0171-586 8731). All day Sunday II August. Free. In the small park here this is very much a community do: there's theatre for kids, games, competitions and, towards the evening, a music stage where local youth bands show off their talents with a mix of jazz, reggae, rock, and Latin music. If this teast fails to satisfy excess energy, Hampstead Heath is a hearty walk

Tango, Broadgate Arena Summer Entertainments, Broadgate Centre, Eldon Street, EC2 (0171 588 6565) Wednesday 28 August, from 5.30-9pm. Free. The City of London is normally silent after 6pm, especially in August, when most of the big players from the dealing houses around the Broadgate complex are salling their yachts. But the spirit of Buenos Aires will bring it alive at the end of the month. Anyone can go to the arena and learn (or just watch) "real" Argentine

Hay's Galleria Oyster and Seafood Fair, Hay's Galleria, London Bridge City,

Tooley Street, SE1 (0171-403 4758). 30 August-1 September 11am-7pm . What is, for most of the rest of the year, a quiet and mostly empty shopping plaza, comes as alive as a bivalva for the annual fishy festival, including the National Fishmongers Craftsmanship

Omega Douglas

A Special Announcement

7 nights in Costa Rica, the Land of Wonders, from £495.00

A glorious climate, beautiful landscapes, lakes, rivers, two coastlines, exotic flora, wildlife, friently people, national parks, sophisticated lifestyle, peaceful, beaches beyond belief and a true paradise on ful, beaches beyond belief and a true paradise on earth. Costa Rica is without doubt the most exciting destination in travel today.

From 19th December the above will be made available to the British traveller when we recommence our flight series to San Jose, the lovely capital of Costa Rica. Since the country is small and diverse, most places of interest can be visited in the course of the three travellers are the sinclude the Pacific or Cardibase. of one day, these include the Pacific or Caribbean coasts, the Turtle channels, the national parks, volcanoes, coffee plantations, orchidfarms, botanical gardens, lakes and San Jose with its lovely squares, theatres and museums.
With these attributes we have decided on the 4-star

Hotel Torress our base both to relax and explore. It has fine accommodation with full facilities, bars, restaurant, garden and swimming pool. Excursions are available to all of the sights mentioned above. are available to all the sights instantioned above.
We are making available just 20 places at a special lariff on a first-come first-reserved basis from just £495 for a seven-night stay.
Remember that Costa Rica, although being the third sphere, is inexpensive and unspoilt by large

DEPARTURE DATES & PRICES Thursdays - per person in a bein 1996 December 19, 26,595 1997 Jan 2, 9, 16,5495 - Jan 23, 30,5515 February 6, 13, 20,27,5325 March 6, 13, 20,5535 - March 27,5565 April 3, 10, 17, 24, 535 May 1, 8, 15, 22, 29, 525 Single room symplement £125 des: Peturn flights, road transfers, 7 mights' at the 0171-6161000

VOYAGESJULESVERNE 21 Dorset Square, London NW] LAL ABTAVISSI ATOLAND

What would you pay for a slice of the country?

Estates are getting smaller, but no less desirable. By Mary Wilson hat constitutes an estate? That's what many agents ask when they receive enquiries about marketing a property with a number of acres attached. The very general answer seems to be that if the property is in Scotland, you are talking at least 1,000 acres; if south of the border, then an estate can be as small as

Ideally it should have a house and at least three additional amenities - sport, which could be hunting, fishing, stalking: farming (let or in hand): and forestry or another enterprise. Private huvers look for the amenities and agricultural qualities of an estate - foreign purchasers are particularly keen on the sporting element.

According to Jim Bryant of Bidwells. in East Anglia, "traditionally a landed estate conjures up visions of a substantial house standing in landscaped parkland with a range of estate cottages, in hand and let farmland, forestry and a significant sporting value.

"Sadly, over the course of time a number of the great estates have been slowly reduced in size in an attempt to raise funds, and a nomber of small estate properties have appeared on the open market in recent years, either as a result of this fragmentation or where a new estate has been assembled with a new house set in amenity farmland."

The Furneaux Pelham Hall Estate is soch a traditional estate. Bidwells is selling it for more than £4 million. It is for sale in its entirety or in up to eight lots. The main property is a magnificent Grade II* listed house with seven bedrooms and a swimming pool; it has 738 acres, a lake, self-contained four-bedroom cottage, stabling for nine horses, another farmhouse with swimming pool, and a commercial arable farm with a deer enterprise on the parkland, The 173 acres of woodland did provide a good shoot that could be reinstated.

"It is rare nowadays for a residential and amenity estate of this calibre to come on to the open market," explains Mr Bryant. "The key is the location - jost 34 miles from London. So far we have had offers for both the estate in entirety and for bits of it." What is very much in evidence at the moment, is that the purchasers of estates are no longer huying them as a status symbol, "People are huying estates because they want an income," says Christopher Wilson of The Wilson Group. "There is a very different perception of estates now than in the Eightics. Then purchasers just wanted a way of life and were prepared to pay out £100,000 a year for it. Now they want an estate to be a viable form of investment." There are an increasing number of people, both British and from the Middle and thus creating a new estate. Longwood, a charming Grade II listed timber-frame 1,376 acre estate which is being sold by Savills, for example, has 1,000 acres of farming land, 409 acres of woodland and 13 cottages and planning for a new 10,000 square foot Queen Anne-style house, It has been put on the market for offers in excess of £5 million by an offshore investment trust which wishes to take advantage of the rise in estate values.

Tel: 0171 293 2222

For anyone looking to spend much less than a million pounds, James Harris, a Winchester agent, is selling Hawstead Farm in Hursley. The estate earns its keep (but no more than this) through a shoot. "This is a 211-acre Far East, who are buying a lump of land through a shoot. "This is a 211-acre wall. The owner, Mrs Clark, has run a without a main house and building one, Hampsbire sporting estate with a successful farm and small stud there for per cent inheritance tax relief if the farming is in hand and 50 per cent if two-bedroom cottage," says partner, it is let - capital gains from forestry is Hume Jones. It has a park, woodland, also tax free, However, all these henpasture and arable land, and is on the market for £600,000. efits could all disappear if there is a

James Laing of Strutt & Parker, change of government, so now may be reckons that "traditionally an estate" the time to buy... has been worth more whole than in parts. It is only in the last six years, that selling an estate in hits has been much easier and produced more money for

Strutt & Parker is selling Tregavethan Manor, which is a profitable equestrian estate in Kenwyn, near Truro in CornTimber-frame garages

Househunter

Anyone who wants to add a Agarage to a pretty cottage might think twice ahoot putting up a standard brick building with up-and-over doors. Bot help is at hand. English Heritage Buildings prodoces oak timber-frame garages, sold in kit form by mail order. The company prides itself on its extra-wide dimensions, "large enough for a Rolls-Royce," says partner, Philippe Abbott-Wilcox. The kit arrives ready to assemble, fully mortised and with traditional oak pegs and a 25-year guarantee. All you need to do is to find a builder to construct it. to find a builder to construct it.
The price of a single garage is £999 ex VAT; double £1998 ex VAT and £3794 ex VAT for a four-hay version. English Heritage Buildings, 01424 838643.

For What It's Worth

Although confidence in the Ahousing market is increasing. it is with very careful steps that it is moving forward. In the second-hand market, sales are increasing and it is this sector that has been doing the worst. In contrast, sales of new homes - which were doing so much better than older ones - fell by 11 per cent in the first half of 1996. The latest survey of the property market from The Independent Home Sale Network - a group of 615 independent agents across England and Wales - shows that enquiry levels are up, with 81 per cent of agents reporting increased activity, although 6 per cent were still suffering from a decrease. However, "agents' comments on the market were generally far more favourable than the actual figures showed," says director, Hywel Luke. The report states that first-time buyers are still reloctant to come forward. except in London and the north-west, and it also confirms that the north-south divide is lessening, with a three-hedroom semi-detached house in the north-west now costing only a little less than one in the southwest, which averages at £55,300.

property • residential

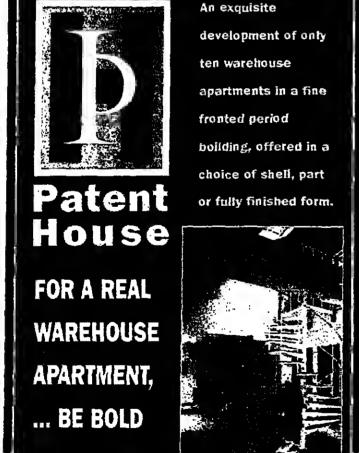

IN SPECIAL CIRCUMSTANCES

THIRD FLOOR APARTMENT

RE-AVAILABLE FOR SALE

AT THE STRIKING WARNER HOUSE LOFT STYLE DEVELOPMENT

Fax: 0171 293 2505

Single, Double &

Triple Deck Living

PATENT HOUSE LONDON E14

CONTACT: Quayline 0171 - 702 1293

•

AREA: 820 - 2420 sq. ft.

PRICE: £89,995 - £219,995

Grenefairst Park estate

mith private leisure facilities. 2 recep rms, fi kitchen: Mstr bed ensuite:

is Capel, Surrey. Set in 14 acres of Part

3 further beds, family bath

walled gurden; garage for Selv & £2850 or To be & £2,480p

Essex

GIVE ME A

HOME....

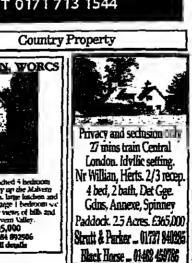

am a Georgian town house, ovingly decorated and cared for Lovingly decorated and cared for by a nice professional couple who need to relocate. I look small from outside but I have three floors with four bedroums and two bathrooms. I also have a countyard garden, an enormous cellar beginn to be connected.

cellar begging to be converte and a resident's parking space. I am one minute from the market square used in Longon stagering distance from both the local pub and Chinese restaurant and Liverpool Street is only 55 mins by train. Saffron Walden is mins by train. Saffron Walden is a pretty North Essex town where people still say good morthing and it is safe to go out at night. The best bit of all is they only want 195,000, If you think you can give me a good home - call 02799 520520 questing FAR/42

lest offers by Fridey 23 August 1996 Guide Price: £55,000

Classified advertising also appears on page 9.

Prices reduced for quality two bedroom apartments within easy travelling distance of the City. Hermitage Court, Wapping E1.

Country Property

£150.000

01453 860404

stocked with trout and carp. The agent s looking for offers in the region of

The same agent has a very much larger estate, the Gaick Estate, in and has attracted considerable interest

Bertie Ross, head of Savills' Agri-

Savills is selling a small Scottish estate which is really two in one. The past, but has slowly been nibbled away

There are capital gains advantages, 100

James Harris, 01962 841842; The

Wilson Group, 0171-589 4161:

Bidwells, 01223 841841; Savills

0131 226 6961; Strutt & Parker,

Exeter, 01392 215631; Strutt &

Penny Jackson returns next week

Parker, Edinburgh, 0131 226

£1million.

sold for £2.25 million.

serious business side."

Bovis Homes Limited have recently reduced prices on a select number of previously rented prestigious 2 bedroom apartments at Hermitage Court, Wapping.

Hermitage Court is an attractive development centred around a transpol landscaped countyard, strategically located Tower Hill and Wapping underground stations on the doorstep of the City of Landon. Prices quoted include light fittings, a fully fitted ketchen, carpets and curtains throughout and an allocated space in the secure underground car park.

APARTMENT 4 Proposit (M200) NOW £155,000 APARTMENT 25 Person CIST IN NOW E135,000 APARTMENT 33 Promot Carollo NOW £210,000 APARTMENT AT THE COME NOW E185,000 APARTMENT 95 Promission NOW £170,000

Aparuneus are offered on a 117 year unexpired lease with porterage and competitive service charges. For further information please contact the Sales Office on 0171 481 2457 (24 hours). PRICES CORRECT AT TIME OF GOING TO PRESS

EAST DEVON, Familiouse

OR SALE Macon (Photo in test weeks independent) 40th narrow boat moored at Little Venice Tel: 0113 293 0761

France FRENCH PROPERTY NEWS monthly, for your of the copy life-phone (0181) 9471834. FOCUS ON PRANCE Magazine, For the copy life, the To Let WCI Spain Mini Penthouse. views over London. COSTA DEL SOL 2 double beds.

FOR SALE
APARIMENTS/VILLAS
ARS/RESTAURANTS AND fully fitted kitchen. Slate/Maple bath. P.W. £225.00 Tel: 0171 607 4989 INSPECTION FLIGHTS AND ACCOMMODATION ARRANGED Tel 01903 884663 (https://doi.org/10.1003/10.0003) CLD BOSMAM, WEST SUSS Converted Victorian stable Sleeps 6. Sectuded walked g den. Available mid-August 71903 732554 (Evening #1 or whele Nyrae Properties (Ovenista) Old Bank House, I High Street, Arandel, West Sunsex BNIS 9AD seciuded. Tele Overseas Property FORLD OF PROPERTY More than any other. Free copy $181 542

المكذا من الاحل

To advertise

in this section

please call

0171 293

2302.

sier ing to the af-

: m

The bulk of the population is still largely ignorant about the stock market and unaware of the benefits to be had from putting money into shares as a long-term investment

s the private investor at a serious disadvantage when it comes to investing in the stock market? The conventional wisdom seems to be that he is. Discriminated against by the tax system, and starved of valuable information and opportunities by the way the City works, this holds that he has next to no chance of doing as well as the professional institutional investor. While the privatisation programme may have led to a revival in the number of private investors owning shares directly, most still have only one or two shares in their portfolios. So we are still a long way from reversing the long-term decline in wider share ownership in this country.

That, in essence, is the conventional argument on where the private shareholder stands. According to Sir Mark Weinberg, chairman of a committee set up by the Stock Exchange to examine whether the private investor is a dying hreed, there is some truth in all this. But his committee's report, published last month, predictably got a poor press, with mnst commentators saying that he had failed to come up with enough specific recommendations to reverse the trend.

Sir Mark's real offence seems to bave been that he failed to criticise strongly enough the Stock Exchange's new rule allowing companies to exclude private investors from most new issues if they so choose. It was this decision which originally prompted the setting up of the committee. In addition, he said it was largely up to the financial services indus-

JONATHAN DAVIS INVESTMENTS

Stock Exchange, to come up with ways of tempting more private shareholders back into the fold.

Neither conclusion was guaranteed to win any plandits from a constituency which prefers decisive-looking actions to well-meant words, and which has long marked the Stock Exchange down, not entirely without justice, as an enfeebled and not very effective organisation. Yet, in my view, Sir Mark is largely right on both counts. In fact, I would go further in saying that the outlook for private sharebolding is probably brighter now than it bas been for some time - partly because of new technology, and partly because of the recent changes in the financial services industry, which have introduced much more effective competition.

The impact of potentially low-cost PCbased systems for communicating infortry, rather than the Government or the mation, chupled with the growing aware- wider range of choice over how and where institutions in the UK, results

when Abhey converted from a floated on the Stock Exchange, to offer shares to members only,

and not to corporate investors.

keted successfully as consumer items like many others, should he eventually to transform the way that shares are owned and regarded in this country. What we have lacked so far is the emergence of a firm with the courage and resources to do for personal investment what Direct Line has done so successfully in insurance.

The market is certainly there, waiting to he exploited. The committee's research suggested that concern over the fate of the private investor should not be exaggerated. For example:

 Although private investors inevitably hold a much smaller proportion of the quoted stock market now than they did 30 years ago, this is largely the result of the rowth in pension funds and life insurance industries over the period. But the number of individual shareholders has risen from 3 million to 9 million, largely as a result of the privatisation programme. Although private investors appeared to be net sellers of shares in the 1980s, the strong growth in share prices means that direct sbare investment still represents a larger proportion of the nation's personal liquid wealth than it did 20 years ago. (Remember also that the average pension fund has some 80 per cent of its assets in the stock market, so the proportion of the nation's total wealth now represented by shares is certainly at record levels).

With the huge growth in the unit trust and investment trust industries over the last 30 years, investors now have a much ness that financial services can be mar- to invest their money in shares than they did before. Contrary to popular impression, the proportion of the population which holds shares directly in the UK is also about the same as it is in the United States - and still far ahead of most Continental countries.

Despite this evidence, what is not in doubt is that the hulk of the population is still largely ignorant about the stock market and unaware of the benefits to he had from putting money into shares as a long-term investment. Sixty per cent of the population still do nothing but hold all their spare cash in a huilding society or bank, regardless of whether it is long-term or short-term savings. This is clearly not a rational course of action when at times like the present their money is losing its value in real terms each year.

Most Britons, the research suggests, are essentially very risk-averse. The big unknown is bow far this is due to a genuine borror of risk, and how far to an inadequate understanding of the nature of the risk involved in huying shares. The Weinherg committee concludes, reasonably I think, that it is as much the latter as the former. Assessing risk is not one of our strongest cards as a nation. The National Lottery and the BSE crisis have amply demonstrated as much this year. Of course there is more that the Government could do on the tax front: aholishing capital gains tax is the obvious step towards encouraging more savings and removing one of the worst distortions. But there is also much that the City could do to spread awareness of the different ways in which the risks of equity investment can be managed. The underlying challenge is ultimately a commercial one. People will invest more in shares, as with any other good, if they are persuaded that it is in their interests to do so.

What confuses the issue in most of the dehate is the distinction between buying individual shares and huying a collective investment such as a unit trust or investment trust. For many investors, a fund managed by someone else is the hest way to invest in the market. It gives them the henefit of diversification and the chance to delegate the management of their money to someone whose full-time job it is. The main problems are how to pick the right fund for their needs, and how to avoid paying too much in charges. The issue of whether people should pick their own shares and handle their own portfolios is a quite distinct one. I share, with many professinnal investors, the view that there is no reason why individual investors should not produce better results than most so-called professionals. Private investors of this kind have many inherent advantages.

They do not have to pay their own management fees and overheads. They can afford to take a long-term view, and to sit out the market if they wish. And so on. But individuals are only likely to be able to profit from these advantages it they are prepared to put some time and effort into handling their investments - and not all of us are able or willing to do so.

Big Bang for two building societies

What will N&P's merger with Abbey National mean for customers? Ken Welsby reports

he busy bee has buzzed its last. As the merger of National & Provincial with Ahhey National takes effect tomorrow, the building society's familiar logo will disappear from the streets.

Although all N&P hranches and cash machines - are closed to customers until Monday morning, an army of more than 1,200 people is working round the clock to make the merger happen: installing new computer systems and replacing the husy hee with Abbey's familiar red umbrella.

It is the first time a "Big Bang" of this kind has been attempted. The previous hig huilding society merger, of the Leeds and Halifax, corporate identity, hut consolidation of accounts and systems has been phased over almost a year.

When N&P hranches closed their doors at 5pm last night, staff had two hours in which to balance their accounts before the computer network shut down. Engineers started arriving soon afterwards, installing new PCs and printers which are heing linked to the Ahhey network over the weekend.

Meanwhile gangs of contractors are visiting every branch to install new signs: in many cases the new name-boards are already in place, hidden by temporary N&P signs which can quickly be pulled down.

Wapper

BOVIS

. . . .

1979 - ·

About 100 N&P and 10 Abbey branches have closed, with accounts transferring to another office nearby. Nn staff are being made redundant as a result of the merger, since both organisations have freezed recruitment since last year's annoucement of the link-up.

The marriage, which involves the transfer of assets worth £13bn, has taken 55 weeks to consummate. But the climax, so far as most N&P customers are concerned, is still a few weeks away. Abbey's shares are held by private the payout, worth at least £500 in investors, rather than institutions. shares or cash, does not come and this proportion will increase until the end of the month. ong-serving N& and loyal customers are dismayed at the end of the society's independence, and the switch from membership of a mutual to being customers and shareholders of a pic. But they can find some reas-surance in the fact that Ahbey's roots and culture have grown from the same soil: the 19th century huilding society movement.

Buzzing off: National & Provincial's bee will disappear

The early huilding societies were exactly what the name sugests: groups of local people who dubbed together to raise money for huilding homes of their own. N&P traces its origins back to the Bradford Third Equitable Benefit Building Society, founded in 1864, and incorporates half a dozen other societies dating back to the same period.

Abbey National was created in 1944 by the merger of the Ahbey Road and National building societics. Established in 1849, the National's chief object, according to the first prospectus, was to qualify members to vote at elections, which at the time required ownership of freehold land worth 40 shillings a year.

Today about 45 per cent of more than £560, and dividend payments to date have been worth another £100-plus.

Some N&P savers will benefit from better interest rates than those currently offered by the society. On Tessa accounts, for example. Abhey offers higher rates than N&P for amounts over £8,400.

Those with mortgages over £60,000 will pay a slightly lower rates: while N&P's standard variable rate was 7.04 per cent. Abbey charges 6.99 per cent for mort-gages from £60,000 to £99,999 and 6.94 per cent over £100,000.

Ahhey's personal loans are to almost 50 per cent following the cheaper - a full percentage point holding, unique among financial over £5,000. Visa card holders will see their monthly interest rate cut from the decision taken in 1989, from 1.63 per cent to 1.52 per cent, or 1.38 per cent for balances over £1,000. building society to a hank and

The Other group to benefit will be N&P customers with Max or Instant Access accounts. In place There's comfort also to he of their existing ATM card they drawn from Abbey's financial per- have new Electron cards which formance. At the time of conver- can be used as debit cards for paysion, members received 100 free ment in shops as well as to make shares, worth £130 at the time. withdrawals from the "hole in Today those sbares are worth the wall.

M&G TOP CORPORATE BOND PEP PERFORMER AFTER 1 YEAR

Following the first anniversary of Corporate Bond PEPs, The Sunday Express shows that M&G has one of the best performance records.

The M&G Corporate Bond PEP gives you a sensible way of achieving a high level of income exempt from all UK personal taxes. The capital value of, and income from, units are not guaranteed.

No initial charge

No withdrawal fee after 5 years

For details return the coupon or telephone (0990) 600 629 or e-mail hb@MandG.reply.Co.UK

To: The M&G Group, Bristot BS38 7ET. Please send me a free copy of the new M&G Handbook including The M&G Corporate Bond PEP and details of M&G's future investment opportunities.

NO SALESMAN WILL CALL

You should contact your independent financial adviser (if you have one) before investing. The price of units and the Incoma from them can go down as well as up. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. The value to you of the tax benefits will depend on your own circumstances. The tax regime of PEP's could change in the future.

ADDRESS

M&G does not offer investment advice or offer any recommendations regarding investments.

We only market the packaged products and services of the M&G marketing group. issued by M&G Financial Services Limited (Regulated by The Personal Investment Authority). MSG Link Thusts are managed by MSG Securities Limited. (Regulated by IMPIO and The Personal Investment Authority.) unconnected proemisations. We will necessorally tell you sbout other products or services offered by ourselves and

Tick the box f you would prefer not to receive this

GG-CBAETJ

Managing your money for the longer term

The M&G Corporate Bond PEP

MORE CASH FOR YOUR ENDOWMENT.

CALL SEC MONEYLINE NOW 0181 207 1666.

SEC will pay you much more money than the nder value. Don't lose out on that extra cashi Your policy must be at least 8 years old. FAX: 0181 207 4950

SECURITISED ENDOWMENT CONTRACTS PLC

PENSIONS MADE SIMPLE

24 hours a day..... 7 days a week..... Now you can pick up the phone and get pensions information or advice and even set up a plan, quickly and without fuss.

0345 6789 10

SCOTTISH WIDOWS

For your protection, your call to Scottish Widows may be recorded. Issued by Scottish Widows' Fund and Life Assurance Society, a mutual company. Regulated by the Personal Investment Authority. Information or advice will only be provided on Scottish Widows products.

MORTGAGES

Variable rates

Unsecured

Orrect Line

Midland Bank

Abbey National

Standard

Gold cards

Midland Bank

John Lewis

E Available to con

CREDIT CARDS

Robert Fleming/S&P 0800 829024

Robert Fleming/S&P 0800 829024

People's Bank Conn 0500 551055

Co-operative Bank 0345 212212

Royal B of Scotland 01702 362890

STORE CARDS

Marks and Spencer 01244 681681

All rates subject to change without notice.

01702 353344

Secured (second charge)

Clydesdale Bank 0800 240024

Barclays Bank 0800 000929

Scarborough BS 0800 590547

FirstMortgage B$ 0800 080088

Hinckley&Rugby 8S 0800 774499

Principality BS 01222 344188

Bradford & Bing BS 0800 252993

First time buyers fixed rates

Bristol & West BS 0800 608088

Market Haboro' BS 01858 463244

Northern Rock BS 0800 591500

First time bayers variable rates

Northern Rock 8S 0800 591500

Principality BS 01222 344188

Alliance & Leicester 0116 262 6262

0800 101110

0141 248 9966 13.90E

PERSONAL LOAKS

081081 0080

Royal B of Scotland 0131 523 7023 8.70

West Bromwich BS 0121 525 7070 6.55 to 1/11/99

Best borrowing rates

adv %

85

85

90

95

0.75%

£275

0275

£250

With insurance

Max LTV Advance

Unauthorised

% PM

2.18

2,20

% ព្រ

1.00

1.13

1.05N

1.10

14,00

14,40

14.50N

15.30

1.39

1.97

2.20

£114 93

£115.82

Neg £3K - £15K

70% £2 5K-£100K

80% £10K-75K

9.5

Authorised

0.78 9.5

520,000

£20,000

24.80

25.90

Source MONEYFACTS 01692 500677

and the second

Payment by direct debit

APR Annualised percentage rate, B+C Buildings and Contents usurance UT/Loan to value. ASU Accodent, sickness and unemployment.

0.94 11.9

£295 £300 cash rebate

Fixed monthly payments (£3,000 over 3 years)

0.20 for 1 year

7.40 to 1/8/01

4.49 to 1/7/98

4.24% to 1/8/99

9.3/9.6

Alliance

MasterCard/Visa —

MasterCard/Visa

1.94

Visa

5.43 to 30/9/01 90

· 7,49 to 1/8/01

0.00 for 9 months 70

3.60% to 1/10/98 90

penalty

1st 5 yrs:7.04% of sum repaid

1st 6 yrs: 6% of advance

To 1/8/02: 5% of advance

1st 5 yrs: dis red'd & 3 m int

To 30/9/01: discount reclaimed

To 30/6/01: 8/6 mths interst

To 1/7/00: 3 miths interest

1st Gyrs: 5% of sum repaid

To 30/6/01: discount recland

1st 7 yrs: 5% of sum repaid

To 30/9/03: 1-4% of advance

Without insurance

6 mths to 25 years

3 years to retirement

5 to 25 years

29.5

29.8

Annual

£12

235

£35

Payment by other methods

1 August 1996

APR

18.00

26.30

29.80

Int free

period

56 days

56 days

46 days

46 days

56 days

Pensioner's G'feed Income Bond

NS Certificates (bax-free)

Chadren's Bond

£101.33

£102.36

£102.49

1st 5 yrs-6 mths int

Best savings rates
	Telephone	Account	Natice or term	Deposit	Rate %	Interest interval
BASTANT ACCESS						100
Portman BS	01202 292444	Instant Access	Instant	£100	4.50	Year
Sun Banking Corp	01438 744505	Liquidity	instant	£25,000	5.00	Year
Shipton BS	01756 700511	High Street	astark	£30,000	5.15	Year
Direct Line	0181 667 1121	Instant Savings	astant	£50,000	5.75	Year
THISTHIT ACCESS	POSTAL ACCO	MS.
Yorkshire BS	0800 378836	First Class Access	Postal	£1,000	4.90	Year .
Alliance & Leic BS	0645 645660	Instant Direct	Postal	£5,000	5.40	Year
Bristol & West 8S	0800 901109	Instant Acess Postal	Postal	£10,000	5.85	tear
Bristoi & West BS	0800 901109	Instant Acess Postal	Postal	£25,000	6.05	Year'
MOTICE ACCOUNT	2 T NONES	7 5 3 3 1 2 Y		a e		Service.
Britannia BS	01538 392808	Capital Frust 30	30 day P	€5,000	5.50	Year
Cheltenham & Glouces		90 Day	90 day P	£100	5.50	Year
First National 8S	0800 558844	90 Day Notice	90 day P	£10,600	6.20	Year
Scarborough 8S	0800 590578	Scarborough 100	100 day	£1,000	6.50	Year
CHEDUE ACCOUNT	$
Kleinwart Benson	01202 502404	HICA	Instant	$2,500	5.00	Month
Nothern Rock BS	0500 505000	Deposit Current Gold	Instant	210,000	4.07	Quarter
Cheisea BS	0800 717515	Classic Postal	Instant	£10,000	4.75	Year
Chaisea BS	0800 717515	Classic Postal	Instant	£25,000	5.00	Year
FIXED RATE BOY
Briston & Hest BS	0800 202121	Year Plus Food Boad	5/11/97	€5,800	6.50F	Maturity
Chashire BS	0800 243278	Fixed Rate Bond	31.12.98	£5,900 £1,900	6.75F 7.35F	Year
Strend & Swindon BS Britanna BS	0345 252423 0800 132304	Fixed Rate Bond High Income Bond	1 /1/ 99 1/18/2001	£1,000 £50,000	7.75F	Year
ENEST TESSAS		THE STATE OF THE	e e e e e e e e e		53550000
	01400 744505	Parameter VIII	£	£8.575	7.50F	Year
Sun Banking Corp NatWest Bank	01438 744505		5 years 5 years	25,000	7.45F	Year
Yerkshire BS	0800 378836		5 years	£9,000	7.30	Year
Principality 8S	01222 344188		5 years	2500	7.00	Year
POLLOW-ON TESS	AS		a contact
Sun Banking Corp	01438 744505		5 years	000.22	7.50F	Yваг
Northern Rock 8S	0500 505000		5 years	69,000	7.50	Year
Nativest Bank	0800 200400		5 years	£5,000	7.45F	Year
Cheftenham & Gloucest	er0800 717505		5 years	000,02	7.00	Year
GRARANTEED INC	DEBNIS				1
Financial Assurance	0181 380 3388		1 year	£5,000	4.60FN	Year
Pinnacie Assurance	0181 207 9007		2 years	£3,000	5.55FN	Year
Pinnacle Assurance	0181 207 9007		3 years	£3,000	5.90FN	Year
ITT London & Edinburgh Pinnacle Assurance			4 years	23,000 23,000	6.20FN 6.50FN	Year Year
	0181 207 9007		5 years			lices
OFFSHORE ACCOU			S. E
Newcastie Bank Gibrait		Nova Access	lustant	£25,000 £55,000	6.30 6.50	Year Year
Newcastle Bank Gibrait Britannia International		Nova Ninety 2 Year Bood	90 Day 31/7/98	£5,000	7.00F	Year
Nothern Rock, Guern	01481 714600	Millennium Bond	1/1/00	£10,000	7.50F	Year
HATTOWAL SAVING	9 BOTOMILE.	MANUAL SECTION
Investment Accounts			1 month	£20 £500	4,75	Year Year
				£25,000	5,25 5,50	ABSIL ABSIL
Income Bonds			3 months	£2,000	6.00	Month
mann oquus			2 III	£25,000	6.25	Month
Capital Bond		Series J	5 years	£100	6.65F	Maturity
First Option Bonds			12 months	£1,600	6.00F	Year'
		and the		£20,000	6.25F	Year
Description of the Albert	N P	0.4 7	Comme	CCOO	2000	Manth

FEAR OF FINANCE Clifford German

The evidence of an upturn lenders to pay off their existin the housing market is now too strong to be brushed off as a short-term rebound, although a really healthy market requires a higher level of turnover than a zero sum game. The disthe recent average of little more than a million deals a new business unprofitable in year. Much depends now on whether the millions of bome-owners who have being poached by rival failed to sell their homes lenders. over the past five years and simply taken them off the market are willing to put them back up for sale at the first whiff of a price rise. Having waited so long, many of them may decide to wait and see if the market really hots up so they can recoup more of the money they feel they have lost in the downturn. Until the supply of bouses rises it will remain an imperfect market

The chances are that the log-jam is breaking up and a hrisker market will develop, financed by extremely attractive mortgage rates and special deals. But there are already signs that mortgage lenders are reviewing some of the more generous extra incentives they are offering, in the belief that underlying demand is on the upturn.

This week Natwest Mortgage Services has ditched its one and two-year discount mortgages, to concentrate on its three-year discount and cash back package. Abbey National has reduced the cash-backs it offers to remortgage customers from per cent to 2 per cent. UCB Homeloans bas cut its standard variable rate but shaved a quarter point off its popular two-year discount

The first incentive to be because they are immediate and upfront giveaways, whereas discounts on the standard variable rate come out of cash flow. Next to come under review will be will also rise. Savings rates remortgage deals offered to must rise, and borrowers tempt customers of other will have to pay for them.

ing loan and move lender without moving house. Although every lender likes to increase market share, this business is by definition counts and cash-backs make the early years while profitable existing business is Remortgages are especially unpopular with loyal existing customers, who unless they are both determined and tough cannot renegotiate with their existing lender. They see the incentives offered to others as a kind of disloyalty bonus.

Fixed-rate loans are also due for review. They are currently out of favour with borrowers eager to see if the Chancellor will push interest rates lower still. But as soon as the first sign of an up-tick in interest rates occurs, new and existing borrowers who are not already tied into a deal by heavy redemption penalties will start moving towards fixed rates.

Although there could still be another quarter-point cut in interest rates in lieu of tax cuts at Budget time. looking ahead the general view is that rates will rise next year.

For the past two years borrowers have had a relatively good deal at the expense of savers, but as Keith Scott, bead of sales and marketing at NatWest Mortgage Services, points out, once the Halifax, the Woolwich and other societies bave converted into banks a huge tidal wave of to leave the net rate . savers who bave been suffering low savings rates because they are waiting for reviewed will be cash-backs, a conversion bonus will be released to look elsewhere.

At the same time the competition for savings from pensions, insurance and other financial products

PE

"Legal & General now has the best-value UK Tracker Fund PEP..."

Money Marketing, 23rd November 1995.

No PEP beats us on cost

(most can't match our performance)

The Index-Tracking PEP Iron Level & General offers PEP investors unheatable value for noney. At pos-HE appendiction and the perfect life anywhere else. And there are still no mulal changes or withdrawal fees to pay This can make a big difference to

For example, if growth was 10% pla a PEP which changes I'm a year would give you just 90% of this growth Whereas the Index-Tracking PEP at only 0.5% par would give you 95% Reliable performance that's hard to beat.

The Index-Tracking PEP also out-

ANNUAL CHARGE OF JUST

INITIAL CHARGES

NO WITHDRAWAL performs most other PEPs

We do this by following the FT-SE-A All-Share Index. This Index reflects the performance of the entire stockmarket, so it removes the risk of being over-exposed to shares which under-perform and lessen your return

In fact, 46,000 invested in an Index-Tracking PEP over 5 years would now be wonh £12,661% compared to just £10,600° in the average UK General Equity trust.

To find out more about the UK's best-value PEP, call now or return the Suggest Microphicits an offer to but have with not against formered from 01 02.91 (o. 01 02.90. This figure makes an allow a PEP but our charges would not openly and, after the performance disparsh.

Per performance or one necessarsh a global to innote performance is not expend and margine values may go down as well as 1143 assentigments are three currents applicable and are subject to support change. The value of tax relationship of the performance are three currents applicable and are subject to support change. The value of tax relationship of the performance are three currents applicable and are subject to support change. कार कुर के अपने के अपने के पान कार्य है तह है जो के किया है जो के अपने के अपने के अपने के अपने के अपने के अपने 4. All superiords are correct as at n1 ft1 to Legal & General (1 mr Trust Managers) Liquing Macres (Liquing Macres) Liquing Macres (Liquing Macres (Liquing

CALL	0800	11	66	22	FREE
------	------	----	----	----	------

DAYS A WEEK SAM TO JOPM. PLEASE QUOTE REF TB605.

Post to Legal & General (Unit Trus, Managers) Limited, FREEPOST KT 4 4"4, Kingston-upon-Thames, Surrey KT2 68R, Please wind me full winners details of the new Legal & General Index-Tracking PEP TELEPHONE NO

We have make your mans and address available to unconnected regard-sports. We will occupate his loss about the products we services intend in numerical and acres say legal & Lement Compliance. Hence took this box of your trust us to deliver

GET A BIGGER SHARE FOR JUST £1.67 PER MONTH

How and where the fund managers are investing

£500

£100

2100

5 year 5 year

5 year

Source: MONEYFACTS 01692 500677

Series 3

Issue H

A All withdrawals subject at 30 day loss of interest

All rates are shown gress and are subject to change without notice.

43nd issue

9th Index linked

7.00F Month

5.35F Maturity

2.50-mi Maturity

Stock market reports and analysis

Real-life financial problems solved in The Money Clinic

> All the latest on pensions and life assurance savings plans

Statistics on with-profit and unit-linked pension funds

The full details on unit and investment trust investments

Information and revieus on the latest investment options

Unit and investment trust tables covering 1, 3, 5, and 10 year performances of every fund

Plus regular free

Every month What Investment is packed with everything you need to make really successful investments. And all for only £19.95 a year (saving more than £10 off the annual news-stand cost). Select the standing order option and not only send no money now, but we'll hold that £19.95 price forever until you decide to stop."

> A SPECIAL NEW SUBSCRIBER BONUS - WORTH £9.99 But that's not all. A copy of the book "How To Read The Financial Pages" the layman's guide to reading and understanding the financial press - published price £9.99, your FREE subscription bonus.

wish to subscribe to What Investment for only £19.95 (saving £10.05 off

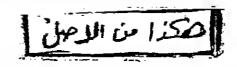

the normal annual retail rate) and claim my free copy of "How To Read The Financial Pages" STANDING ORDERS Please debit my: Access C Visa Am. Express C Diners C Signature(s Expires End Signature Teasus pay Services Sunt, Harmer Souter, Landon WI (20 26 47) for the credit of Charlestone Communications (all Account No 1938) for au CHE and CSS on the same date to Sort Code

FOR BANK USE ONLY REF: 13/8/96 Complete the coupon and return to: What Investment, FREEPOST, 4 Tabernacie Street, London EC2B 2BH Postcode enclose a cheque for £19.95 drawn on a UK bank and made payable to: Charte PLEASE ALLOW IN DAYS FOR DELY

ACT NOW

All you have to do to take advantage of this special subscription offer worth more than £20 is fill in and send off the coupon right away. The postage is paid.

WHAT INVESTMENT The shrewdest investment you Il WILL Make

Blocks of flats can mean high income

Ground rents from property freeholds are an overlooked investment opportunity, says Isabel Berwick ou may well feel that being a landlord, or worse still a freeholder with leaseholders at your mercy, is lower down the ethical scale than huying shares in BAT or British Energy. But you could get an income of up to 12 per cent a year if you invest in the freeholds attached to blocks of flats.

OF FINANCE

ain an May the

W strate we dinini.

ENGLY HAR. :

tali .

Marie 1

ARE

AND SUPPLY

the day

THE A DE LET

diagon (Kenner 192

Diese Griffing

Freeholds aren't hard to buy. There are several million leasehold flats in England and Wales and all have a freeholder. An informal market has existed for years, with desirable groups of freeholds being bought and sold privately among the small group of professional landlords who dominate the market. Some freeholds are also sold at property auctions.

The easiest way for private investors to huy freeholds is through one of the two offshore unit trusts dedicated to ground rents. The trust managers huy up freeholds, then pay another company to maintain the property and deal with the tenants. The unit trust makes most of its money from the ground rents paid by all

Investors have the security of knowing their money is hacked by hricks and mortar: tenants who fail to pay up will lose the right to live in their homes, and the trust will take possession. Athough ground rents are usually fixed at only £50-£100 a year, the freeholds only change hands for around 10 times the annual ground rent. So a freehold on a flat with a ground rent of £50 a year might cost £500 to huy, giving a 10 per cent annual yield.

Venture capitalists Close Brothers back the higgest ground rent fund, the BESSA Income Trust - a smaller one is run by Neill Clark. Close's marketing manager, David Sherman, says: "We say ground rents and gilts should form 5-10 per cent of any portfolio, as a safetyfirst foundation." They recommend ground rent investments for anyone needing a high income with low risk. And income is paid gross, so non-taxpayers won't have to reclaim

Around £3.8m has been put into the fund since it was set up three years ago. There's a 6 per cent charge on your initial lump sum a minimum of £1,000 - but the annual income has been as high as 11.5 per cent a year, although in the last financial year it was 9.4

One reason why you probably haven't heard about this type of investment is that the open market in ground rents is very small. More importantly, the two trusts are barred from advertising direct to the public hecause they don't offer any consumer protection if things go hadly wrong. City watchdog rules state that a financial adviser bas to approve and sign your investment application, to show that you

0800 374857 FOR A BROCHURE

Flatland: There are several million leasehold flats to England and Wales, and all have a freeholder. Freeholds for blocks like this one are sometimes bought and sold are aware of the risks you're taking on. In fact the funds are very safe hecause they are backed by property investment. But potential investors should be aware that these trusts don't just make money from fixed-rate ground rents. The fund managers will act like all commercial landlords and take advantage of recent changes to the law to make money from selling lease extensions and freeholds to their tenants. Many leaseholders are effectively held to ransom by freeholders once a lease drops below the end of a lease, they will fear eviction. In both cases, the flat owners will he willing to pay well above the market price to extend their leases or buy the freehold. Extending the lease also means a new contract has to be negotiated, so freeholders can charge more ground rent for the next 90 years.

So far, the changes to the law haven't made any difference to ground rent investments. But both Conservative and Labour party policy is about 50 years. They can't sell their homes to introduce "commonbold" property owner-because lenders don't like short leases. And at ship. This would bring in a new form of ownership similar to that of American condominiums, where homes are bought outright but with common responsibility for the upkeep of the huilding. The Government has drafted a Bill due for the next parliament. But investors in freeholds have no need to panic. As the Bill stands at the moment, if landlords don't want to sell up, the law won't force their hand.

> BESSA Income Trust: 0171 426 4000. Neill Clark: 0171 734 4446.

LOOSE

Yorkshire Building Society has launched a one-year Mutual Interest term account paying 6.25 per cent a year gross interest and targeted directly at investors in National & Provincial, which disappears into Abbey National on Monday morning. The Yorkshire will take cash, but it will also let investors sell Abbey National shares free of charge and reinvest the proceeds in the new account. Cash in the new account is locked in for a year but the 6.25 per cent rate is guaranteed for the rest of the year, FirstMortgage Direct has launched a variable rate mortgage at 5.95 per cent with no fees and no redemption penalties, undercutting both the market leaders, Direct Line and Bradford & Bingley Direct. Call free on 0800-080088 five days a week.

Skipton Building Society's new three year discount mortgage offers a 3 per cent discount in year one, 2 per cent in year two and 1 per cent in year three below the standard variable rate, currently 6.84 per cent. There are no fees, unemployment insurance is free, only one insurance is compulsory and the loan can be transferred to a new property within the first five years without penalty. Call Freephone 0800-603010.

General Accident Life is offering a fixed-rate mortgage at 6.75 per cent guaranteed until January 2000. Firsttime huyers can horrow up in 95 per cent of valuation and add the £195 completion fee, valuation fee and mortgage indemnity premium to the loan. The early redemption penalty is six months' interest on lnans redeemed before January 2001. Call freephone 0500-100200.

sier ring transfer for the first transfer for þп

ar-

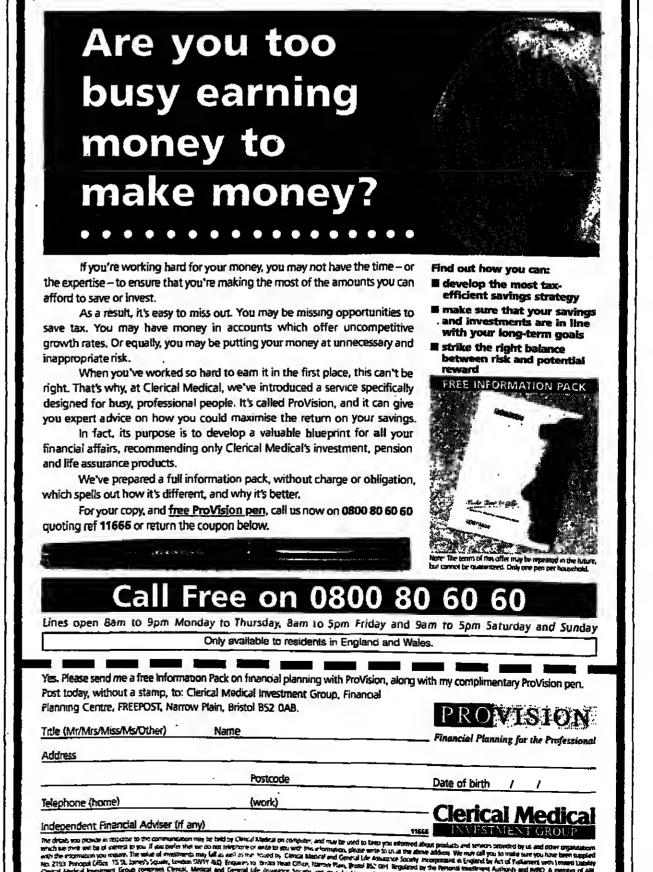

the nus be cs-bly ay.

Black Horse Financial Services offers three new bonds, combining high returns, a link to stock market performance and a measure of capital protection. The Premier Lock-in offers return of capital over six years and 100 per cent of any growth in the FT-SE 100 share index, with any gain of 25 per cent locked in. The Premier Optimum Bond offers 140 per cent of any rise in the FT-SE, and 90 per cent of capital back if the index has fallen. The Triple Bonus Bond offers capital returned in full plus a 30 per cent fixed return and 10 per cent of any FT-SE uplift.

Going Places, the largest foreign currency sales network with 700 outlets, is offering 10 free leaflets covering each of the main holiday destinations, combining information and advice on what to take and when and where to change it.

Privilege Insurance, the direct motor insurer is launching Fleetmaster, a policy designed for smaller company car fleets of up to 20 vehicles.

CINEMA

Riverside, London

arresting adaptation of the higgly inventive son's beautifully observed piece set at a funeral, from artists under the age of 35. In Susan Sarandon and Simon Callow, this enchanting film evokes excitement, humour Hampstead Theatre (above) Shelagh Stephen - When English Art was Young (above) New works son's beautifully observed piece set at a funeral, from artists under the age of 35. In an exhibition in which youther efforts point to their mother and their dysfunctional pasts. James and the Giant Peach (above) Visually enchanting film evokes excitement, humour and wonder in equal measure. Flipper Conventional boy-meets-dolphin story storytelling and bound to fire the kids'

La Régie du Jeu Jean Renoir's 1939 classic social comedy, set at a weekend party. Real-ity and fantasy clash as the guests indulge in wrong side of the sheet(s) and now spends his petty rivalries and romantic intrigues. In rep,

THEATRE

Hampstead Theatre, London NW3 The Phoenician Women Kate Mitchell gives a stunning account of Euripides' play. It centres which takes few risks but is a sound piece of on the strife between Eteocles and Polyneices. the sons born from the incest of Oedipus and ocasta. RSC, Barbican, London Tom Jones The Henry Fielding classic comedy, time romping between the sheets. Theatre Royal, York EXHIBITIONS

The state of the s

comb St, London SW1; to 13 Sept ...

Sonia Lawson Retrospective exhibition which shows the development of her art from the sinister canvases of the 1960s to the Watteauderived, symbolist narratives of the 1980s and her recent, more serene imagery. Dean Clough Gallery, Halifax, to 1 Sept Ever Arnold Snap-shot style photographs reveal more about her subjects minds than outer appearances. A sensitive study of human behaviour. Barbican Centre, London EC2, to 18 Aug POP

pick of the week

Park Scotland Patti Smith (above) Back in the mid-Seventies. she was the Grand Dame of punk existential ism. 20 years on, she's back and, it less punky, is certainly still grand. After appearances earlier in the summer in post guise, sin's back this week with a band. Skepherds flush Empire-London W12, West & Thur-Betty Carter Given the recent departure of Ella Fitzgerald, Certer could claim to be the greatest jazz singer alive. Ronnie Scotts, London, Mon preties of Man has Set Thy Glory by Shelton ers and surreal questions about the imponderable of the Man Albert Hall, London, Surreal ers and surreal questions about the imponderables of life. How do they get those Tubes Sende Hande (above) tomes to the proms on down the escalators then?" BAC, London,

CLASSIGAL

COMEDY

Sean Lock Previously second fiddle to Newman Oasts The world's biggest Mancurian pop group. Storious Sospel Wells up after Sunday lunch to Sean Lock Previously second fiddle to Newman promise to shatter the peace and Harmony of The London Adventist Chorale, who sing spiritand Baddiet, Lock is now coming into his own. I have been a shatter the peace and Harmony of The London Adventist Chorale, who sing spiritand Baddiet, Lock is now coming into his own. The London New Well His act is made up of appealingly daft one-lin-ling that weekend they do it again. This should be shatter the peace and significant the significant of the should be shatter the peace and training of the should be shatter the peace and training the s

THE INDEPENDENT WEEKEND . SATUKBAY 3 AUGUST 1995

Semele Handel (above) trimes to the proms on down the escalators then?" BAC, London, Monday with a performance from his Semele.

Monday with a performance from his Semele.

William Christie alreads his come ensemble, Les Scutt Capurro Waspish San Franciscan comedian with an uncarnry ability to sting audiences. Big Top Cornedy, Stockton International Festival Sounds from Sweden GateborgsMusiken cornes to the Sounds From Series Johansson conducts with Caroline Sendoren and Goran Marcusson.

Single Martings Concert Hall, ar Aldeburgh Suifolk, Wed 7:30pm. Lee Evans More wildly entertaining stuff from .

Arts and entertainment listings

TRITE GALLERY

FILM B TLAY!

THE ADVENTIGES OF PC49 (15) Hammer Harror leste al. Barbeam Canema 3.45

LES APPRENTES (15) A French Withrail & 1 about that down-at-heel men. MGM Sinus Centre 1.51, 430, 6.30, 8.59.

BEAUTIFUL THING (15) Exploration of gave sexuality. ABC Shafkesbury Are 2.40, 5.30, 8.50, 6.46cm Mezimuse. 2.40, 4.45, 6.90, 8.55, 8.00, 6.46cm Mezimuse. 2.40, 4.45, 6.90, 8.55, 8.00, 8.00, 8.00, 8.50, 8

S.40; Alex Measures 2.40, 4.45, 6.50, 8.55
BLOOD SHIPLE [18] Clean brothers thriller Rendr 1.53, 53(1.615, 8.40; Digen Harman,
Jos. 1.40, 4.00, 6.25, 8.45
BLUE BY THE FACE [15] Collage of monologues, and skitches learning Harvey Kertel JRHI Saice Centre 1.31, 6.21
THE CHELE GIV [12] Restants omedy starring Jim Carrow, Incades MGM [2.25,
2.40, 4.45, 7.10, 9.30; Warner Mee End [2.30,
2.40, 4.50, 7.30, 9.30; Ultrare Mee End [2.30,
2.40, 1.50; Ultrare Mee End [2.30]

CRPYCAT [18] Thriller starring Segrames Weaver, Morrer Hest First 12 years, 300.

DEAD MAN [18] Jun Jarmusch's unconven-torial Western starring Johnny Dopp. 1 June Hapmarker 215, 510-508

DEROSE CALLS UP 1151 Romanta: sagar of telephone relationships. Roser 1 25, 1 20, 5 15, 7, 10, 9, 10.
THE DEVIL RIDES OUT [18] Hammer Hornee besta die 153 (Alimine) piere besteal. Barbaron Chieng Sat 740 DRACOLA (18) Hammer Harron teetral. Farbaron Carenta Sat 848, San 840 EXECUTIVE DECISION (18) Tarses thrifter starring Kurt Russell Harron Right Paul 12,40, 3,20, coat 840, 11,26 THE EXPRESS [10] Classes borner, In-

FRECO [18] Com broth, is tigrifier about a ladinapping that goes begriffly wrong. [BC Fanh in Sc [20], 4-01, n.25, x.50, Harner West Find [40], 4,10, n.30, 9-10. FLPPER [TG] Alan Shapme's cutes dol-phin leadure starring Paul Hogan, Calent Hen Faul 1.15, 3.15, 5.15, 7.15, 9.10 CC7 Hitarless (2.05, 2.10, 4.15, 7.10, 9.00)

ROBEPTS [12] Bowling hysteria starring Woody Harrelson. 180 Hora of St 1.15, 3-to, n.05, 5.35, China Measures 12.50, 5.25 LAWRENCE OF ARABIA 11471 | LAID Lam cheese thing the repair | 41 and

LEARING LAS VEGAS | 15| Starring Number Case... 115C 11am or $ 3.55, 9.45 EEON (15) A Intitution tokes a 13 years old god mobil his ware in 1 ac Berson's (holler, Harry Heat End 11.15 ONE IMPOSSIBLE (TVS) Brun De

Palmer's tilm yer and of the cult MA TV serves Sarring from Creek. 10t. 20 to 7 to 1380. 4.20, 153. 9.36. Engine 164. S. H. Martin. 20t. 4.90, 7.00, 9.30. Handricht (Sate, Rossalen 16.50) 12.05. List, 2.36. 40t. 5.20, 2.00, S. H. 9.31. Handlinght (Sate Oldon Mark), 40th 2.15. S. S. S. Pana 1.10, 2.30, 5.55, S. 30.

MOONLIGHT AND WILDITHO 1151 Elephone Perhaps some and attable state with the literary flow Engl 1.50, 4100, n 20, 9 10 PRIMAL FEAR (15) Courts son drama star-ture Richard Gree, Plana 245, 820, 11.10 rang relation of the bollowing streets the Linux-liked store of the search for the reld of the rambins. Human West Law 1,20, 3,30

(a) 5 N. C. (a) 1 No. (b) 1 (b) 1 (b) 1 (c) 1 (c TRE ROCK | 151 Starring Near Connects their Unit End 12 10, 105, 605 500 SECRETS AND LIES (15) Misc Leading Palme, 41 by company drama. (IBC Planco Ac.) 301 Sept. 6101, 1101, 1102 Magnetical for 200 S104, 6103, 620 ft 12 company 200, 6 20 S2.

SERSE AND SENSIBILITY of Ellingia Decopour area (A) of Memoria 2 ht 5.30 5.20 SHORE (18) Episada New York dianta stat mm Harsay Kenel, Meel Sansa e are 150, 645 (e10 S.M. STOLEN FACE (12) Il monet the rest to deal.

THENCS TO DO IN DESIVER WHEN YOU'RE DEAD IT IN YOUR ON THE THREE THE PROPERTY OF T THE TIT AND THE MOON I IN The Link . and a material autocomparing set. The Pro-

STORY (Perchang a community of In-TRANSPOTTERS (1st Adaptition of India) 910 (Emilio da (2012) Barrer Bert Jané ( 1224-250) 800, 730-730-1150

THE TRUTH ABOUT CATS AND DOCS (15)

Comedy starring Urna Thurman. IBC Roll Cor Rd 205, 445, 735, 976, Warner Han End 1210, 230, 545, 726, 940, 1150 Inne-travelling adverture stary Brace Willis Harner Best End 5 50 x 35

TWISTER (PG) Reval materiologies tadde the largest formal (to hi) Uklah ona this ec.Mars., IBC Ten Cr H2 155, 405, 645, 925, Barbara Chama (165, 846 Freedom MGH 1220, 130, 510, 470, 544, 635, 820

9,15 Para 1240 3.20 m/H 840, (12)(18a) P CLOSE R PERSONAL 1151 Scars Robert extind and Machelle Profiles, Frague Law 4 12 45, 3,30 6 15, 910 West End Booking Lines

West End Booking Lines
Numbers III 71 encept where meed some may leve a beolong toe.

AGC Panton Sci 1911/07/08/21/ADC Precalliby Formerts, MCN1/47/38/2/ABC Precalliby Formerts, MCN1/47/38/2/ABC Fall (St. 1970/08/2).

Cut Rd 1931/07/08/2 Barbson Chroma
68/8/89/1 Empare Leve Sci 1980/08/6/6/09/4

Lammere Rds 1991/07/1/07/7 Treachers

MCN1/07/07/09/3 The Manaria 8/0/37/3/MCM

Savos Chroma 1931/07/1/07/7 Treachers

MCN1/07/09/3 The Manaria 8/0/37/3/MCM

Low Sq 1991/32/A (Moleon Martie Andr T2)

2011/04/6/09/1/09/3/Panci 1998/8/09/09/

MCN1/07/04/3/MCM Harmaria 1991/2/2/ Oddon

MCN1/07/04/3/MCM Harmaria 1991/

Remote 87 8402 Virgin Haymarket 0181-00 mile; Warnet West End 47 4745 repertory cinema London EVERYMAN Hally Fresh Vale NW.3

EVERYMAN H-Deprish Vide NW.3 11171-1455 1557. The F-march R Michael 1151 Sc. (Legent School Pine) Helman on the Legenty-School Pine H-Berner on the Legenty-Hasdart White (181 Sai 11 Tigen No Enal 1185 San 12 Prop. + Takalie (14 - 2 174) Legent School Pine H-Law (15 - 6 190) + Hostare Brang (15 - 6 190) + Hostare Brang (15 - 6 190) -102 CHESIA The Mail SWI (1917-1-93) 16-47 Hostare White (18) Sai San 2-190, 40 Tyen School Tigenty (19 - 6 190) - Berl Brang (18) Sai Sain (18) 160 (1917-1-18) 16-47 Sain Sain (18) 160 (1917-1-18) 16-47 Sain Sain (18) 160 (1917-1-18) 16-47 Sain Sain (18) 160 (1917-1-18) 16-47 Sensa And Sain (1917-1-18) 16-57 Sensa And Sand-Shool (1918-1-18) 16-57

1847 South Bank SEL 101 (1-18) 3,232.

Sensa Acid Sensbilloy (UT Sai J. Septem The Little Grang (Let Petric Band) (UT) Sai J. Septem The Little Grang (Let Petric Band) (UT) Sai J. Septem Sai Japan Great Expectations (UT) Sai J. Septem Band Sai J. Septe

PRINCE CHARLES LENGTET PLAN WCZ PRINCE CHARLES Lescenter Place WC2 [107] 437 N/S1 Kids (15) Sar J. Affrey Broken Arrora (15) Sar A Affrey Sey Hard (PC) Sar Gyon Heaven & Provincy (15) Sar "Affrey Touche Members (15) Sar I Jahr Meyer Meghty Aphrochte (15) Sar I Affrey La Commons (Judgemen) in Stonet (15) San n. Hyper The Brokengy (15) San S Affrey (16) Commons and Commons (15) San n. Hyper The Brokengy (15) San S Affrey

100 CHEMA Kingsand High Since E BOL CHARMA NATISCHAM PROPORTION OF THE CONTROL OF T ENTERSIDE Cross Read We (01s) - 44 22551 La Royle Du Sen (Persident Sen Sen La Royle Du Sen (Persident Sen Sen)

THEATRE

West End Choice Harrist - [1] Sur [4] The [4] The [4] Men [5] The [6] Front [6] Sur

ET JEEVES

Paties are excitativistic antiques' torse, appearing the Regent a Para Will (1997) (1984) 2001 October Street State appearing to the In-

Boon sidek ma tappede proceded by English i storing Desires are Alexandra page 14 my ends 31 May 112-129 135 mins part (1907) ends of the profiles of the median market of the the contact of the 1902 production.

11 of contact of the 1902 production.

22 (A. Penerless Read of Dec 1902) on (1902) on (5).

RR © Marches Months of The [40,7] 500 ond (1908), are 122 100 mars. An HESPETOR CALLS Support Highly and deliverationed to education of Hermatics straight, there's Character Sector (Call) 1-12015-05-0 Leaving Man-Fr 145, Sat 845, [4] Lin [1] Son and Lin 25-1 Homes
words managed tradition

1202000 Makt Muste Sean Mathias's produc-tion of Sondhean's museual start Juda Desich and Patricia Hodge, Mon-Sat 7,15pm, mars Wed & Sat 2,00pm, ends 31 Aug. 105 mars.

weed as Aut Zissperi, erots of Study I from man. Josepher: Bury Shmert Isabelle Huppert and Anna Massay play the searring royal crussers or Schiller's historical drama. Today 2, USpon & 7,3 Jpn., 191 mms.

Cottaske: War & Peace Histor Edmundson adapts Tol stop's openional for a co-production between Shared Experience and the National Today (2mon & 6.34pm 240 num. I Marer (12-63.50, Lydelton: 04-634. Cottr-Lee, E12-E14, Seath Bank, SE1 11(71-93(2352) BR @ Waterfort The Burbase page courses for the Burbasen: Julius Country Peter Hall directs Christopher Bengamon in Shakespeare's political drama, Techy 200 pm. 1, 15pm., in rep and 31 Aug. 135 mms. The Pic.

The Phoesician Vision Katu Mitchell The Protestion Protests Katte Milected detects Europiaks' (imakes) trapest & Dispiritudes, Takey 2 tripin & T Uspiritudes, T Uspiritude

PASSION Method Boll and Mana Freedman m mentale period obtate (resolution) Stephen S million and James Lapine's award-winning missial. Queen s Shafu-Sury Avenua, WI (117):494 5/810 © Par Chy. Mar-Sai Stat [4][7] 3.10, 513.96-501 125 mins.

THE TEMPEST
Denis Quality to Prosperts in Patrick
Garland's prostaction of Stationary are's Beyond the West End

ALMERIA THEATRE
Marks & The Cathedral Remarks theatre Starting B: 199 Catalogue Romania Distant group's production of the Back Subtract stars Marcel large as Bocket Tue-Sai Spin, ends 10 Jug. 6550-617-50 come available Abreck L Street, NJ (0171-550-4404) © Angel

DRILL MALL ANYS CENTRE

Growning Room, Linux Balchen's
controversal Polys awer about a pre-sonate gar after adopted for the stage. Bunglet
"Johan, CA-CHI, cours for Charles Serves.
WC1 (1017) 487 $7701 $6 Gandge Street.

and wast card on an adapt the trick the Contract ? 14th century takes, Mon-Six 7. Wpen, ends 17 Aug Chi cases to Pemberder Road Will HAMPSTEAD THEATEE

The Beauty of Water Terry Aducem directs Linden Gwyrne in Sheligh Stephenson's first step plan. Von Sat Spin Indas Sat Spin, ends 24 Aug. (11-413-50 Alon & mas Sat Sciences are garles. Aucune Read, NW3 10171-722 93011 © Swiss Contage.

ETESC STUDIO ETRO STUDIO
Birdy North Wallact's adaptation of William
What is a framework for of,
directed by Kaylor Kright, More Sat Spin, mass Sat 4 Jayra, cods 17 Aug. ETSG More & standie ones 55 King Street, We 10181-741 2311 @ Hammersmah.

Around the country

recount word.
Altered Primate I tenant Preston in the reprod Archivernocomedy, Today 2 April 16 Spir.
174(1979) cones madable.
Sandroct (I) 256428641

2001 SPA Colored American Lancial (cultient

Cambridge HARVEY COURT CARDERS

Rehard H. Stake preare's portrayal or the bioodiffusted bake of Josh Josep spaniford. Production: Moneyal spaniford 17, bug 18, 1978 15, New Read (M. 22, Southla) Cardiff

Confinious Christopher Timethy in Auxiliary Christopher Timethy in Auxiliary Christopher Timethy in Confection Common anniable. Park Place 101 222 27 20009

Chichester CHICKESTER FESTIVAL THEATRE
Whose We are Married Laren French in 3R
Providey to once dearns. Memilia 1.3 km.
In a. Sai Spin, inst. The a. Sai 2.4 kpm. endJ. Mg. 29 C.55 areas Montfer.
Oaklands Park (01243-75) M.2) MENERO THE STAF

Hodge Gabler Henrik Rosen's classes with Harriet Wolter in the domanding title role. Mays Ser 7-85 years mars Than & Set 2-45 pm, ends 17 Aug. £14-£25, ernes available. Oaktands Park (0£243-78(3)2) Eastbourne

DEVONSHIRE PARK THEATHE Out of Order Ian Lavendor, Margaret Asheroft and Barry Howard star in Roy Corney's Large. In rap, today & Sim, 8.15pm, mat today from code 4 Sep. £4.75-19, comes available. Compton Street (013.23-4) 2000)

Oxford MICHAL FIX COLLEGE SCHOOL sament in Coulors scaled from and inflat Open-sir production of the trape love story, staged on an island in the River Charactic Man-Sai "Johan, mais Tha & Sai 23/pm, ends 31 Aug. Dl. comes In High Street (1) 1865-794-013

Prign Street (11/02-15/04/05)

RESSET THE RITHE

Resulted Codern's Stage: Co's upstated

Status peur can tragedly with law Pepperrell.

Environ Canadia and Sheda Allien. Most-The

Environ Canadia and Sheda Allien. Most-The

List 7-7 ppn. Fri Rym. crass Sci 2-70pm.

crade 24 Aug. £1th. corest £5, Reve Place, Sci

Alderes (11) Sri5-7986(10)

Plymouth

THE ATRE ROYAL

Educating Bits Willy Russell's cornerly about a basisfresser who gateer schas academia. o mandreser who gater who scalemia.

Folgy 2.30pm & 7.30pm 19.50-61250, conservablete. Resal Parade
(01752-267222)

Reading

The MEXACON
The Secret Carden A new pension adoptance of the classes children's tale. Today 2 Myen & Tym. (250-95.50 Queens Walk (H)734-591591) THE MELL AT SOMETHIC Hirthory Safte Force by Robin Humakin set in two advanting hotel rooms. Tonght diffuser from 6.3 pm, performance 3.15, mart tokey, lunch from 1.2.3 pm, performance 2.15 pm; 418,95-629.95, includes lanch or dieser, 111(734-698431)

Southwold TEDENTHOS HALL Venner Board By Father John Medianet's min mg and come tribute is presented by the Aldeburgh and Scuttheold Summer Season. Taker 5 15pm & X.15pm, E4.59.E9. Cumberland Road (01503-73444)/72389)

Stratford-upon-Avon THE OTHER PLACE The Comedy of Errors Tun Surple directs Selection 1-30 & 7.3 pm, ends 12 Sep 17.30-17-30 Southern Lane (1170-1952)

DYAL SHAJESPEANE THEATRE As You Like R Nignth Count makes a nourn to the RSC in Secon Pamion's productive. la rep. (reught 7.30per, erak 5 Oct. En 50-E3550, Watersale (U1784-28623) SHOW THEATRE.
The Seneral From America Ruchard Nelson's em to maily protong pretrait of the hated US process Benedict Arnold, in rep, today process Benedial Article in rep, trially 1.3 pen, end 4 Oct. 19-03-90. The White Davil Gale Edwards directs Jane Gurnert in Websites is valent revenue streller. In rep, tenight 7.3 pen and 5 Oct. 29-129-30. Waterwide (10 789-286-23)

Sulgrave STREETHE MANOR

Many When Of Window Open are producted

EXHIBITIONS

SARSICAN ART GALLERY Durch Jarmet: Artist, Filo-CAMBEN ARTS CENTER.

Hen Contemporaries 96 Thirm-three is stop artest. Tax-Tha Lina-ge-tipm, Fre-Sun Linese sign, ends 8 Sep. tree. Arkwingla Kd. SW3 (0171-435 2815 221) @ Frechley Rd.

Chair Oldusburg Winy Soft scaleptures of excreting objects. Mon-Sun Rhan-typin publi Sym Ties of Wedt ends to Aug. 25. ermes 63.50 Behedien Rusel. SEI (0171-96) 42421 NATIONAL CALLERY

NATIONAL POSTRAIT GALLERY

LARK IN THE PARK AT FESTIVAL TEXT AT Halblack Prints Halblack Plansents as annual chacklefest, under the temporario in Walpste
Park Torigin, 8 Sym. Mattock Lane, WS
10181-566-0-1071 BR-Ф Ealing Breadway. LEE EVANS AT GELGUD THEATRE

REWINEYUS AT CANAL CASE THEATRE
The work's new with a bit of worg and clance thrown in Thu-Sut Hyrn, Sun You, Bridge
Hume Pub, Delaunce Terrace, W2
(1)71-20191551 © Royal Onl. 15, come 84,
the melbody SHORT RAC & SHIES FESTIVAL AT RAC

EP Partrait Ameri Prestigous national portraiture show. Mon-Sar Jüum-õpin, Sun 12nexet-õpin, enda 20 Oct, free, Si Martin's Piace, Wil21 (017) - 306 (0055) carte with my least formen of sun, rpm, to, cones 55.

All Ower Lawely Chaire Dowle & Peta Lifty. Twinght & Sun, 7.30pm, £7.50, comes 56.
Shoutling From Tan Seaffold Owen O'Neill.
Turnight & Sun, 8.30pm, £6, cones £5.
Stand Un Whole, Turnight & Sun, 9pm, £6, cones £5. ROYAL ACADEMY OF ARTS Enger de Grey Paintings inspired by the landscape. More-Sun Mann-Spra. ends

ones £5. cones ES. Paul Toukhason Tonight & Sun, 10.15pm, Lawender Hill, SW L1 (0171-223 2223) BR: Clapham Junction, £6, cones £5.

23cp. El, como El Burlington House. Piccadilly, W1 | 0171-439 7438 | ⊕ Piccadilly Como. SE MENAND CHOILEY'S CANC Lean Hesself Highly natured paintings of stream somes. More Sat 10mm 5.50pm, Sun 2pm-5.50pm, ends 1 Sep. 54, comes £2.50. Millbank, SW1 pH/71-887 8000) @ Profice LOCK OUT STUDIO THERINE AT THE RACKIEF PROPES

Matt Lucus and his friend David Walliams Tought, Spin, Mare Street, EB (0181-985 2424) BR: Hackney Central, SS, comes 64.

London

CHOCK COLISPON

EVERSIDE STUDIOS

Lard Of The Bance New dates, drama choreographed by Michael Fauley of Riverdows. Today 1.30pm & 7.45pm, ends 17 Aug. £10-£32.50. St Martin's Lane, WC2 10171-632.5300) & Lelcenter Square.

neversions: 5 routers Stones in Lyrical Fearta Hip-hop dencework about wong black men's lives in Britain.
Tought Spin, ES, comes E6. Crisp Road, W6 10181-741 2255) & Hammersmith.

BALLEGOR, MAIN FOYER, ROYAL FESTIVAL RALL: MLITZ 96

BALL: BLITZ '96
Containity Sight Groups from Essex in works by chargographers including James Watten, Tuday 1, 15pm-2, 15pm, free, Bandon Bases Company Excepts from Jacob's Membrane by Worte McGregov, Tanight from 7pm, free, Tap Sawretse Hophights Iron The Marjorie Davies Star Tap Awards Sim 1, 30pm-2, 15pm & 6,45pm-7, 30pm, free, South Bank Centre, SEI 10171-930-325) @ Waterloo, month of the Marjorie Lands of the Lands of t

ROYRI, OPERA INCUSE Royal Ballet: Suma Lake Dome-Il's 1987

CLASSICAL

Rogal States Same Late Lower 15 1997 production designed by Yolmade Sommabend Today Jam (Yoshish Cassidy) & Tost Durante Trevin). E2-E88.50 Covi Garden. WC2 in 171-394-4040) & Covent Garden.

VICTORIA & ALIEFET BUSTEIN Willers Borts Exploration of the life and work of this designer, writer and printer,
Mon 12nom-5 Jupan, Tue-Sun Dans-DANCE

5.30pm, crask | Sep. ES.91, corner £3.25, Crosswell Road, SW7 (017)-938 8500) WHITEMAPEL ART CALLERY

The Open The In-annual submission evaluation. The Sun Harr-Spm (Wed until Rpm), ends 15 Sup, from Whatechapel High Street, E1 HH71-522 7883
Adgate Ess. Oxford ASSENCE AH MUSI Busicia and Oxford The big and work of Ruskin the art reactionary explored. The Sar 10am-tom, Sun Jam-tom, each 15 Oct, free Beaumont Street (0)865-275000) OUTHAMPTON CITY ART GALLERY works from the family o flection.

Impressional Paintings From Le Harris
Includes Monet, Sides and Pessartu.
Tue/Mod/Fr Hitam-Spin, Thu (Barn-Spin, Sar 182m-John, Sun Jen-Spin, ends 4 Aug. froe.
Civic Centre (1) Titt-832 | 511

COMEDY

BACK 2 BACK - IAN STORE & MARK MAKE BACK 2 BACK - BAR STURE & MARCHAEL ROOM
THE Check of Ian Stone and 'Cet Off' With Mark Maser, Sun, 7,30pm, South Bank Centre, SEI (0171-960-8242)
BR/O Waterlov, Di, o wee En

Cheltenkam HOUSED & CAGGED TUPNELL PAINS Sally Holloway, Durma McPhail, VI-Almit McTorah, Scan Percival, Truight 9, Uyen, Tulnali Park Road, N7 (1817)—83, 3450) PSTYMLE PUMP ROOM MOSEUM Ensemble Planes Mondal Works for strongs including Eigan's Serosade, Tonight Spm. E10-E15. Albert Road [0]:242-227979] @ Tufacil Park, 16, concs 15, m'ship ! 1. EDY STORE: BEST IN S London

Rhoma Cameron, In Caulfield, Borthly Graffoe, Lee Hurst, Sean Percival, Finaght Spat & (2midnight, Osendon Street, SW1 101426-9(4433) & Proceedily Careus, £10. ST MANES'S CRUNCH
Corbridge Declaration Humanitis Copland's
Appalachies System with Mazar's Haffner System with Mazar's Haffner
Systematics. Terright 7.30pm. EF-E10.
Phazadity, W1 (0171–157 5053)

© Pennalily. COREDY STORE PLAYERS REPORT ALBERT HALL

Strauss' Don Asan, Elgar's Engine Vie and Sibelius' 2nd Symphony. Traight THE EXTERPORE FLASS AT THIS OUR BATES THEATHE, THE ACTORS CENTRE. SO what and Mully create some material so: United Stable Stable Spine. Each 10 Aug. Tenur Street, W.C. (9) 71-240, 34-81. and Sibefata and Symphony. Tonight
7.30 pm. 24-22.
Lordina Alvedak Charala/Barton Spirituals
by Randall Thompson and Shehren E. Kilby
III. plus the world premiere of the Who has Set The Ghry. Son 4 pm. 15.
BDC Symphony Orchestra/Shelder Two Concertor-Copland's Organ and Adams'
Vofin with preces by two and Edington's
Harton. Sun 7.30 pm. 14-518. Kensangton
Gore, 5W7 10171-599 2(12).

9- High Street Kensangton. ◆ Laurett Sq. 17.50, com £5.50 Audres, Pipe's Mand Candy, Tomphi Spin. All Chevacal Music - Rainer Herich, Sun. Spm, St. Paul's Road, N1 (0171-704 2001)

OR: O Haddway & Manton, 15, cross 54. O High Street Keassogton. IMPSTEAD CLINIC AT GLE ALDWINKLES

OPERA Our Carmellata, Bab Dalinger, Stuart Caraknan, Kevin Kapbaran, Tanight Opin. Lewes GIYNDESOURNE OPERA MODSE: GEYNDESOURNE FESTIMAL OPERA Yevgany Origida A revival for Graham acclaimed staging of lichastowsky, orind by Greatach Rutchtestrensky, Tonight Stages (In EUO) KONGLEURS BATTERSEA AMBLEURE BATTERSEA Tim Clark, Kenth Fieldt, Al Murray, Paul Tinkinson, Timight 7, 15pm & 11, 15pm, Laverador Gurdens, SW 11 (11171-92) 271801 BR: Clapham Juneton, Ettl, cones E7. 5.10pm_£[0-£]10

JUNCLEURS CARDEN
Our Carmellom, Jeff Green, Mickey Hattays Figure 2002 16 John Cox's production of Rachard Straws, and Hugo von 7 15pm & 11 15pm, Chaft Farm Rd, NW1 14174-924 27m) & Camdon, Lift, comes Fr. Holmonischal's last collaboration, Sun 4.15pm. E[n-E] [0. Glyndebourne House 10[273-8[38]3] London

CHISWICK HOUSE: FIRST ACT OPERA Box Ground Mozait's trap-comedy. Sc Tpm. $10, cores £7.50. Burlington Lanc (0181-577 6969) BR: Chiswick. HOLLAND PRINT THEATRE

Den Giovanni European Chaucher Opera un a production set in Mexico in the early 190ts.

Roday 2.30pm & 7.30pm. £20, comes £14.50.

Kensington Hegh St. WW(0171-602.7856)

G. High St. Kensington. The 7th Norman Weston. Tought, Spin, Shatterbury Avenue, W1 10171-494 (066) & Piccadally Circus. C750-117.91

Tunbridge Wells ROPELMON AT ENCORRELL
Handel's opera with Nicholas Kramer conducting the Ragian Baroque Players.
Tonight is 30pm, Broomhill Road, Southharough 101892-5177201 EL2-50-E35.

permitted look Helland & Mr. Rhythen & Blook Orchatra The boogse-twogic fiend leads his 15-piece Reds brouge into action.

South Park, Stone Centre [01323-61] 2041 Rought £12-50.

Cosport
Let Loose Boy band with big teen following.
Tonight 7,30pm, £5-£10.
Mick Depicer Blanc East Erstwhile Rolling
Stone guitaris's cown project.
Widpole Park Walpole Road (017.6-522944)
Sun 7,30pm, £3-£10.

LONGON

Strain Spice, Mercia Briffitte, Physis Dillon, Cornel Campbell Celebration of Jamasa's
34th Year of Independence with top usgarnames. The Fatton Highpart Road NWS 10171-344 00441 BR49-Kentish Town, Sun 7pm, £17.50.
Number One Cup, Band The popular Dive-bomb single should give this Chicago guitarpop outiff a headstart over here. The Gampe Highbury Corner NS (0171-607 1818) & Highbury & Islandon. Tought hpm. 15.

Badde Bn 1970s R&B singer whose tracks

Hook & Shing and Check Your Bucket have gained him cult status.

Aux Cafe Parkway NWI 10171-34430444

© Camdon Rwin, Tenight Tpm, £12.

Dirty Three Australian bar-mout in tal trio. The Red Etc Copenhagen Street NI 10171-837 15141 @ King's Cross. Trought N Worn, £3.50, coors 53. By Life Story, Gretachen Befort Jake Suilington's John Barry influenced pop orthestra headlines, while GH use strates to orthestra headlines, while GH me etrings to create their epic, to obly sound.

Rounie Scott's Frith Street W1 (0)71-430 tr/47) & Tort Q: But. Sun bunt. 27

The Engles, Riving Wagnes Shaphard Classic Engles line-up which delighted Circs at their US shows. Membeley Stadium Empire Way.

Wembley (0)81-900 1334 @ Wembley

Park. Kinight 40m. ESS-EM.

Rushton
Sundaze Followi Rock festival with Scrap Iron Scientists, Crawbeal, Stranger Triators, Draw, Konghisim, Helsottope and Babylace, Rushum Hall [01596-7]1002] Sun

Driver, Ed. Sutton

Earth Energy Manie Fastival Dunce All-Dayer with Orbital, Mad Professor, July Worbide, Philiptonarus 10 ar Wes, Specially (Sot), Soul All-Dayer with LV, Mice Paris, Alson Limerick, Truce, Pauline Henry (Sun).

Earth Energy Music Festival, Beddings on Park Wallington (01273-76505) Tonight Ipan. jazz, world, folk etc

Brighton Law Bowltz Opidate Cerebral before also logard from Chango, a veterate of Gerry Mulligan, Stan Kennen, Miles Davis and Chet Baker combos, Sallis Benney Theatre University of Brighton. Grand Parade 101273-709709 | Son 7 45pm, £10, cones & 10273-709709 | Son 7 45pm, £10, cones &

Scott Hamilton Quartet Fogev-sh US main-stream tenores. Rull's Head Lonedale Road SW13-0181-876-52411 BR: Barnes Bridge. Ealing Jazz Festival Trad and mainstream with trumpeter Tommy McQuater's senter leaturing trumpeter Duncan Lamont and squaezeboter Jack Emblow, plus Alan Eb-squeezebester Jack Emblow, plus Alan Elthou's All Star suptet.

Ealing hear Feneral, Welpole Park, Mattock
Lane WS (0181-758 5743) BRA-© Ealing
Beaudway, Sun 7.30pm, free.

Jam Semilon #4 Acid Jazz jam leaturing
Hammond wizerd James Taylor, sand dea
Dee C Lee and BNH guitarist Simon
Bartholounew hem Cafe Parkway NW1
(0171-344 0044) © Candon Town, Sun
Jonn, Bl. ash £7

Type, Dt. adv £7

Hose Allison Trio with Jan Hallon Wagelsh, understated those, paze veteran from Mossespi. Pract Express Dean Street W [10171-43/8722]. © Tentenham Coort Road, 3-5 Aug. Spon. E15.
Lea Houltz Galantet See Brighton.
The Identivatic Chaptel Market N1 [11]71-713
SR591 © Augel. Brught Spon. E10.
Beetly Carter US can legend, plus improfusion satist Whitehead.
Reenue Scori 1 Frith Street W1 [10]71-339
17477 © Ethenham Court Road. Enugli
Spon. E12. mems E7.
Lunis Michael Pale Patto Killo Paut of Courte. Aug, Sym, £15.

spin, 112. menus 17.
Laule Mehnle/Phile Photo/Gloo Photo/Gloode Beppa/Elton Bean Freaky South African percussionst of San Ra and Sterie Wonder Lame, here with improv-inclined pusno, byto, trumped and brashy sax support.
Hener Stoke Newington Church Street N16
(0171-254 6516) BR: Stoke Newington. Sim Spin, Ed. cones C3.

EVENTS

Bother Steen Spectacular performances on ice, Bourners with International Centre Exclar Road (III.202-297297), Man-S.u 2.30pm & Spin, crob. 14 Sept. 21+45.

Cambridge Samer For Drama, Jance, video, pupperry, stary telling and munistion workings, for ages 5-11 years, Cambridge Huma Cim-tre Count Gurden, Mill Rend 101225 322748) Times vary, ends 30 Aug. 25-50-235

ner Festival 96 Festivat of arrie, circus, comedy, carrival and steet entertainment. Cartiff Stormer Earthal Information [01222-87] 922] Times vary, ends 11 Aug. phone for details.

....

32.77

- P

j.

* .

324

200 dX.

14

10

 $t_{\mathcal{A}_{2n}^{(n,l)}}$

7)

Chepstow

Rt Bane With Inne Costumes from BBCs

Pride And Prejudice. Chysical Mission
Gosp House, Bridge Street (01291-62981)

Times vary, ends I Sap, phone for details. Dover Segment Holiday Flor Brah Exhibition with a Sugment Rolling von pran Extrement von Jamein numes compeniore, gazu draught-set and archery, White Cliffi Experience Mar-let Square (01304-210111) Dauly Ham-rayme, ents 1 Sept. 13794-149, child £3.50 (ages. 4-14), under 4s lice.

including music, stalls, street theatre and a leg dance, King Alfred Kingsway (141373-720371) Today (than-9.30pm, free.

London
Poems to Head To Your Parents Music. dame and poerty for agos seven and mee. BAC Lavender Hall SWI 1 10171-223 22231 BR: Clapham Junction. Sun 230pm, plant.

for octain.

Discover Bogs to London Event to evictorate the joys of dog ownership. Early Court 2.

Warnack Rend SWS (0171-244 0980) Today. warness Reed (1985) (117) const. (24) R. Sun, Harn-Gyon, E.F., const. (24) How To Be & Stuplet, Workshop A weekend of unique chowing skills. Hackery Empire Marc Street EE (118): 1485–2424 1884. Hack-ney Central, Today & Sun, Ham-Spin, Ultil.

Scars And Brobest Panily Workshop Film workshop exploring make-up, for ages sever and over. Museum Of Loval-in London Wall EC2 (1117)-600 3699)

Burbican Sun Supreme Holday Yours Interactive tours of the Gathery National Gallery Trafalgar Square WC2 [0171-839 3521]

Cross, Daily 11.30am, ends 30 Aug. tree Rids Balwarsa Top pupper entertainment and so much more, Scipiliges (First Floor)
Oxford Screet W1 (0172-629 1234) St Bond Street, Today, Upra-topin, phone for details.

Bad Halr Bay Interactive hair manua including a "Salon D'Artinet, "Studen Napermatural Kuntish Town Road NWS (1171-24) 2007.

From Inchy, times vary, ends 29 Aug, phone for the state of the st

Thentrelend Walking Tour Thrilling small phone for details. Visionie Festival Roedsbaws Two-day

honanza of stalls, stands and performance: Hinjoole Park Mottack Lane W5 (0181-758 5741) BR/© Enling Broadway, Today & Sun, 11 30am-6pm, free. Market Bosworft Videg Investen Bosworth Bartlefield reen-actment. Bosworth Battlefield (01485-20429) Sun Zpm, Free.

Norwich sty & The Beast On ice David Essen's thems on see with the Russian lee Star Theater Royal Theatre Street 101603-630000) Today & Sun 2pm & 7,30pm.

Bears And Bees Weekend full of honey-combs, candles and mouth watering recipes. 5/agborough Millord 101889-8813881 Today & Son. 11am-Spm, £3, cone £2.50.

Simbridge
Puppat Show Find out why so many animals depend on wethands for survival. The Wild-ford and Windowski Res 101453-8003331
Kiday & Sun. Hams-lpm. £4.70, child £2.35.

Stratford-upon-favon Country Craft Favre Medieval themed showense, Charlevote Park B4086 (0) 926-813374) Today & Sun, 10am-opm, Free Cl. Tumbridge Wells Georgian Fashitities Back to 1746 with cotumed characters, music and dance. The Rambes 101592-5156751 Today & Sun. time-

Church services

Ninth Sunday after Trinity Christophy Galerick, on TRC, Colon Matan. The Source Colons Colon Williams on Limitary 188 for Matan. Of Christophy Interfer Region of A. Leather, Source of Removal at Leather, Source of Removal and Colon Matan. Of the Law down Galerick and Alberta Matan. Of the Resident Read of Source Colon Resident Resident Read Source of Source Law Resident Read Source (Colon Resident Read Source Colon Resident Residen SCINIC CHIEDON, There's Material and Hellower Source Control Control Communication (Material Residence Control Copper Details Control Wood on P. Canada HAND STREAMED STREAMED AND ALL THE COLUMN AND ALL THE SAME LANDING STREAMED AND ALL THE COLUMN AND ALL THE SAME LANDING STREAMED AND ALL THE S month Group Carrie sum HC, Fran States, Carrier and Jo. 11 Fore Song Eachgroup Month brown Hards for Union Petitics, open Excessing.

Marier Malers Collectura togale (How, D. e. Th. Practition April Extension Collectura togale (How, D. e. Th. Practition April Extension). Collectura togale (How, D. e. Th. America) is strong to the Collectura togale (How, D. e. Th. Collectura t

Course the contraction of the motion and latenty and label backgrout. The Rev Io J K. Court, "and Perch I ackgrout the Rev V J K. Court, than Song Parch I ackgrout the Rev V J K. Court, than Song Parch I ackgrout to the same the Revenue of the same parch I ackgrout to the ackground the same parch latent to the same parch latent to the same parch is the same parch to the same parch is the same parch in the same parch is the same parch in the same parch is the same parch in the

NAME OF THE PROPERTY AND MARKS OF THE PROPERTY AND ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY ADDRESS OF THE PROPERTY

Cancer Michael Several, 3 Espen Eventurg, Stan-lerd in G. The Rev John M. Paul.

WESTMONTH MARIE Scot LCC. Deep Maries, Col-legen receils. Hisselful. The Rev Jonatian Loweld Hallman, Whey Lockney Collegen re-paired Hawdel, Canton Anthrop Harver, Join Fren-wing Shart service (Latins, Carvon David Hafts Adopter Organ Recedal in Mart Carlor, a. Riger Evention Service, Canvon Authors, Harver, 2009/MARIE CARRONIC Stan Embards. Choose Regar Royle, Ham Chard Festbards. Collegent regale Hawdel Lann David Patters, Joint Carvol Event Royle, Calchestin regale (Howelds Camon Hand Patters a. Riger Boot of Common Protect Cheral Lachares, Lodderian regale (Howelds), Caron Royer Royle (1976/BML) Of the Brook William Riger, Brooked Monary, No 2004 Camman Liver (Ham Drente Livery, No 2004 Camman), Liver Michael Monary, No 2004 Camman (Liver), Micros. Stop. IN CITES.
CONTINUES OF THE COMMITTEE OF INC BUTTERS OF GREE PRESENT OFFICIALS. Employment Curvions. NAT
IN Term Desire Library. As and Moure of the Kinton and Zaumenny trademore varying Court Starter and Zammenny traditions were in Chart Sarron-e and Lendon.

19182841 OF ST 1978 (Sarbest Oritalist). Lancus for Road, London W. 11: 100 Stem Deven Library, Ser-ther and Karban Chart Mara. went in Chartel Stevens.

48000000 1975 1975 1975 SWIDS, Avenue Gardens, London Wic Ham Marsang Proper, Arch-lesdon, London Wic Ham Marsang Proper, Arch-lesdon, London Wic Ham Marsang Proper, Arch-lesdon, London Wic Ham Marsang Proper, Arch-Chapte Repd. Hampton Court A. Main HC.
Gestener Chapt. S. onh. Andley Server. W1-6.15 an HG. Ham Song Evolution. The Re-Server Bubbs.
Graph Chapt. Wellington Barrado. Sel. Ham
Libert HG. Jackson in G. The Rev. J. antihon
Court HG. Jackson in G. The Rev. J. antihon

Gride in the central orb (Wood), Lancet Peter France in Miles by the least lowered Server ECP Ham Song Endoared, Carron Samuel Van Culin Miles Miles Margaret Street W? Sam Low Masse in Sidek Margaret Street W? Sam Low Masse for five wore 16 byll, The Visian S. Signa Low Masse for five wore 16 byll, The Visian S. Signa Low Masse for five wore 16 byll, The Wisan S. Signa Low Masse for five wore 16 byll, The Wisan S. Signa Low Masse for the Wisan S. Signa S. Patters Bridge, SWn Aam HC, 9 John Song Section 11. Main Famph Endoared, opin Song Section Red Robert Robert Robert Street, M. Signa HC, Han, Probadier Robert Robert Street, M. Signa HC, Han, Probadier Robert Miles Street, M. Signa HC, Han, Frederick Rev D. Bond J. 15 pp. 110. Spot Eventual Robert Street Switch Robert S. Home Bridge Street Switch Robert S. Home Bridge Street Switch Robert S. H. Som Samby Service, The Robert Switch Switch Switch Edward Switch Switch Robert School Switch Switch Edwards Robert School Switch Switch Benders, 11 han Endoard, The Robert Masses Halles Switch Robert Masses Home Street Switch Robert Masses Halles Switch Robert Masses Halles Switch Robert Masses Halles Halles Switch Robert Masses Halles Hal

Matter, The Rev F. Gelli: 12.30pm HC, 6.20pm Exercising, The Rev M. Folliet, R larg boundles, Kennington Fark Read, SE11: 9.30pm Montage Prover: Boam Parchi Maso, Fr Mathied Hart, Jonn Ewening Service (including Braceletters), Spin Mass. R Baryk, Bourne Street, SW1: Sam, 10sm Low, Mass. Ham High Mass. Messa bretts (Caldars), Canon Gordon Refth, Spin Schem Eversong and Sidema Renederts on Type Low, Mass. St Baryk, Princeses 1701, SW2, Can, MC, 60 Board Consists terms upon the Ways.

St. they's, Printerse Hill, NW3, Sare HC, 10,30am, Parish Eacharest, The Rev John Overndent open Evening Prayer SPERMA Europe Road, NW1 HURLAN Song View SPROME ENSURE DAMASS.

SPROME ESTABLISHMEN
SPROME ESTABLISHMEN
SPROME ESTABLISHMEN
SPROME ESTABLISHMEN
SPROME ESTABLISHMEN
SPROME SPROME ESTABLISHMEN
SPROME ESTABLISH and Benediction.

Signification Switch Switch Sam Vars Low

Si Dobanto's Durch of Sentinel, Poet Street, SW I. Ham, The Rev. Cajstan I. MacLeod; A. Myen, The Rev. W. Alexander Carres. Grant Gust i Church of Sentiandi, Rendell Mirect. M. 2. H. Gan, The Rev Dana Tottenand, 12. Nyun HC: n. Myun, Dr. Peter F. Green.

the Links of the Remnington, Warwack Street, W.J. Sam, 10 am Marc. I Lim Sung Laim Mass. More for five somes (Byrd): Lipus, dyra, dyra, dyra Mass. The destry Berneyton Ross, SWP 7-um, Ram, wam, Ham Mass. Ham Solentin Mass. Massa breve Palestruct, Li Salym Mass. 3 Jilym Solentin Vappers, Caro man (Fuperwrof): 4 Jilym Norem Vappers, Caro man (Fuperwrof): 4 Jilym Tom Mass.

City laurite Holtomy Visulant, ECH: III, Norm. The Rev Min Hilborn and Emma Cimpson. Hade Street Hostorics Cherch, W1 10 are 11C Docabl Softer; Ham HC, David Cruce: A. Norm HC, Jone Cracke. Craesc. Bularian Resslys Hill Chapel, Revelon Hill, Hampatenk NW3: Ham. The Rev Judgh Walker-Reggs; 700 Eucamp Service Esse Uniter in Chards, Palace Candons T, mace, W3 Exam Ontarian Danch, Palace Clandons T. trace, W.T. Lam, The Rev Johnson, Bock, E. Hander, Bestingin Bisland Referred Carrob, Albert Street, W.S. Ham, The Rev Peter Localt, Paddingins Chapit MRD Congregate and Presimplement, St. Martie, Chancle, Chi. Marvichone, Road, W.F. Ham, The Rev Per Crosscham Schotter (1980), Propaga Lame, NWW Ham, The Rev Barry Innex. STREAM SIDE, FOODER LABO NW FIRM, THE NA-HATT JUNES. No stimewal: 10. Stant Marriage Service. School: Side, No stimewal: 10. Stant Marriage Service. School: St. Pathon School: of St. Pat. X.; Schot-lers Road, NT: Hum, Ument Traditional Labo-Mace. States (Letteran), Devolutional Labb. Mace. States (Letteran), Orecham spect, C2-Ham Chords HC. The Ray Lobs States Schneider. 2pm So also HC. The Ray Lobs States Schneider. 2pm So also HC. The Ray Lobs States are Caroline Street, We 10.18 from the Act of Consecution of Man. The Rev E. Capel.

Medianent Chand, Backangham Gate, SWI-Ham. A. Alpm. Dr. R. T. Kandell.

Internative Control English Chard, Shallecham, Avennet. We C. Ham. a Spec. The Rev Battora Stanford. Westminister Henring, Sometr of Friends (Quadrens), CS St. Martin's Lang. WCZ. Ham. Meeting for Mechanics.

WEDNESDAY

Radio

by Robert Hanks:

HE HADEN STATEMENT OF SALUKDAY & AUGUST 1996

No Busions 1 Ipm R4. Franchie Stock presents another series of intellectually antibibus discussions, starting with a look at food production in the waite of BSE – are see stirck with a post-wer production system? And how do we change ??

Out of the Blue 9.30pm BBC1 (above). The picture This Bpin BBC2. First his even series camera has calmed down for this second series of the cop drama set in South Yorkshire. The result is a satisfying bland of action and personalities (415785).

Life without End 9.30pm BBC2. A doctimentary which proposes that we could reasonably live till we're 600 (32853).

Sex and the Scientists 10pm CA. Close-ups of vulvas, and actors preending to have sex to this this touching love story of a mentally upstable film which alleges women's middelity (2628495).

Not the line Books 8.30pp R4. Also signifings reads Not! Coverid's parrative polarit within in the 1960st which describes how General and Lady Benjagion cope with finding out that their Short Stones 8.30ppg CA. Charming Rim by new director Amy Hardle about Britons with race hiskles competitively (4484).

Inside Story 9.30pm BBC1. "Caring for Christian that Christian Chr pher Jabbee) is a flirt five years in the making which charts the years between 10 and 15 in the life of a sewarely epileptic child (646129).

Which Yiston 9/45pm BBC2. Elderly Americans behaving interrupteemby manner mustry or public access television, Presented by Sobp's Kamerine Helmood 1917128).

Of Tide and Man Spin R4. Life on the marriers of the say explored in a mortage of voices and sounds, with contributions from ouster catchers, harbour mesters, cockless and a Secret History 9pm C4. Recalling the strike in 1946 of RAF men stationed byerseas who were supremely dissatisfied with their living conditions and the slow rate of demobilisation (8427). Dark Secret 9,30pm BBC2 (above). First in a series on formerly taboo sex and gender issues talks to three men who were given aversion therapy to cone their homosexuality (91663). Detence of the Realm 10pm BBC1. Lots of dec orations on show in the first of this much hyped series on the Ministry of Defence (640601).

A Degree of Uncertainty 7.20pm R4. The vast expansion of higher education over the last 15 years may prove to be one of the great social resolutions of our century. David Walker investiates the consequences in three programmes.

Filtiny Rich 8pm C4. How does it feel to be one of the most hated men in British football? Find out in this profile of agent, Eric Hall (7557). Safe and Sound 8.30pm BBC1. A new six-part sitcom set in a Belfast garage which unfortu-nately fails to exploit Northern Irish humour. Starring Sean McGinley (3354).

Very Important Pennis 10pm BBC2. The fictional showbiz correspondent and professional irritant Dennis Pennis (above) gets another outing with repeated and new clips (56489).

L'imaginaire Irlandais 10pm R2. An Arts Programme looking at the very big festival of Irish culture that has been happening in France over the last six months. Seamus McKee finds out what the French made of it all.

Sunday television and radio

BBC 1

7.30 Playdays (R) (5) (40452).
8.00 Olympic Breakfast. Steve Rider and Hazel Irvine introduce highlights of the overnight action from Atlanta, including nine gold medals won in track and field events. In addition to the javelin final, sprint relay and 4 x 400m relay final, other medals will have been decided in the men's 5.000m and 1.500m decided in the men's 5,000m and 1,500m. Away from the stadium. there were also finals in tennis and men's basketball, with the USA "dream team" expected to win gold again (S) (2067549).

9.05 News, Weather (9467365).

9.10 Olympic Breakfast (S) (1645810). 10.00 A Great Day Out. Vince Henderson at Hornby

Village Festival (S) (1642810). 10.45 See Hear! (R) (5) (196278). 11.15 Simple Minds. The flaws in science taught in schools (R) (9339013).

12.00 CountryFile (S) (27926). 12.30 News, Thinktank. Should there be a minimum wage? (S) (39452). 1.30 EastEnders (R) (S) (7408926). *

2.25 The Spaceman and King Arthur (Russ Mayberry 1979 UK). An astronaut and a robot accidentally end up at King Arthur's court in this slight comedy with Jim Dale (5717907).

3.55 EastEnders (R) (S) (1567075). *

4.50 Sister Wendy's Story of Painting. The nun discovers the Baroque masterpieces of the 17th century (S) (1707346). * 5.20 Lifeline (S) (3816810). *

5.30 Junior Masterchef 96. Fish cook Rick Stein and actress Julia Sawalha guest in this first in a new series for budding cooks, hosted by Loyd Grossman (S) (810).* 6.00 News, Weather (118297). *
6.20 Regional News (288655).
6.25 Olympic Grandstand. Boxing, showjumping, handball and volleyball (S) (78119669). 9.30 News, Weather (366433). *

A couple on a yachting trip are horrified when they realise they've taken on board a maniacal killer. Gripping suspense movie with Sam Neill, Nicole Kidman and Billy Zane (S) (623452). *

11.15 Olympic Grandstand. 11.20 Olympic Highlights 12.15 Women's Basketball Final 2.00 Olympics Closing Ceremony – Live coverage of the closing ceremony as the Games are officially brought to an end, the Olympic flame is extinguished and thoughts turn to the 2000 Games in Sydney. (S) (72434839).
5.00 Wild Australia (59921). To 6.00am.
REGIONS. Scot: 12.00pm Landward.

BBC2

6.15 Open University: Conics in Perspective (3003549). 6.40 Traffic Futures: Models or Muddles? (2966075). 7.05 King Lear Workshop 1 (3362907), 7.30 Problems with ions (1147988), 7.55 Issues In Women's Studies (7095966). 8.20 Picturing the Modern City (5775278). 8.45 Windows on the Mind -Children's Drawings (7235907). * 9.10 The Littlest Pet Shop (S) (2223891).

9.30 Fully Booked. Kriss Akabusi tries pole vaulting. (S) (920075).

12.00 Olympic Grandstand. Suc Barker introduces the final day of competition from Atlanta. Richard Nerurkar, Peter Whitehead and Steve Brace carry British hopes in the marathon (which starts at 12.05), with commentary by David Coleman and Brendan Foster. The first round of the individual showjumping final takes place, with commentary by Michael Tucker and Stephen Hadley (S)

6.25 Songs of Praise. Diane-Louise Jordan meets old people around the country to explore some of the joy and sadness of ageing (S) (699029). 7.00 Staying Alive. The first show in the BBC's Coming of Age season looks at the problems facing those who take early retirement (464100).

7.40 Rough Guide to the World. Alaska is the first stop in a new series of the travel show presented by Magenta De Vine and Simon O'Brien (S)

8.20 Situation Vacant. Who will get the job of project manager at The Royal Albert Hall? (R) (728655)

9.00 Grey Sex. A sweet and fascinating documentary In which elderly people talk about their sexual needs and drives. See Preview, p26 (S)

9.45 EMM Mr Baseball (Fred Schepisi 1992 U5). Tom Selleck plays a fading baseball coach transferred to Japan in this unfurny cornedy (967520). Schepisi 1978 Aus). A powerful epic about a half-caste Aborigine who mixes with high-class whites, and the tragic consequences. Considered one of the best Australian films ever to be made (Followed by Weatherview)

(943100) 1.25 Close (8769360). 2.00 The Learning Zone: 5ummer Nights: Great Outdoors Essentials (53747). 4.00 Languages: Greek Language and People (6483921). 4.50 French Experience (65413872). 5.00 Business and Work: Spain Means Business (92476). 5.30 The Essential History of Spain (10785).

ITV/London

6.00 GMTV (48210). 8.00 Disney's Road Hog (8293471). 9.25 Tales from the Cryptkeeper (S) (7856723). 9.50 James Bond Jr (S) (6087297).

10.15 Link (S) (7441146). * 10.30 Morning Worship (S) (20704). * 11.30 The Rock That Rolled Away (4542033).

11.50 Marry Questions (2553181). 12.30 Citytalk (Followed by LWT Weather) (40365). 1.00 News and Weather (45202471).

1.10 The Agenda (7157162). 2.00 Capital Holidays. Holiday magazine presented by Anne Gregg and Frank Barrett (7487).

2.30 First Von Ryan's Express (Mark Robson 1965
U5). Frank Sinatra and Trevor Howard star in this reasonably exciting escape adventure set in an Italian PoW camp in the Second World War (21160181).

4.40 Treasures (1808029). 5.10 Upstairs Downstairs (R) (8130988). 6.10 London Tonight (Followed by LWT Weather) (476723). *

6.25 News and Weather (998520). *
6.35 Fourteen Weddings and a Divorce. More nonsensical speculation on why the Waleses plit up (755704). 7.30 Faith in the Future (R) (S) (655). *
8.00 Wycliffe. Jack Shepherd as the desperately dull

Comish detective who this week thinks his magistrate friend has been done in (S) (2075). 9.00 News and Weather (Followed by LWT Weather)

(121297). *
9.15 The English Wife, Newcomer Geraldine O'Rawe plays an au-pair sucked into danger in France in this expensive tosh which also features Zoë Wanamaker. See Preview p26 (S) (686181). * 11.15 Danny Boy - in Sunshine or in Shadow.

The history of the song "Danny Boy" - one of the world's three most recorded songs. nors include Enc Clapton, Marianne Faithfull, Shane MacGowan, Sinead O'Connor, Ronnie Drew and Eugene O'Donnell. See Preview, p26 (230471). *

12.15 The Aurora Encounter (Jim McCullough 5) 1985 US). Below-average fantasy-drama about a strange flying machine found in 1800s Texas. (Followed by ITN News Headlines) (458476). 2.00 The Chart Show (R) (S) (48414).

3.00 Trauma (Gabi Kubach 1983). A detective's assistant takes over a case herself when a man asks for help to find his wife. Starring Birgit Doll, Lou Castel and Armin Mueller-Stahl (235124). 4.35 Flux (R) (S) (9179501). 5.30 News (43281).70 6.00em.

Channel 4

6.40 The Great Maratha (9577655). 7.10 Madeline (S) (3372384).
7.35 The Real Life Adventures of Professor Thompson

(1145520). B.05 Droopy (R) (S) (5783297). 8.25 Two Stupid Dogs (S) (5769617).

8.50 Cadillacs and Dinosaurs (S) (2434669). 9.20 Saved by the Bell (R) (7855094). * 9.45 Sister Sister (S) (198636).

10.15 Happy Days (R) (2811162). 10.40 Mission Impossible (5487549). 11.40 The Waltons (R) (2590452). * 12.40 Start (Robert Wise 1968 US). A lavish spectacular about the life of Gertrude Lawrence starring Julie Andrews. This film cost $14m to make and only took $4m at the box-office (76701549), * 3.50 Moonbird (3285278).

4.00 Love and Marriage. Joanna Lumley narrates more wedding voyeurism (R) (S) (384).
4.30 Too Close To Heaven. The history of gospel music from the 17th century to the present day. This first part of three concentrates on the theories of music historian Professor Horace Boyer, (Followed by News Summary and Weather)

(S) (2677297). * 5.35 Desmand's (R) (S) (764839), * 6.05 Babylon 5 (S) (706278). *

7.00 FEET The Blob (Irwin S Yeaworth Jnr 1958 U5). A jelly-like creature Invades small-town America in this classic "B" feature shocker, starring Steve McQueen (35810). * B.30 The Tallest Story. Giraffes (R) (4100). *

9.00 FIFM Nashville (Robert Altman 1975 US). Controversial Altman movie where characters gather around a political rally and pop concert. Rambling at times, but worth staying with. Stars Ned Beatty, Karen 8lack, Keith Carradine, Geraldine Chaplin, Henry Gibson and Oscar nominees Ronee Blakely and Lily Tomlin (334164), *

12.00 Thieves Like Us (Robert Altman 1974 U5). Keith Carradine stars in this gloomy melodrama as a criminal involved in a doomed romance with Shelley Duvall, while he and his pals rob a few banks during the American Great Depression

2.15 Weird Nightmare. Ray Davies's film portrait of Charles Mingus, featuring special recordings of his songs by many celebrities, including Elvis Costello and Sting (651 389). To 3.15am.

ITV/Regions

MiSUA As London except: 2.00pm Highway to Heaven (55/5-46/1). 2.50 Cartoon (182/2568). 3.00 Films The Prantom Horsennen (898057/23). 4.55 Island Soldiers (4771758). 5.15 Fourteen Weddings, and a Divocce (95-45/9). 6.15 Anglia News (909636). 6.35 Dr Qunni, Medicine Worman (75570/4). 12.15am, Films, Night of the Hunter (370/24). 2.10am Cyber Cafe (9329/259). 2.40am Best of Brutsh Motor Sport (154/8953). 3.10 Flux (827/5563). 4.05-5.30am Films Gorgo (882/8940).

TIME TEES/YORKSHIRE

As London excepts 12.30 Tyrus: Newsweek (6983655), brits: De Miedra Kitchen (6983655), 2.00 Mierder, She Wrote (6350097), 2.55 Carteon (1805891), 3.10 Films: The Golden Voyage of Simbad (10996471), 5.10 Harneth at 70 (8130982), 6.35 Dr Curm, Modicine Worman (755704), 12.15am Films: Columbo Goes to College (458476), 2.00am Films Mastrooq (81729747), 4.35-5.30am Jobfinder (9179501), sier ring i by tra-Mr g to r. ier-not mit. the af-Mr

na-ing tel-

WHI.

Juc

im-

ıi :

the aid

der ba.

ar-ate

the ous

CBITRAL
As London escapt: 2.00pm Right or Wrong (7487). 2.30
Films (kim (2.1160/281). 4.40 Murder, She Wrote (931/1810). S.30 Internotional Ar Tathoo 96 (906617).
6.35 Dr Quinn, Medicine Wormen (755704). 4.55am
Jobinder (2968/292). 5.20-5.30am Ason Eye (3713305).

INV As London succept: 12.25pm West: Farth at Work 161150941, Wales: Dogs with Dumbor (6115094), 2.00 Emmerdale (8767029), 2.40 International Yourng Cars (5521013), 3.10 Film: The Bridge at Remagen (47695365), 5.00 Beywatch (3482742), 5.50 West: World of Wonder (596097), Wales: A Visit to the Estectified (596097), 6.35 Dr Currn, Medicine Woman (75570-9), 12.15am; Film: Night of the Hunter (770124), 2.10am phercale (9329259), 2.40am Best of British Motor Sport (1548853), 3.10am Flux (8275563), 4.05-5.30am Film: Gorgo (88259-40).

Name of the Hunter (37072-1), 2.10 am Fig. 23259-0), 2.45 fmc, 25.74871, 2.00 The Pier (87629810), 2.25 fmc, Listings (81657891), 2.30 Symmer Panding (162), 3.00 Behind the Bal (3094), 3.30 Peak Performance (907), 4.00 Film: The Magnificent Seven (43916346), 6.35 fmc, and the Medicine Worson (755794), 12.15am Film: Night of the Hunter (37072-1), 2.10am Oyber Cale (9329259), 2.40am Best of British Notor Sport (7548853), 3.10am Film (8275563), 4.05-5,30am Film: Gorgo (8825940).

As Landon sucept: 12.55pm Westcountry News (40304549), 2.00 Hot Spots (7487), 2.30 Wild about (40304549). 2.00 Hot Sods (7487). 2.30 Wild about Commed (7162). 3.00 Film: The Phantom Horsemen (89805723). 4.55 highway to Heaven (9259984). 5.45 Summer Gelaways (986688). 6.15 Westpountry News (906636). 6.35 to Cunnt, Medicine Webman (75704). 12.15am Film: Night of the Hunter (370124). 2.10 cybeccale (9329259). 2.40am Best of British Motor Sport (7548853). 3.10am Flux (8275563). 4.05-5.30am Film: Gorgo (8825940).

54C As C4 except: 9.45am Hangni with Mr Cooper Ghosts in the Mischine (198636). 10.15 Boy Meets World (2011/62). 12.40 Sister Sester 169607040. 1.10 Filter Sunday in New York (76744750). 3.10 Babyton 5 (4819433). 4.15 Party of Five (1176075). 5.00 Poted Y Com Omrebus (24995984). 6.55 Eisteddiod Genedlethol Cystru, Bro Directive Cediatr Bore (762094) 7.55 Newyddion (728758). 8.00 Pengeli (719907). 8.35 Osaan (356051). 9.35 Film: Popeye (772988). 11.25-12.45am Film: A Wedding (96868029).

Radio

Radio 1 (97 6-99.8MHz FM)

7.00am Kevin Greening 10.00 Dave Pearce 2.00 Trevor Nelson's Rhythm Nation 4.00 UK Top 40 7.00 Independence Day - UK 8.00 John Peel 10.00 Andy Kershaw 12.00 Mary Anne Hobbs 4.00-6.30am Charlie Jordan Radio 2

(88-90.7)Mt Fig.

68-91.24th Rt0
7.00arm Don Maclean 9.05 Steve Wright's Love Songs 11.00 Parkinson's Sunday Supplement 1.00
Desmond Carrington 3.00 Benny
Green 4.00 A Diva Sang 4.30 Sing
Something Simple 5.00 Pam Ayres
7.00 Hugh Scully 8.30 Sunday
Half Hour 9.00 Alan Keith 10.00 Fifty Years of the Edinburgh Festival and Fringe 12.05 Sue McGarry 3.00-6.00am Alex Lester

Radio 3

(90 7-92 4Mt FM) 7.00am Sacred and Profane. 8.50 Choice of Three. 9.00 Brian Kay's Sunday Morning. 12.30 Full Score. 1.00 New for Old: Myths Retold. 1.15 Cheltenham Festival. 3.00 Spirit of the Age.
4.00 BBC Proms 1996. Live from the Royal Albert Hall, London.

London Adventist Chorale, Conductor: Ken Burton. 5.45 The Sunday Feature: Who Shall Bind the Infinite? 6.30 Amy Beach.

7.00 Proms News. 7.30 BBC Proms 1996. Live from The Royal Albert Hall, London. Simon Preston (organ), Ernst Kovacic (violin), BBC Symphony Or-chestra. Conductor: Leonard Slatkin, Ives, orch Schuman: Variations on "America". Ives, orch Schuller: General Slocum; Yale-Princeton Football Game. Copland: Organ Symphony. (8.15 Pure Gravy. See Choice, above.) Adams: Violin Concerto, Duka Ellington: Harlem.

9.50 The Sunday Play: The Death of Alexander Scriabin. By Ken Russeil's. 10.45 Russian Music for Two Planos. 11.15 Traditional Music. 11.45 Interpretations on Record. 1.00 Through the Night, With Don-

5.00 Sequence.

Choice

Lots more poets: Poets' Poetry Piease (5.30pm R4) has Adrian Tennyson; and in Pure Gravy (8.15pm R3), the widow of Raymond Carver (left), Tess Gallagher, talks about his final his poems.

5.10 Something Understood.5.55 Weather. 7.00 News. 7.10 Sunday Papers. 7.15 On Your Farm. 7.40 Sunday. 8.50 The Week's Good Cause. 8.55 Weather.

9.00 News. 9.10 Sunday Papers. 9.15 Latter from America. 11.45 The New Europeans. (3/6). 12.15 in the Psychlatrist's Chair.

1.00 The World This Weekend. 1.55 Shipping Forecast.
2.00 Gardeners' Question Time.
2.30 The Classic Serial: The Barchester Chronicles. By Trollope. 3.30 Pick of the Week.

4.15 Analysis. 5.00 News; Jerusalem Lives. (1/2). 5.30 Poets' Poetry Please! 5.50 Shipping Forecast. 5.55 Weather. 6.00 Six O'Clock News. 5.15 Feedback.

6.30 The Tablecloth Trick. Richard Coles tests his own belief to see if it can face up to the complex world of science and talks to two atheists, the cell biologist Lewis Wolpert and psychologist James Hernming, both of whom have attempted to remove religion from their lives whilst leaving everything else standing. (3/4).
7.00 Children's BBC Radio 4: Time Hops. Sci-fi comedy by Alan Gilbey and David Richard-Fox

7.30 First Person Singular. (1/6). 8.00 FM: The Natural History Programme. 8.00 LW: Open University. 8.30 FM: What It...? Bonnie Prince Charile. Professor Christopher Andrew talks to historians Jeremy Black and Diana Preston about what might have ensued had Bonnie Prince Charlie refused to retreat on 5 December

1745. (3/4). 9.00 FM: Growing Spaces. 9.30 FM: Costing the Earth.

9.59 Weather.

Henri introducing favourite bits of year, while Kerry Shale reads from > 10.00 News. 10.15 Medicine Now. 10.45 Breakswily. 11.15 Europe Now. 12.00 News. 12.20 Bells on Sunday.

12.30 The Late Story: The Great Eastern Adventure. By Gillan Tindall. 12.48 Shipping Forecast. 1.00 As World Service. 5.50 Inshore Forecast. 5.55-6.00am Shipping Forecast.

Radio 5

(93, 999k): MV 6.05am Brief Lives 6.30 The Olympic Breakfast Programme 9.05 Sunday with Mair 11.35 Special As-Sunday with Mair 11.35 Special As-signment 12.05 The Big Blyte 12.35 The Game's Up 1.05 Olympic Sun-day Sport 7.00 Olympic News Extra 7.45 Atlanta Live 10.00 Night Extra 11.05 Inverdale's Olympics 2.05 Olympic Up All Night 5.00-6.00em Morning Reports

Classic FM

Virgin Radio

(180.0-18) 9992 FM 6.00cm Sarah Lucas. 9.00 Romance. 12.00 Celebrity Choice. 1.00 Alan Mann. 3.00 The King of Instruments. 4,00 Discoveries. 7.00 Countdown Top 10. 8.00 Evening Concert. Widor, Albinoni, Vivaldi, Bach. 10.00 Howard's Week. 12.00 Petroc Treawny. 4.00-6.00em Mark Grif-Feths.

(1215, 1197-1250bb MW 105.84bb Pig 6.00am Janey Lee Grace 10.00 Gra-ham Dene 2.00 Nicky Home 6.00 Lynn Parsons 10.00 Gary Davies 2.00-6.00am Randall Lee Rose World Service

1.00pm Newsdesk 1.30 Develop-ment '96 1.45 Britain Today 2.00 Newsdesk 2.30 Short Story 2.45 Newsdesk 2.30 Short story 2.43 On the Move 3.00 Newsday 3.30 China's Cultural Revolution 4.00 World News 4.05 Olympic Sports-world 4.30 Jazz for the Asking 5.00 Newsdesk 5.30 Off the Shalf. Reef 5.45-6.00am Country Style

Satellite

6.DOwn Hour of Power (49345) 7.00 Undur (5243907). 12.00 The Hit Mix (70520). 1.00 Star The Hit Mit (70520). 1.00 Star Tirek (96568). 2.00 The World at War (67565). 3.00 Star Tirek Deep Space Nine (93907). 4.00 WWF Action Zone (24182). 5.00 Great Escapes (9487). 5.30 Mightly Morphin Power Rangers (5100). 6.00 The Simpsons (3053). 6.30 The Simpsons (3365). 7.00 Star Tirek Deep Space Nine (17075). 8.00 Metrose Place (26723). 9.00 Queen (29810). 11.00 Manhunter (33181). 12.00 S0 Minutes (83181), 12.00 60 Minutes (54230), 1.00 Sunday Comics (39501), 2.00-6.00am Hit Mix Long Play (8932360),

SKY WOMES 6.00am Easy Living (1949) (30617). 7.30 Going Under (1990) (53568). 9.00 Proudheart (1993) (90568). 10.00 Morans (1993) (90558), 10.00 Morars from Outer Space (1985) (75029), 12.00 Seethover's 2nd (1993) (44758), 2.00 No Child of Mine (1993) (30326), 4.00 The Tin Soldier (1995) (5146), 8.00 The Adventures of Huck Firm (1993), (70162), 8.00 Seethover's 2nd (1993), (29927), 10.00 Leon (1994), (694297), 11.50 The Young Americans (1993) (1994), (69429), 11.50 the Young Americans (1993), (534177), 1.35 the Spider and the Fly (1994) (6750476), 3.00 Men Dorit Tell (1993) (590553), 4.40-5.00am Going Under (1990) 45090601

MOVIE CHAMPIEL 6.00am My Little Pony: The Movie (1986) (34487), 7.30 The Littlest Hobo (1958) (44810). 9,00 The Corsican Brothers (1994) (81810). 10.00 Battle (1994) (81810). 10.00 Battle Cry (1955) (25204100). 12.20 A Millionaire for Christy (1951) (445471). 2.00 Bandir's Silver Angel (1994) (91471). 3.30 El Fastures (6839). 4.00 Fobilden Memories (1995) (8558). 6.00 The Philiptelphia Eynerment Memoriss (1995) (8582, 6.00 The Philadelphia Experiment (1984), (18704), 8.00 The Steat (1995), (20549), 10.00 Kalifornia (1993), (85988), 12.00 Crossing the Bridge (1992), (436389), 1.45 The Disappearence of Christina (1993) (931230), 3.20-6.00am Florite (1993), 4860(2882)

(1993) (48048853). SICY INCOVES GOLD 12.00moon King's Row (1942) (79377758), 2.10 Moonstruck (1987) (932617), 4.00 Anchors Aweigh (1945) (59113471), 6.20 Clue (1985), (65184758), 8.00 Moonstruck (1987), (92079). 10.00 Forced Vergeance (1982). (386891). 11.40 Doctor Detroit (1983). (955365). 1.15 Paster, Pussycat! XIII! Kit! (1965) (889495). 2.45-4.55am King's Row (1942) (90565655).

TIK BOTD 7.00am Record Breakers (2630075), 7.30 Blue Peter (2642810), 8.00 When the Boat Comes in (9055162), 9.00 The Comes in (9055162), 9.00 The Day of the Triffick (1981297), 10.00 Balke's Seven (2548094), 11.00 Or Who (8863549), 1.00 George and Mildred (1980) (6080487), 3.00 The Bill (74298636), 5.20 Porridge (4963013), 5.00 The Good Old Days (5906568), 6.55 Oick Ernery (1759433), 7.25 Les Dewson (7533-133), 8.00 The Duchess of Dulle Street (99667075), 9.05 Boys from the Blackstuff (41533471), 10.15 Edge of Oarkness (77425810).

Edge of Oarkness (77425810). 11.25 Bob Monkhouse (5014181), 12.15 Educating Rita (6676698). 2.05-7.00em Shopping at Night (74256834). ZXY SPORTS 3.7 90kis 7.00am Super League (16433).
9.00 Formule 3 Racing
(28704). 9.30 Darts (85907).
11.30 Superbites (1433452).
5.00 European Goff (709704).
8.00 Superbites (66365).
10.00 Super League (78100).
11.00 Cricket (36297). 12.00
Futbol Mundial (93055). 12.302 30am Striat (40747). 2.30am Superbikes (40747).

31 5/W132 7.00am Sports Edira (9417907). 11.00 Watersports (2898742). 12.00 Golf USA (5838617). 2.00 Cricket (9348433). 7.30 Velo-Cy-cling (8511433). 8.00 Surfing (5848051). 9.00 Golf USA (8991128). 11.00 European Golf (836910). 12.30 Document Colf Beach Volleyball (1940211). LIVETY 6.00am Reveletions, 6.30 Looking

5.00am Reveletions, 5.30 Looking for Love, 7.00 Spanish Archer, 7.30 Mind & Body, 8.00 The Wity Files, 8.30 Video Box, 9.00 Fate & Fortune, 9.30 The Fashkon Show, 10.00 Reveletions, 10.30 Looking for Love, 11.30 Spanish Archer, 12.30 Soccer, 5.30 Looking for Love, 6.00 The Fashkon Show, 5.30 Sport, 7.00 Pin Money, 7.30 Reveletions, 8.00 The Wity Files, 8.30 Spanish Archer, 9.00 Lunchbox Volleyball, 9.03 Fate & Fortune, 9.30 Looking 9.03 Fate & Fortune. 9.30 Looking for Love. 10.00 Topless Darts. 10.03 Sport. 10.30 Stand-Up. 11.00 Epiless Darts 11.03 Fate & Fortune 11.30 The Sex Show 12.00 Lunchbox Volleyball 12.03 Revettions 12.30 Kiss TV. 1.30-6.00am Night Time Programmes

Pastimes

could simply have castled, will settle matters.

The disaster of the week was Vassily Ivanchuk's loss to Judit Polgar in Novgorod. The fun hegan in the diagram position when lvanchuk found a neat combination as Black: 1...Rxc3! 2.Qxc3 Nxe4 3.Qe1 Nc3+! 4.bxc3 Bxg2. Polgar found a way to fight with 5.fxe5! (since 5...Bxh1 6.exd6 is good for White), but after 5...Bh4! 6.Bf2 Bxf2 7.Qxf2 Bxh1 8.Rxh1 Black raised to 20 and, in order to give the defenders as little help as possible, South went straight to game. As it happened, West had a comfortable lead of OK against 4 ♥, and South ruffed the diamond continuation. The main chance, declarer decided, was that there would be no trump loser and that, even if the OQ did not fall, something useful might happen in clubs.

Chess William Hartston

8...dxe5?! winning a pawn but drifting into difficulties after 9.Qc5! f6 10.Kc1 Qd7 11.h3 Kf7 12.Rd1 Qb7 13.Rd6 Rc8 14.Qe3. Since 14...Kg8 may he met hy 15.Qd3 with the threat of Rd7 and Qg6, Ivanchuk played 14...Rc4 15.Qd3 Ke7, but his game became critical after 16.Rd8 Qc6 17.Rg8!

retaining a hig advantage

thanks to White's weak pawns. Instead he played the more dangerous

There followed 17 Rxc3 (17...Kf7 is met by 18.Qh7) 18.Qg6! e4 19.Rxg7+ Kd6 20.Qxf6+ Kd5 21.Qf5+ Kd4 22.Rd7+ Kc4 23.23! b4 24.Qf1+Rd3 25.Rxd3! (not 25.cxd3+ Kb3+!) exd3 26.Qxd3+ Kc5 27.axb4+ kxb4 28.Qb3+ Ka5 29.c3 and Black resigned. A check from the white queen on b4

North

+A85

QJ82

+973

♥J 1082

East

43964

Perplexity

revenge praxis

Mixed doubles: Small starved dodge closes

This week's three connected answers each have two words. All you need do to find them is regroup the six words above into three sets of two, then rearrange the letters within each set. A Larousse Desk Reference Encyclopedia will be awarded to the first correct answer opened on 14 August. Answers to: Saturday Pastimes, the Independent, 1 Canada Square, Canary Wharf, London E14 5DL

20 July answers: Hundred metres (sendeth murder); pole vault (value plot); Olympic Games (images comply). Winner: Rowan Connell.

Bridge Alan Hiron

North-South reached a per-Game all; dealer South fectly reasonable game in hearts on this deal, but declarer ended with only nine tricks. His line of play offered fair chances, although I think that he could have done West better. See if you agree. +1072 South opened 1 . North

PO65 ♦KQ1094 ♦A763 +Q6 +K542 South ♦KQ3 ♥A K 9 7 4 ♣A J 108

> It did not work out like that. The ace and king of trumps brought no joy and, after cashing three spades ending on the West won, cashed ♥Q and exited safely with another diamond. The +K did not fall on the next round and the contract failed. Would it not have been a good idea, once the first top heart had failed to drop the queen, lo give up a trump trick (possibly unnecessarily) by leading a low heart at trick three? You can see the point - with at least two entries to dummy, South can now take two finesses in clubs and the contract will only fail when West holds both of the missing club honours. (If I had adopted this line, which seems to be the percentage play, I am quite sure that I would have found trumps 2-2 and West table, declarer finessed +J. with the club pictures.) unit.

reference in

TOL.

14.1

ald Macleod. 1.01 Opera. 4.00 Chamber Music.

(92 4-94.5MHz FM, 198MC 197) 6.00am News Briefing.

The big picture Eat Drink Man Woman Sat 10,25pm C4

Before making Sense and Sensibility, director Ang Lee proved he had them both in spades by making Eat Drink Man Woman. Opening a new season of C4's Picture Palace showcase, Lee's cleverlyrealised, culinary comedy focuses on the mpact of romance on the life of a closeonit family, led by widowed master chef Mr Chu (Sihung Lung). Lee explains the think-ing behind his delightful, Oscar-nominated film: "I always thought it was ironic that every family exists because of sex, and yet it is precisely the topic of sex that families have the most trouble discussing."

of time leading to a gradual descent into wrinkliness, there is comfort on offer. The BBC launches its "Coming Of Age" season this weekend, hoping to find out what "old age" will mean to future generations. You can almost smell the fear of impotence from the middle-aged suits who commissioned this. Grey Sex (Sun, BBC2) is an endearing, moving and at times hysterical film focusing on the libidos of the over-sixties. Just because you've got a bus pass doesn't mean you have to forego the pleasures of the flesh. But you may need a little help.

Ian Lyon, married to Joan for 50 years, demonstrates,

without embarassment, a threatening looking plastic vacuum pump which improves his erection. Joan positively twinkles at its approach. Never patronising in tone, this film allows its ageing subjects dignity and the freedom to be frank about a topic that to some Far less edifying and likely to depress what life is as taboo as necrophilia.

The Middle Ages Sat 6.30pm C4 Dancing In The Street Sat 9.15pm BBC2 Grey Sex Sun 9.00pm BBC2 The English Wife Sun 9.15pm ITV

of forty somethings about their lives and aspirations. His speciality this week appears to be reducing grown women to tears. Probing rudely into their late motherhood, errant husbands or failures birthday party, but some poor woman let him in. Helping a slightly younger clientele deal with their age crisis is the latest part of Dancing In The Street (Sat, BBC2). "No Fun" traces the growth of punk on its energising journey from Jonathan Richman via Television, Talking Heads and across the Atlantic into the safe hands of Malcolm McLaren. There's that interview with the Sex Pistols when the air of the Today studio turned blue, and some great footage of the acned ones head-butting beer cans on their American tour. In today's interviews, Steve Jones and John Lydon (Rotten, remains out of you, is Ray Gosling's new six-parter. as was) positively glow with health, strategically The Middle Ages (Sat, C4). Gosling, a man who takes positioned by swimming pools or objets d'art. There

Danny Boy - In Sunshine Or In Shadow Sun 11.15pm ITV or those of you worried about the relentless march | lugubriousness to new depths, interviews a selection | always was a lot of money in bondage trousers.

If you like your music laced with a touch of sentimentality, then Danny Boy - In Sunshine Or In Shadow (Sun, ITV) is for you. Tracing the history of the famous Irish air, this intelligent to achieve, he hangs around like the Grim Reaper film draws on some high profile interviewees for of hormone replacement therapy, ready to sneer its analysis. Eric Clapton, Van Morrison, Sincad at every hot flush. Not the ideal guest for your 40th O'Connor and Shane McGowan, his teeth glistening. fetchingly, all provide interpretations. You may shed a genuine tear or two with boxer Barry McGuigan as he recalls his father's rendition, sung before his son's title fight, and the love that it expressed. Look out also for lovely MP John Hume in a dashing pink shirt.

And so to The English Wife (Sun, ITV). Appearing like an oasis in the parched summer schedules. this two-hour drama is a dry disappointment. Newcomer Geraldine O'Rawe is hopelessly out of her depth as a nanny who falls among skulduggery and passion in the French countryside, while Zoë Wanamaker is wasted away as her employer. A terrible script isn't helped by the excruciatingly langurous direction.

The big race Cycling: men's individual trials Sat 12.30pm BBC1

A great deal of newsprint has been taken. up with wailing about Britain's relative failure in these Olympic Games and our position in the medal table somewhere near Belanus and Ethiopia. As the games come to a close, we have chances with Kelly Holmes in the 1,500m and Sieve Backley in the javelin. But the man most likely to lift the gloom should be Chris Boardman (above). Fresh from the four de France, he competes in the men's individual time trial. A nation's hopes will be upon him as he tries to match the gold medal he won four years ago.

Saturday television and radio

BBC1

6.00 ESSI Son of Sinbad (Ted Tetzlaff 1955 US). Worse than average Arabian Nights adventure with Dale Robertson (33357). 7.30 News, Weather (8694999).

7.35 The Raccoons (R) (1244845). 8.00 Olympic Breakfast. Overnight action from Atlanta: the men's pole vault, the 3,000m steeplechase, the women's 10,000, the women's long jump and the women's shot put (S) (891390).

12.00 IBBI Animalympics (Steven Lisberger 1980 US).
As if all the real sport weren't enough, here's an animated animal version (8686661). 12.15 Cartoon (3618241).

12.27 Weather (1004715). 12.30 Olympic Grandstand, Introduced by Sue Barker. 12.35 Olympics – Action from Atlanta as the Games reach their penultimate day. This afternoon's events include the men's individual time trial in cycling, plus canceing, dressage and rhythmic gymnastics. 1.00 News 1.05 Olympics 2.20 Racing from Goodwood - The 2.30 Vodata Nursery Stakes. With commentary by Peter O'Sullevan, Julian Wilson and Jimmy Lindley. 2.35 Olympics 3.00 Racing From Goodwood - The 3.10 Vodafone Nassau Stakes. 3.15 Olympics 3.30 Racing from Goodwood - The 3.45 Vodac Statustic Cur. 3.50 Okamier (S) Sec. The Disc Stewards Cup. 3.55 Olympics (S). See The Big Race, above (19304116). 5.10 News, Weather (5138195). * 5.20 Regional News and Weather (3938086).

5.25 Dad's Army (R) (4722796).

5.55 Big Break Trickshot Special. Snooker competition with Willie Thome and Jimmy White, actor Paul Shane, and a mystery celebrity guest (S)

6.25 Pets Win Prizes (S) (467932). * 7.05 Due South. Fun mountie-in-Chicago drama (S) (953574). * 7.50 The National Lottery Live (S) (561951).

7.30 The National Lottery Live (3) (361951).
8.05 Casualty (R) (S) (556406), *
8.55 News and Sport, Weather (Followed by National Lottery Update) (327864). *
9.15 Olympic Grandstand. 9.25 Football – Action from the men's final. 10.30 Tennis/ Volleyball – Coverage of the women's tennis doubles final and the women's volleyball final, 11.50 Athletics - Live action from the final day of track and field. Including: 11.50 Women's high jump final, 11.55 Men's lavelin final, 12.05 Women's 4 x 100m relay final. 12.20 Men's 4 x 100m relay final. 1,500m final. 1.40 Men's 5,000m final. 2.15 Women's 4 x 400m relay final, 2.40 Men's 4 x 400m relay final, 2,55 Basketball – Live coverage of the men's final (S) (18284845).

4.25 Eliza Station West (Sidney Lanfield 1948 US). A military intelligence officer pursues outlaws who have murdered two soldiers (8849520). 5.55 EPRI Lassie and Neeka (Dick Moder 1968 US). Dog goes to Alaska (2858636). To 6.00am.

BBC<sub>2</sub>

Open University: Engineering Mechanics (3104222), 6.25 Complex Numbers (3123357), 6.50 Government and Politics: Open Communities (2091715), 7.15 Open Advice: Science Skills (3482715), 7.40 Rabbits and Chalk Grasslands (1272628), 8.05 The Other Virtuosos: Victorian Brass Bands (5121999). 8.30 The Gentle Sex?

Brass Bands (5/2/1999), 8.30 The Genthe Sex?
Representations of Gender (22048).

9.00 Children's BBC: Mighty Max. 9.20 Grange Hill.
9.50 Sweet Valley High. 10.15 The O Zone.

10.30 Open University: Environmental Control
(5900574). 10.55 Statistics (8933796). * 11.20
Putting Training to Work (8900319). 11.45 Open Mind (1719112).

12.10 The Year of the Pler. A celebration of the piers which once symbolised the classic British holiday (3693932).12.20 Eith The Tamished Angels (Douglas Sirk 1957 US). One of Sirk's bleekest films focuses on Rock Hudson as a reporter in Depression America who becomes fascinated with the lives of a group of sturnt fliers (8039425). * 1.50 The Lawless Breed (Raoul Walsh 1952 US).

Rock Hudson again, this time as an upstanding father who is trying to guide his son away from a life of crime in this passable western (9563406).

3.10 1555 This Earth is Mine (Henry King 1959 US). Yet more Rock Hudson in this scepy drama set in the Californian vineyards of the 1930s (10072845). *

5.10 Olympic Grandstand. Sue Barker introduces further coverage from Atlanta, including the men's tennis singles final live. There is also action from the boxing finals and live reports from the men's and women's individual time trials in cycling. Plus, finals in canceling, individual dressage and women's volleyball (S) (57523116), * 9.15 Dancing in the Street: A Rock and Roll History. Punk is on the menu. See Preview, above (S)

10.15 Taldn' Over the Asylum. Re-run of Donna Franceschild's breathtaking and Bafta award-winning drama, set in a mental hospital. Tonight's episode focuses on Angus McFadyen as serial escaper, Fergus (R) (S) (2762883). * 5 DEM A Soldier's Tale (Larry Part 1988 NZ).

Gabriel Byrne stars as a British Second World War soldier who is trying to protect a French woman accused of collaboration (925357).

12.40 Later with Jools Holland. Another diverse mix of Stade's "Cum On, Feel the Noise", and David Bowie reinterprets "The Man Who Sold the World" and "Hello Spaceboy". Plus, performances from Ruby, Papa Wemba and Aztec Camera's Roddy Frame (Followed by Weatherview) (R) (S) (3583461). To 1.55am.

REGIONS. Wates: 11.05pm Double Exposure. 11.45 Film: A Soldier's Tale. 1.20 Later with Jools Holland. 2.30 Weatherview.

ITV/London

6.00 GMTV (4438680), 9.25 Scratchy & Co (S) (62208222). 11.30 The Chart Show (S) (97970).

12.30 Mad Science (41661). 1.00 News and Weather (24332241). *
1.05 London Today (24331512). *
1.10 Movies, Games and Videos (83686406).

1.40 James and the Giant Peach. Behind the scenes at the making of the film based on Roald Dahl's children's book (58318609). 2.10 Airwolf. More helicopter grief for all-American hero,

Hawke (R) (4761929). 3.00 Thunder in Paradise (S) (1254796). 3.55 RoboCop (S) (1698999). 4.50 News and Weather (2180319). *
5.05 London Tonight (Followed by LWT Weather) (2362932). *

5.25 Beadle's About (S) (4717864). * 5.55 Man O'Man. Watch 10 grown men make utter fools of themselves. So what's new? (S) 6.55 You Bet! Darren Day and Diane Youdale are joined by guests Toby Anstis, Billy Pearce and Jenny Powell in this awful challenge show (S) (928628). * 7.55 ITN News, Weather, Lottery Result (Followed by LWT Weather) (555390). *

8.10 The Big, Big Talent Show. Jonathan Ross with members of the public hoping to become second-rate celebs (S) (571715).

9.00 A Touch of Frost. David Jason is excellent as the rumpled detective who this week is called upon to investigate the death of a drug addict who drowned in a public toilet. Where does he get those anoraks? With David Jason and Bruce Alexander (R) (S) (7086). *

11.00 STEET The Nightman (Charles Haid 1991 US).
Routine fare which bills itself as an erotic thriller. Maggie Rhodes was only 17 when her mother was murdered at a run-down seaside motel by the man they both loved. Now, 13 years later, he is out on parole, and Maggie is convinced that he is following her. Staming Joanna Kerns, Jenny Robertson and Ted Marcoux

BL Stryker - the King of Jazz (Ha) Needham 1990 US). Dire spin-off from the dire TV series. Burt Reynolds stars as a private detective, who is reunited with an old friend, now a Special Agent with the FBI. However, the pair come to blows as

(Followed by ITN News Headlines) (S) (452988). 2.25 American Gladiators (S) (8661810). 3.15 El News Review. Entertainment news from Hollywood (Followed by ITN News Headlines) (R)

4.05 God's Gift (R) (6419346). 4.55 Cool Vibes (S) (55449297). 5.05 Coach (S) (3958839). 5.30 News (42907). To 6.00am.

Channel 4

6.00 Sesame Street. With Kevin Kline (R) (97777). 7.00 The Magic School Bus (R) (S) (55951).
7.30 The Ferals (S) (74086).
8.00 Gaelic Games. The Ulster Football Final, where the

1994 All-Ireland champions, Down, take on Tyrone 9.00 The Morning Line. Today's racing preview (S)

10.00 High Five. The addictive sport of Base Jump (S) (14116) 10.30 The Northumberland All Terrain Marathon.
Running from Lindisfame to the mainland, presented by Christina Boxer (S) (20680): 11.00 Trans World Sport (50406). 12.00 Rawhide (2288951).

12.55 FIELD That Hamilton Woman (Alexander Korda 1941 US), Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier in a proficient dramatisation of the affair between Lord Nelson and Emma Hamilton, trollop of her

3.20 Channel 4 Racing from Newmarket. Derek Thompson introduces: the 3.05 EBF Clearly Canadian Maiden Stakes; the 3.35 Ye Olde Oak H'cap Stakes; the 4.10 Hero Lite Stakes; the 4.40 NGK Spark H'cap Stakes ($) (88013715).

5.05 Brookside Ornnibus. Max and Susannah go pale with horror when they discover the incestuous secrets of Nat and Georgia (R) ($) (2202086). *

6.30 The Middle Ages. Ray Gosling asks mid-lifers how they cope. See Preview, above (S) (80). *
7.00 Channel 4 News and Weather (958203).
7.10 Europe on the Road. First in a new series about

European views reports from France. Christine Ockrent goes to a cider festival In Brittany while Guillaine Chenu reports on Chirac's presidency (S) (869661) * 8.00 My Night with Handel, Handel biographer Jonathan Keates narrates this musical drama reworking some of the composer's most beautiful arias. Featuring the Orchestra of the Age of Enlightenment (S) (5241). * 9.00 ER. Heart problems and a shooting occupy the gorgeous docs (R) (S) (649661). 9.55 Paul Merton - the Second Series (R) (S)

10.25 East Drink Man Woman (Ang Lee 1994 laiwan). From the man who went on to direct Sense And Sensibility comes this beautiful bittersweet comedy. Sihung Lung is the and contain his three adult daughters through the rituals of food. In Chinese with English subtitles. See Big Picture, above (S) (34899319).

12.45 The Legend of the Four Kings (S) (781520). 1.45 The Twilight Zone (58162), 2.15 Full Frontal (73471).

2.45 Squawkietalkie (R) (S) (72742). * 3.15 Dweebs (S) (79655). To 3.45am.

ITV/Regions

AllELIA As London except: 12,30pm Movies, Games and Videos (41661). 1.10 Pilms Dance fül Dawn (48373864). 3.00 Airwolf (1254796). 5.15 Car-toons (4988852). 12.45am Films The Ordeal of Bill Carney (192094). 2.35am, American Gladiators (5800471). 3.25am Films South Riding (253510). 5.00-5.30am International Touring Cars (19384).

William O

den as

, 5" . 1 . 14

1781

47.47.

....

 $g_{1} \leq (d^{\alpha-1})_{\alpha} = 0$

aggregation (v. ) 200

Photo to the se

Part Action

must be a second

्याक्षेत्र' है कि प्र whold cate:

ist too loon

Transfer to the

1.44 (0.00)

98 March 1987 A.

 $\{2, n, \{n_1, \dots, n_k\}\}$

28-50-20-2

YOU.L.

Andreas en la

as the good

Telegraphy and a second

7270 L Santage of the Maria and

259 (9)

Attended to Salah bara ay i tal tal (dal "

in her that h

Talken Ly 25 Long

at like the art of the con-

the the second

Paris of the state of the state of

A Bornis

and death of the second

Bloomer Harry

Mal Eiste

ENGINE .

Anta No.

A Marian

-13eq ...,

Esquiring!

F # " " -

A Company of the Comp

Control of the second

The state of the state of parte to الآم الآم.

rii:

THE TES/VORISHIRE
As Landon except 12.30pm Movies, Gernes & Videos (41661). 1.10 Thunder in Paradise (9997864). 2.05 Cartoon Time (81773883). 2.10 Film: Disney's You Rained My Life (257319). 3.55 Airwelf (1638999). 5.10 Yorks: Scoreline (3927970). 5.15 Cartoon (4988852). 12.4Sam Film: BL Stryler – Die Laughing (476568). 2.30am Cosch (1335742). 2.5Sam The War of the Worlds (5886891). 3.50am Customs Classified (3588461). 4.30am Murder, She Wrote (8477487). 5.20-5.30am Profile (3746636).

CBTRAL As London except: 12.30pm MoAes, Games & Videos (41661). 1.10 Baywetch (7253390). 2.00 Airwolf (7001785). 2.55 Cartnors (1927067). 3.05 Filter The Captaint's Table (47700628). 4.05am Joting-er (8591758). 5.20-5.30am Asian Eye (3746636).

ITV
As London except: 12.30pm West: No Neled Flamas (41661). Weles: Tithe (41661). 1.10 House (683/951). 1.45 Movies, Games & Videos (6610/48). 2.15 James & the Glant Peach (412/086). 2.50 Him: Casey's Shadow (9821/3390). Weles: ITV News; Weelend Westher (2180319). 5.10 Weles: Lot's Go (3927970). 5.15 Cartoon Time (4988852). 12.45am Film: The Orderl of Bill Carney (192094). 2.35am American Gladiators (5800471). 3.25am Film: South Riding (253510). 5.00-5.30am International Youring Cars (19384).

National Medium (1988) 12.30 pm Movies, Games & Videos (41661), 1.10 Go Fishing (83686406), 1.40 International Touring, Cars (58318609), 2.10 Shuftmasters (4761929), 3.00 Arwolf (1254796), 5.15 Cartpors (4988852), 12.45 am Film: The Ordeal of Bill Carney (192094), 2.35 am American Gladiators (5800471), 3.25 am Film: South Riding (253510), 5.00-5.30 am Freecreen (19384),

As C4 except: 7.05am Magic School Bus (3453203).
10.30 Northumberland Challenge All Terrain Marathon (20680). 11.00 Transworld Sport (50406). 12.00 The Avengers (2288951). 3.20 Channel 4 Racing (88013715). 5.05 Brookside (2202086). 6.30 Boy Meets World (80). 7.00 Newyddion Nos Sadwm (881067). 7.15 Sice Fach: Llangadog (960864). 8.00 Esteddiod Genedlaethol Cymru, Bro Dinelwr (5241). 9.00 True Stories: Experiment of the Cross (2777). 10.00 Time: Point Break (91432672). 12.20am Go Go Archipelago (4313433). 1.40-2.15am Twilight Zone (1360687). ic School Bus (3453203

Radio

Radio 1

7.00am Kevin Greening 10.00 Dave Pearce 12.30 Danny Baker 2.30 Jo Whiley 5.00 John Peel 7.00 Lovegroove Dance Party with Danny Rampling 9.00 Radio 1 Rap Show 12.00 The Radio 1 Reggae Dancehall Nite 2.00 Essential Mix: Feorless and Carter 4,00-6,00am Charlie Jordan

Radio 2 (38-9)12Mt FM

GS-90200C189
6,00200 Mo Dutta 8.05 Brian Matthew 10.00 Stove Winght's
Saturday Show 1.00 Talking Cornedy 1.30 The "What if"
Show 2.00 Judi Spiers 4.00 Nick Barraclough 5.00 Reading Music 6.00 Cellic Swing 7.00 Ned Sherm's Review of Revue 7.30 Viennese Magic 9.30 David Ja-cobs 10.00 Shendan Morley 12.05 Charles Nove 4.00-6.00am Mg Dutta

Radio 3 190 7-92 4661: PAQ 7.00am Musical Europe. 9.00 Proms News. 9.30 Humphrey Burton's Master

12.00 Off the Record, Anthony Payne blind tastes recordings of Mozart's Plano Concerto 21 in C, K467. Plus a report on Symphony Hall in Birmingham as part of a regular lea-ture on recording venues, a ture on recording venues, a look at the second-hand marcomparative merits of large and small record labels. Presented by Robert Cowan.

1.00 News; Placido Domingo, In a performance only possible in the recording studio. Domingo conducts and sings simultant ously. Introduced by Michael Oliver Johann Strauss (son): Die Fledermaus. Cast includes Peter Seiffert, Jones (Gatele von Eisenstein), Lucia Popp, soprano (Rosalinde), Kurt Rydl, bass (Frank), Agnes Baltsa, mezzo (Prince Oriofsky), Bayar ian Radio Chorus, Munich Raono Orchestra/Placido

Domingo. (3/9). 3,25 Youth Orchestras of the 5.00 Jazz Record Requests. S.45 Proms Documentary: George Malcolm. Harpsichordist, pianist and conductor George Malcolm is one of the most quietty pre-eminent figures in British postwar musical life. 30 next year, he conducted at the nelp from fellow 15-minuter Luke Goss. Meanwhile, Seamus first collection for five years.

Choice

first time since 1977, and spoke to Andrew Green about his long career. 6.30 The Beethoven Cello iatas. Rebecca Gilluver (cello), Roger Vignoles (piano). Britten: Sonata, Op 65. Beethoven: Sonata in G minor, Up 5 No 2, (2/5). 7.30 BBC Proms 1996. Live from the Rayal Albert Hall, London. European Union Youth Orchestra. Conductor: Colin Davis. Strauss: Don Juan. Elgar: Emg-ma Variations. Sibelius: Sympho-ny No 2 (Includibing at 8.25pm etry Prorts. See Chorce). Books Abroad. (2/6). 10.20 Don Grolnick 1.00 Through the Night. 1.01 Boris Urbanek. 2.00 Violin Sonatas. 5.00 Sequence. 5.55-7.00am Open University.

Radio 4 192 4-94 6MBy FML 1500-150 6.00am News Briefing. 6.10 Farming Today. 6.50 Prayer for the Day.

7.00 Today. 8.58 Weather. 9.00 News. 9.05 Sport on 4. 9.30 areanaway.

10.00 News; Fame, Remember My Name, With the help of stars and star makers, including Luke Goss. Nigel Demoster, Hughie Green and Joyce Nettles, impersonator Steve Nation discovers the best way to become famous.

10.30 The Lipman Test. (3/4). 11.00 News: The Eurocrass. Plenty to Beef About. Vivian White travels to arussels to explore the mysterious workings of the European Commission and meet the key players who know the inside story of the beef war. (1/4). 11.30 From Our Own Correspondent. Now in its 41st year of Steve Nalion (left), who used to make a nice living as a Thatcher impersonator, reflects on the fickle nature of Fame (10am R4) with Heaney kicks off a new series of Poetry Proms (8.25pm R3) with readings from The Spirit Level, his bringing fresh, evocative and colourful analysis from BBC correspondents around the word.

12.00 Inside Money. (4/6).
12.25 On Baby Street. Cornedy drama by Perner Award-winning cornectenne Jerry Eclair ning comedianne Jenny and Julie Balloo. (3/5). 12,55 Weather.

1.00 News. 1.11 In the Dock. Banks. (2/5). 1.55 Shipping Forecast.
 2.00 News; Vanishing Haymeadows 2.30 Saturday Playhouse: Hotel Du Lac. Anita Brookner's Booker Prize-winning novel, dramatised by Ayshe Rait, in which a refuge for the aged and disgraced becomes an unlikely setting for a romance.
Starring Barbara Flynn, Jack Kaff and Joan Sinss.
4.00 News: What II...? Bonnie
Prince Charlie. Professor

Christopher Andrew table to historians Jeremy Black and Diana Preston about the possifused to retreat on 5 December 1745. What effect would a Stuart dynasty have had on England? (3/4). 4.30 Science New.

5.00 File on 4. 5.40 Tidal Talk from the Rock 5.50 Shipping Forecast. 5.55 Weather. 6.00 Six O'Clock News. 6.25 The Sunday Format. 6.50 Divided by a Common Language. (6/6). 7,20 Kaleidoscope Feature. With a number of recent novels offering new perspectives on the slave trade, Amanda Hopkinson talks to three authors. Fred D'Aguiar, David Dabydeen and Philippa Gregory, who have taken up the challenge of writing about slavery. 7.50 On These Days. 8.50 Saturday Night Theatre. His Last Bow. Wisteria Lodge.

9.35 Classics with Kay. 9.50 Ten to Ten. 9 59 Weather 10.00 News. 10.15 P Division - Code Four

One. By Donald Campbell. 11.15 A Night with... Maggle O'Kane. (5/6). 11.45 Devil's Advocate. (5/6). 12.00 News. 12.30 The Late Story: Cuban Heel, by Martin Sorrell. 12.48 Shipping Forecast. 1.00 As World Service. 5.50 Inshore Forecast. 5.51 Bells on Sunday.

Radio 5 693.90942 MA 6.05am Oirty Tackle 5.30 The Olympic Breakfast Programme 9.05 Weekend with Kershaw and Whittaker 11.05 The 21st Centu-Writisker 11.05 The 21st Century and How to Survive it 11.35 if I Ruled the World 12.00 Midday Edition 12.15 Sportscall 1.05 Olympic Sport on Five 6.00 Attenta Live 11.00 Night Extra 11.30 (invertale's Olympics 3.00 Up All Night 5.00-6.00am Morning Reports.

Classic FM

CLOO 0-101 STATE FAD 6.00am Sarah Lucas. 9.00 Classic Sc Countdown, 12.00 Classic Gardening Forum. From Stone in Staffordshire, 1.00 Alan Marun. 3.00 Nick Bailey. 6.00 Menuhin: Master Musician. 7.00 The World Opera Season. Rossini: Ermione. Cecifia Gasdia, Ernesto Palacio, Orchestre Philharmoniqua de Monte Carlo/Claudio Scimone. 10.00 The Classic Quiz. 12.00 Petroc Trelawny, 4.00 Classic Travel Guide, 5.00-6.00am

Virgin Radio (1215, 1197-1260Mb WW 105.5Mb 740 6.00am Janey Lee Grace 8.00 Russ & Jono's Greatest Hits 10.00 Richard Skimmer 2.00 Mark Forrest (including Cadbury's Crunchie Album Chart) 6.00 Lynn Parsons 10.00 Robin Banks 2.00-6.00am Howard Pearce

World Service (1999年)(南

1.00am Newsdesk 1.30 Letter from America 1.45 Britain Today 2.00 Newsdesk 2.30 Atlanta Live 3.00 Newsday 3.30 Atlanta Live 4.00 World News 4.05 Atlanta Live 4.30 Fourth Estate 4.45 Write On 4.55 Pop Short 5.00 Newsdesk 5.30 Short Story 5.45-6.00am On the Move

SX*ONE
7.00am Undun (5349135), 12.00
WWF Manks (88115), 1.00 The Hit
Mix (97854), 2.00 Hercules (68551),
3.00 Hawkeye (94203), 4.00 Kung Fu
(13338), 5.00 The Young Indiana
Jones Chronicles (1203), 6.00 WWF
Superstars (17628), 7.00 Hercules
(58999), 8.00 Unsolved Mysteries
(34319), 9.00 Cors (180262), 9.30
Cors II (89845), 10.00 Stand and Deliver (72067), 10.30 Revelations
(81715), 11.00 Tales from the Crypt
(14057), 11.30 Forever Knight
(87845), 12.30 Drawn On (41758),
1.00 Cornerly Rules (67926), 1.30
Rachel Gunn, RN (74704), 2.006.00am Hit Mix Long Play (8972988), env survers

(1994) (12375). 12.00 Robin Hoods Men in Tights (1993) (72154). 2.00 Men in Tights (1993) (72154). 2.00 Men in Tights (1993) (5135). 6.00 Seasons of the Heart (1993). (51085). 8.00 Robin Hoods Men in Tights (1993). (23203). 10.00 Ghost in the Machine (1993). (37425). 11.40 Pleasure in Paradise (1993). (368319). 1.05 Jules Verne's 800 Leagues Down the Amazon (1994) (3185100). 2.35 Berrayed by Love (1993) (9323758). trayed by Love (1993) (9323758). 4.05-6.00am The Big Show (1961)

MALL CHANGE

SILY MOVIES BYLD SK MIMES 60.0
12.00pm The Stratton Story (1949) (58241). 2.00 Avantil (1972) (878154). 4.30 Bedman's Country (1958) (18222). 6.00 The Bridges at Toko-ri (1954). (33628). 8.00 Roman Holkday (1953). (58195). 10.00 Victor/Victoria (1952). (61107406). 12.20 Princesk (1968) (362687). 2.05 Compulsion (1959) (293704). 3.05-0.0am Bedman's Country (1958) (2915075).

BK ROIN 7.00am Give Us A Clue (2736203). 7.30 Going for Gold (7722048), 7.55 The Suffivans (41791280), 10.00 Sergenc (2744222), 11.00 Lymon's Diary (37680654), 12.05 Neighbours (71750241), 2.15 Film: Tom Jones

(1963) (70901222). 4.30 Spring & Autumn (9911280). 5.00 Robin's Nest (1420970). 5.35 Get Some In! (9014834). 6.10 R Ain't Half Hot, 19014034, 6.45 Sony; (1516715), 7.20 Bread (9275116), 8.00 Coldiz (93753203), 9.05 Tenko (27172533), 10.10 Bottom (2790715), 10.50 The Detectives (5325864), 11.30 Film: Escape from Sobibor (1987) (99741086), 2.10 Shopping at Night (1987) (74288433).

SKY SPORTS Sit $70075
7.00am World Sport (28845). 7.30
7.00am World Sport (28845). 7.30
7.00am World Sport (28845). 7.30
7.00am World Sport (28826). 3.30
7.00am World Sport (28826). 3.30
7.00am World Sport Sport (28826). 3.30
7.00am World Sport (38826). 3.30
7.00am Baseball (44346). SICY SPORTS 2

EUROSPORT ESRESTRIT 6.00 Morning Atlanta ($2883). 7.00 Field Hockey (27390). 8.00 Dwing (35319). 9.00 Athletics (15883). 11.00 Gympic Team Spirit (41796). 12.00 Athletics (81338). 1.00 Baseball (45512). 1.30 Cycling (51574). 2.00 Canceing (95914816). 4.15 Athletics (9031572). 5.00 Live Dwidther (151316). 6.00 Dwidther (151316). 6.00

4.15 Athletics (9031572), 5.00 Live Phythric Gymnastics (1512), 6.00 Cycling (5203), 6.30 Boxing (83512), 8.00 Clympic Edra (8661), 8.30 Box-ing (7796), 9.00 Footsall (91628), 11.00 Handball (49551), 11.30 Vol-leyball (94390), 12.00 Clympic Spe-cial (16520), 12.30 Tempic (628365), 3.00 Baskethall (93013), 5.00 Good Moming Atlanta (88452), 5.30-6.00am Athletics (24549),

6.00am Revelations, 6.30 Looking for Love, 7.00 Spanish Archer, 7.30 Mind & Body, 8.00 The Why Files, 8.30 Video Rox, 9.00 Fate & Fortune, 9.30 The Fashion Show, 10.00 Revelations.

WESTCORNTRY WESTONMENT AS London except: 12.30pm Movies, Games & Videos (41661). 1.10 The Making of Twister (6831951). 1.45 Film: The Treasure of Matecumbe (39784715), 3.50 Airwolf (1673680). 12.45am Film: The Ordeal of Bill Camey (192094). 2.35am American Gladiators (5800471). 3.25am Film: South Riding (253510). 5.00-5.30am International Touring Cars (19384).

Satellite

SICY MOWES 5.00em The Big Show (1961) (55222), 8.00 Mr Mum (1983) (59203), 10.00 Taking Liberty (1994) (12375), 12.00 Robin Hood-

MOVE CHANNEL
6.00am O'Henry's Full House (1952)
(53854), 8.00 The Swinger (1966)
(57845), 10.00 A Young Connecticut
Yarkee in King Arthur's Court (1994)
(12357), 12.00 Thei's Entertainment!
Part III (1994) (70796, 2.00 The Magic Bubble (1992) (39854), 4.00
Clifford (1994) (4777), 6.00 Majority Rafe (1992), (39628, 8.00 The Scout (1994), (21845), 10.00 Interview with the Varnake (1994), (11399195), 12.05 Past Terse
(1994) (937034), 1.40 Interview with the Varnoire (1994) (57272346). 3.45-6.00am Black Fox: The Price of Peace (1993) (10329487).

Country (1958) (2915075)

7.00am Soccer (9513135). 11.00 Aushalian Rules Football (4910593). 1.00 European Goff (9791203). 4.00 Darts (3410951). 9.00 Golf USA (9542816). 11.00-1.00am European Golf (8572932).

The Fashich Show. 10.00 Revelations. 10.30 Looking for Love. 11.00 Mind & Body. 11.30 Spanish Archer. 12.00 Carary Whart. 12.30 Socce. 5.30 Looking for Love. 6.00 The Fashion Show. 6.50 Eric's Monster Results. 7.00 Pin Money. 7.30 Revelations. 8.00 The Why Fites. 8.30 Spanish Archer. 9.00 Lunchbox Volleyhall. 9.03 Fate & Fortune. 9.30 Looking for Love. 10.00 Topless Darts. 10.03 Fate & Fortune. 10.30 Stand-Up. 11.00 Topless Oarts. 11.03 Fate & Fortune. 11.30 The Sex Show. 12.00 Lunchbox Volleyhall. 12.03 Revelations. 12.30 Viss. TV. 1.30-6.00am Night-Time Programmes.

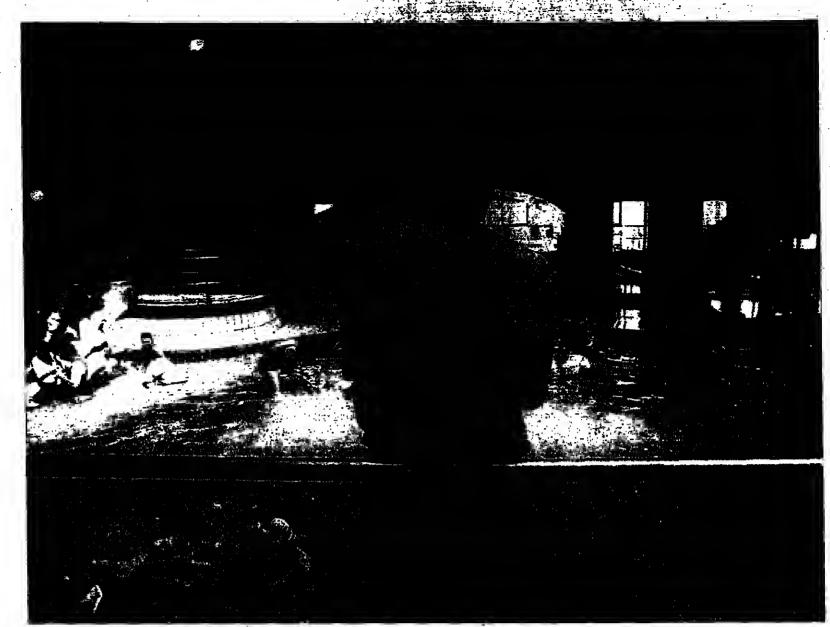

4 SHIRTS FOR SHORT SLEEVE SHIRTS 4 FOR JUST £10.pdp ROCK BOTTOM PRICES DO NOT MISS THIS SUPERB OFFER All the short sleeve shirts you need to see you through the summer and your holidays! Simply stunning summer shirt offer - don't hesitate, phone us now or send in our order form. AVAILABLE WHILE STOCKS LAST! Sizes: M (approx. collar 16), L. (17), XL (18) Colours: Assorted tettersal checks and design: Material: 65/35% polycotton Item Ref: 15120 4 Shirts PHONE NOW ON 01768 899111 OR FAX 01768 899222 TO PLACE CREDIT CARD ORDER SEND TO DEPT INGSE TOWN & COUNTRY MANNER LTD, PENRITH ESTATE, PENRITE, CUMBRIA CA11 9EQ We hape to disputch by return, otherwise you should bear from us within 125 days, if out please contact us. REFUND OR REPLACEMENT IF NOT DELIGHTED.

Address: _____ insurance £1,50 per set I enclose my choque /P:O for I _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ _ to Town & Country Manner Let If you are not interested in receiving information on approved nor and products from third parties please tick ___

all-inclusive deals travel

Every morning the cycle begins again: a hard-to-break round of indulgence

Simon Calder paid £60 for a four-day break to see the world — Butlin's SouthCoast World, that is

'Protection from wind, privacy and reasonable access to London' - that's why George V took his holiday in Bognor

Photograph: Andrew Hasson

n the first circuit of the second day, I was banned. Head hung low enough to avoid the pitying glances darting across the Tarmac from the real boy racers (average age 13), I was ordered from the go-kart track for the crime of overtaking on the last lap, and warned to stay away all day. And all because, I told myself in the hard-done-by manner of Linford Christie, the overtakee was dawdling like an off-duty milk-float.

Ritual humiliation had a couple of advantages. One was that I would stop burning up my cash at about the same rate as the tyres, since the race-track is about the only attraction for which an extra charge (£2) is levied. The second was that I would have to break out of the cocoon-like clutches of the holiday camp - sorry, the holiday village called SouthCoast World, the glitzy jewel in the crown of the Butlin's organisation.

If the British holidaymaker has a patron saint, it should be Billy Butlin. Indeed, photographs of the founder are splashed around the place as if he were a minor deity. In a sense, he is. The fact that those of us fortunate enough to be employed enjoy paid holidays is partly thanks to his zeal.

In the 1930s, he lobbied energetically, and ultimately successfully, for universal paid bolidays. His motives were not entirely philanthropic, because he had plans for the first holiday camp at Skegness. He needed holidaymakers. And working people – suddenly finding themselves with both the time and money to take holidays – needed him. Sixty summers ago, mass-market holidays were born, and most of the infrastructure bore the Butlin's brand.

Having shown how bracing all-inclusive holidays in Skegness could be, soon-to-be-Sir Billy searched out suitable locations to repeat the trick. Some were easy: Ayr, Pwllheli, Minehead, all now re-invented as Worlds of various kinds. But for the South Coast, he had to find somewhere stylish enough to steal trade from Margate and Southend, the established boltholes for sunseeking Londooers. Where better than Bognor, then (and oow) 100 minutes by train from the capital? A place of regal pedigree, together with a vital stretch of shoreline free of Victorian villas.

The royal connection began across town in the tranquil village of Aldwick, now a suburb of Bognor. Well beyond lager-can throwing range from the Swinging Shilleghlegh pub (favoured drinking venue among the SonthCoast World sophisticates), Aldwick was where George V convalesced from tuberculosis in 1929. He chose it for its "protection from wind, privacy and reasonable access to London." After a four-month stay, His Majesty conferred upon the town the municipal equivalent of a knighthood: the right

the first circuit of the second day, I was at Skegness. He needed holidaymakers. And to append "Regis" to a name which is so nearly fast. Most of the activities require a strong constant of the activities required at the activities requi

On his deathbed, the monarch reneged with the terminal alliteration "Bugger Bognor". But among punters at SouthCoast World you are unlikely to hear such language, or indeed the invocation "Sod off Skegness". Everyone is having too good a time. The only time I heard raised voices or explctives was on the macho provingground that is the karting track.

South Coast World, the setting for achieving true delight, takes a bit of getting used to. Were the "holiday village" really a West Sussex hamlet, the county authorities along in Chichester would have bulldozed it years ago. The visual appeal is commensurate with, say, a 1970s light industrial park. Of course, it is just that: a factory for creating human happiness.

The urban hub of the Butlin's metropolis is a series of sheds housing restaurants, amusement arcades and shops. If you are on a £60, four days' half-board deal, your breakfast and dinner will be in the Goodwood restaurant. Or, as the only sign I saw of class discrimination revealed, the Goodwood Budget restaurant. Everyone else got tablecloths and waitresses; we skinflints made do with self-service and Formica. The food had its roots in school dinners via hospital kitchens, but oo ooe went hungry.

ooe went hungry. Careful on that grease-with-everything breakfast. Most of the activities require a strong constitution. At Waterworld, a vast and very blue indoor swimming pool, infants can take a few tentative paddles while their elder siblings are surfing through the artificial waves or spiralling down a waterslide. The funfair picks up the gforces with a collection of high-grade, high-velocity attractions that spin you in most directions at order.

After dark, attention switches to a veritable barn of an entertainment complex. The mass appeal of the shows is pitched perfectly, in a manner that Sir Billy would applaud. The recipe is simple. Sell decent beer at less than £2 a pint. Lay oo entertainers who can genuinely entertain: professional musicians as accomplished at Sinatra as Squeeze, dancers with more panache than Pan's People. Encourage everyone aged 18 and upwards to cram into a cavernous auditorium and turn the volume up loud. Easy, and effective.

After your senses have taken a day of hearty battering, you would probably be able to sleep anywhere. Fortunately, you don't have to. Even budget holidaymakers get a clean, comfortable chalet with a bathroom, television and tea- and coffee-making supplies.

Next morning, the cycle begins again - a hard-to-break round of indulgence. Having had mine broken so early in the day, I was able to make the most of England's most overlooked county. The boundary commissioners may have pinched Brighton and left behind Crawley, but West Sussex retains a calm, unspoilt air of gentility, with blossomming villages in superb scenery. William Blake lived nearby; this was the greeo and pleasant site where he envisaged Jerusalem.

Head southwest along the coast towards Selsey. Through a patchwork of neat pastures, punctuated by doddery steeples, you emerge on the fringe of a wildlife reserve. Not a soul disturbs the wittering seabirds and whispering reeds, where the English countryside meets the English Channel. Selsey is the point at which the crunchy gravel terrain gives out and subsides into the sea, with a High Streetful of tea shops offering shelter from a brusque breeze.

You could wander along the shore to dusk and beyond, but you would miss out on the endless entertainment back in Bognor. Butlin's is part of the Rank Organisation, and the connection with the movies is exploited in the on-site cinema. Mission Impossible was showing. Tom Cruise performed the sort of tricks that, if repeated at Bognor, would earn a lifetime ban from the go-kart track. Your mission, should you choose to accept it, is to go to Butlin's to lose your preconceptions.

Bulliu's SouthCoast World: 01243 820202

A s recent events have shown, airports need stringent security against the threat of terrorism. Some summers ago, I played a small part in the campaign by frisking passengers at Gatwick airport (NB: I was employed to do this by Securicor - it wasn't

The only exciting discovery I made was of a Camping Gaz cylinder in someone's hand luggage. If the pressure in the cabin had dropped too low, it could have exploded. So I was despatched with the cylinder to the far end of the apron to carry out a controlled release of the contents, and handed back the empty container to the far-from-cheery passenger.

Perhaps I was not sufficiently vigilant. Cecily

Perhaps I was not sufficiently vigilant. Cecily Woolf of Brighton has just returned from Vancouver, minus her can of insect repellent. She warns: "Vancouver airport security are confiscating mosquito repellents and fly sprays on outgoing flights, on the grounds that they constitute 'toxic substances'. About 20 or 30 cans of spray are being confiscated daily from bemused passengers under the Canadian government's Aeronautics Act."

One of the security supervisors told Ms Woolf that the same procedure operates at other Canadian airports. "Although the regulations refer to all mosquito repellents as toxic, he said he makes an exception for rollons, and allows them on board the aircraft. The confiscated items are given away annually to the Canadian public.

Although mosquitoes can be vile in Canada in summer, it seems a bit extreme to kit the locals out with repellents at the expense of tourists. A stick of Mosi-guard repellent (which carries a big NON TOXIC notice on it) if you can top Ms Woolf's tale by having had something even less offensive confiscated. And my apologies if you were the one at Gatwick with the Camping Gaz cylinder.

Idel Castro is unlikely to be impressed by the new Thomson Faraway Shores brochure, which devotes a dozen glossy pages to holidays in Cuba. Britain's biggest tour operator has decided to inject some humour into its description of the cash-starved Caribbean island. So it points out that "One of Fidel Castro's names is 'the air hostess', because he's always asking the Cubans to tighten their belts".

Dr Castro will also been annoyed that prospective visitors to Cuba have become embroiled in US legislation aimed at tightening the economic boycott against the island. Thomson is refusing to sell holidays there ecause of the threat of legal action from Washington.

"It's all to do with the Cuban exile vote in the forthcoming American elections", says Charles Newbold, managing director of Thomson. "We and our customers can't get caught in a battle between the US and Cuba. So until the Foreign Office tells us it's OK to self those bolidays we will wait."

sell those holidays, we will wait."

Several other UK operators are continuing to sell holidays in Cuba, in defiance of Washington. Regent Holidays of Bristol has been sending British tourists to the island for 21 years, and at present has a couple of dozen customers in the western hemisphere's last bastion of communism. The company's managing director, Neil Taylor, says that Thomson has over-reacted. "I have enjoyed many holidays in the US, and plan to take many more in the future, gambling that the threat of jail for dealing with Cuba is an empty one."

Mr Taylor says American belligerence against the island actually enhanced Cuban tourism prospects. "The US government bans their citizens from visiting Cuba, which gives it a sort of snob appeal."

So far, Dr Castro has not retaliated by issuing threats against holiday companies that trade with America.

ast weekend, the M5 was a mess. Traffic on the motorway south-west from BristoI to Devon and Cornwall tailed back for 25 miles. The front page story on the Western Morning News on Monday asked "Is this the way to treat our visitors?" But having tried to travel to Newquay by train, I suggest that the motorists stuck in the queues were the lucky ones.

stuck in the queues were the lucky ones.

Whoever devises the train schedules to Newquay must have a grudge against the resort, or rail travellers, or both. On Sunday I found myself in the City of London, needing to travel to Cornwall. I tried to call Great Western Trains, but the company that has taken over services to the West Country is not listed with Directory Enquiries; try dialling 192, ask for Great Western Trains in Paddington or Plymouth, Swindon or Swansea, and you will draw a blank. So instead I went to nearby Liverpool Street station and bought a ticket to Newquay. It was 12 noon.

Unhappily, the last train of the day to Newquay left Paddington 15 minutes later.

Without a helicopter, it is impossible to travel from Liverpool Street to Paddington in a quarter of an hour. So after lunch I caught a train as far as Par, and paid £20 for a taxi to cover the stretch to Newquay for which I had a redundant ticket.

For the return journey, I vowed to catch the first train, and woke at dawn. Newquay station first train, and woke at dawn. Newquay station was packed, mostly with foreign visitors heading to London. We arrived at the connecting station, Par five minutes before the Penzance to Paddington express was due, and waited expectantly.

There were plenty of empty seats – you

There were plenty of empty seats – you could count them as the train sailed past without stopping. The non-connecting trains are operated by a different companies. Perhaps the managers spend longer investigating the prospects for privatisation windfalls than on scheduling services to meet demand. Everyone settled down to an 80-minute wait for the next train. Most of the overseas tourists spent the time on the amenity-free platform planning their next holiday, probably to a country where the railways are not such a shambolic joke.

something to declare

4

A likely story

"Direct services from the regions to start in 1996"

The promise contained in the 1996 French Railways brochure has been broken. There is no likelihood of "new direct Eurostar services from Glasgow and Manchester to both Paris and Brussels, and from Birmingham to Paris" that the company says will begin this year. Rolling stock for the Paris services has been delayed. To Brussels, the train operators are busy trying to fill existing services from London, without the problem of having to sell tickets on extra trains from Glasgow and Manchester to the Belgian capital.

No sign yet of the other great

No sign yet of the other great innovation in the French Railways brochure The European Night Services linking London with Holland and Germany in the spring.

Trouble spots:

Advice from the Foreign Office on avoiding danger zones in Europe and the Middle East. Call 0171-238 4503 for further advice

orsica: "There have been several recent attacks on property belonging to foreigners, including two British-registered yachts. Yacht owners should seek advice from the harbournaster on entering Corsican ports and should consider moving on if they do not obtain adequate assurances of security while in poet."

Spain: "Those wishing to travel to Spain should bear in mind the

Bargain of the week

The Worshipful Company of Shipwrights does not crop up often in these pages. But the generosity of the guild could mean the trip of a lifetime for four young readers. It is offering four grants, worth £2,500, to allow sailors aged 18-25 to take part in the voyage of the ship Endeavour, a replica of Captain recent upsurge in terrorist attacks apparently aimed at tourists, but British tourists have not been singled out."

Butgaria: "Recently the incidence of robbery with violence against foreigners has increased, particularly on trains and near Sofia's central railway station. Under no circumstances accept any food or drink from strangers as there is a risk it may be drugged."

Cook's vessel of discovery. In October, two places are available from Perth in Australia to Port Elizabeth in South Africa, and two more for the 12-week

voyage to London starting in December. Young people with ocean sailing experience should call the National Maritime

Museum on 0181-312 6790.

Saudi Arabia: "Following the bomb explosion at Al Khobar on 25 June there have been press reports of a call by an Islamic Israel: "There have been the Lebanon."

terrorist incidents during the

of Israel, including Tel Aviv and Jerusalem, particularly bomb explosions in buses and busy shopping areas and rocket attacks on northern Israel from last few mooths in various parts

extremist for Britain and France to withdraw their military personnel from Saudi Arabia. In this context this could be taken as an implied threat."

tran: "There have recently been a number of cases of tourists being asked for identification by bogus policemen, who have then made off with the visitor's wallet and currency. Keep passports separate from other valuables."

BT agonises at eleventh hour on Oftel plans

Business Correspondent

The board of BT was last night using up every minute of remaining time before taking one of the biggest decisions it has faced since privatisation 12 held a crucial meeting last fuesvears ago. BT must decide whether to reject proposals by Office the industry regulator, to take on new powers to ban anticompetitive behaviour, and face a risky and costly investigation by the Monopolies and Merg-

For weeks the head of Oftel, Don Cruickshank, has been emphatic that rejection would mean an automatic referral to the MMC. BT's board, composed of four executive direcday and was known to have made "some decisions", so the delay in reaching a final response yesterday left observers mystified.

Oftel has proposed changes to the terms of BT's operating licence, to give Mr Cruickshank the power to han any behaviour by BT which would impede competition. He linked the changes to more generous four-year price controls, beginning next August, which have been broadly supported by BT. The new formula removes almost all business customers and some high-spending residential customers from price controls. The four-fifths of homes still covered by a price cap would see bills increase by no more than 4.5 per cent below the rate of inflation.

BT has fiercely opposed the fair trading proposals on the grounds that they include no right of appeal against Oftel's decisions. Late last year Sir Iain Vallance, the chairman, described the plans as "highly dangerous", arguing they would make Mr Cruickshank "judge and jury" over the company's affairs. Oftel insisted that the decision not to include a right of appeal was necessary because the new powers will not be backed up by a system of fines and compensation.

BT had hoped to persuade the Government to broker a compromise by amending the telecommunications legislation to include a formal right of appeal. The President of the Board of Trade, Ian Lang, is known to have considered the plea, though no decisions are thought to have been taken. Another option open to BT is to seek a judicial review of Mr Cruickshank's plans. A number of lawyers have suggested BT would have a good case if it ar-gues that Mr Cruickshank is excceding his powers as a regu-lator. However, such a legal challenge would not "save" the company, as an MMC investigation could take place simultaneously.

Oftel's proposals have been strongly supported by consumer groups and many of BT's competitors. Hans Snook, the group managing director of Orange, the mohile phone company, said: "Not only are we in favour of the changes, but we are actively fighting for a level play-ing field with BT. We are highly supportive of anything which provides this." Cahle operators have welcomed the plans as they continue to allege BT is engaged in a so-called "dirty tricks" campaign to persuade ex-customers to return to the company.

Bell Cable Media said it had received 15 complaints last month about the activities of BT's marketing team. In one instance, a representative allegedly told a potential cable customer they would no longer be in-cluded in telephone directories.

The head of the Cahle Communications Association, Bob Frost, explained: "There's the very strong need for Oftel to have the capacity to control these problems. We believe very strongly that the powers are necessary. The dilemma for BT is they. the MMC could demand. tougher price controls than those already proposed by Of-tel. One analyst said: "On halance I think they'd be wrong to go to the MMC, which is like

Wall Street cheered by jobs figures

DIANE COYLE Economics Editor

America's financial markets as far as inflationary pressures yesterday celebrated the news that the economy's impressive that the economy's impressive ings per hour fell by 2 cents to pace of job creation slowed $11.80 (£7.65), partly chipping gence of weakness, but the Average weekly hours fell market is cheered by the idea slightly. of a gradual slowing down in the economy," said Christopher Low, an economist at HSBC Markets in New York.

He had rushed to welcome Thursday's report of faster economic growth in the second quarter of the year, but did not Olympic Games in Atlanta comment on yesterday's em-

There were 193,000 new nonfarm jobs in July, not enough to prevent a small increase in the unemployment rate to 5.4 per cent. This compared with monthly employment increases well in excess of 200,000 during ufacturing shed 20,000 workers, the past six months, which have triggered sharp dives in share Thursday's survey from the Naprices on four occasions.

"An increase of 193,000 jobs isn't bad, hut it is not overheating. This has much reduced the likelihood that the Fed will raise interest rates," said lan Harwood, international economist at Kleinwort Benson. The central hank's policymaking committee meets next on 20 August.

The Dow Jones index rose in reaction, up 56.60 points at 5.651.35 by late morning. The benchmark long Treasury bond soared to its highest level for four months, yielding 6.74 per

The details of vesterday's monthly employment report were almost entirely reassuring are concerned. Average earnlast month, reducing the risk of a rise in interest rates during the summer.

$11.00 (27.0.), partly singparts away the previous month's 9 cents jump. The annual rate of wage inflation has dropped "There is no sudden cmer-back to just under 2.9 per cent,

The job creation took place almost entirely in the service industries, especially retailing. It took on 89,000 people out of the Not so President Bill Clinton, total of 192,000 in services, about half of them in eating and drinking establishments. The Labor Department said the probably explained about 10,000 of the new posts, although much of the Olympic hiring would not show up until the August figures were published.

There were smaller rises in employment in construction and the public sector. But manconfirming the evidence of tional Association of Purchasing Managers. It indicated an unexpected drop in the pace of expansion in manufacturing. Other figures yesterday also pointed to a moderation in the pace of growth. New orders for manufactured goods fell 0.9 per cent in June. The drop would have been steeper hut for an increase in military orders. June also saw American consumers cut back on spending even though the month's increase in personal incomes was the higgest for more than a year. Incomes were up 0.9 per cent

Sears sells shoe chains to Stylo

Sears has sold its Hush Puppy shoe chain to Stylo, the footwear retailer that owns the Barrett shoe shops, in a £19m deal, Sears is also paying Stylo a £8.75m reverse premium to take over 61 of the Saxone, Freeman Hardy Willis and Trueform stores that reverted to the company after the Facia retail empire collapsed into receivership in June. Sears said the two deals completed the reorganisation of its troubled footwear division. Some 230 of the former Fa-

& Baker to handle the sale. Stylo chairman Arnold Ziff said he was delighted with the deals, which include 119 of the 126 Hush Puppy stores. They confirm the company as Britain's third-largest footwear retailer behind C&J Clark and Sears, with more than 1,000 outlets.

"Hush Puppy is an excellent hrand and gets some excellent PR because the Chancellor of the Exchequer wears them." Mr Ziff said. He added that he had no plans to give Kenneth Clarke free pairs of his trademark brown tion. Sears has appointed Healy publicity. "If he gives me a pen-& Baker to handle the sale." publicity. "If he gives me a pen-my off income tax I might give him fund the integration. Mr Ziff a pair. But we don't tend to give shoes away. We have a saying in Yorkshire, 'What costs nowt's worth nowt'."

Hush Puppy made profits of just £300,000 on sales of around £70m last year. Stylo recorded profits of £3.9m on sales of £175m last year. Stylo plans to refurbish the Saxone stores and revitalise the merchandise. It is planning to raise £15m through new voting share for every three announced earlier this year. held, priced at I 10p per share.

to Facia remain in administra- suede shoes to keep up the good. New hanking facilities of £15m fund the integration. Mr Ziff said Saxone had great potential but had been allowed to drift under previous owners.

In a separate deal, Sears has sold the Hush Puppy wholesale business to a subsidiary of Wolverine Worldwide, which owns the Hush Puppy hrand name.

Sears will not incur any additional provisions as a result of the deals. The £8.75m reverse premium for the Saxone stores is ina placing and open offer of one cluded in the £25m provision

Porterbrook chief's 'hello' stirs fresh row

MICHAEL HARRISON

Sandy Anderson, the rail executive who stands to make E36.25m from the sale of the Porterbrook train leasing company, will receive a further £250,000 "golden hello" from his new employer Stagecoach, it emerged yesterday.

Mr Anderson, whose gigantic windfall has provoked a fresh storm over privatised utility fat cats, and three other Porterbrook executives will share a £500,000 payment in exchange for signing new service agreements with Stagecoach. The other Porterbrook directors set to receive joining fees are finance director Ray Cork, whose profit from the takeover will be £16,74m, and engineer ing director Tim Gilbert, who gets £10.7m from the deal.

The fourth Porterbrook executive sharing in the payment is Billy Wraith, who has 32,000 A shares and 32,000 new deferred shares, according to the Stagecoach offer document posted out to shareholders on

The document shows Mr Anis £161,575, Mr Cork's is rail regulator, John Swift, and £79,040 and Mr Gilbert's the Office of Passenger Rail £52,273. They bought shares in Franchising. Both regulators Porterbrook at the time of its are concerned about the impact management huvout from British Rail just seven months ago. The profit on their initial investment is estimated to be at least 500 per cent.

The Labour Party continued its attack on the "biggest privatisation scandal of them all", and warned its windfall utilities tax may be extended to privatised rail companies.

Stagecoach, which already owns one passenger franchise, South West Trains, and is hidding for the remaining 12 on of-

15 ( )

Sandy Anderson: Stands to fer, saw its shares fall by 10p to 521p. The fall followed the 11.5p drop the day before. The company's shares had jumped by more than 10 per cent when the controversial

Porterbrook deal was first unveiled on Wednesday, but there are now fears it could be a prime target of Labour's punitive tax. The Porterbrook takeover derson's current annual salary has still be to approved by the of the deal on competition and the sale of rail franchises. Stagecoach is paying £476m and assuming £350m of borrowings, valuing its offer at £826m. This compares with the £527m the Government rc-

ceived when the huyout took place in January. The six directors and 44 staff of Porterbrook, whose 20 per cent stake was worth £15m at the time of the huyout, have seen the value of their holdings rise to £95.2m,

OFT snubbed over football review

MATHEW HORSMAN Media Editor

The Restrictive Practices Court has rebuffed attempts by the Office of Fair Trading to accelerate a high-stakes review of broadcasting contracts for toplevel football in the UK, it emerged yesterday. The OFT which had taken the Premier Lengue and broadcasters including the BBC and BSkvB to court over the anticompetitive terms of their television contracts, had hoped to oblige all the parties to file their statements by mid-October at the latest. John Bridgeman. director general of the OFT had argued the public interest would be served by a swift resolution of the issues.

Lawyers for BSkyB and the BBC, as well as the Premier League of 20 top football teams, resisted the move, saving they should get the full three months provided by law before making The review will now only get a swift resolution

FTSE 100

FTSE 250

FT Small Cap

FT As Share

under way in late November, and is unlikely to be decided until next year.

The delay could be useful to BSkvB and BBC, which hold the live and highlight rights to Premier League marches. The contract, signed in 1992, provides 游脑

4568.60

1945.40

1924.17

5778.00

11594.99

1996 Low Yalki (%)

1791.95 389

5032.94 2 28

4.07

3632.30

4015.30

1816.60

1954.06

22666.80 19734.70 0.75t

Source: FT Information

STOCK MARKETS

Day's change Change (%)

+10

+0.5

+0.9

-0.2

+1.6_

+36.20

+22.70

+16.40

+8 31

+ 15 52

+73.25

-44,42

4265.70

1886.00

2094 1D

1863 56

5668.00

10961.97 +172.10

20940 41

exclusive rights until 1997, after which a second contract, already negotiated, kicks in.

cia shops whose leases reverted

The original £304m, fiveyear deal included a controversial right for BSkyB to meet the best offer from am competing broadcaster when the contract came up for renewal, although this clause has been

The OFT will ask the court to consider whether the Premier League is acting as a cartel in collectively negotiating hroadcasting rights. The decision could have a huge effect not only on football but on other sports where rights are negotiated on a collective basis.

The Football Association is also a party to the court action. through its formal relationship to the Premiership. It is expected to argue that collective bargaining for rights is the only logical way to operate, and that any effort to insist that individual teams secure their own broadcast deals would lead to chaos. It is believed that some top

Money Market Bates

Germany 3.28

Burtord Hidgs

Danka Business Sys465

i Marij

0.44

t Year

600

5 94

100

3.44

131

3 29

Price (r) Change (s) Changetic Falls

7.5

MAIN PRICE CHANGE

teams in the Premier League have pushed for the right to negotiate separately to maximise their broadcast revenues. Individual team rights could be worth considerably more once digital television and pay-pervicw services are widely available, allowing viewers to choose which matches they want to see,

Cable companies in particular have said they are interested in providing tailored services for top sport, using their ability to show programming region-byregion as the selling point. The review of the Premicr

League deal was requested by the OFT late last year, at the same time as a wide-ranging review of BSkyB's dominant position in the £1bn pay-television sector was launched.

That led to revised informal undertakings from BSkyB on the terms of its supply of pro-gramming to the cable industry. Most observers said the undertakings were less onerous

INTEREST RATES

Battle for Kepit intensifies

JOHN WILLCOCK

The fight for the poorly performing £500m Kepit trust intensified vesterday as its manager, Kleinwort, proposed turning it into a unit trust. Kleinwort said this would be 'very significantly cheaper" than Henderson Touche Remnant's hostile liquidation bid.

Henderson immediately responded that is would press on with its own sell-off hid for Kepit, which is taunched on Wednesday via TR European Growth investment trust. Kepit's shares rose 1.75p to 92.75p, their highest level for a month hut 10.4 per cent below their net asset value of 103.8p. Kepit was launched two years ago to invest in formerly stateowned assets. In June, Kleinwort in effect admitted that the trust was too large and had suf-

$ (London) 1.5423 -1.49c 1 6090

$ (N York)# 1.5425 -1.45c 1.6060

DML (1 ondon) 2 2793 1,53pt 2 2410

(London) 164.941 Y1.293 146.677

-0.6 84.3

Testariny Day's che Tear Ago

19.34 +0.52 16.19

386.45 -0.05 384.00 250.56 +2.36 239.19

vestments. It was trading at a discount to not assets. Kleinwort proposed to liquidate 60 per cent of the fund. On Thursday, Kepit's board rejected the takeover approach from TR. Yesterday Ben Siddons, chairman of Kleinword Benson Investment Trusts, said: We believe that the Kleinwort proposals will cost less and be more orderly than the proposals from TR." Kleinwort estimates it would cost TR £17m to liquidate the trust, while unitisation would be very significantly cheaper. Kepit is seeking to adjourn a meeting for shareholders and warrant-holders due next Tuesday to vote on its proposals made in Kleinwort has shareholder dise and wants to ch from a closed-end fered from a lack of suitable in- trust into a unit to

£ (London) 0.6484 +

£ (N York) # 0.6483 +

BM (London) 1.4779 +0

(London) 106,945 + Y

CURRENCIES

now defunct in June. is bowed to inchantment lange Kepit d investment ust.	C 0
	LUST 2
0.52 0.6215	★ e
0.50 0.5227 43pf 1.3928	≱f
0.19 91.1600 +0.2 90.6	★ ft
ip letis	• please

153.0+2.1pc 149.8 15 Aug 107.9+0.4pc 126.9 22 Aug

Long Board

Price (s) Charge (s) % Charge

5 4.2_

2.2_

Oil Brent S

7 90

6.74

3.00

Showdown near at incredible shrinking Sears

'Beleaguered chief executive Liam Strong must be hoping that the frantic, if belated. hacking off of limbs will save the company's raddled

have to wait

torso and, in turn, his own job. He will not too long to find out'

As an example of the incredible shrinking company Sears is hard to beat. In the last 12 months the troubled retailer has either flogged off or given away Olympus Sports, Millets, Freeman Hardy Willis, Saxone (twice), Manfield, Trueform, Curtess and now Hush Puppy. Oh, and a couple of husinesses in Europe as well. Sears chops and changes its brands so often it is becoming increasingly difficult to remember which ones it still owns. Does it still bave Wallis and Warebouse? Er, not sure. Beleaguered chief executive Liam Strong must be hoping that the frantic, if belated hacking off of limbs will save Sears' raddled torso and, in turn, his own job. He will not have to wait too long to find out. The jury has been out on his survival for several months and the recent corporate downsizing changes nothing yet. Frustrated institutions are looking for tangible evidence of an improvement in Sears' trading and are giving Mr Strong the benefit of the doubt uotil then.

The first signs will come with the interim results in the autumn but the real crunch is Christmas. If Sears appears to be struggling theo. Mr Stroog could be on his way.

His continuing problem is that Sears is still a rag-bag of businesses - a mixture of some tired old oames like Richard's and new-fangled concepts such as Shoe Express and The Outfit.

Mr Strong gives the impression of a man in charge of a terminally breached dam. No sooner does he stick in finger in one gaping bole than another part springs a leak. The latest problem looks as though it could be Dolcis, with rumours of falling sales and fresh management being brought in from America. Sears chairman Sir Boh Reid has stuck loyally behind his chief executive but time is running out. If Mr Strong is obliged to fall on his sword to satisfy the institutions then Sir Bob, who has made such a public display of support will have little option but to follow his chief executive's example.

Fat-cat advisers just keep rolling along

Fat cats come and fat cats go but their City advisers just keep rolling along. We do not know precisely how much Unioo Bank of Switzerland will pocket in fees for the innovative scheme it dreamt up to finance the Porterbrook takeover. Nor is it yet apparent how much the lawyers, accountants and PR meo will take home for helping assemble the torrent of bumpf that will be landing oo the doormats of Stagecoach sharebolders this weekend.

But it has been a week of rich pickings for those poor hard-pressed folk else-where. David Potter, chairman of Psion, in fees, only to be told that Amstrad was a pig in a poke, was "modest". Just think how much it would bave cost in advice if it bad actually proceeded with a full offer, he says.

Never mind. Charterhouse, which advised Psion along with BZW, has already done nicely, thank you, out of its other clieot of the week, Porterbrook Leasing. Likewise Slaughter and May and Paisner, which provided Mr Potter with legal advice and Arthur Andersen, which counted the beans, will surely not be without more fee work for long. BA and USAir fell out and reached for their lawyers. Price Waterhouse continues to ratchet up the loot as administrators to part of the Maxwell empire. This week the meter hit $71m for its work winding up MCC in the United States.

The gas industry is also proving a gold-mine. This week Lasmo warned that it is considering suing British Gas in the gas levy dispute which is shuttling around White-ball. Since British Gas is already suing the Goverment, which in turn is suing Lasmo, it does not take the brains of a rocket scientist to establish who is going to come off best, irrespective of which side wins.

Of course, being a professional adviser is not invariably a one-way street to riches as the mountain of writs issued in the direction of Barings' auditors Coopers and assures us that the £1.5m he coughed up | Lybrand and Deloitte Touche demon-

In order to cap their exposure, auditors and now law firms are abandoning their partnership structure and huying hrass plates in Jersey.

Perhaps they should go one step further than limited company status and become fully-fledged quoted stocks paying divi-dends. That way at least their clients could receive some of the lont back.

Spanish fly in the ointment for drinkers

The pain in Spain falls mainly on the grain. Well, at least the grain distillers. The raft of bad news that has been flowings steadily out of Spain for the last two months is bad news for Allied Domecq and Guinness with their heavy exposure to the country's drinks industry.

The cocktail of high unemployment, falling consumer speeding, fearful interest rates, rising indirect taxes, and a smattering of terrorism to boot is not making for much of a happy bour.
The City, though, is only just waking up to the ominous economic news that has flowed from Spanish shores. Drinks analysts are either on holiday or side-tracked by events closer to home - notably the final stages of the Carlsberg-Tetley saga and the appearance of Pelican on Whitbread's acquisitive menu.

Well, it's time to focus elsewhere. Guin-ness's problems with the Cruzcampo brewing husiness a few years ago have been well catalogued, hut investors must surely be asking whether it isn't time that this unresponsive. Spanish donkey was consigned to the knackers yard. One leading analyst reckons that the acquisition costs and subsequent write-offs associated with Cruzcampo have cost Guinness more than £850m for a business that is making around £20m a year. But that is small beer compared with the soaking Allied is taking. Roughly half of the Pedro Domecq business that Allied bought a couple of years ago is in Mexico

- ravaged by political unrest and a currency crisis - and the remainder is in

Senior management at IDV, the drinks arm of Grand Metropolitan, can only be having a quiet chuckle among themselves. With a touch of good fortune, or amazing foresight the company earlier this year raised prices for J&B. Spain just happens to be the biggest single market for J&B. which is also the world's number two whisky behind Johnnie Walker.

Spain, it seems, is not the place for bulls that it used to be.

Lang changes his tune with backing for works councils

BARRIE CLEMENT

Ian Lang, President of the Board of Trade, yesterday urged companies to establish consultative works councils for their employees, marking a significant break with the Government's long-standing suspicion of the consensual Continental approach to management

The Government has opted out of the Social Chapter of the Maastricht Treaty which contains a directive on the issue, but not for collective bargaining or Mr Lang yesterday welcomed negotiation - following comthe voluntary introduction of the councils. After a sustained period in which ministers kept their ideological distance from the whole idea, he conceded that works councils can boost commercial success.

ment of such structures comes seven weeks before a deadline a time-consuming and bureaucratic negotiating procedure prescribed in detail by the European Commission.

All companies with 1,000 ment's opposition was to the elemployees in the EU and 100 in each of two countries in the union must establish a pan-European framework to consuit and inform employees.

Some have ignored the directive and will have negotiations forced on them after 22 September, while others have been discussing works councils with unions and employees.

British Steel has become the latest multinational to set up a council - for consultation but panies including United Biscuits, NatWest and British Telecom.

"I am keen and willing to encourage companies to set up these councils on consultation and information where it is in their interests to do so," Mr Mr Lang's sudden endorse-ment of such structures comes Lang said. "The important point, bowever, is that it should be a decision for them to take which obliges some 150 British- in the light of their circumbased multinationals to set stances, and not something that them up or be forced to enter should be forced on them from outside, and from outside the UK," he told the BBC Radio 4's

Today programme. He stressed the Govern-

ement of compulsion in establishing the councils and went on: "I am very much in favour of a mechanism which enables a company to improve the flow of information and consultation and advice across the company, particularly international com-

"We've done a lot to encourage that sort of thing. One of the ways industrial relations have improved so dramatically in the last few years is because of better communication between management and workforce - share option schemes, wide flow of information, greater understanding of what the objectives of the company

The Social Chapter would burden industry and make it less competitive, he said, noting that in the UK added labour costs were just 18 per cent, compared with 34 per cent m Germany and more than 40 per cent in France and Italy.

"One of the reasons that we have closed the productivity gap with Germany, for example, is that burden of costs they have imposed on themselves.

Barings win right to sue auditors in UK

JOHN WILLCOCK

ING Barings has won the right to sue former auditors of its Singapore operation in the UK courts for S$41hn (£460m) each, Liquidators working for ING Barings are suing the Singapore arms of Coopers & Lybrand and Deloitte & Touche, which oversaw the Barings Futures arm that brought down the bank last year.

Spokesmen for Coopers and Deloitte in Britain stressed that this would only affect the Singapore parts of these firms. which are separate legal entities.

Price Waterhouse, on behalf of ING Barings, will, however, be able to summon Barings directors to testify in the case, ING Barings was formed after the Dutch bank ING rescued Barings following the Nick Leeson débâcle last year.

The UK High Court judge Justice Chadwick yesterday threw out an application by Coopers Singapore. Two Coopers auditors claimed that the ING Barings lawsuit bad no legal validity in the UK because any alleged negligence took bearing would be the best op-tion in the case. The ruling will oblige Barings directors, some of whom were blamed by a Bank of England report for Leeson to remain undetected, to give evidence in court. Mr Justice Chadwick told the court: "I am satisfied that composite proceedings in Lon-don offer the best chance of achieving the two objectives which I regard as paramount.

"That is to say firstly avoid-ing the risk that different courts will reach different conclusions on the same underlying facts and secondly avoiding the risk that Deloitte & Touche or Coopers and Lybrand (Singapore) will be sued in both London and Singapore in respect to the same transactions." He added: "Most, if not all of lapse in February 1995.

the relevant witnesses are based in London and, if not called by the plaintiffs will be available on Coopers and Deloitte per-The judge said a UK court formed the audits for Barings Futures before the bank's collapse.

Singapore-based Rajah and Tann, solicitors for Price Waterhouse, bave said that their claim is in excess of S$1hn each for negligence in the audits of Barings Futures. Nick Leeson lost more than pounds £860m while in control of Barings Futures leading up to and after Christmas 1994.

The suit, filed in Singapore's High Court, also claims that the auditors failed to detect Leeson's hidden account 88888, which he used to hide the gigantic losses that brought down Britain's oldest merchant bank.

Deloitte & Touche is being sued for negligence for the period 1992-1993 and Coopers & Lybrand for the period from then leading up to the firm's col-

im-

the hus he eshly ay.

CURRENT INTEREST RATES Making the break: lan Lang says that he welcomes the voluntary introduction of works councils

Arjo warns on profits as demand falls

TOM STEVENSON City Editor

Arjo Wiggins Appleton yester-day issued its fourth profits warning since last November after second-quarter sales figures showed a continuing slowdown in demand for its paper and packaging products. The company had already warned, at its annual meeting in May, that firsthalf profits would be lower.

Despite the warning, Arjo's shares closed just 3p lower at 171p, as the market shrugged off 171p, as the market shrugged off what is only the latest in a series of disappointments from the first of disappointment disa

Anglo-French company. The shares, 40 per cent of which are owned by French industrial holding company Saint Louis, stand well below the level at which they came to the market at the beginning of 1990. Sales for the first six months actually edged higher from £1.78bn to £1.86bn, but analysts focused on a decline in secondquarter turnover from £909.9m to £894.9m as customers kept stock levels in check in anticipation of even lower prices.

Profit forecasts had already been slashed from about £200m in April as the extent of the downward swing in the paper cycle became evident. The reduction follows five years of gy-rating profits from the company.

Having made profits of £232m in 1991, profits slumped in 1992 and 1993, bouncing io 1994 to £217m and then collapsing again last year to just £72m. The share price, which has underperformed the market by almost a third over the past two years, has been almost as volatile as Arjo's earnings.

In the summer of 1995, pulp was trading at almost $1,000 (£650) a tonne but by the spring figures had fallen to as low as $400. The cycle is exacerbated in the upswing by customers ex-panding stocks ahead of feared price rises and, in the downswing by inventories being run down to take advantage of subsequently lower prices. "We stated at our agm that the results for the first half would be poor and that the outlook for the rest of the year was uncertain," the company said. reliant of "In view of the results for the eracon. first half, which will be announced in early September, our current expectations for the year as a whole have been

Although raw material pulp prices have fallen back sbarply this year, the company warned it would have to work through its higher priced stock before benefiting from the decline.

Arjo's biggest problem is thought to be its carbon and coated paper operations in Eu-rope, which are operating so badly that the company is more reliant on Appleton, its US op-

Market report, page 18

IN BRIEF

• Several hundred fans of Leeds United fontball club were sitting on substantial paper profits yesterday when shares in the elub's new owner, Caspian resumed trading. Almost 11 million shares in Caspian were offered to Leeds season ticket holders and bond Apiders at 18.5p per share. The shares closed at 28.5p, a 54 per cent increase. Of the £30m of total funds raised, around £12m will be earmarked for buying players.

 Jacques Vert, the womenswear group, unveiled more bad news in its wholesaling division yesterday, forcing the shares down 17 per cent to 54p. The news accompanied a £5m loss in the year to April and the cancellation of the interim dividend. The company said retail sales had improved but warned that a quick turnaround in the wholesale division was unlikely.

• Sterling lost a pfennig and a half against the German mark yesterday, ending at DM2.2795. Dealers blamed the latest beef scare and the fear of a further cut in interest rates in the UK. Currency markets expect the pound to fall to DM2.22 in two months, according to the fortnightly foreign exchange survey from economic consultancy IDEA.

 House prices rose by 0.7 per cent last month, according to Nationwide Building Society. This took the year-on-year growth in its house price index to 3.8 per cent. The society said the middie to upper sectors of the market were the most buoyant, reflecting one to upper sections of the market were the most budyant, reflecting some shortages of supply. On Thursday, Halifax Building Society reported a 0.5 per cent rise in prices in July. Both societies predict a rise of 5 per cent in house prices for the year as a whole.

• German industry increased output for the fourth month running • German industry increased output for the fourth month running in June, pointing to a continuing slow recovery in the economy.

• Total output rose 0.6 per cent during the month, reducing the year-on-year rate of decline to 1.1 per cent. Production in the year-on-year rate of decline to 1.1 per cent. Production in the east jumped 1.8 per cent in June, while there was a 0.4 per cent east jumped 1.8 per cent in June, while there was a 0.4 per cent increase in the west. But economists said the recent strength of the most weight keep the Bundesbank inclined to reduce its less. the mark would keep the Bundesbank inclined to reduce its key money-market interest rate in the autumn.

Michels' Telewest exit not result of bust-up

MATHEW HORSMAN

Alan Michels, who abruptly left his job as chief executive at Telewest Communications this week, denied there had been a boardroom bust-np. He conceded, however, that "it is always difficult when you have different corporate shareholders with different views".

In his first interview since confirming he would return to the US with his family, Mr Micbels said: "I certainly have a respect for the board. But relations are always a challenge for corporate shareholders and the chief executive."

Telewest is jointly controlled by US telecoms company US West and TCI, the giant media company cootrolled by John Malone. The two bave not always agreed about strategy, and had differing views about Mr Michel's stewardship. Mr Michels, credited with er with SBC Cablecomms last year, was one of the industry's long-term supply arrangement best-known executives. His de- with BSkyB, Rupert Murdoch's parture surprised industry observers, who had expected him to remain in place for the rest of his three-year contract. But there has been growing impatience among the sector's largely American owners about the poor level of penetration, particularly of cahle television. Mr Michels last night bad some advice for his successor, Stephen Davidson, regarding Telewest's future growth. "It needs as much telephony as it can get," be said. "This is a very big market, and there is a lot of market share there to get." But just selling telecoms services will not be enough, Mr Michels said. "The industry has to be creative in its packaging with cable, telephony, the Internet, Sega games channel and the packages must be easy

Crucially, cable oeeds to make "a bet" on programming

seeing through the Telewest to ensure it can offer content cahle and satellite broadcaster, which effectively ended attempts by cable operators to develop programming to compete Mr Michels said that pay-per-view rights, particularly for major Hollywood films, should be bought by the cable operators acting together.

If the industry gets its product right, it can finally start to develop a sizeable market in the UK. "Telewest has 4.3 million homes in its franchise areas, and passes two million of them already. Of these, 700,000 are customers. We must build that further."

He added that the penetration of business customers - at just 17,000 of a possible 360,000 - shows there is "a vast opportunity ahead of the company." Telewest plans to start Inter-

nct services later this year, and to introduce digital cable television as soon as BSkyB launchflotation in 1994 and the merg- that is not available elsewhere. es its digital satellite service, by Ironically, Telewest signed a the end of 1997 or early in 1998.

BRANCH INVESTMENT ACCOUNTS

EFFECTIVE FROM 3 AUGUST 1996

THESE ACCOUNTS ARE NO LONGER AVAILABLE TO NEW INVESTORS

120 DAY ACCOUN £90,000 or more £25,000 of £19,999 £10,000 of £19,999 £5,000 of £19,999 £500 of £19,999 MEMETY DAY ACCO	T <sup>A,1</sup> (Ann 4.70 3.70 3.10	mi & .	Monthly	-1	44			'-Na
£50,000 or more £25,000 - £49,999 £10,000 - £24,999 £5,000 - £9,999 £50 - £4,999 MIRETY DAY ACCO	4.70 3.70				£40,000 or more	2 10
125,000 - 649,999 610,000 - 124,599 65,000 - 69,999 650 - 64,999 MINETY DAY ACCO	3.70		3.76	٠,	225,000 - 439,999	2.15 1.45	•	1.72	-
£10,000 - £24,999 £5,000 - £9,999 £50 - £4,999 MIRETY DAY ACC			2.96		£10,000 £24,999	1.00	•	1.16	•
15,000 - £9,999 150 - £4,999 MINETY DAY ACCO			2.48		£1,000 - £9,999	0.65	:	0.80 0.52	-
HINETY DAY ACC	3.00		2-41		£500 - £999	0.60		0.48	-
	0.50		0.40		±50 - £499	0.50		0.40	:
	UNT	Annus	& Mo	mhlv)	CURRENT ACCOU	NT GOL
£50,000 or more	3.70	•	246	•	£100,000 or more	4.31	4.40	3.45	3.50
C25,000 - £49,999	2.75		2.20		£50,000 - £99,999	3.88	3.95	3,10	3.15
£10,000 + £24,999	2,55	•	* (N		£25,000 · £49,999	3.69	3.75	2.95	7.95
5,000 - £9,999	-45		1.46		£10,000 - £24,999	3,64	3.70	291	2.94
2,500 - L 4,999	2,00		1.60	•	£5(1 - £9,999	0.50	0.50	0.40	0.4
50 £2,499	0.50	•	0,40	•	CURRENT ACCOU	NT		-,
EXTY DAY ACCOU	MET. A	unual!			£50,000 or more	2.08	2.10	1.66	1 40
ormerly Skety Day and Cap					£25,000 - £49,999	1.09	1.10	0.87	0.89
10,000 or more	3.00		2.40	-	£10,000 £24,999	0.75	0.75	0.60	0.60
25,000 - 439,999	2.00	-	1.60		£500 - £9,999	0.60	0.60	0.48	0.48
10,000 - £24,999	1.40	•	1.12		£1,000 - £2,499	0.55	0.55	0.44	0.44
500 · £9,999	1.25		1.00	-	£50 · £999	0.50	0.50	0.40	0.40
50 - £499	0.90	-	0.72	•	TESSA P				-276
EXTY DAY ACCOU	MT1 .31c	mels ber			£1 or more
ormerly Monthly Income a		muly.			Annual Year 1-4	4.35
50,000 or more	2%	5.00	237	2.39	Year 5	6.25			-
25,000 · £49,999	1.98	2.00	1.58	1,60	Monthly Year 1-4	6.50 5.75		•	•
10,000 - £24,999	1_39	1.40	1.11	1.12	Year 5	6.00	•		•
2.500 - £9.999	1.00	1.00	U.80	0.80		4.40	-		-
50 - £2,499	0.50	0.50	0.40	0.40	TESSA Nº* (9.000
HERTY DAY ACCO	UNT' (A	السوه			£1 · (8,999	6,80 6,50	:	:	:
ormaniy Messeyepireser Cla							-	•	•
40,000 or more	2.20	٠.	1.76		MATURED TESSA
25,000 - £39,944	1.55		1.24	-	£1 or more
10,000 - £24,999	1.10		0.88		Anmai	5.75		4.60	-
1,000 - £9,999	0.75		Cico		Monthly	5.25	-	4.20	-
500 - £9 99	0.65		0.52		BASIC SAVINGS RA	ME
30 - £499	0.90		0.40		150 or more	0.50		0.40
HIRTY DAY ACCO	UNT' /51	ourhje			PREMIER GOLD"				-
orman'y Meneyapinser Cla			-		£50,000 or more	3.00		240
40,000 or more	218	2.20	1.74	1.75	25,000 - £49,999	2.45
25,000 · £39,999	1.54	1.55	1.25	1.24	£10,000 - £24,999	2.20		1.96
10,000 - £24,999	1.09	1.10	0.87	0.38	£500 - £9,999			1.76	-
5,000 - £9,9%	0.75	0.75	0.60	0.60	£50 - £499	2.15		1.72	•
90 - [4,999	0.50	0.50	0.40	0.40		0.50	-	0,40	•
WETANT ACCESS				-110	PREMIER GOLD"
Annual & Monthly)					£50,000 or more	2.25		1.80	•
Control of Statements	-				(25,000 - £49,999	1.70		1_36
MANUSCRIPTOR SPECIALIZATION SPECIALI	196. Skop 's	ı' Grow	. Marian	f Extra	£10,000 - £24,999	1.40		1.12
Come Euros, Two, Thre	e, Pour & Pi	he Yes	Extra la		£5,000 - £9,999	1.35		20.1	-
Marco, Two Year Term Sk	drau, Many	عطوي	rr. Mone	vanione.	£50 · £4999	0.50		40
eren, Frenkus Mossyapi ond, Moneyapinser Gree			1 Harris II.		MET CORPORATE	DEPOSIT	ACCO	UNT
ALIENS SUBJECT LIBERTAL	· Savinga, S	Continue Continue	pocome ;	Charge	£10,000 or more	5.65		1.52	_
ed Pressler Growth Bonds	h				£1 · £9,999	0.50		0.40	•
270 August 41 1 E AL L.		.			th the onerest rates may var		. ,	4,40	-

exceeds an investor's tax hability fil any), a clear may be made to the induced recognized certifications, group counte falls within the lower or basic rare branch, the tax deducted will match their fluidility to tax on the re an inner tax to pay on a. Induceduals when are hable as the higher rare of incorns can of 40%, will have to interest to cover the difference between the sax deducted and the higher rare has disc.

of Tax-free provided no withdrawals of capital are made during the 5-year term and Terons & Conditions are complied 5 Inversal is not paid on balances below £50 aniless the account holder is regimered as being under 22 years of age. (Please counset cour local branch for full details). (Floric County, Com rocks orange and an analyses of the folders of ensuring Northern Rock Tessa I accounts are still able to severe in this share account. The minimum opening balance requirement wer reduced to £1 on 3 April 1996.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO INVESTORS

With effect from 1 October 1995, the low batance charge of £3 per quarter, payable if an investment behance falls below £50 for six or more consecutive days, will be withdrawn.

Charges incurred during the period 1 July to 30 September will be made in the usual way on 15 October 1996.

NORTHERN ROCK

Northern Rock Beaklung Society, Principal Office: Northern Rock House, Gosforth, Newcastle upon Type NE3 4PL,

market report/shares

FT-SE 100 3770.6 +36.2

FT-SE 250 4265.7 +22.7 FT-SE 350 1886.0 +16.4 SEAQ VOLUME 746.9m shares. 33,704 bargains Gifts Index

93.33 +0.26

Buyers return to Wall Street as rate hike fears recede European bond and equity selling pressure throughout markets firmed on weaker-

than-expected US employment data for July. US non-farm payrolls rose 193,000 in July, while average hourly earnings fell 0.2 per cent on the month compared with expectations of a modest rise. The figures soothed fears that a rise in American interest rates might be imminent, prompting buyers to return to Wall Street where early exchanges sent the Dow 50 points higher. After a cautious start to trading the Footsie quickly gathered momentum and closed at an intraday high of 3770.6, up 36.2 points. Investors in London spent most of the day waiting to hear if BT, locked in mortal combat with industry regulator Oftel over pricing and competition. would take its case to Monopolies and Mergers Commission. Against the market group à la Hanson or British er at 364.5p in the absence of any developments.

Also weak was Rank, ahead of a strategic review due to be unveiled with interim results next week. The sbares dipped 8p to 474p.

Another trading update, another profits warning from Anglo-French papers group Arjo Wiggins Appleton. Poor first-quarter sales figures prompted analysts to trim their full-year profit forecasts for the former Footsie stock by about £30m to £120m. The shares, which closed at 171p, have been in the shredder since Ario warned in May of a poor first half and dealers shaved a further 3p off them yesterday. New chief executive Daniel Mellin is in the middle of a strategic review that could involve the break-np of the papers business which generates the bulk of profits and Banks, in the middle of their ates the bulk of profits and cash, is one option.

MARKET REPORT PATRICK TOOHER

Arjo's news also knocked shares in packaging group Rez-am, 3p lower at 362p. Sears slipped 1.5p to 98p after agreeing to sell its Hush Puppies retail business to Stylo and its Hush Puppies wholesale businesses to Wolverine World Wide for a total of £23m. Sears expects to make a £500,000 profit on the disposals. Bid rumours continued to swirl around confectionery and soft drinks giant Cadbury Schweppes. The shares topped report flagging the industry's interim results next month, the broker said the underperformance seen in the summer reporting season, were in demonths has brought ratings down to attractive levels. The mand again. Royal Bank of Scotland closed 16p ahead at sector now stands at a 10 per 497p, while HSBC added 25p cent discount to the market, yet to 1116p. NatWest picked up much of the profit decline in 10p to 655p. HSBC James Capel set a 700p price target for the current year has been the stock in the next three to six lying conditions in the UK months. The house also reitercontinue to improve steadily.

ated its buy stance, saying the price does not take into account the potential for the bank's recent acquisitions - Greenwich, Gleacher and Gartmore - and the benefits of recent cost-cutting measures which are beginning to flow through.

Mobile phones group

RMC, 5p weaker at 1035p, are all rated buys, winile Tarmac, a ha penny higher at 100.5p, and Wolseley. 9p poorer at 420p, attract sell recommendations. BPB Industries is also weather related while under-or on the back of this week's presentation to investors. The pany's annual meeting was told profits and margins imshares dialled up a 7p gain of proved in the first quarter. Soc Gen is more cautious Société Générale Strauss about building and construction Timbull turned positive on the building materials sector. In a in general and AMEC in particular. Norwegian shipping group Kvaerner still retains a 25.9 per cent stake following last year's abortive bid and the broker thinks short-term price just 10 companies it has movements will be governed as swelled on a high tide of new much by further speculative interest as fundamentals. The capitalisation is above £4ba. shares fell 3p to 92p.

There was excitement in the world of accountancy software as Sage made a 425p a share offer for Pegasus. Sage sagged 3p to 425p, Pegasus was Pilkington, up 5p to 188p, Caradon 3p better at 205p and steady at 413p.

Shares in Caspian made a went unconditional. Caspian claims 8.5 per cent of Leeds. TAKING STOCK

It was a momentous day for AIM. The lightly regulated junior market for small and growing companies welcomed its 200th company, enter-tainment software firm SCi Entertainment, by marking the shares up at 156p, a tidy premium to the 149p offer

Since AIM started with issues and total market

Sbares in Burford, the acquisitive property group headed by Saracens rugby sugar-daddy Nigel Wray, advanced 7.5p to 131p. It has paid £6.9m in cash storming return, closing 10p above their 18.5p suspension price, after its £16m offer for Leeds United football club being groomed for a stock firm Grantchester, which is being groomed for a stock market flotation later this уеаг.

160 would take its of nopolies and Mission. Against trend, the shares	Com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the the list of best performing ginning to flow through.  The com- volve the break-up of the com- volve t
140 Total Control Project Control Project Control Cont	The state of the property of the state of the	seed up by is the share Suspended primition  Simply distant the latest Suspended primition of This 123 333.  In Include VAT  Volvee Section 6400000 6400000 6400000 6400000 6400000 6400000 6400000 6400000 64000000 6400000 6400000 6400000 64000000 64000000 64000000 64000000 64
Col.	10 475 10 Whitmann 1 250 - 25 385 42 385 10 10 11 Wees 250 10 40 50 25 385 10 10 11 Wees 250 10 40 50 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10 10	Ong +7 Cing + 14 +1 +1 +1 +1

TU Excepted

JAPAN

Common Political Political

be

S

sier

ing 1 by tra-Mr

g to

r. ier-not cilt, the af-Mr na-ing tel-

war

im-: 10

the om aid ear der ing

ar-

the ius he es-bly ay.

			_
Foreig		ange	Rates
Carrada 215 Germany 25 Frence 7,77 Isaly 23 Japan 12 Beglum 12 Beglum 68 Nistherlends 25 Ireland 98 Spain 19 Swelant 10 Swelant 18 Australia* 18 Hong Romg 19 Hallysia 38 New Zeeland* 57 Saul Anabia 57	1 month 423 &4 11-3 12733 &4-41 108 122-113 394 48-63 15-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1072 55-11 1073 55-11 1074 5	3 months Sp. 7-4 10 55-047 140-150 144-155 150-150 145-150 150	OLL AR  OCL 1 month  OC 748 2-1  779 28-24  789 73-88  1894 45-44  770 7-8  1894 45-44  770 7-8  1895 45-5  1875 85-85  1870 47-17  1879 23-27  1879 23-27  1879 23-27  1879 42-17  1879 23-27  1879 42-17  1879 4	15-35 60-80 86-80 9-14	D-MARK Spot 05/756 65/002 10000 33/960 102635 72,3628 05/324 20,6205 3,8639 12/17 0.42/1 43/152 85/106 04/25 1,844 04/25 1,844 1,846
Singapore 258 OTHER SP Country Augestine Austria Brazzi Crâna Boyet Friend Ghana Grana Grana Grana Augestine Augesti	OT RATES Sterling [ 15408   15008   1581   12823   12824   128	008ar 09987 04008 00099 13704 14080 14080 14080 15150 154500 154500	Country Higeria Oman Palestien Philippries Pornugal Castar Russia South Africa Tabuen re published hom aport	103-88 Sterling 124,967 0,9941 54,5759 44,4676 224,538 58142 824,456 58667 min. (those quot.	OS585  Coller  S10000 0.3851 35.3746 282300 52470 3.840 3.840 3.840 3.840 3.840 3.840 3.840 6.84
Tourist  E Buys  AustraligColons) AustraligColons) Belgun/Pancal Canada(Dollars) Cyprus(Paunds) Holland(Gulders) Fatend(Marks)	19400 Fn 158700 G 458800 G 20790 Hc 08875 hm 88500 hz 24925 Ja 68950 Ma	Buys anco(Francis) imminy(Marka) secs(Chachmel) ing (Kong(Dollers lend(Plumis) by(Ling) sen(Yon) itta(Ling)	7:3125 Me 2:2200 Mo 2:373000 Se 0:3040 Se 0:3040 Se 0:30500 Se 0:3	Buys w Zestend(Colle rugal(Excudos) sin(Pesstas) eden(Kronor) trantaror(Francs kwy(Lira)	2,2040 98225 225000 100000 100400
France Intervention 3 Italy Discount 5 Netherlands	Germany Discount Lomberd 195% Carnada Prizze Discount Demount Demount Discount	250% P 450% D 700% S 500% 1	ris htms 87 kecount 50 ed Funds 52 ipain 0-Day Repo 72 keciles spo (Ave) 59	5% Obschunt Central 5% Switzerhan Distount	050% 250% 130% 4125%
Rence 54A Sourced-ISBC Maries	252 31% 735 10% 5 523 6261 534 7259	732 650 326 324 5 627 628	Country 8 yr Nothertands 8 7/3 Spein 10:00 Rely 9 7/3 Balgium 97/3 Balgium 13% ECU DAT 6% Instituted on local best	523 65 5794 10 678 95 539 79 742 69 578 75	6% 872 % 943 962
Interbenk Sterling CDe Local Authorsty Dep Decount Martas De Treasury Bile (Buy) Delter CDe EGU Linked Dep	C'Night $ 6 54 ps 64	7 Day 1 5% 5% 5% 5% 5% 5% 5% 5% 5% 6% 6%	Month 3 Month n 5 % 5 % 5 2 5 % 52 2 5 % 4 % 4 % 4	5 8 Months 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 54 5	7 Year' 5 % 6 % 5 % 6 6 5.78 4 % 4 %
Contract Long Gitt German Bond JG Bond salen Bond JM Sterling SM Euro Yea SM Europeark E.G.U. Euro SP7 FFSE 100 FFSE 250	Settlers	pent Hrices 18 19 19 19 19 19 19 19 19 19 19 19 19 19	ligh/Low or day 60 107-06 80 157-22 40 1593 50 118-28 28 94-24 82 98-66 82 98-66 82 98-66 87 1 98-63 71 98-63 71 98-63 75 95-57 67 95-57 62 97-55 80 37-260	EstConta traded 88773 159768 3390 45915 14855 21023 1700 50 34808 46968 706 6298 706 6298 7072 0	Open Interest 145057 234140 0 62071 78600 102585 N/A 157860 225283 9105 5863 28900 58638 3461 58611
	-SE In	dex 0  closing of 3750 48/28 0 88/57 6 110/75	Ption  for price 3800 22/51 60/80 82/97		Celt/Put lotal/vols
COMMO INDUSTRIAL, MET STonne Aurioum HG Aurioum Adoy Coppe A Leed Maked Tee Zire Zire Zire Zire Zire Zire Zire Zi		etal Exchange 3 miles 56-6 199-6 190-43 608-9 608-9 103-4 20a 1699	Volume 27556 506 38662 4570 7786 4200 1981	ME Stocks 904575 98890 254650 98890 98990 98905 98005	ohg + 450 + 150 + 150 + 150 + 905 - 450 enge in
	8 C Cole 80 36150 Brita 05 8460 Brita 18 332 Brita	min 4 min.5 cc 2 min.25 cc 1	$ £ 103 251 Krugi 104 132 Sova 103 67 Nobb	Tencia 378/3 62/ 10 393/4 1 and 387/4	$ 2 69 245/252 66 69/62 09 255/265 03 251/265 3 251/265
LCE	LCE $/LETTE Sop 544 Nov 557 Jan 1407 Voi: 2,366 Prelight LCE $10/nder pt Aug 1075 Sop 1055 Voi: 25 index 56	Nov 104 Jan 105 Vot: Wheat, LCE Char Sep 110 Alan 134 Jan 134	185 Nov 140 Mer 125 Apr 94 Yot: Corn 175 CBOT# 1275 Sopt 44 125 Dec 45	1000 Feb 1400 Feb 1400 Apr 95 Vote Conta/bus 14-Lo 200-438.50 250-442.00 500-442.00	£/torres 23 23 114 1230 Paless
Nov Makes (No.5) July Copes (1) Oct Outson (NY) Aug Wool Sep Rubber* Origins (Susch/EC - wary ENTER(ST) Breatt Crude  PE 5.30pm %	Stone Stone Stone Uscentib Acontig Meaning Meaning Stone (Stone) Gamo My Yrago IPE	755 Sep 7059 Aug 3250 July matein "Malayem"  £ ($/totane)	POCK Represent O Aug Groundnut O N Europe Sework FT WTI Pro	5 FL/D0ig	910 7800 6000 9150 6000
Oct 1985 +6 Nov 1867 +1 Vot 18325 tod "arros $30pm prevenut de COMMODITY INDIX "GSCI ladicat Ba Indix Agricultural 5	Wear ago proces ster CES on date +Sport 70=100 782.75 70=100 285.52	%Day Chg D	Sup 2005 Unit Oct 2005 Heat Nov 2000 Nap Dec 1655 EC	Hederd Generaling Pry Frant Cel Robert General In Cel Peperal Cel Robert Special Robert Special	200/202 170/191 91/83 107/199 Parines
Energy 19 Inclus? Mesols 19 Livestock 19 Precious Metals 19 Stancer Gottman, Suche 8 Inclus American Inclus Inclu	63-100 7069 F7-100 16578 F0-100 19580 F3-100 49419 Co "GSCI 6.8 techno	+312 +016 +129 +020 mk and narehornal	71.51 -0: 19332 -14: 18271 +7: 48996 +0: t of Goldman, Suche & (	57 5549 34 20817 26 17505 16 48324 31 (Close 4s of	+618 +255 -2074 +1129 +019
LOO Lar	gest in	el Offer Stock			Med Cour
Abbay Squity Ser 4 Obay International Ser 4 Obay Malerial Managad Ubay Malerial Managad Ubay Malerial M. Equity Many Englisy Acc Ser 3 Obany Englisy Acc Ser 3 Obany Listiple by Acc Ser 3 Obany Listi	9207 7632 1984 1407	HAZE LINES HAZE M & C 19450 M & C	B Gorard Managed A on & Maschesser Float on Egylty on Managed Boad Acc 3 Managed Boad Acc 3 Rectivery Boad Acc last Investors Manager and Balanced	600m $460 6 Acc 5 701 800.6	1005 1005 1005 1005 1005 1005 1005 1005

Aborty Mattich to Acc SS Aborty Mattick business Chatacters Bond Aled Durian English Acc Aborty Acc Aborty Constitution Grant Aled Durian English Acc Aborty Acc Aborty Property Acc Aborty Aborty Acc Aborty Property Acc Aborty Acc A (231) 12 (23

Carson-Hall Republy

Benefied Characteristics

Carson-Hall Republy

Benefied Characteristics

Strick General Characterist

Strick General Characterist

Strick Con income

Con Airconnel Life Life (Life Hill Income Acc Life Hill Income Acc Life Hill Income Study Income San UniCarach High Inc 198 High Income Acc UK EQUITY Santhurs Uni Disentation CU PPT High Vision Baring Commercials NORTH AMERICA
Friends Prov Arreston Sen Control
Hill Served US Strader Color
Today 131.7 121.5 129.9 294 1002 1002 1007

| The content of the Aced Liberto Feromory
Andre Liberto Feromory

SECTOR AVERAGES Form
Abin
UK Equity Jocum
UK Equity Jocum
UK Equity Jocum
UK Equity J. Brand
UK Equity J. Br

MANAGED BONDS
Subin Pittors Like Human

ANAGED BONDS
Subin Pittors Like Human

Edit

Starth Editor Human

Starth E

111.07 11

Trouter Cleared Fronte to 188 Sect. 188 Sect.

115.1 253.0 31.00 175.0

Partie Pa

| Control | A Ministry | 279 | 200 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 | 201 |

The proThe proThe

UK GROWTH

the lightly strelling the state of the state of September 19 and entitott catt I wallware then ber Statute for Mathies the part of a feet Mit bi ifte Laufe ifter AIM started water Addition of his high shigh sale of her ad lotel man ... indians is also a sulp

the Burt to the the bredate the group Sto Maranna Hagla Andre News West

wit 7.5m to 1 13.

Mar de la

the pasts to the many wer erut if ibn if def retail water to say someth for a day Affordier inter the

Margine Comments of the Commen

Pneumonia ruins Cole's new start their latest signing, Jordi Cruyff.

whose clearance papers have beco held up at the Spanish FA.

get his papers but it always seems to be mañana over

One player who seems sure to be there is Patrick Kluivert.

the young Dutch international,

for whom Blackburn Rovers yesterday denied making a bid. He is rumoured to be keeo on a move to a British club, and Uoited are among the clubs believed to be interested in the Celtic and Alan Stubbs, their player, valued at about £10m.

there," said Ferguson.

We've been trying con-stop to

Football CLIVE WHITE

Andy Cole has contracted oneumonia and will be out for five weeks, thereby missing the start of the season. The former British record signing had seeo his Manchester United career threatened by the possible arrival of Alan Shearer this summer, but now finds himself displaced by illness.

The £7m signing from New-eastle – the club who eveotualh secured the services of Shearer - had originally been thought to be sufferiog from bronchitis but that diagnosis turned out to be incorrect.
It is yet another blow for the 24-year-old, whose career since his move from St James' Park two seasons ago has been blighted by indifferent form and injury. His goal touch de-serted him alarmingly, yet Alex Ferguson persevered with the player until, at the climax to the season, in the FA Cup final at Wembley, the United manager was forced to substitute him.

Had the Shearer's move to United gone through, Everton were prepared to offer Cole the chance to resurrect his career. Now his enforced absence provides his young deputy, Paul Scholes, with the opportunity to establish himself in the side. Cole will not be on the only absentee today when United Cantona: United's new kit

Who will Manchester United be playing over Christmas?

RACING RESULTS

When will Alan Shearer face Blackburn?

Who will Torquay face over Easter? These and thousands of other vital questions about the forthcoming football season will be answered in Wednesday' Summer of Sport, when we publish the complete Premiership, Nationwide League and Scottish Premier Division fixtures for the 1996-97 season face Ajax in the four-team own signing, were yesterday Umhro tournament at Not- given fines totalling £70,000 by Fifa, world football's governing tingham. Quite apart from Gary Pallister, Ryan Giggs, Nicky body, for using an unlicensed agent, Neil Rioch, in the former Butt and now Cole, it looks as if United will also be without Bolton defender's transfer to

> In fining Celtic £42,000 and Stubbs £28,000, Fifa warned the Scottish Premier Divisioo club that any repetition of the indiscretion could lead to a freeze on transfer activities.

Parkhead.

Arsenal, who have been consicuous by their lack of activity in the transfer market, have announced a pre-tax loss of more than £3.6m on last season. The club's commercial and retail profits were down by nearly £2m from £12.99m in the previous year while wages rose by more than £1m to £10.06m. Peter Hill-Wood, the chairman lamed the deficit on the club's absence from European football. Terry Venables, the former England coach, has told Portsmouth that they must sort out their financial problems before he can consider joining them as part owner. "It will oeed a lot of cash to rejuvenate the club. which is just not there," he said.

"Hopefully things could change." Meanwhile, along the south coast at Brighton, plans for a new stadium alongside a shopping complex at Toads Hole Valley have been rejected by the local council. The beleaguered Seagulls could still end up ground sharing with Portsmouth

Fogarty masters art of alchemy

No one could accuse Carl Fog-arty of complacency. In the hunt for the winning combination the 30-year-old Lancashire rider had found the unbeatable ingredients: himself and a Ducati motorcycle. That formula woo two successive World Superbike Championships, and bas earned Fogarty - "Foggy" to his abundant tans - a place among Britain's motorcycle greats. He followed that feat by doing the unexpected, switching to Hooda and a bike unsuited to his riding style. Complacency, oo, but a touch perverse, perhaps. Tomorrow, at Brands Hatch, it may come abundantly clear just how, in 12 months, Fogarty's fortunes have takeo a twist every bit as acute as those at the demanding Keot circuit where a 40,000-strong crowd will cheer his every move.

Last season, on a Ducati 916, be was virtually unbeatable, and won both races in the European round of the WSB series. This year it will be very different on the rapid but hard-to-master Castrol Honda

"If I rode the Ducati this year I would have won the championship by now, which sounds good but I wanted a oew challenge and I've got it," Fogarty said. "Wheo I rode on the Ducati last year there were six other guys on the same bike and I still beat them."

Fogarty, however, wins races by maintaining speed through corners, which the V-twin Ducati is ideally suited. The V4 RC45 is very different. Its engine is higher and further forward, putting too much weight over the front end, and favours those riders who brake hard into corners. Which suits Fogarty's team-mate, Aaron Slight, like one of Saville Row's finest cuts. On Foggy, the RC45 was a pair of baggy jeans and a soiled T-shirt.

But Fogarty is motorcycling's great alchemist. Show

Andrew Martin on end was heightened, and hardtomorow's challenge er fork springs installed. This made the bike's front more for Carl Fogarty at Brands Hatch

Kawasaki and woo the eodurance title. He then rode a Yamaha at the Isle of Man TT. clocking the outright lap record.

"Power-wise, the Hooda's oot much different to the Ducati. It's a bit fickle oo some tracks, it just doeso't like 'em, sort of makes its own mind up wheo it gets there. It definitely suits flat tracks with a smooth surface. Anything that is off camber and down hill, you've really got to wrestle it round. But we'll just see what happened this weekeod. I think I can go all right. I'm really up for it."

After a poor start to the sea-soo - a 100mph crash at Mishim an unfamiliar machine ano, Italy, and a poor hard into corners and hard out and he will turn it toto a world beater. In 1992 be jumped oo best finish – the Hooda's rear style from four years of riding a Ducati to riding a Hooda, and I've managed to do it and win some races. "It's not easy and it's not the flexible, allowing Fogarty to feel earlier when the front wheel way I prefer to ride but it's the only way I know bow to get this Honda rouod." At third in the championship begins to lose traction while banked at breathtaking speed.

Victories at Hockenheim, Germany, and Monza, Italy, followed. Second and third places at Brno, the Czech Republic, saw Fogarty begin to close oo his rivals, Troy Corser, Anthony Gobert and John Kocioski.

to greater leogths in the search

the Ducati was all about carrying a lot of corner speed, and

I couldn't do that with the Honda, which I was trying to do early oo in the season. So I scrapped that idea. Now I ride hard into corners and hard out for perfection.

staodings, 34 points behind Corser, Fogarty still believes he is capable of winning a third world title. "It's getting to the stage now where I've really got to think about beating the guys in froot of me io the champi-Altering the bike, however, onship. It doesn't oecessarily has not been sufficient for depend oo this weekeod but Fogarty. Hc, typically, has gone certainly the round after that. After Brands, I've got four The biggest change we've circuits in a row that I think I'm made really is me. I've had to going to go well on, if the bike change the way I ride. Riding works good anyway. Last year I woo all four."

"I doo't mind Brands, it's ooe of the tracks you enjoy. wheo the bike is working well and last year the bike was working great, so I really enjoyed it.

Practice times, Sporting

.--- .

D.M.

Wallabies rely on Campese ran and Joe Roff who are rebut his place is under threat

Rugby Union

New Zealand have already secured the first Tri-Nations series with three consecutive wins. The loser of today's match between South Africa and Australia in Bloemfonteio can expect to come last.

The Wallahies will rely on the world record try-scorer David Campese, making his 99th Test appearance, but miss Tim Ho-

GOODWOOD

2.15: 1. GRIEN BARRIES (R Hits) 10-1; 2. Dancing image 6-1 lay; 3. Miss Riviera 11-1; 4. Unconditional Love 20-1, 18 ran.

3. 1 ... iM Johnston, Middleham). Tota: £9.00;

£2.50, £1.70, £2.30, £3.10, Dual Forecast.

22:00, 51:10, 22:30, 53:20, 00an ronesas: £20,90, computer Strangt Forcesst: £61:51. Tneast: £622:48. Tno: £10.1:30. £45:1. FAHMIR H90 5-2 far; 2. Munheb 33:1:3. Crown Court 4-1. 14 ran. 9., nk. (4 Stewart, Newmarket). Totte: £4.10; £2.00.

(4 Stewart, Newmarket), Tote: £4.10; £2.00, £10.00, £2.30, DF; £1.13.30, CSF; £68.08.

3.20: 1. SALMON LADDER (T Quan) 7-2 tov. 2. Midnight Legend 5-1; 3. Better Offer 5-1. 9 ran. 1 ..., 1. P Cole, What-combel, Totac £4.00; £1.50, £2.30, £2.00, DF; £9.20, CSF; £19.60 Treast; £77.73. Trea

3.50: 1. CARMINE LAKE J Red 6-1: 2. Imperiara 10-1; 3. Deep Pinease 11-2.

7 ran. 11-10 tav lipsy Cruek (6th). No. 15... (P Chapple-Harm, Manton). Tota: £6.80;

CSF ±10 89. Incard, £59 24 Trat £9.8

Placepot: 4207 30. Quadpot: £39.00 Place 6: £61.74 Place 5: £24.57.

THIRSK

5.35 1 HAWA AL NASAMAAT (Tone O'Nes

Chapple Hyam, Mantoni, 1606; 250, 280, 23, 20, DF, 236, 70, CSF; £52,49, Al-

Incar: £293.21. Inc. £131.70.

placed by Daniel Herbert and ready robbed him of the Henry Honiball.

Markgraaff also has to decide who to play at hooker. John Allan played in the first two Tests

BANGOR

Pat Howard. The South African coach,

Andre Markgraaff, is delaying naming his side until shortly before kick-off but injury has alexperienced Natal pair of Andre Joubert at full-back and from Northern Transvaal's Henry Tromp, However, Tromp may be denied a first cap because of controversy over a conviction for assault after which a farm labourer died.

> Tom Kiernan, chairman of the Five Nations Committee, has called a meeting of Ireland, Scotland, Wales and France to debate England's Five Nations future at a secret veoue oo Monday night.

tesque

£5.90: £2.60, £2 10, DF. £10.20, CSF: £37.41. $50: 1 LANCER (M. Morston: 11-2: 2. MB-

22.90, 23.20 DF, 236.70, CSF; £52.49, Alter a stewards' inquin, placings unaffered, 4.25. 1. DICKIE BIRD frait Edicin) 7-2. 2. Zaretaid 2-1 fr-lax; 3. Prairie Falcon 2-1 fr tax, 5 ran. 1/x, 37. 48 Harmon, East Berkeyhl, Tota: £3.60; £1.40, £1.70. Df £5.40, CSF, £10.35. 5.00: 1. CLAN CHUEF IT Ountil 9-1 fax; 2. Literary Society 4.1; 3. White East 9-1.9 cm; 1.2, .... 14 ransit. Uncer Lambourn 1 9 ran. 11, 1... U Arrold, Upper Lambourn Tota: (2.90; £1.40, £1.60, £2.70 DF, £5.00. ASCOT 11 J Ln; 2. Tiler 3 L, 3. Hinton Rock 25 1. 11 o ran, 24 mer 3 t. 3. minum floor. 25 t. 10 ran, 21 j. nk. it Duning, Newmarker, Tobe. 23 20 t. 80, £1 80, £7 00. DF £3.80 TSF £10 .62 Incr £82 10 NP Symor After a stew-

Jackpot: £145,020 90 - part won, Port of £42,171,07 carred toward to Goodwood ledge. Placepot: £207 30. Quadpot: £39,00

2.00; 1. SENZOE of Fertune/ 11-10 fav; 2. Nira 9-1, 3. Cheeky Chappy 5-1, 9 ran. 1 - ne. Nir. (Romaten, Theria Totas 52 00. 51 10, 72 90, 51.90, DT; 514.60 CSF 512 03, Incres 237 14 Ther 534.00. 2.30; 1. BOLD AFRICAN (A Cuttane) 5-

3.30: 1. ROYAL RESULT IM Fertion 1-5 1. 7 vanadium Ore 10 r., 1. 7 van. 1. 6. (L.) Stoute, Rewnarder Tote: 1. 7 van. 1. (S.) (L.) Stoute, Rewnarder Tote: 1. 10. (L.) 10. (S.) 11. (NR.) Hill House Teacher. 4.05: L. DASSIGE MCCASHEE U For-more 3-1 julia. 2. Sandbaggedagain 9-2; 3. Pirate's Girl 6-1. 10 ram. 3-1 julia bro-beton julin Sindal, i Mil Chamon, lipper Limbourn, Tote: 1-1-20, 11-30, 11-30, (2-90 OF 111-20 CSF $18.08 fnor

231.00
4.35: 1. LUCKY REVENGE (Clare Angell
5.7 to: 2. Good Lee Shay 16-1; 3. Fleiester
9.0 8 ram. 1. ... h. N. Marste, Marriestum;
Totor 23.40, 21.50, 25.10, 51.30, DF
176.40, CSF; L35.97, Tucast: £161.87 Placement (20.70, Quadrott 57.80)

3,10: 1. FRIENDLY DREAMS (* Eley) 50-1; 2. Four Weddings 6-S foy; 3. Balandraf Princess 66-1. 9 ran. 6, 3/4. (*) Delton, Totas £65, 40; £7.90, £1.10, £2.50. 0F: £38.10. CSF: £104.35. Trto: £85.30. 3.40-1. STICKY MONEY (D Brokwater) 8 GOING: Good to Firm.

3.40: 1. STICKY MONEY (D Bridgector) 8-13 for; 2. Pharrago 6-1; 3. Scrabo View 4-1, 4 ma, 4, 4, (M Puel; 7 oter £1.30. DF; £2.60, CSF, £4.37. NR: Preside, 4.15: 1. PEIER MONAMY (D Walsh) 4-5 for; 2. Green's Seago 2-1; 3. Forgertal 4-1. 5 ma, 2½, dsz. (M Puel, Toter £1.60: £1.30, £1.30. DF; £7.20. CSF; £3.13. NR; 4.45: 1. DIAMOND CUT ID Bridgwater 4-

1: 2. Dancing Dove 4-1; 3. First Crack 9-2. Fram. 2-1 by Bue Rasen. 3, 1 - (M.P.pe). Foto: £4.60: £2.10, £2.60. DF: £6.90. OSF: 5.20: 1. POND HOUSE |D Briggester | 13-2: 2. Minere Rosst 11 - 2: 3. Forest Feath-er 6-4 (av. F. ran. 3%, 1%, 1% Poe). Tota:

Hon Dancer 2-7 for 3. Seven Wells 33-1. 8 ran. Hd. dezt. iR Juckes' Total 23-90. 1.1.10. £1.10. £5 13. GF £2.40 CSF.

E7.42. Placepot: £10.70 Quadpot: £9.70. Place & £42.27 Place S: £19.42

8.00: 1. VOICES IN THE SKY IS Parton 5-1, 2. Seejama 7-1, 3. Prince De Berry 25-1, 11 ran. 7-2 fav Universion, 19-4, A-Newsoniber, Tobe 25-30: 21, 40, 53-10. F7 NO. DF £16-90. CSF: £36-96. Treast 18.77. Tra. £85.80. 6.30: 1. SHARPICAL IG Duffield: 7-1: 2. Pistot 11-2: 3. Ashby Hill S-1: 12 ram. S-1 in: Fahs. 1., shi-hd. (Sr Mark Prescott) Tote: £9.90; £2.70, £2.20, £2.70, DF £35.40 CSP £44.26 Incast £293.72. Tro altered 7.00: 1 CARRFULLY DANCER (7 Quarti 9-14 (a.: 2. Cartechism 3-1, 3. Elbasha 11-4, 5 ran. 1., hd. (R Averurst) Tota: £3.30; £1.70, £1.30, £7: £6.00, CSF: £9 07. NR: Queen's Pageant.

NEWMARKET 6.15: 1. HIDIAN RHAPSODY IP Scornin 12-1, 2. Pertious Plight 7-2; 3. Henric 15-2, 9 ran, 11-5 fav Uncle George, 2 15-2.9 ran. 11-8 fa. Uncle George. 2**. 3-4. Badect, Totes 122-50, £2-50, £1-50, £1-60, OF, £19-20, CSF £50.34. The: £27-40, NR: Darkeng Lasyer. 8-46: 1. MUNCEED (Mrs C Durken) 5-1; 2. Belmarita 9-4 fa; 3. Star Anise 13-2. The #15-20, 10 Core page 1, 10 Core page 1, 10 Core page 1, 10 Core page 2, 10 Core page 1, 10 Core page 2, 10 ran, 4., 2-1) Gosceni, Tote: £6.70; £3.10, £2.00, DF: £6.10 CSF: £14.84

■ The champion National Hunt trainer. Martin Pipe, collected a 108-1 four-timer at Bangor vesterday and also claimed the horse that wrecked his chances of going through the card. "You could say we are going home with five winners," said Pipe's assistant Chester Barnes after putting in a successful claim for Friendly Dreams, the 50-1 shot that ruined Pipe's hopes of a six-timer in the first hundle. Barnes claimed the filly out of Paul Dalton's stable for £3.528 after the winner had made the favourite. Four Weddings, look one-paced.

Richard Hills, who has endured a difficult Glorious Goodwood in picking up a seven-day suspension for irresponsible riding, missing out on several well-fancied contenders and watching his twin, Michael, hogging the hig-race headines, had his week rescued by Fahim in the Globetrotter Handwap, Hills, who had also struck aboard Green Barries in the opening race, said: "At Goodwood one day it loves you and the next day it hates you - today it seems to like me."

WINDSOR *

6.00 Little Kenny 6.30 Flame Valley 7.00 Kalimat 7.30 Monument 8.00 Gone Savage 8.30 Dan-

STALLS: Inside.

DRAW ADVANTAGE: High from 1m 70yd to 1m 3f 170yd.

Figure-of-cuth course, Level, with sharp turns, and long straights.

Course is N of town on A308 near junction 8 of M4. Stations at Wirnbor Central (service from London, Paddington) and Wirnbor Enverside (service from London, Waterloo) 1m. River bus stope at course. ADMISSION: Chib 512; Tattersulis 58; Silver Ring 54. CAR PARK: Chib 522; remainder $1,50 or $1. SIS

BLINKERED FIRST TIME: Pastini Gold (vasored), Still Here (vi-sored) (GJB); Bold Oriental, Doubly-H (7.00); Glassic Pet (vasored) (SIM).
WINNERS IN THE LAST SEVEN DAYS: None.
LONG-HISTANCE RUNNERS: Elike Racing (6.00) has been sent LIJ miles by N Unider from Laugton, N Yorko: The Institute Boy
18.00] sent 201 miles by Miss J Crase from Evington, N Yorks.

6.00 FRIENDLY FLAME APPRENTICES SELLING HANDICAP (CLASS G) £3,000 1m 67yds

OD-2000 QUEEN OF SHANNON (6) A Corol 8 8 3 ... Stadiolog 15 V

303000 BAD NEWS (21) J M Bradley # 0 10 010500 000/1EW (22) (D) J Pouton 7 8 12 7 Field 14 8 253404 TAULINAH BEILE (14) N Latmoden 3 8 11 Devil O'New 17 100 F NEWS (10) M Fettlerston-Godiny 3 8 9 JR Piteneth 11 V

- 18 declared -BETTING: 6-1 Little Kenny, 7-1 Cheriton Imp, 8-1 Acquittal, 10-1 Tellment Belle, 12-1 Teuten, Return 7e Brighton, 14-1 others

6.30 AMERADA COSTS LESS MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) £5,100 added 1m 2f 8 450 VERIDIAN (26) P Henrs 38 12 G Hind 7
9 0 WHAT A FUSS (24) 8 Hardury 38 12 G Raditions (7) 14
10 50 COH SHO NO (52) 18 Jackey 38 7 Martin Dwyse (5 13 14 AD RAZZLING (5) 0 O Boen 38 7 Martin Dwyse (5 13 12 43 420 RAME VALLEY (154) (151) M Shoun 38 7 D Hardson 8 13 00 PERISAN DWANN (53) 0 Chapped 38 7 JF Egon 11
14 040 QUEENS FRINCY (16) 5 Doe 38 7 JF Egon 11
15 TURNING WHEEL (154) H Cect 38 7 W Ryan 5 - 15 declared - 8
ETTIME: 5-2 Fisnor Valley, 4-1 Turning Wheel, 6-1 Dazzling, Upper Gallery, 12-1 Veridins, 14-1 Moute Felice, 16-1 others

7.00 NORTH SEA MEDIAN AUCTION MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS E) £4,200 2YO 6f

OO DOUBLY-H (LA) M Bell 9 0 -__G Feullmer (7) 8 8 SAD (24) CJ Berstaad 9 0... MELLIWOOD M Tomplans 90. MULICIPAL T The PSP4.0P (25) 8 Mechan 9 0.... SHUMARKH (3) R Harmon 9 0 ... SILVER SECRET M Heaton-Ellis 9 0 ..... .....5 Drywie (3) 8 5 VIP CHARLE (12) J Jenkins 9 0..... HERA (66) R Boss 8 9 KALMAT W Janto 8 9 LUCY OF ARABIA (24) J Sheeban 8 8. 00 ROTHERFELD OSIEEN (19) 8 McCourt 8 8 .......... C Retter 22 55 SCARLET LANE (17) O Loder 88.....

BETTING: 4-1 Marked, 5-1 Mara River, 5-1 Bold Oriental, Scarlet Lake, 8-1 Showalki, 12-1 V I P Charle, 16-1 others 7.30 AMERADA HESS GAS HANDICAP (CLASS D) £5,100 added 1m 3f 135yds

0002 PARBOT'S HELL ($0) M Tomplers 3 7 10 _____M Honey ($) 9 ROO IT'S A GAS HANDICAP (CLASS E) £4.200 52-0055 SCORED AGAIN (9) (D) M Heaton-Elis 5 8 10.

8.30 SOUTH WEST MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) ATOMIC SHELL (CNO CWal 90_ SWIG A MOORE 9 ( SOVEREIGN CREST C Horgan 9 0... STARTINGO 8 Licwellyn 9 0..... TAKE NOTICE G Harwood 9 0..... .. A Clark

BETTMG: 3-1 Civil Liberty, 4-1 Dantesque, 6-1 The Polymetis, 7-1 Grass Musica, 10-1 Repid Retreet, 14-1 Servicona, 16-1 others

HAMILTON

HYPERION 5.50 Henry The Hawk 6.20 Canadian Fantasy 6.50 Nose No Bounds 7.20 North Ardar 7.50 Lucky Revenge 8.20 Balladoole Bajan 8.50 Tissue Of Lies

GOING: Good to Firm.
STALLS: Im 66yds & Im II - inside; rest - stands side.
DEAW ADVANTAGE: High for 5f and 6f. Right-hand unfulating course with pear-shaped loop.
Course is N of town on B7071. Hamilton West station (service from Glasgew) 1 m. ADMESSION: Cab 512; Grandstand and Paddock 57 154 for OAPs, dasabled & students, $10 for comples); accurated the state of the state o companied under-16s [ree all enclosures. CAR PARK: Free.

BLINKERED FIRST TIME: Allsudars (8.20).
WINNERS IN THE LAST SEVEN DAYS: None.
LONG-DISTANCE EURNBES: Euler Kache (6.20) 4. Jeffrey Anotherrod (8.20) sent 37 (miles by K McAnhife from Lumbourn, Betha William Wallace (8:20) sent 360 miles by C Murray from Newmarks, Saffole, Bella Cooks (5:50), Lucky Revenge (7:50) & Marsh Marigold (9:20) sent 156 miles by M Meade from Sherston, Witshire; Natural Key (7 54) & Askern (8.50) sent 348 miles by D Haydn Jones from Etnal Isaf. Med Glamorgan. 5.50 VARIETY CLUB CHARITY HANDICAP (CLASS F) £3,600 added 6f 106241 SUNDAY MAIL 100 (13) (62) Miss L Persett 4 11 2. 56-504 NEWEY THE NAME (10) (C) (D) M Date 5 11 0 060555 SEX FOR LUCK (15) O Notan 4 10 13 ______At 0 Noten S 356345 SALLYOREALLY (53) W Storey S 10 4 ____Miss M Carson 10 000006 ROSERTE LODGE (26) (D) S Kettlewell 10 10 3 500632 SECONOS ANAY (15) J Golde 5 9 10 Miles P Robson 3

000060 RELIA CONIA 1120 Miles P Robson 3 - 10 declared -- 10 metarou - 10 6.20 SLENGOYNE HIGHLAND MALT MAIDEN STAKES (CLASS D) £5,000 2YO 6F

SO MANY CAMER (23) J Bary 90.

066 WELLAM WALLACE (10) Charter 90 --

SETTING: 4-7 Canadian Fantasy, 11-4 Kalser Keche, 8-1 William Wallings,

6.50 ROTHMANS NORTH SOUTH 18 36yds (CLASS D) £10,000 3YO 1m 1f 36yds ROTHMANS NORTH SOUTH HANDICAP - 4 declared -BETTING: 11-8 Call Me, 11-4 Guff Of Slave, 7-2 Mose No Bounds, 4-1 Ter-

7.20 BURNBANK SELLING STAKES (CLASS G) £3,000 added 1m 65yds BETTENG: 4-8 North Artier, 2-1 Tibbi Eleos, 20-1 School Of Science, 33

7.50 EVENING TIMES HANDICAP (CLASS E) £5,000 added 3YO filles of 254-050 NUSSANT (60) R McNeter 9 7 T Williams 4 OC441 LUCKY REVENDE (1) M Monde 9 0 Dean McNeum 1 OC0301 NUTURAL (SEY (22) (CD) 0 Hayda Joses 8 7 A Binchey 2 322463 PATIMOE (13) N Dycott 8 0 J Family 3 BETTING: 4-6 Lucky Revenge, T-4 Natural Key, 7-1 Pathere, 12-1 Nais-

8.20 EAGLE TAVERNS MAIDEN AUCTION STAKES (CLASS F) £3,450 2YO 57

8.50 LINN MOTOR CONCURS E) £5,000 added 1m 3f LINN MOTOR GROUP 'V40' HANDICAP

Afronunt: 7st 10th. Pue it top weight: Royal Mover 7st 7th, Futor, Rose 7st. BETTRIR: 11-4 Lord Advencies, 3-1 Northern Mottle, 7-2 Asiatra, 9-2 Dr Edgar, 5-1 Tessee Of Use, 10-1 Warwick Met., 56-1 others

Ð ∰Ð े ●

— 10 declared — SETTING: 7-2 Mountain Drown, F-1 Wild Rita, 8-1 Supreme Star, 14-1 others MARKET RASEN HYPERION 5.10 Silver Sleeve 6.40 Yacht Club 7.10 Sassi 7.40 Another Quarter 8.10 Maggots Green 8.40 Sea God

GOING: Good to Firm (Good in places).

Right-hand, sharp, undulating chroni. Run-in of one furiong.

Course is E of town on AS31. Markes Rasen station (Lincoin originally line) Lm. ADMISSION: Carb 512; Tattersalis SS (OAPs who are members of course's Jubilee Club S4); Silver Rog S5 (Inbidee Club OAPs S2,50). CAR PARK: picnic areas 52, rest free.

BLINEERED FIRST TIME: George Ashford (visored), Eure Paddy (visored) (8.40): Cowboy Dreums (7.40), Penvick's Brother (visored), Fleet Castes (8.40). Winnels in TIME LAST SERVEN DAYS: Silver Sleeve (6.10) was at Stratford on Saurriay, Another Quarter (7.40) won at Southwell on Saturday.

LONG-DISTANCE RINNERS: Noted Strain (6.10) has been sent 255 miles by O Rosest from Oakford, Devon; Five From Home (6.40), House Cookin' (7.40) & Fleet Cuden (8.40) sent 250 miles by M Pipe from Nichol

6.10 PREMIERE AMATEURS NOVICE H'CAP HURDLE (CLASS F) £2,800 2m 1f 110yds

blinarum weght: ICst. True handlarp weight: Aragiant Bay 9x 12b. SETTING: 6-4 Silver Sleave, 3-1 Popini, 9-2 Irio likes, 5-1 Tomy's Mist, 18-1 Awil Etolio, 20-1 Noted Strain, 25-1 others 6.40 UNITED FRIENDLY SELLING HANDICAP HDLE (CLASS G) £2,000 2m 5f 110yds - 11 declared

- 11 George - White weight: 10st. The Franciscop weights: 10thy Deed Str 13th, Jolf's Greet Str 12th, Pare Facily Str 8th, Carpon Lavy Str 9th, Str 9th, Str 13th, Jolf's Greet Str 13th, From Home, 5-1 Yacht Club, Whiteffing Sipey, 6-1 George Astriord, 8-1 Thereis, Lambson, 16-1 Jolf's Greet, 12-1, others

TAKE NOTICE G Harmood 9 0.

THEATRES DREAM I Borks 9 0.

THEATRES OF BERKING 9 1 GOSTON 9 1.

DANK TRIANFLE (442) Mr. 1 Code 8 9.

POLISH RYNTHM M Tomploms 8 9.

PRESS ON NICKY GOW Maur 8 9.

RAPID REPREAT (FI) E Durlop 8 9.

SAMORELE M Ryan 8 9.

13 declared —

BETTING: 4-6 Sessiver, T-2 Hizal, 6-1 Mr Oriental, 14-1 Ghedi 7.40 FASTNET FISH NOVICE HURDLE (CLASS D) £4,000 added 3YO 2m 1f 110yds

7.10 GRAHAME LILES NOVICE CHASE (CLASS D) £5,500 added 2m 4f

COMBOY DREAMS M Templers 10 12... RETNOF M Harryond 10 12

RETNOF M Harryond 10 12

RELIANSS HAR A Swinbank 10 12

RECALL TO MIND M Soviethy 10 12

ANOTHER QUANTER S WOODS 10 7

ROME COORDER M Pro 10 7 ANOTHER QUARTER 5 WOODS 1D 7 _____ C Mande HOME COOKER M Pice 10 7 _____ Life N Wilson -8 declared -SETTING: 9-4 Another Quarter, 5-2 Home Cookin', 4-1 Kernot, 5-1 Con-boy Dreams, 8-1 Northern Palcon, 25-1 Killmasson Town, 33-1 others

8.10 LLES RACING HANDICAP CHASE (CLASS E) £5,000 added 2m 4f 6/P122-1 RHOSSILI BAY (3.1) (C) Mrs M Raveley 8 12 0...

8.40 WEIGHTLIFTER MAIDEN HURDLE (CLASSE) £3,300 added 2m 1f 1,10yds E) 53,300 added 2m if 1.10yds

O BARSH RRI (152] I, Hams 6 11 2 D Gelegier

130-0 FEMARICS BROTHER (155] I, Live 8 11 2 S Peuls V

FRED UP VESION Mr. A Sembers 6 11 2 S Septle 69

4 FLEET CODE (7) M Fige 5 11 2 S Worthsigner

5200 SELVERONIE LAD (130) N Figg 5 11 2 S Wyest

FWOODSHE (3) IR WOODSHES 11 2 S Wyest

FWOODSHE (3) IR WOODSHES 8 11 2 D Bytes

O'THANO PRINCES A Hide 4 10 13 P File

O'O CUSPLET SOY (50) Mas M Miligan 4 10 13 A Thomatos

O'F HIRTCE BELL (512) 8 Woodshee 5 10 11 M Footer

FORBOTTEN EMPRESS (67) S Heldwel 4 10 S A Tolonom

LITTLE REDURNE M HIRTCEN A 106 R Seedit

98 (57) S Kettlewell 4 10 8.... R Jol LITTLE REDWING M Harmond 4 10 6... = 14 declared = ENTING: 11-4 Fleet Cadet, 7-2 Forgotten Empress, 4-1 Sen God, 6-1 Utile Redwing, 8-1 Field Of Vision, 10-1 Ottanio Formers, 18-1 others

صكذا من الاصل

The bulk of the population is still largely ignorant about the stock market and unaware of the benefits to be had from putting money into shares as a long-term investment

s the private investor at a serious disadvantage when it comes to investing in the stock market? The conventional wisdom seems to be that he is. Discriminated against by the tax system, and starved of valuable information and opportunities by the way the City works, this holds that he bas next to no chance of doing as well as the professional institutional investor. While the privatisation programme may have led to a revival in the number of private investors owning shares directly, most still have only one or two shares in their portfolios. So we are still a long way from reversing the long-term decline in wider share ownership in this country. That, in essence, is the conventional argument on where the private shareholder stands. According to Sir Mark Weinberg, chairman of a committee set up by the Stock Exchange to examine whether the private investor is a dying breed, there is some truth in all this. But his committee's report, published last month, predictably got a poor press, with most commentators saying that he bad failed to come up with enough specific recommendations to reverse the trend.

Sir Mark's real offence seems to have heen that he failed to criticise strongly enough the Stock Exchange's new rule allowing companies to exclude private investors from most new issues if they so choose. It was this decision which originally prompted the setting up of the committee. In addition, he said it was largely up to the financial services industry. rather than the Government or the mation, coupled with the growing aware- wider range of choice over how and where there is also much that the City could do of us are able or willing to do so.

JONATHAN DAVIS INVESTMENTS

Stock Exchange, to come up with ways of tempting more private shareholders back into the fold.

Neither conclusion was guaranteed to win any plaudits from a constituency. which prefers decisive-looking actions to well-meant words, and which has long marked the Stock Exchange down, not entirely without justice, as an enfeebled and not very effective organisation. Yet, in my view. Sir Mark is largely right on both counts. In fact. I would go further in saying that the outlook for private shareholding is probably brighter now than it has been for some time - partly because of new technology, and partly because of the recent changes in the financial services industry, which have introduced much more effective competition.

The impact of potentially low-cost PChased systems for communicating inforinvestors, rather than institutions, and this proportion will increase to almost 50 per cent following the merger. The scale of this share-holding, unique among financial institutions in the UK, results

from the decision taken in 1989,

when Abhey converted from a building society to a bank and floated on the Stock Exchange, to

and not to corporate investors.

many others, should be eventually to transform the way that shares are owned and regarded in this country. What we have lacked so far is the emergence of a firm with the courage and resources to do for personal investment what Direct Line has done so successfully in insurance.

The market is certainly there, waiting to be exploited. The committee's research suggested that concern over the fate of the private investor should not be exaggerated. For example:

• Although private investors inevitably hold a much smaller proportion of the quoted stock market now than they did 30 years ago, this is largely the result of the growth in pension funds and life insurance industries over the period. But the number of individual shareholders has risen from 3 million to 9 million, largely as a result of the privatisation programme.

 Although private investors appeared to be net sellers of shares in the 1980s, the strong growth in share prices means that direct share investment still represents a larger proportion of the nation's personal liquid wealth than it did 20 years ago. (Remember also that the average pension fund has some 80 per cent of its assets in the stock market, so the proportion of the nation's total wealth now represented by shares is certainly at record levels).

• With the huge growth in the unit trust and investment trust industries over the last 30 years, investors now have a much ness that financial services can be mar- to invest their money in shares than they keted successfully as consumer items like did hefore. Contrary to popular impression, the proportion of the population which holds shares directly in the UK is also about the same as it is in the United States - and still far ahead of most Continental countries. Despite this evidence, what is not in is still largely ignorant about the stock market and unaware of the benefits to be had from putting money into shares as a long-term investment. Sixty per cent of the value in real terms each year.

Most Britons, the research suggests, are essentially very risk-averse. The big unknown is how far this is due to a genuine horror of risk, and how far to an inadequate understanding of the nature Weinberg committee concludes, reasonas the former. Assessing risk is not one of inherent advantages. National Lottery and the BSE crisis have amply demonstrated as much this year.

Of course there is more that the Govtowards encouraging more savings and removing one of the worst distortions. But to spread awareness of the different ways in which the risks of equity investment can be managed. The underlying challenge is ultimately a commercial one. People will invest more in shares, as with any other good, if they are persuaded that it is in eir interests to do so. What confuses the issue in most of the doubt is that the bulk of the population debate is the distinction between buying individual shares and buying a collective investment such as a unit trust or investment trust. For many investors, a fund managed by someone else is the best way population still do nothing but hold all to invest in the market. It gives them the their spare cash in a huilding society or bank, regardless of whether it is long-term to delegate the management of their to delegate the management of their or short-term savings. This is clearly not money to someone whose full-time job it a rational course of action when at times is. The main problems are how to pick the like the present their money is losing its right fund for their needs, and how to avoid paying too much in charges.

The issue of whether people should pick their own shares and handle their own portfolios is a quite distinct one. I share. with many professional investors, the view that there is no reason why individof the risk involved in buying shares. The ual investors should not produce better results than most so-called professionals. ably I think, that it is as much the latter Private investors of this kind have many our strongest cards as a nation. The . They do not have to pay their own management fees and overheads. They can afford to take a long-term view, and to sit out the market if they wish. And so on. ernment could do on the tax front: abol- But individuals are only likely to be able ishing capital gains tax is the ohvious step to profit from these advantages it they are prepared to put some time and effort into handling their investments - and not all

Big Bang for two building societies

What will N&P's merger with Abbey National mean for customers? Ken Welsby reports

he busy bee has huzzed its last. As the merger of National & Provincial with Ahbey National takes effect tomorrow. the huilding society's familiar logo will disappear from the streets.

Although all N&P hranches and cash machines - are closed to customers until Monday morning, an army of more than 1,200 people is working round the clock to make the merger happen: installing new computer systems and replacing the husy bee with Abbey's familiar red umbrella.

It is the first time a "Big Bang" of this kind has been attempted. The previous big building society merger, of the Leeds and Halifax, involved an overnight change of corporate identity, but consolidation of accounts and systems has been phased over almost a year. When N&P branches closed their doors at 5pm last night, staff their accounts before the comwards, installing new PCs and printers which are being linked to

The early building societies formance. At the time of converthe Ahhey network over the weekend. Meanwhile gangs of contractors are visiting every branch to install new signs: in many cases the new name-boards are already in place. hidden by temporary N&P signs which can quickly be pulled down.

About 100 N&P and 10 Abbey branches have closed, with accounts transferring to another office nearby. No staff are being made redundant as a result of the merger, since both organisations have freezed recruitment since last year's annoucement of the link-up.

The marriage, which involves the transfer of assets worth £13bn. has taken 55 weeks to consummate. But the climas, so far as most N&P customers are con-

Buzzing off: National & Provincial's bee will disappear

corned, is still a few weeks away: Abbey's shares are held by private the payout, worth at least £500 in shares or eash, does not come until the end of the month.

Some long-serving N&P staff and loyal customers are dismayed at the end of the society's independence, and the switch from membership of a mutual to being customers and shareholders of a had two hours in which to halance plc. But they can find some reassurance in the fact that Abbey's offer shares to members only, puter network shut down. Engi-neers started arriving soon after-from the same soil: the 19th cenwere exactly what the name sugclubbed together to raise money Today those shares are worth the wall." for huilding homes of their own. N&P traces his origins back to the Bradford Third Equitable Benefit Building Society, founded in 1864, and incorporates half a dozen other societies dating back to the same period. Abhey National was created in 1944 by the merger of the Ahbey Road and National building soci-cties. Established in 1849, the National's chief object, according to the first prospectus, was to qualify members to vote at elections, which at the time required ownership of freehold land worth 40 shillings a year.

Today about 45 per cent of more than £560, and dividend payments to date have been worth another £100-plus.

Some N&P savers will benefit from hetter interest rates than those currently offered by the society. On Tessa accounts, for example, Abbey offers bigher rates than N&P for amounts over

Those with mortgages over £60,000 will pay a slightly lower rates: while N&P's standard variable rate was 7.04 per cent, Abbey charges 6.99 per cent for mortgages from £60,000 to £99,999 and 6.94 per cent over £100,000.

Abbey's personal loans are cheaper - a full percentage point less than the N&P rate for loans over £5,000. Visa card holders will see their monthly interest rate cut from 1.63 per cent to 1.52 per cent, or 1.38 per cent for halances over £1,000.

The other group to benefit will be N&P customers with Max or Instant Access accounts. In place There's comfort also to be of their existing ATM card they sion, members received 100 free ment in shops as well as to make gests: groups of local people who shares, worth £130 at the time, withdrawals from the "hole in

M&G TOP CORPORATE BOND PEP PERFORMER AFTER 1 YEAR

Following the first anniversary of Corporate Bond PEPs, The Sunday Express shows that M&G has one of the best performance records.

The M&G Corporate Bond PEP gives you a sensible way of achieving a high level of income exempt from all UK personal taxes. The capital value of, and income from, units are not guaranteed.

No initial charge

No withdrawal fee after 5 years

For details return the coupon or telephone (0990) 600 629 or e-mail hb@MandG.reply.Co.UK fo: The M&G Group, Bristol B$38 7ET. Please send me a free copy of the new M&G Handbook including The M&G Corporate Bond PEP and details of M&G's future nvestment opportunities.

NO SALESMAN WILL CALL.

You should contact your independent financial adviser (if you have one) before investing. Tha price of units and the income from them can go down as well as up. Past performance is not necessarily a guide to future performance. The value to you of the tax benefits will depend on your own circumstances. The tax regime of PEP's could change in the future.

INITIALS

GG-CBAETJ

M&G does not offer investment advice or offer any recommendations regarding investments. We only market the packaged products and services of the M&G marketing group.

POSTCODE

ued by M&G Pinancial Services Limited (Regulated by The Personal Investment Authority). M&G Unit Trusts are managed by M&G Securities Limited. (Regulated by IMPIO and The Personal Investment Authority)

Ne never make your name and address available to unconnected organisations. We will accessonally tell you about other products or services offered by ourselves and asociated M&G Companie

Tick the box 🔃 if you would prefer not to receive this

Managing your money for the longer term

The M&G Corporate Bond PEP

FOR YOUR ENDOWMENT. CALL SEC MONEYLINE NOW 0181 207 1666.

SEC will pay you much more money than the ier value. Don't lose out on that extra cash! Phone our friendly helpful staff now.

MORE CASH

Your policy must be at least 8 years old FAX: 0131 207 4950

SECURITISED ENDOWMENT CONTRACTS PLC
SEC House. 49 Theobald Sc. Boretamwood, Herts WD6 4RZ.

PENSIONS DE SIMPI

24 hours a day..... 7 days a week..... Now you can pick up the phone and get pensions information or advice and even set up a plan, quickly and without fuss.

0345 6789 10

SCOTTISH WIDOWS

For your protection, cour call to Scott-h Willows man be recorded, Issued by Scottish Willows Fund and Life Assurance Society, a mutual company. Regulated by the Personal Investment Authority, Information or advice will only be provided on Scottish Wildows products.

Selectors set to sacrifice Russell again

Cricket

DEREK PRINGLE Cricket Correspondent

After a week where English cricket past and present suffered resounding defeats at the hands of Pakistan, familiar alarm bells are beginning to sound. But if lan Botham is considering an appeal - crying foul over his opponent's tactics in the High Court - England's selectors, in a cry for help, are once more set to repeal the specialist wicketkeeper's role and hand the gloves hack to Alec Stewart for next week's Headingley Test.

Of course, both are the kneejerk reactions of unexpected defeat: England's coming after a wicketless last morning at Lord's when a draw looked likely: Botham's on the back of jury. However, given time spent in sensible surroundings each ought to be scotched and neither is worth the ridicule further humiliation would bring.

And yet from the selectors' point of view, the temptation will be overwhelming. Trying to overcome an early sethack in a three-Test series often requires far greater risk-taking and sacrifice and Russell, ever the philosophical team man, has probably already steeled himself against heing dropped.

However, spart from the unfair treatment towards Russell who scored his second Test cenan unexpected verdict from the tury a month ago against India at Lord's - reverting the keeper's role to one of batting allrounder is a futile one. In the 16 Tests where he has kept wicket, Stewart averages just 25 as op-posed to 45.5 he averages when playing solely as a batsman.

As a team England have fared even less well with Stewart behind the stumps, having won just four of the 16 match-their second innings. Vasbert Drakes and Ed Giddins found occasional awkward lift while

Jason Lewry continued to swing

the ball back disconcertingly into the right-handers.

True, the logic of strength-ening the batting against such a penetrative attack may be sound one, hut once the ball starts to swing late and fast, one more middle-order batsman is not going to make a whole lot of difference.

If England really want to combat the mid-innings dangers posed by Waqar and Wasim, they must persuade the Headingle groundsman to produce a soft well-grassed pitch with lush surrounds. Only then will the wearing process crucial to achieving reverse swing be slowed long enough for England's middle-order to play themselves in.

With Graeme Hick having surely played his last Test of the summer, and Mark Ealham batting two places too high, England need to construct a new middle-order. Few already in the side will be volunteering and should Nasser Hussain prove his fitness, even he will not be guaranteed of slotting straight back into the No 3 spot, which Alec Stewart filled so gal-lantly at Lord's. Instead, if fit, Hussain may be asked to bat at five, with either John Crawley Matthew Maynard being strongly considered to bat at six.

Chris Lewis, hadly missed last

Fitness doubts also surround week. At Lord's, England's bowling struggled to push Pakistan on to the back foot and even if Lewis comes through unscathed, the respective cases for Darren Gough, Andy Caddick and Dean Headley are all likely to get an airing.

If they do, Simon Brown is likely to be dropped, and therefore destined to join the in-creasingly less clite band of England's one-cap wonders. Picked to swing the ball con-ventionally, which he did not do (the Reader balls used tend not to swing when new), he struggled generally, bowling too

It is a problem that once kept off has been to cut down on the

There is a rumour that each of England's selectors are turn ing up in Leicester tonight, with their selections already written down without prior collusion. As ever, it will be interesting whose views prevail. LE SQUAD: Amerion, Knight, Hussain Stewart, Crewley, Eatham, Russell, Sussex's leg-spinner Ian Salisbury from having an extended run in the England side. But if he has reclaimed his place by cutting down on his profligacy, the tradeamount of spin, a dangerous thing even if you are a spinner who can bat as Salisbury can.

> Brian Smith "We are in the early stages of creating a dynasty here at Bradord," said the club's chairman, . Chris Caisley, "and we are keen to continue the forward momentum commenced by Brian

Bulls ask4

Elliott to start 'a dynasty'

The Bradford Bulls have opted for continuity by promoting their assistant coach, Matthew

Elliott, to replace the departing

Rugby League

DAVE HADFIELD

Smith. Bliott, aged 32, played for Easts and St George in Sydney before becoming Smith's assistant at both St George and Bradford. "It's a tremendous honour to be given the responsibility of continuing to huild on the success of the last 12 months," he said.

Martin Offiah finally completed his joint move to the London Broncos and Bedford yesterday. He will make his Broncos debut against Warrington tomorrow.

A combined fee of something ess than £300,000 has given the two clubs equal stakes in Offiah, who will play year-round, with what the London chair. man, Barry Maranta, called "give and take" during the overlap between the seasons. Offiah has signed for three years with the Broncos and four with Bedford.

The League's chief executive. Maurice Lindsay, who was Wigan's chairman when they signed Offiah from Widnes for a world record £440,000 in 1992, called the deal "a major turning point in the game".

Wigan's disgruntled captain. Shaun Edwards, is Keighley Cougars' first choice to replace the Great Britain coach, Phil Larder, whose contract is not being renewed.

The Cougars have talked to Edwards about the possibility of him becoming player-coach at the First Division club. But the Wigan chairman, Jack Robinson, said: "He is a contracted Wigan player and we expect him to carry on playing for us."

Line leads England's challenge

Wendy Line carries the hopes of the hosts as England hope to make home advantage tell when they host the eighth Women's World Championships that begin in Leamington Spa today.

Scotland hosted the last championships at Ayr four years ago and picked up gold medals in the triples, fours and team event in a championships notable for England's lack of success, with the best that they could muster being bronze medals in the singles, triples and fours.

The opening week of the 15day championships is dominated by the pairs and triples, followed by the singles and

Line, from Southampton, plays in the singles in the second week two but begins the championships in the triples skippered by Mary Price from Burnham, Buckinghamshire, with Jean Baker from the Blackwell at second.

England open their campaign this afternoon when they take on Kenya, and face the Canadians in the evening. The defending champions Scotland are represented by Margaret Letham (Burnbank, Hamilton), Betty Forsyth (Blan-tyre) and Sarah Gourlay (Anbank). They open against Guernsey and then take on the United States.

In the pairs, England's hopes rest with Gill Fitzgerald, from Kettering Lodge, and Norma Shaw, the former world singles champion from Norton. The England pair take on Jersey, the liver medallists from 1992, in their opening match and then line up against Western Samoa.

Defending pairs champions Phillis Nolan and Margaret Johnston from Ireland meet Swaziland in their opener and then continue their hid for a record third successive title when they meet Norfolk Island.

Sussex facing a troublesome task

HENRY BLOFELD

reports from Eastbourne Yorkshire 345 & 133 Sussex 253 & 7-0

The second day at the Saffrons provided good entertainment. first for the large contingent of Yorkshire exiles who have gathcred for this match and then later for the followers of Sussex.

who also had plenty to enjoy. After a century by Bill Athey, a Yorkshire exile himself,

DAVID LLEWELLYN

Kent 459-9 dec

reports from Canterbury

Worcestershire 213-3

It was activity in the nets that caught the eye yesterday. The action in the middle was generally slow - with the exception of Matthew Walker and David

Fulton's quickfire opening stand

- when Kent began the long

The Pavilion Annexe at the St

Lawrence Ground has netting draped across the ceiling specifically to keep out the profusion of pigeons in the park. Unfortunately for the county's administrators, a pair of lovelorn

hirds decided to make their nest carefully working their way over the undulating material to a comer near the Kent scorer, only

Eventually the hen hird gave up and during the long, slow afternoon when peace reigned, she laid a solitary, white egg. Out in the middle, Walker and Fulton laid into the Worcestershire attack, flaving it for 51

in fewer than eight overs before

Stuart Lampitt's first hall

nipped hack, kept low and rapped Fulton on the pads.

ending a 20-ball effort which in-eluded a six and four fours.

Britannic Assurance

to see every twig fall through.

Spectators were treated to a comical display of the hirds haul after the imposing Worcestershire first-innings total.

Sussex lost their last five wickets in 13 halls, giving Yorkshire a first innings lead of 92. Six of the Sussex wickets fell to Peter Hartley for 67 runs - and this after his joyously rumpaging in-nings of 89 on the first day. At the age of 36, Hartley is having a wonderful season and he is one of those happily uncomplicated players who tries his

The importance of Yorkshire's lead became increas-ingly apparent as they began

Walker, who appears to be as wide as he is tall, is a deceptively nippy runner, hut his speed be-tween the wickets was tested thoroughly by Trevor Ward though, who called him for a risky third run and the rotund

Walker ended up sliding to safe-ty on his stomach. It was his first first-class game of the summer and he produced some beautifully timed shots on his way to a fluent 57 - his highest score for almost two years - punctuated with eight sizzling boundaries.

The acting Kent captain Carl Hooper followed Walker out to the middle and proceeded to punish anything and everything that was remotely off line or of inviting length, as he thumped

a half-century off 61 balls in the gloomy evening and brought a dwindling crowd to life with two hig sixes over long off and into

Earlier Worcestershire's seventh-wicket pair of Lampitt and Steven Rhodes had strolled along in the sunshine as they compiled 159 with both batsmen reaching their half-centuries.

The Kent attack had been handicapped by the loss of Mark Ealham, who was forced off during the morning session for treatment to bruised ribs on his left side - an injury picked up in the first Test against Pakistan - which hampered his bowling action. The verdict on Ealham's injury later in the day was that it was not serious.

one of the marquees.

Walker and Fulton

raise the tempo

In no time at all Yorkshire were 29 for 3, and batting was suddenly more difficult than it had been. The innings now cen-tered round a most determined heart out and so obviously enhalf-century from their captain, David Byas, and Sussex are gojoys everything he does. iog to find it extremely hard

> 219 to win. Sussex's week at the Saffrons is a delightful occasion, especially when the sun shines, as it has done for most of the two days. In the middle of Eastbourne, with enough trees to give a country flavour and a distant glimpse of the wooded slopes of the South Downs thrown in, it is one of first-class work to score even as many as cricket's more homely stages. The character of county cricket badly needs these outgrounds to be saved from the general rush for centralisation. There was a crowd of 2,500, which may not sound much, but it filled the limited accommodation and, along with a good number of hospitality tents, helped produce a wonderful at-

The first part of the day centered around Athey, who in a pleasantly perverse way loves making runs against his old county. They take him longer than they used to do, but his concentration is as tight as ever and his rather studious cover drives are still timed pretty well.

After some good strokes from Alan Wells at the start, he followed a wide one from Hartley and was caught behind. Neither Keith Greenfield nor Martin Speight lasted long, but at 242 for 5, when Athey turned Hartley for two to square leg for his 53rd hundred, Sussex seemed reasonably well placed.

Thirteen balls later the innings was over. Three halls after reaching his hundred. Athey played across the line in trying to turn Hartley to leg and was lbw. Then, in a rush, Peter Moores and Ian Salisbury perished in the same over from Craig White, while Hartley accounted for Danny Law and Giddins in the next.

Gooch breaks new ground for Essex

ROUND-UP

Graham Gooch broke vet another record and Paul Grayson hit a career-best 140 as Essex dominated Middlesex in the County Championship at Lord's yesterday. Essex finished on 385 for 5, 121 ahead

Gooch's typically belligerent 92, containing 13 fours and two sixes, made him Essex's alltime leading run-scorer. He surpassed the 29,434 of Keith Fletcher, now the county's cricket consultant. Nasser Hussain also confirmed his recoverv from a cracked finger in time for next week's Test.

Steve James led a rousing Glamorgan response to Nottinghamshire's first-innings of 371 at Worksop. James struck his third century of the season and became the first Glamorgan batsman to pass 1.000 firstclass runs for the summer as his side reached a highly promising

Curran makes impact MICHAEL AUSTIN

reports from Leicester Leicestershire 422 Northamptonshire 301-4

True to character, Kevin Curran met a crisis with a bold hat, making his 22pd first-class hundred to frustrate Leicestershire, the joint Championship leaders, yesterday.

At 114 for 4, Northamptonshire were sorely threatened with following on, hut Curran and Tony Penherthy averted it by sharing an unbroken part-nership of 187.

Zimbabweans are noted for a forthright hatting approach - as Leicestershire knew after Brian Davison's past flamboyance for them. Curran tonk a few risks, Penberthy fol-lowed his doctrines, and Leicestershire were doomed to frustration as chances flew just out of reach, and Paul Nixon missed an easy stumping chance presented by Penherthy, on 33.

Moderate bowling com-pounded Leicestershire's difficulties. Alan Mullally, watched by the England chairman, Ray Illingworth, was way-ward and wicketless, his first 19 overs costing 59 runs.
Three howling changes yielded first-over wickets for Vince Wells, Matthew Brimson and Phil Simmons - hut Leicestershire missed the injured David Millns in a match of multiple absentees.

Northamptonshire needed Curran's unheaten century. with 16 fours from 149 halfs, after Alan Fordham, the acting captain, and potential major innings player was dismissed by Brimson's arm ball. Mal Loye edged a low catch to Nixon and David Capel was caught at first slip from Simmons' third delivery. Mulially fired a few rockets at Curran late in the day hut, for Leicestershire, it was damage limitation on a pitch showing signs of turo. Adrian Pierson induced enough to prompt Penberthy,

Northamptonshire still face the prospect of hatting last, hardly a happy prospect given the ground's track record this ship of the match.

summer. In the previous game, Sussex, in search of 213 to win, lost hy 58 runs, providing Leicestershire with their fourth consecutive championship victory. Another had already looked on the way when Leicestershire on 49, to edge a sharp but fumbled catch to Simmons, as fortune favoured the brave in the most substantial partner-headed beyond 400, courtesv of Mulially, who struck four re-markable and consecutive boundaries of Curtly Amhrose. Wells had departed in the morning's third over, chipping a slower ball from Capel to mid-on. His innings of 204 included 30 fours and a six, from 303 balls. To win this game, Leicestershire need a swift breakthrough today to reach the soft underbelly of Northamptonshire's lowerorder batting.

231 for 2 by the close. CRICKET SCOREBOARD

County Championship Second din of four, 11.0 today Derbyshire v Gloucestershire DERBY: Gloucestershire (5pts), with four second-invings wickets standing, are 38 runs ahead of Derbyshire (7). Gloucestershire won less GLOUCESTERSHIRE - First limings 217 (M G N Windows 76: P A / Defrectis 5-72). DERBYSHIRE - First Innings SMORRES 20-11-1: DANS 10-2-28-0
GLOUCESTERSHIRE - Second Innings
N J Trancr b Malcolni
M G N Windows c Anklein h Cork
H C Hanch c Defreits b Cork
M A Linch c Defreits b Cork
M A Linch c Defreits b Cork M tV Alleyne not out

Symonus c Jones D Cork

P Dynas c Rollins b Cork

Lenes not out Kent v Worcestershire

WORCESTERSHIRE - First Innings (Accought: 311 for G)

(S. I Rhades e Liong & Flemony ....... S. R. Lampin e Hooper & Headles ..... R. K. Itaniyanth & Flemony ......

· 🏖

Fail (cont): 7-443, 8-459, 9-450, Did not bet: 8 Stemar. Score at 120 overs: 375 for 6. Bowling: McCague 27:3-93-1. Headle: 35 1-3-139 2 Earner 23-10-39-2, Ferning: 18-2-53-2: Para: 29-9-82-1 Hooper 6-1-28-0, KENT - Earle territory. | Itomy 1-0-8-0 | RENT - First Incomes | 28 | RENT - First Incomes | 28 | M | Fusion Res 2 | Lamper | 28 | M | Fusion Res 2 | Lamper | 28 | M | Fusion Res 2 | Lamper | 28 | M | Fusion Res 2 | Lamper | 28 | M | Leicesterskire v Northants LEICESTER: Northamptonshire (7pts), with six first-innings wickets standing, are 121 runs behind Laicestershire (5). Northumptenshire wan loss LEICESTERSHIRE – First linnings Civernighe 36d for 71
V I Viens c Foodman b Cape
A R N Person c Perbetth, b Snape
A D Mullally c Loye B Curran
M T Binnson not cut
Extras 101, 1014, w1, nb-11 Total (122.1 overs) 422
Fall (cont): 6-371. 9-408.
Score at 120 overs: 410 for 9.
Bowling Anthrose 22-6-59-1: 7syor 15-1-6-0: Curran 16-2-75-3. Capel 16-3-58-1. Embare: 21-5-58-1: Penbergh 14-3-33-0; Walfron 30-16-0: Stage 12.1-0-2-4. 3-0-16-07, Stope 12:1-0-2-4, MORTHAMPTONSHIPE - Fleet Insings
"A Fordham b Brinson 9
M B Love e Nam b Weils 4
T C Worlton a Nam b Smirnons 51
O J Capel o Parsons b Smirnons 29
h M Curran not out 120
h 1 Perspectiv not out 79
Extrass (89, 166, 82, no2 19
Total (for 4, 89 overs) 301 Patt 1-7, 2-32, 3-85, 3-11-4.
To bat 1 N Snape, 15 Embursy, 13 Ripley, 1
Playtor, C EL Ambrose,
Bowling: Multally, 22-4-7-2-0, Parsons
11-3-3-70 Webs 6-1-22-1; Breson 15-4-45-1;
Simmons, 12-2-39-2; Person, 22-3-65-0;
Macmutan, 10-5-0,
Umptress: 6 Julian and 1 0 Bond.

Middlesex v Essex LORD's: Essex (8pts), with five first wickets standing, are 121 runs a Middlesex (4). MIDDLESEX - First Innin h P Brown 64no, J C Pool A P Cowan 4-761 A P Count 4-761

ESSEM- First Instings
Overrught: 32 for 01

G A Cooch o Brown o Weekes
A P Grayson o Brown to Fraser
N Hussian o Hewart to Tutnett
S G Lave o sub to Fraser
"P J Prichard not out
R J Rollins not out
R J Rollins not out
R J Rollins not out Such, Bewing: Fraser 34-6-98-3; Johnson 17-1-84-0; Hewit 17-3-101-0; Tulnel 36-20-51-1; Weeks 8-0-34-1. Umpires: B Leadbeater and B J Meyer. A A Misseaffe c Meynard b Nendrick 128 M N Bowen c Croft b Welden 122 N P Evans c Croft b Welden 155 F 1 Bates c Croft b Kendinsh 15 F 1 Bates (1955 pt. 1 c) 13 F 1 A Afford not out 15 F 1 A Afford not out 15 F 1 A Afford not out 15 F 1 A Afford 120 c were) 3 F 1 A Afford 120 c were 15 F 1 A Afford 120 c were 15 F 1 A Afford 120 c were 15 F 1 A A B 15 F 1 A F 1

nerset v Hampshire AUNTON: Hampshire (3pts), with five second-ingings standing, are 279 runs behind Somerset (8). lampshire won toss SOMERSET - First Innings Total (13.3 overs) Fell (cont): 7.468, 8-91, 9-54.
Score at 120 overs; 194 for 8.
Boviling: Bovili 32.3-5-140.4:
27-1-127-1; James 23-2-101-1: State 23-2-97-2; Udal 23-6-63-1: Laney 23-247-2; Udal 23-6-63-1; Laney 2
MAMPSHIRE: First lumings

"J P Stephenson c Turner b Caddick
15 Laney Ibw b Gaddick
K O James c Harden b Lee
R A Smith b Rose
W P Terry Ibw b Caddick
M Keech b Caddick
W S Kendall c Trescothes b Caddick
W S Kendall c Trescothes b Caddick
A N Avmes not out W S Rendall c Trescotinos b Caddeds. 5
1A N Aymes not out 24
S O Utail the b Rose 6
S Utail the b Rose 7
J N B Bowll c Parsons b Barty 17
Extras (10.12 vt. rb4) 1.7
Potras (10.12 vt. rb4) 1.7
Potras (10.12 vt. rb4) 1.69
Fall: 1-6, 2-43, 3-60, 4-86, 5-90, 6-103, 7-104, 8-107, 9-125, Bowling Cadded 14-1-46-5; Lee 3-2-36-1; Rose 13-3-49-3; Barty 3-4-0-16-1, HAMPSHIRE - Second Indings 1P Stephenson c sub b Parsons 21
J S Lany c Tumer b Cadded 32
K D Jernes not out 19
R A Smith c Rose b Batty 3 Potential (for 5, 37 overs)

Total (for 5, 37 overs)

Falls 1-35, 2-85, 3-88, 4-95, 5-96, Bowling: Caddict 12-8-13-1; Lee 2

Parsons 5-2-16-Rose 9-3-21-0; Parsons 5-2-16-1; Batty 9-2-27-2. ires: A A Jones and M J Kitchen. Sussex v Yorkshire EASTBOURNE: Suspex (6pts), second-lamings wickets standing

TR J Belley Law 0 Goldens 20 Gough 6 Gridens 5. F. J Hartley c Half b Draies 4. C E W Shlewmood b Goldens 10. R O Stemp b Goldens 10. Extrass (h3, h04) 7. Total (14-3 oversi) 13.8 Fail: 1-12. 2-22, 3-29, 4-68, 5-78, 6-98, 7-104, 8-111, 9-115. Bowling: Lewy 11-3-28-1; Draies 14-1-36-3; Glodens 16-3-4-47-6; Law 5-1-19-0. SUSSEV. Second Intelliges C W J Alhey not Out 6. W Half not out 0. Extrass (b1) 1 Extras (n).
Total (for 0, 4 overs).
To bat: "A P Wels, K Greenfield, M I Spegin. O R Law, 1P Moores. 10 K Salisbury V C Drukes, J II Lewry, E S H Giddins.
Bowling: Hertley 2-1-2-0; Gough 2-1-4-0.
Umpires: V A Holder and T E Jesty. Tour match Second day of four; 11.0 today Surrey v South Africa A

Pungle. Bouling: Patterson 5-2-16-1; Lewis 4-0-26-1; Under-19 Test Second day of four; 11.0 today England v New Zealand (Overnight: 203 for 6)
D J Sales c and b Vettori tres (54, 153, n52)

Pall (cout): 7-217, 8-224, 9-226. Bowling: Sewell 15.5-4-33-1; Yorlch 4-0-25-0; Cums 12-2-39-0; Vettor 30-11-75-3; McMallen 8-2-14-1; Morlend 33-11-70-3. South Africa A - First Innings 379 (D N Crookes 70, N Boje 58no, H H Globs 58, J Communs 55; M W Patterson 6-801. NEW ZEALAND - First limings M O Bell c Roberts b Batty ...... M O J Walter c Nash b Holloake N R Parlane run out "C O McMillen low b Cosker J O P Oram c Swenn b Coske tG J Hopkins c and b Cosker II G Sewell not out .......... R W Nowell not out 28
S G Menlock C Globs b Golder 0
W Patterson law b Pringle 4 Extras 189, 7010. w1, no1.4) 34
Total (92.4 cwers) 288
Falt: 1-28, 2-47, 3-144, 4-173, 5-173,
6-205, 7-265, 8-269, 9-285.
Bowlling: Pringle 31, 4-8-92-3; Gilder 22-7-48-2; Klusener 21-3-63-3; Boje 10-0-40-0; Crockes 8-4-24-0.
SOUTH AFFRICA A - Second lanings S G Koerng c Brown b Laws 18
F J Leabenberg b Patterson 1
H H Gabbs not out 10
H D Ackermen not out 33
Extras 30 as (b10, lb9, nb2) ... Falt: 1-39, 2-53, 3-82, 4-106, 5-210, 6-219, 7-222.
To but: 0 L Vetton, N O Monand.
Bowling: Campbell 7-0-27-0; Holhoelet
13-4-25-2: Cosker 30-6-70-3; Ormand
8-4-18-0; Batty 24-9-85-1.
Unspires: R Paizzer and 0 R Shepherd.
BAIN HOGG TROPPTY (one day): Bristol
Gloucesterstree 247 for 9 (C G Taylor 51).
Wortestershree 250 for 1 (M J Cruzof 113no DA Leigherdale 103no). Worcestershike wor Starting today Tetley's Challenge Series
Three days, includes play tomorous, 11.0 CHESTER-LE-STREET: Durham v Pakistan. Tomorrow AXA Equity & Law League One day, 2.0 unioss stated DERBY: Derbyshire v Glouce CANTERBURY: Kent v Worces LEICESTER: Leicestarstike v Nor gan, TAUNTON: Somerset v Hempshire. EASTBOURNE: Sussex v Yorkshire. MINOR COUNTIES CHAMPIONSHIP MEMOR COUNTIES CHAMPIONSHIP (two days, 11.0): Chester Boughton Hall Cheshre v Weles, Cumborne: Comusil v Whi-shre. Exmouth: Devon v Stropshire. Dean Park, Bournemouth: Dorset v Oxfordshire.

3.20 inton poi: M victor i sali zain. Sec. ر بنا الما الماسي.

Chin:

Ex.

250 50

 $\sim$

b. - ...

212. - .

Se Salar A Park

UNES Mematicipal Jour Line In Al Countie.

Months Register

ibij byj English. حكدًا من الأعل

Morceli worried by Moroccan

Like Michael Johnson and Haile Gehrselassie, Noureddine Morceli has come to these Games as a pre-eminent talent seeking to confirm his status with a guld medal.

The 26-year-old Algerian's domination of middle-distance running in the last four years is reflected in a prodigious set of statistics. He is the world record holder at 1,000m (4min 47.88ec), 1,500m (3:27.37), 200m (7:25.11) and the mile 344.39; world indoor recordholder at 1,000m (2:15.26) and 1,500m (3:24.16) 1,500m (3:34.16).

dier

a 111.

AMI: and

Title:

THE

ate:

, 5010

مطرط

-1112

(Blo

ÀDUI.

ance.

ed at eted.

pm yeets in the allan

A (11.1-

Witney.

cadiot

red to alric.

ad her

. there

List (ci)

ight to धार लवा

1771 intra A 122 4 15

at they

e watte

B uhm

10110

Fot !!

A ...

Part

Carrier

MES 13 TV

中不會

IN THIS PL

Mark Comment

. .

William !

When this phenomenon visited London two years ago to join in the celebrations marking the 40th anniversary of the first four-minute mile, he informed a group of former mile world record holders including Roger Bannister, Herb Elliott and Peter Snell that it was his intention to hold every world record from 800 to 10,000 metres. It was a mark of his status that that ambition was widely re-garded as being possible. Mor-celi has, after all, run the 800m in 1min 44.79sec and the 5,000m in 13min 03.85sec.

Since August 1992, Morceli has only lost one race, and that was at 800 metres. Since then, has twice retained his world 1500m title. But the Olympics present him with the one challenge he has yet to overcome.

Four years ago in Barcelona, having lost 45 days of training during his preparations due to a hip injury, he was only able to finish seventh in the 1,500m final after running a poor tacti-cal race. The home runner Fermin Cacho seized the opportunity to delight a crowd that included King Juan Carlos with an unexpected victory.

Mike Rowbottom on the background to an Algerian legend's quest for Olympic glory - and the man standing in his way form later in that season, wiping away Said Aouita's long-standing 1,500m record in Riefi. The frustration of Barcelona, however, has remained with him. Now, as he returns to the Olympic arena with something to prove, someone is waiting for

At 21, Hicham El Guerrouj has overtaken the Burundi runner Venuste Niyongabo as the man most likely to end Morceli's domination. When both men take to the track in today's 1,500m final, Morceli is likely to

The two running men have not met this season echoes of Seb Coe and

Steve Ovett

face his most difficult challenge in years. El Guerrouj, who was born in the Moroccan town of Aittaghi, is following in the steps of his great fellow countryman Said Aouita, who held records at 1,500m, the mile and 5,000m in the 1980s, taking the Olympic Angeles in 1984. Both El Guerrouj and Salab Hissou, who has an outstanding chance of winning the 5,000m title today following the with-title at the latter event in Los

Morceli recovered his true drawal of the world record holder Gebrselassie, are trained at Ifrane, 1,600m above sea level, by the man who coached Aouita in the early part of his career, Aziz Daouda. Daouda rates El Guerrouj as an even better prospect than Acuita. "Said was a very early star and there was no one like him," Daouda said. "He was under pressure from the public and media. El Guerrouj is growing up quietly but is maturing

"We have used Morceli as a target and inspiration in training. Of course we will have to wait and see what happens at the Olympics, but I believe El Guerroul can beat him."

That confidence is underpinned by the evidence of this year's world rankings, where El Guerrouj's time of 3min 29.59sec is marginally below Morceli's best of 3:29.50. The two running men have not met this season - echoes of Seh Coe and Steve Ovett - and Daouda believes the dodging has been done by the Algerian.

Morceli, he maintains, has avoided racing because he did not want El Guerrouj to "punc-ture his aura of invincibility". When Aonita won the 5,000m gold in Los Angeles in 1984, King Hassan marked his achievement by renaming the Rabat-Casahlanca train in his

If things go according to plan for Aouita's successor today, Moroccans could soon he travelling on the El Guerrouj

Noureddine Morceli is chasing his first Olympic gold today Photograph; David Ashdown

Bromantan is Russians' 'rocket fuel'

Banned performance-enhancing drugs are becoming more sophisticated. Pat Butcher examines their history

New Olympics, new drug! The race between the dope takers and the dope testers continues apace. Seoul was stanozolol, Barcelona was clenhuterol. Atlanta it seems is bromantan. The progression is impressive. Stanozolol was, if not the dark ages of drug-taking, then a fair-ly humble anabolic steroid.

Clenbuterol was rather more sophisticated, in that it was used a masking agent for other "hard-er" drugs. Bromantan has been described here by the Olympic authorities as a "designer" drug. Bromantan, which combines the properties of steroid, stimulant and masking agent - ef-fectively the Grand Slam in doping terms - was developed by the Russian national institutes for pharmacology, and has al-legedly been used by the Russian army and by astronauts. It is also serving as "rocket fucl" for Russian and other East European competitors here. The Russians take full responsibility for the drug, hut claim that since it is not on the International Olympic Committee banned lists, then no action should be taken against those competitors here who have tested positive for it. The IOC do not agree, What started as a trickle in the swimming pool threatens to turn into a flood. First, breaststroker Andrei Korneyev was stripped of his bronze medal over it. Then backstroker, Nina Zhuvaniskya tested positive followed quickly by the Greco-Roman wrestler, Zafar Guleyev, who also forfeited his bronze medal. The Lithuanian cyclist Rita Razmaîte was suspended, along with a Russian coach and a Belarussian doctor, and finally (thus far) a fourth Russian, Marina Trandekova, who finished fifth in the women's 100 metres, was disqualified. The Russians are appealing over all these and have taken their case to the new Court of Sports Arbitration, which is sitting in special session here.

into the ball and chuckle. Javeliu: Replace all imple-The Russian team chief. Anatoly Kolesov, insists that the ments with rubber facsimilies IOC's medical commission has and save the earth from being been notified of the drug, "We sent them a description of the Sailing: Re-use material from car-boot sails only. drug two years ago. We didn't Swimming: Shades of elitism get a reply, so we assumed it was safe. It is intended to protect the body's immune system." But Dr Patrick Schamasch, the far as I know, we received no in-that the list of banned substances only contains examples. The key word is "related compounds" Doctors know what that means".

Kolesov implied that this stance would result in more Russians heing disqualified. Since the Russians claimed that they screened all their competi-tors before coming to Atlanta, that certainly suggests a belief that the drug was safe. But a warning letter from the International Amateur Athletic Federation to the IOC, which has been passed to The Independent puts a different gloss on the matter. Dated June 13, 1996, the letter provides a potted history of appearances of the drug in urine samples, dating back to the World Cup cross-country skiing in 1994, when there was one case. Further cases, almost always involving ex-Soviet competitors, in sports as diverse as swimming, figure skating and Nordic Games are given for the intervening period, from laboratories as far afield as Montreal, Lausanne,

sier

not mit the af-ni :

the

DID)

aid

≘аг

ing

.nd

ar-

#te

ius he

Tokyo, and Huddinge in Sweden. The gist of the LAAF letter is that bromantan has been specifically developed not only to combine the properties of steroid and stimulant, hut also to confound any testing system.

Indeed, Prince Alexandre de Merode, president of the IOC medical commission admitted af-ter the first positive test that he was not sure that his lab would be able to detect hromantan. But a comparison between models from the Montreal lab and the Atlanta samples had enabled them to do so. "We hope to bring in full proof testing procedures very shortly," he said.

What the affair underlines

however, is that this is a race which no one can win. Drug-taking in sports did not begin with Ben Johnson, and it will not end in Atlanta. It has existed since the Ancient Olympic Games, although it was not recognised voured by the wrestlers and boxers were rich in testosterone. But the distance runners and walkers of a century ago knowingly took strychnine. This century has heen awash with performance-enhancing substances in sport. And they getting increasingly sophisticated. It now seems to be so firmly embedded in the psyche of competitors (and some administrators), and IOC medical director, said: "As the line between medical backup and dope-taking is so fine, that formation on that issue. But it has all become an integral part

China revels in fiasco

TERESA POOLE

reports from Peking

China, which still hiames the United States for thwarting Peking's attempts to host the 2000 Olympics and which was lambasted for its handling of the World Women's Conference a vear ago, has taken the opportunity for some hard-hitting reporting of the mishaps and tragedies of Atlanta.

In the official English-language China Daily this week, a signed commentary wrote: "While condemning the [bombingl and lamenting the tragedy, the US should make a thorough self-criticism over their entire organisation work for the Gamcs. It is a pity that one of the world's most advanced nations cannot take preventative measures against terror under its nose. Yet it continues to act as

Horton poised for victory

Tommy Horton is poised for his third seniors win of the season after compiling a 69 for a two-under-par 140 and a one-shot lead in the second round of the Lawrence Batley Seniors at Fixby, Huddersfield, yesterday.

The Royal Jersey profes-sional, who leads the European Seniors Tour rankings with a record £67,000 in prize money, is one shot ahead of the American Chick Evans (66)

and the South African Tienie

THE INDEPENDENT

CRICKET

Viores: ,0891 525 386 Yorkshire: 0891 525 387

Martin charge d'Aphain adve Marte 1236, 126, Landon Elet 902

Britz (71).

the 'world cop', applying sanc-tions everywhere. Isn't this a form of parochial arrogance?"

The article stressed how "complaints over transport and technology problems were heard from different teams". After the bombing, it continued, Atlanta police had blocked the entrance to the media centre and fired tear gas to disperse h porters. "Getting into a muddle." they have forgotten about 'freedom of the press', which the US accepts as infallible law and flaunts to the whole world," it

Nearly three years ago, China's human rights violations and the huge logistical challenge of staging the Olympics were used as arguments against Pe-king's bid. So China is taking some satisfaction in the transportation fiascos and disorganisation of Atlanta. Wang Junxia, the gold-winning distance runner, was quoted as saying the food available in the athletes' village was "disgusting".

However, as China's medal tally has risen, emphasis has shifted away from complaints in favour of celebrating Chinese athletes' "Olympic feats". Before the Olympic squad left for Atlanta, Chinese officials were chances of matching their gold medal successes in Barcelona. With results outdoing expecta-tions, all eyes are on China's relative performance in the medals league. One city centre hotel, a Sino-foreign joint venture, has even put up a giant hlackboard in reception on which all the leading countries' medal results are immediately updated. China has already ruled itself out from hidding for the 2004 Olympics, but it will not surprise anyone here if they pitch for the year 2008.

Golf

Ecological air of success jumping over poor Mr Pommel Horse by rescuing him from that

Steve Spartak

Reclaim the Olympics Games now before it is too late and we cannot get to sleep. Stop this wastage of pure elements like gold, silver and bronze (except in Great Britain's case) and bring back events encompassing natural laws, like...

More drums! More drums! To reclaim the Olympics, we astrophes inflicted upon our planet by Olympian disciplines. Fight the muscle-mad faster, plaster, master and mistress madness with these sports of gentler and environmentally friendly proportions.

Gardeners' Equestrian Time: Ask the questions that really matter, like how high is a hand. Softball: Reclaim hardness.

Rowing: Free the skulls. The Shot: Melt down the weighty burden. Archery: Miss the target with your arrow and save a tree.

pushes for the ozone-friendiy Olympics in a clean, green world

111 Hurdles: That extra one Water polo: Withdraw the mint-fluoridation process now (it causes mint ozone holes). Shnoting: Prevent the air from being shot and injured in the air pistol event.

Boxing: The rope is made from hemp, a natural fibre. Protest by standing in the way of the first punch. Fencing: This denial of rainhler's rights must be pulled Epée: Stop this false femini-sation of the EP world record. Gymnastics: Stop this cruel filled with natural water from the Alps - free of all chemicals (especially chlorine).

Diving: A rung down the prestige ladder, with carbonated spring water filling the pool. every Olympic delegation knows of competition tactics.

as aquanauts compete in pools prone position.

3,000m Sleeplechase: A blood sport - have you ever been pricked by a steeple? Join the James Hunt Saboteurs and save a tyre.

Beach Volleyball: The ecologically vital sandworm is being uous activity. Insert a lead weight punctured.

en from its home by this vac-

SPORTING DIGEST tord 2 Norwich 4; Bray Wanderers 0 St John-stone 3; Consett 1 Cartiste 4; Chelmsford 1 Southend 4; Duskich 0 Stitingbours 3; Ge-nation 0 Notis Courty 3; Hornshurch 1 Cam-bridge Utd 1; Huli 0 Notinghern Fores; 4; Germoran 0 Burnley 4; Lincoln Utd 1 Lincoln City 0; Northwich 4 Manchester Utd 1; St Al-beins 1 Chelsea; 2; Woking 4 Caraffi City 5. Rugby League

B Dwyer (Bratford Bulls), D Moffart (Hull), A Burgese (Safford Reds., J Lowes (Brotford Bulls), Substitutes (from): E Doyle (Dublin B), S Clean (Dublin B), S Wysille (Sathage), E Mandy (Dublin B), M Forster (Wernigton), P Kennady (Belfast benefits)

AUSTRALIAN PREMIERSHIP: Sydney Cay 20 Rugby Union

Aston Villa have been approached by the Weish Rugby Football Union about the possibility of staging three internationals at Villa Park during the 1997-98 season. Villa have been asked if they would be willing to hold two Five National matches plus a friendly international stadium in tional while the national sta

GROLSCH OPEN (Ame

WEEKEND FIXTURE GUIDE

Football

SOUTION STATES
SOUTISH COCA-COLA CUP FIRST ROUND Abbie Rouers v Arbrooth
Albie Rouers v Arbrooth
Albie Rouers v Arbrooth
Brechin City v Montrose
Cityle v Inventoes Caledonien Taistle Countentbooth v Forfar Athletic East Stirtingshire v Allos Counterbooth v Forfar Athletic Stranger v Counterbooth County
Stranger v Counterbooth County
Stranger v Counterbooth Counterboo

SUBSTRIET V GENERAL TOURNAMEN SEMS-FINALS Manchester Utd v Ajax (1.0) Nothingham Forest v Chelson (3.30) (both at City Ground, Nothingham)

(Noth at City Ground, Notingham)
PRE-GEASON FREENDLESS (selected): Abercicen v Eventor. Billenray v Cambridge Unit.
Brigg v Barnsley, Bromegrave v Westell, Cardin'
v Wolves, Carshalpon v Tottenham Xt. Celtor v Scorring Lesbon; Colchester v Blackburz, Erfield
v Bournemouth; Geptshead v Carlste, Gloucesrer v Winshadon; Gravesend v Carlste, Gloucesrer v Winshadon; Gravesend v Carlstor; Harrogate Town v Holl City, Harwich v Petschorough; Hearts v Southampron; Hereford v West
Bommetch Abtoric Hachen v West Ham Xt; Holywell v Chester; Huchnal v Sheffield Wednesdey Xt; Hyde v Bury, Kalmarnock v Motherwell
(2.0); Kongstontan v Fulham; Larrev v Darlington; Leek v Trammer; Leyton Onen v Queen's Park Rangens; Lincoln v Berby, Mangonsfield v Bristol Rovers (E.Ort, Mansteld v Busston (at Southwell; Northerston v Norwer; Namean
v Covernty, Racing Club Waranck v Stoler, Racciffe Borough v Eventon: Rushden v Oxford Unit; Reading v Tottenham; Rushden v Oxford V Stoler, Bristol Rovers (6.0): Mansaeau v seasou i se Soutimedi; Norderpron v Norwich; Numeation v Coventry, Racing Club Wannick v Stole; Rad-ciffe Borough v Eventon X; Rangers v Ansana; Reading v Tottenham; Rushden v Opdord Unit; S Albara v Lutin; Sawersey v Ansana; X; Stock-port v Birmingham; Sawersey v Ansana; X; Stock-port v Birmingham; Sawersey v Ansana; X; Stock-port v Birmingham; Sawersey v Ansana; X; Stock-

v Botton.
PRESS & JOURNAL HIGHLAND LEAGUE; Brone Ranges v Rothes: Cove Ranges v Fort Williams
Deverowale v Lossemouth; Eight v Peremeat;
Hundy v Clachmoutdin; Kern v Forces Meetanics; Nam County v Bustoe Thistle; Wick-

Rugby League STONES SUPER LEAGUE: Shelfield Engles v Wigon (6.30) (at Brumail Lane). Speedway OMITER LEAGUE: An

Other sports BOWLS: Wo en's World Outdoor Champion DARTS: WDC World Matchplay Champs GOLP: English Amateur Championship (Holl-mell): J&B Scottish Amateur Championship (Dunbor).

TOMORROW Football

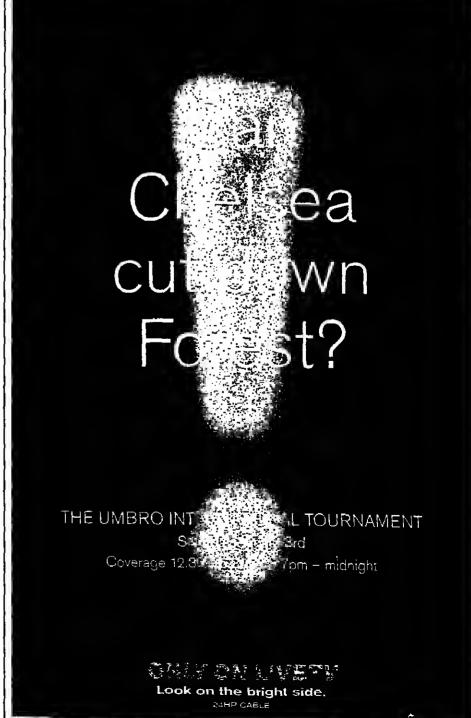

UMBRO INTERNATIONAL TOURNAMENT Third-place play-off (1.0); Final (3.30) (noth at Chy Ground, Nottingham).

PRE-SEASON FREENDLES (selected): Artione v Transere (5.30); Dundals v Liverpool 10 (3.0); From Harps v Derlington (3.0); Galway Work vari-derland (5.0); Peterborough v Leicester (3.1).

STONES SUPER LEAGUE: Haldax v Paris St-German (3.0); Lecda v Bradford (3.0); London v Warmgton (3.0); Wordington v Oldham (6.0). First Olivialian: Davisbury v Safford (3.30); Huddesfield v Featherstone (6.30); Keigniey v Walechald (3.30); Rocindale v Nuk (3.0); Wishes v Bastey (3.0). Second Olivialian Carlisle v Sention (3.0); Donassier v, Humbot (3.0); Leigh v Chorley (3.0); Processor v, Bram-ley (3.0); South Wales v York (6.0) (art Cardiff Arms Paris olib Bround)

Speedway POUR-TEAM CHAMPRONSHIP Sensi-finels: Bractord vipench v Belle Vue v Peterborough; Woherhampton v Poolo v Hall v Addred (first to follow) (2.30) (or Peterborough).

Other sports BOWLS: Women's World Outdoor Chan ship (Learnington Spa).

æn

ophMar de Calif 140 00 100 FR War Con han W. 4 .0 . !

127.74  $\{\gamma,\alpha\} = \{\alpha$ the contract  $_{\rm CMF} \, \lambda \, \, 50^{-3}$ of wind R Part of the Art Section philipping i potenia 1.3 gy visit in the 100

6 st = 2 tet in

LINES International Tour Line  $(\mathfrak{g})(1) \in \mathbb{R}^{n_1}$ 0891 881 485 g ganta e la la 1845 All Counties that of News and Results  $\operatorname{grob}(B^{-1}) \cap \operatorname{Math}$ 0891 525 075 ps for the a contracti Derbyshire 0891 525 370 Durham 0891 525 371 Essex 0891 525 372 Great at a Clamorgan 0891 525 373 Glorics 0891 525 374 Hampshire 0891 525 375 Family of the Kent 0891 525 376 Lancastire 0891 525 377 Leics 0891 525 377 Leics 0891 525 378 Middlesex 0891 525 379 Northants 0891 525 380 Northants 0891 525 380 frm<sup>134</sup> 4E.3 Contract of COL. 0891 525 381 0891 525 382  $\mathbf{R}(V^{1,1,2})$ Q891 525 383 Seisex 0891 525 384 Visionides 50891 525 385 -11 HO DE

Australian Rules

AFL: North Methourne 19.16 (130), Hawthorn 15.9 (99

ExisteD-Bill

AMERICAN LENGUE: Detroit 13 Cultionna E; Minresota 2 Estimore 4; Milwaukee 2 Secrete 9;
Dekland 3 Chicago White Sor 8; Cleveland 3
Tournto E; Manasa City 9 Braton 4; Texas 5 New York, Yaruteas 6;
NATIONAL LEAGUE: New York Mets 9 Pristourgh
13; Cheago Cubs 4 Colorado 1; Philadelphia 2
St. Louis 1 (Jaz gamet; St. Doule 7 Philadelphia
1 (2nd gamet; Sar Dule 8 Phondia 7 (14 kmings).

Booking

The New York Athletic Commission has brought charges against the management of boxers Riddick Bowe and Andrew Golote for their part in a brawfollowing contest at Medison Square Garden last month which it described as "an outrage and a débácle". The authorities have also withheld $1.m (£666,000) of Bowe's $5m purse, and suspended the state licences of the boxers' managers as punishment for the chain-throwing brawl which started after Golote was disqualified in the seventh round. A group of 20 people from the Bowe camp, including his manager, Rock Newman, were seen to join the brawlers.

Cricket
Two players from Sri Lanka's World Cup winning tearn, Sanath Jayasuhya and Aravinda De Silva, will play for a Rest of the World XI against Warwickshire in a benefit match for Dermot Reeve at Edgbaston today. Reeve, who captained Warwickshire to successive County Chempionships in the last two seasons, has been forced to retire because of an artiritic hip. The Rest of the World tearn, which will be captained by the former West Indies skipper Riche Richardson, includes former Warwickshire players Roger Twose and Brian McMillan.

Wannickshire are to send a team to the Warwickshire are to send a team to the Netherlands to play a Dutch President's XI at Deventer on Tuesday.

X at Deventer on Tuesday.

REST OF THE WORLD in Warvickshine at Edgbaston today's 5 Jayanua'na (Sn Larke), J Galbaston today's 5 Jayanua'na (Sn Larke), J Galbaston today's 7 Jayanua'na (Sn Larke),

"R Michardson (Weet Invites 1 Michillant (SA), N Paintrother (Fig. M. Nichobas (s. Hampsimo),

8 Nignaton (SA), D Rehardson (SA), 1 Bishop

(WI), M Haghas (Aus).

Essay have membed a hopefit se their (WI), We regime (Aus).

Essex have awarded a benefit to their youth development officer Alan Lilley in 1997. Likey played 120 matches for the county between 1978 and 1990 and scored a century on his debut against Nottinghamshire at Trent Bridge.

Football West Bromwich Albion have signed the Notic County midfleder Peter Buder for £175,000. Butler, 29, who spent the final six weeks of last season on loan at The Hawthorns, has signed a three-way contract. MAJOR LEAGUE SOCCER: Colorado 2 Los Angeles 3 (short-out), THURSDAY'S LATE RESULTS: Pre-susson triendless Signopore AS NO Newcastle 5 (For-chrand, Kisson 2, Ginold 2); Signop's Stort-dinand, Kisson 2, Ginold 2); Signop's Stort-AUSTRANN SODOS GRAND PROX (Zaltanig) Lend-ing practice times: 1 M Decitar (Aus) Honda one minute 28,430 sectords (sector) sector 173,861 kph; 2 A Challe (Sa) Honda 130,126; 3 L Codalore (III Honda 1:30,157; 4 Tadayu-H Olada (Lepan) Honda 1:30,446; 5 A Pug (Sp) Honda 1:30,491. Motor racing

Colin Morris, a senior referee, has been removed from one of this weekend's Super League games as a disciplinary measure by the Rugby Football League. The Huddersfield official, who twice in the Huddersheld official, who twice in the last fortnight had sent off a player sub-sequently found not guilty by the RPLs Discobindly Committee, is being replaced by the Wigan official, Peter Tabemer, for Sunday's Derwent Perk match be-tween the bottom side Workington Town and Oldham Bears. The Bradford Bulls forwards Bernard Dwyer and James Lowes will make their International debuts in Ireland's against Scotland at Partick Thistie's Fimili

Ground on Tuesday.

Ground on Tuesday.

RELAND (v Scotland, at First, Touada

Foy (Garney), P Comercian (Judin Bu

Child (Mahafridh), C Healan (Hunder Ha

6 Royles Pierrey)

Australian Kame Webb shot a sevenunder-per 65 for a three-shot lead in the Du Maurier Classic, the last of the four majors on the Ladies Professional Association tour. The 21-year-old from Queensland had eight birdies and one togey over the 6.324-yard Edmonton Country Chile course. "The course really suits me," Webb said, "It's not playing that long and three of the par fives are reachable in two". Webb enjoys a three-shot lead over two Americans, Bate Muche and veteran Nancy Lopez, who had four-under 68s with Britain's Laura Devies firing a 71 along with Pam Wright, Carrions Matthew and Caroline
Pierce while Kathnyn Marshall shot 69 to finish four off the pace.

Du MAURIER CLASSIC (Edmonton, Caneto firrish four off the page.

DU MAURIER CLASSIC (Edmonton, Cause-dic Leading first-cound scores: (US unless stated): 65 K Webb (Aus), 66 S Mucha, N Lopez, 69 C Schreyer, M McNerrara, D Dormann, P Hurst, L Neumann (Swe), K Marshall (GB), 70 K Welss, L Kane, C Figs-Currer, R Lones, P Bradley, N Bowlen, A Fruhrwith, W Docien (Aus), M Figures-Dott (Sb), 71 M Redman, P Wingh (GB), 1 Geoties, 9 Pelmer, T Mordyk, E Mein, C Pierce (GB), V Skirner, C Nilsmank (Swe), A Rittman, L Brower, N Harvey (Can), J Carler (Aus), L Dawes (GB), A Sorenstam (Swe), C Matthew (GB).

ENGLISH AMATEUR CHAMPHONSHIP Molitiment, Norther Queres, Nother Queres, Nother Queres-Bredie (Uses) ENGLISH AMATEUR CHAMPIONISHIP (Holliament, Nother): Quamber-fivelet O LUCES (Mortsop) bit R Fulford (The County Club, Johannesburg) 5 and 4; I Richardson (Burghey Park) bit J Pounder (Novel) 3 and 2 S Webster Difetil bit J Little (Moor Park) 2 holes; C Richardson (Burghey Park) bit J Rose (North Hards) at the 22nd, Seesi-fishes: Lucas bit Richardson 4 and 2

Richardson 4 and 2 interior strain of the st

(Strathchyde Pang 2 and 1.
WELSH AMATEUR CHAMPIONSHIP (Ashbursham) Quanter-flexiet; Y Taylor (Brythill) bt. R. L. Bests (Ashbursham) at 19th. R. Peet (Pyle and Kerflig bt. M. Cawar (Copt Heath) 5 and 4, 11 H Park (Bergin Vasky) bt. R. W. Picc Informoulishie) 3 and 2, S Purdle (Hiterham) bt. A. Campbell (Capteon) 4 and 3. Motorcycling

Emerson Fittipald, recovering from a se-rious neck injury after crashing into a well at 230mph during the Marttono 500 in Michlgan last Sunday, said he may never race again. "I had a message from the Lord," the twice Indianepolis 500 champion said after being released from Jackson Memorial Hospital, "It looks like the net series to race again." I'm not going to race again.

James and the Giant Peach (above) Visually arresting adaptation of the hugely inventive son's beautifully observed piece set at a funeral, where three sisters come to terms with the death. Susan Sarandon and Simon Callow, this of their mother and their dystunctional pasts.

social comedy, set at a weekend party. Real- the racy tale of a man who was born on the ity and fantasy clash as the guests indulge in | wrong side of the sheet(s) and now spends his enchanting film evokes excitement, humour and wonder in equal measure.

THEATRE

Filipper Conventional boy-meets dolphin story

The Phoenician Women Kate Mitchell gives a stunning account of Euripides play it centres. which takes few risks but is a sound piece of on the strife between Executes and Polymeters, storytelling and bound to fire the kids' the sons born from the incest of Oedipus and imaginations.

Storytelling and bound to fire the kids' the sons born from the incest of Oedipus and Jocasta. RSC, Barbican, London

La Règle du Jeu Jean Renoir's 1939 classic Tom Jones The Henry Fielding classic comedy. petty rivalries and romantic intrigues. In rep, time romping between the sheets. Theatre Royal York

EXHIBITIONS

pick of the week

EEKS HAR

concs £5.
All Own Levely Claire Dowic & Peta Lity.

Projekt & San, 7. Morn, £7.50, concs £6. Shorting Press Yes Scatteria Owen O'Nelli. Tonight & San, 8.30pm, £6, concs £5. Stand Up Western at Bible Marin Pathley, Gin

London

When English Art was Young Jackyon New works from artists. Under the lage of 38 in promise to shatter the page and to shatter the page of 38 in promise to shatter the page and to the shatter the page of 38 in promise to shatter the page and to the shatter the page of 38 in promise to shatter the page of appealingly daff one line to the page of the page of

Arts and entertainment listings

FILM

THE ADVENTURES OF PC45 (15) Hammer Horror festival. Barbean Cotema 3.45 LES APPRENTIS (15) A French Withmail & about two down-at-head men. MGM Sugar Centre 1.50, 450, 6.30, 8.50 BEAUTIFUL TRING 1151 Exploration of gay sexuality. 4BC Shefterbury 4ve 2,40,5,40, 8,40; Odcon Mexamine 2,40, 445, 6,50, 6,55 80,000 SmPLE 118) Coen brothers thriller.

Renor 1.25, 3.50, ta 15, N.49, Virgin Haymon-ker 1 40, 430, 6.25, 8.45 RUE IN THE FREE (15) Collage of mono-legues and skatches learning Harvey Ken-tel, 3/673/ Swiss Centre 1,20, n.20 THE CARLE GUY (12) Rivious connects star-ring Jim Carrey, Invadere MGM 1220, 231, 445, 7 III, 930; Warner West End 1230,

COPYCAT (18) Thriller starting Segvernes Vener, Harner West End (Dreum, 3.0). 5.40, 8.30, HJJD

OEAD MAII (18) Jun Jamusah's unconven-torial Western starring Johnny Depp. 1 Syst Harmarker 2 15, 5, 03, 805 DEBISE CALLS UP (15) Remainter sage of Exerptione relationships, Review (25, 3.20, 5.15, 7.10, 0.10)

5 15, 7,10,4 (i)
THE DEVIL RIDES OUT [18] Hammer Harrol ledied Rathson Circuit Sat 7,01
ORACULA [18] Hammer Horror lestical,
Carterian Circuit Sat 5 45, 8 on 444
EXECUTIVE DECISION [15] Error limited
starring Kurt Russell, Wanner West Lod
12,4 (i) 2 (i) 600, 5 (ii) 11,55
THE EXPORTEST [13,11 Teach before Teach THE EXORCIST (IN) Linear horny, Inmate 1 16 Mi M. orday FARGO [18] Com brothers thriller about a lockapping that uses to errole wrong, ABC Founds Sc [20, 410, 123, 820; Himser Ben Local Late, 4 for a 40, white FLIPPER (197) Alan Shaptro sculese del-phio teature sarring baid Hogan, Cilour (1997) 1415, 3-15, 5-15, 7-15, 9-10 (207 (1998) 2-1205, 2-10, 4-15, 7-90, 9-00

KINGPIN (12) Bowling hysteria starring Worst: Harrels in, Alle, Paraon Sci. 135, 3-40. 0.05 NASS ( $4 on $4 minutes | 12.51 3.25). LAVRENCE OF ARABIA (PTI | Arid Luan Acres 145 on Harmarket 1.30, to 30

LEAVING LAS VEGAS (15) Stating Physics Page, 186, Threen to 3.55 8.45 Cope. 1Bc, Parties Sci 3.55, 8.45 LEON (18) A butto in takes a 13 year-old garl under los wing in Life Beson's thriller. Hart Her Firl 11.15 MISSION: MPOSSME [197] Bring De

Falma's film for some 4 the earlies TV series sarring T-on Crosses. IRC For Cn Rd 1.45. 420 to 55 0.35 Engine Leb Sp 11.38mm, 200. 430 Taylor 90 1.2md/orgh 1541, Torondom Mr. O. 1206 1.30 2.40 4.10 5.20 to 40.80 10. A MONTH BY THE LANCE (141) Irxing some

SOORLIGHT AND VALERTINO [15] List both Petking stal 18 a middle-class staling George Heat Land (2014) to 24, 9, 10 R. POSTBO (15) Semimental like story. West Sun. Comp. 135, 255, 620, 840. PRINAL FEAR (15) Countries in drama star-ring Richard Serie Plane 2-45, 5-20, 11 (0) RAINBOW | In it list Heating directs the fanor heal of my of the search for the end of the numbers. However III, or First 120, 3301 N THE REALM OF THE SENSES 1151 (adequate - 2) presses of the duerne ARC Promisis (Komeric West) 131, 345, 640, 831 RICHARD III (19) Lin McKellen stars in the updated tersion with an animagatary 1 sees. Unitary Curton Physics (145) 581) 4181.

1.25. S. St. The Mount 1.31 6 30, 5.31 THE ROCK 135 Natural (San Compare Others Inc.) and Campare Others Inc. 2 and Campare Others Inc. 2 and Campare Inc. 2 and Campa

SENSE AND SENSEBLITY (L.) Emilia. Thompson this children Manager 220, 120, 22 SMORE (18) Upon da Nor York drama stare | Dismus. STOLEN FACE : 27 ( Unique Hornor research TRENGS TO DO DI DENVER WHEN YOU'RE

DEAD IT A VISIT SERVER TRUMBLE TO THE SERVE TRUMBLE TRUMBLE TO THE SERVE TRUMBLE TRUMBLE

A TREE TO THE THE PARTY OF THE ACT OF THE TOTAL ACT OF TH THE TIT AND THE MOON (" The idelese TOY STORY (PARAMETER) and an area of the content of TRAINSPOTTING (1) A fortistion of Joyne Mathematical instances of the first particular way from the first particular and the first first first 12.20 (2.20) (2.20

TRE TENTH ABOUT CATS AND BOOS (15) Comody starring Unia Thurman, ABC Tob On RJ 205, 445, 705, 930; Warner West End (210, 23), 505, 720, 930–1150 TWELVE MONREYS [15] Terry Gilbam's time-traveling adventure stars Bruce Williams time-traveling adventure so Varior Rest End 5.50, 8.35

Damer Med End S.51, 8.35 TWISTER 19G1 Read meta-mingion tackle the largest torreado in hit Oldahamra this comury. ABC Tot Cri Rd 1.35, 4.05, b.55, 9.25; Bartican Cinento A.15, 8.46, Joccidiero MGH 12.31, 1.30, 3.00, 4.01, 5.41, 6.35, 8.26, 9.15 (Pero 12.41, 3.00, 6.01, 8.40, 1.70, 8.20, 9.15 (Pero 12.41, 3.00, 6.01, 8.40, 1.70, 8.20, 8.20, 8.20, 8.40, UP CLOSE & PERSONAL | |5| Stars Robert Redford and Michella Pfeiffer, Empire Leic Sq | 2.45, 3.30, 6 | 5, 910 West End Booking Lines

West, End Booking Lines
Numbers Ul71 except where nated, some may leve a booking fee.
ABC Partion St 0181-070 mt21: ABC Precardilly 15 writtently McM+457-3501: ABC
Shaftesbury Ave 0181-970 dt13; ABC Tort
Cn Rd 0181-971 dt13; Barbsan Catema
A20 0001. Emmire Lace Su 0200-99900; 638 8991. Empire Line Sq (1900-190900); Lumiere 836 0691; Metro 437 1757; MGM Swiss Centre 0181-979 (017); Trocadero MGM 0181-979 6015; The Minema 369 MGM 0181-970 0015: The Minema 300 1723: Odeon Harmarket R49 '807; Odeon Lee: Sq 930 3232; Odeon Market Arch 723 301 J; Ddeon Mezzamne 920 3352; Odeon West End 930 7615; Plaza 1990-86090; Remar 837 8802; Virgin Harmarket 0181-970 8016; Warner West End 437 4343.

repertory cinema London EVERTMAN Hallybush Valc NW3 (0171-435 1525)

EVERTHAM Hollybush Vde NW3
(U17)-428 1529
The Flower Of My Secret 1151 Sat 1.20pm,
$10pm, 9pm + Wilmon on the longs of a
$10pm, 9pm + Wilmon on the longs of a
Nen cast Breakdown 1151 3.20pm, 7.20pm
Hustler White 183 Sat 11 15pm No End
183 Stan 12.20pm + 1 Wilmon No End
183 Stan 12.20pm + 1 Wilmon + 2.1071
2.30pm Stranger Than Paradose 115 San 4.50pm + Down by Law 1151 0.50pm +
Mester Trans (155 X.50pm
4.50pm + Down by Law 1151 0.50pm +
Mester White 1183 SanSan 2.30pm, 4.05pm,
2.50pm, 7.25pm, 9.20pm Brit Book 1183
SanSan n. Nipm, 3.20pm
Brit Sauth Bank SGI 10/17/1/28 3232
Sense And Secrebility 11/1/28 3232
Sense And Secrebility 11/1/1/28 3232
Sense And Secrebility 11/1/1/28 3232
Sense And Secrebility 11/1/1/

PRIMER CRARIES Lelector Place WC2 (0171-437 8181)
Sat [18] Sat [1-55par] Broken Arrow [15] Sat [3-55par] Spy [land 1973) Sat (5par)
Hennen's Prasoners [15] Sat 7-55par Toche
Monkeys [15] Sat [16] Spar French Toch
Homeon's Prasoners [15] Sat 7-65par Toche
Monkeys [15] Sat 16, Spar French Toch
(Factor) Maddin [18] Sat 2pt Mighty Aphrechite (15) Sat 4, 15par La Corentonie (Judgement In Stone) (15) Sat no. 15par The Brokeys [15] Sat 8, 5par
Homeoners Resoluted High Stone) FX TOO COMENIA King-Lind High Street EX Jumanji (PG) Sat Harn Twister (PG) Sat 11 Sport, 3-15pon, 6 Hopen, 8-15pon, 11 Hopen, Sun 6 Hopen, 8-45pon Tokyo Shory (U) Sun 1 Jupan + Maharusi (18) Apon

RIVERSIDE Crisp Read We [11]8]-741 225] La Regle Du Jeu (PG) SatSun -pen. 0. 30pers & 45pers

THEATRE West End Choice

Matin et - [1] Sun [3]: Toc. [4]. Wel. [5]. Thu, [c]: Fn. [7]. Sat Prince (c) time profits (c) see Briggers Llow Webler Ayels and museual Pade of Seek's Si Marin's Lane, WCD [017] 806 (12) of Lee Say Mon-Sai 7 45, [417] 301 ends 28 Sep 20025 [40] mate. FREEDS OF DOROTHY Lymest Perceits, Fields and author Dorothy Parker are excludated in a musical reone
Lyes in Process Surfaced (1971–1984)
2331 © Blader Street Van Spra, £12-£10,
Million

Practical Process of the Alexanders of the Control Fatherian

Common Hambooke Eartham Street, WCC

10171-100 17701 ⊕ Lefe Sq. Mon-Sat Stat

[S[7] 400 code 51 Aug. (12-£18-135 name.)

AN INSPECTOR CALLS

Na pient Lidat walch sectamed production of IB Provide Schmiller (associated Chaing Chook & ad. WCZ 10174-24 St. C. C. L. S. Won-Fr. 7-45, Sat. 15, [4] 2.30, [4] 500, Dat 24.50 Hitmus. ROYAL NATIONAL TREATRE:

Obrier: A Little Night Blank Sean Mathias's produc-ian of Sondhelm's mosical mars Judi Deneb and Patricia Hedge, Mon-Sai 7,15pm, mass Wed & Sat 2,01pm, ends 31 Aug. 165 mins. Littelion: Mary Shart Isabelle Happert and Anna

BOYAL SHAKESPEARE COMPANY:

The Barbican:
Sollan Caesar Peter Hall derects Curntopher
Benjamin in Stakespeare's political drama.
Extey 200pm & 7.15pm, in rep until 31 Aug. 135 mins.
The Pie
The Phoenician Women Karie Mitchell derects Europides 'impeles impedy about war brustalay, 'inday 210pm & 7.15pm, 130 mins.
Barbican Theatre: fa-134.50, The Pit;
110-117. Barbican Courre, EC2
[U171-038 8891] & Barbican, Passage

PASSION Michael Ball and Mana Fractions in Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine's sward-winning musical.

Quern's Shafte-bury Avenue, W1 10171-4/4

$5001 @ Picc Circ, Mon-Sai 8,00, [4][7] 3,00,

£1.1.50-£90 1.35 mms. THE TEMPEST THE COMPLEY IN Prospero in Patrick Contain's production of Shahaspeare's fantasy. Open Air Regard's Park, NWI [1917] -486 3431 @ Bolker St. Today 2, 2 Juni & Spin, ends 4 Sep. 87.50-C18.50, 150 mars.

Beyond the West End ALMEDA THEATRE ALMERIA THEATEE Hards is "the Cathedral Romaniza theatee group's production of Elici's drama stars
Marcel times as Berket. The Sat Spin, ends
10 Aug. 25:34:217-30, concer available.
Almenda Street, NI (0171-359 4404)

O Angel.

ORILL BALL ARTS CENTRE

GOVERNEY BROWN James Baldwin A

CONTINUENTAL 1998 IN HART about a passa-caste gay affair adapted for the stage. Foreight

7. Styrm. Ch. Ell. Concer for Chemica Street,
WC 111171-1637 SCR11 O Govalge Street.

GATE THE ATTE returnal cast in an adoptation of Bostocio's 14th century Jales, Men-Sai 7,30pm, emb-17 Aug. EIU cones fei. Penireidee Brad, WI I 10171-22007th & Norting Hill Gate. MAINTSTEAD TREATES: The Memory of Water Terry Advisors durects Harden Conymic in Shelagh Stephenson's

Harden Gwynne in Shedigh Siginemson i Grid sage play, Meni Sat Spin, mats Sat Apin, ends 24 aug. £1 £1.30, Meni & mat Sat £8, cancs available. Avenue, Road, NV3 [0171-722 Qiii] ◆ Swes Cottage. LYBIC STUDIO

Birdy Napore Wallace's adoptation of William Wharton's baunting American novel.
Jineand by Kevan Knight, Mees-Sat Apan.

mats Sat 4.34pm, ends 17 Aug. 17 91. Mon & standing ourse 15. King Street, Wa (D181-741 23) (149 Hammersmith. Around the country

About Primes Prestor with copied Aschnar owned, Eday 2,30pm & Spin. 17-19-50 cones available, Sanctive [1] 25-48944]

Brighton

ROTAL SPA Lydsfrata Aresophunes' Janical treatment of set and war is given the operator treatment by Reaction, Tolan & Sun, 7,3 pm. 25, comes 23, Queen's Park (0.127)-7007091 Cambridge

HANVEY COURT GARDENS
Richard III Shake-speare's portrayal of the Novelthard Duke of York, from OpenHand Productions Mon-Sal Spin, ends 1" Aug. Cl., article E. West Read [11] 221-504444 Cardiff NEW THEATRE form to the Architecture of the Architecture of Architecture of Council Project (Architecture of Architecture Chichester

CHICHESTER FESTIVAL TREATRE
When We Are Married Dawn French in JR Prichley's competitioner, MagaThu 7,3 bpm. Fri A. Sat Spin, mats Thu & Sat 2,30 pm. ends 17 Aug. 19-125, comes Mort-Frt. 1 Gillands Park (01/243-7813) 21

Hodda Sabler Henrik Rosen's classic with Harrier Wakter in the destanding this role. Mon-Sai 74Span, mass Thu & Sai 2.4Span, ends 17 Aug. £14-£25, concu available. Oaldands Park (01243-781312)

Eastboarne DEVONSIBLE PRAIN THEATHE Out of Order Ian Lawender, Margaret Asheroft and Barry Howard star in Ray Cooney's farce, In rep, Luday & Sun, 8.15pm mat Luday 5pm, andrs 4 Sep. 14.75-19, comes available, Compson Street [01323-412000]

Oxford MARIAL EN COLLEGE SCHOOL.
Reases and Meet Open ser production of the trigic lose story, saged on an stand in the Rever Chertwell, More Set 7,30pm, mats Thu & Sar 2,30pm, ends 31 Aug. 26, comes 25.
High Street (01865-794490)

ENSETHEATE Busic Fig.Artic.
Hamlet Oxford Stage: Co's updated
Stokespertuan tragedy with lan Popparrell,
Ermus Ctemiffic and Sheda Allen, Moe-Thu
& Sot 7, 3/1pm, Fri Spm, entals Sat 2,3/1pm, ends 24 Aug. £10, cruss £5, Ruse Plane, St
Aldates (01/865-79800)

Phymouth: THEATRE ROYAL

THE AFTER MINN WHY REPORT CONTROLS PROVIDED TO A TRANSPORT WHO CHIEFTS THE BASINES ACADEMIS. TO A STATE OF THE PROVIDED THE ROYAL PARAGE. [11] 752-26722)

Reading THE BELLCON The Secret Gartin. A new ensisted adaptation of the classes children's tale. Today 2,30pm & 7pm, (7,50-29,50, Quaeus Walk (U1734-93)591)

THE MILL AT SOMMING Fig. Bull. At Softie Farce by Robin Hawdon set in two adjoining haved rooms. Tonight damer time 6,30pm, performance 8 15, mai today, lunch from 12,30pm, performance 2,15pm; £18,95,E29,95, includes function danner.

(017,14-64NOO)) Southwold

ST Emmaths RALL
A Voyage Bound By Pether John Mortune?'s sowing and comic tribute is presented by the Additional and Somathwold Summer Season.
Keday S. 15pm & R. 15pm (4.50-20.
Cumbertuni Hond (II) ST2-72444 (772389)

Stratford upon Avon THE OTHER PLACE The County of Errors Tyra Supple directs Statespeare's controlly of mistaken leherth in rep, today 1,31 & 7,30pm, ends 12 Sep. £13.50 £17.50. Southern Lane

ROCAL SHAKESPEAKE TREATRE As You Like It Niumb Classes makes a return to the RSC in Scient Pinfold's production. In eq. (origin 7.30pm, etds 5 Oct. 16.53-25.54. Waterside (01789-295621) SWAN THEATRE

The America Reduced Notices emotionally proving protrait of the based U gracual Bettochet Arnald. In rep. today 1.30pm, ends 4 Oct. 19.129.50. The White Barth Gale Edwards directs Jame Gurnell is Webster's violent revenge thriller. In rep. tomphi 7,30pm ends 5 Oct. £9-£2/50. Waterside (11789-255623)

Sulgrave SHARRIE MANOR Mary Wrea of Wader Upen air production of Statespare by Trangle Theatre Company Twaght 7pm, Sun 3pm, 17, OAPschild 15, Manus Read | 18, 295-780,205)

EXHIBITIONS

Durch Jaroun: Artist, Film-maker, Designs Films painings, and designs, Mon. Wed-Set Hams-Lifym, Tue Hum-5-Afym, Sun 12m.ms-4-Afym, Cue Hum-5-Afym, Sun 12m.ms-4-Afym, Cuels W. Aug, 13-87, cones 12-30 includes carry to Eve Armidj, M-F 12-31 alors fym, Silk Street, EC2 10171-a38 41411@ Bartheam.

CAMBON ARTS CONTRE New Contemporaries 96 Theory-three young artists Rec-Tha Chris e-Rym, Fri-Sun Lineau-type, Free Artwreght Rd, NW3 (1071-436 26435 234) 46 Friedley Rd,

Howard Sallery Clear Relations With Soft scalpeares' of everyday objects. More-San Home-Gran parts April Tas & Well, ends P.Aug. 25, comes £151_Behotkere Road, SE1 (1171-960-432) NATIONAL CALLERY Pages: Beyond Impressioning Pariety, drawings and sculpture from Degas' late period. ManuSat Unam-Spit (Ned until Npari San Limon-Spit (Ned until Npari San Limon-Spit (Ned until Npari San Limon-Spit (Ned Until San Limon-Spit

NATIONAL PORTRAIT GALLERY

IP Pertrait Assert Prestigious national portraiture show. Mon-Sat (Dam-5pea, Son Excondegm, entis 20 Oct, (ree, St Martin's Place, WCZ (017), 306 (055) ◆ Charlog Cross.

BOTH ARADEMY OF ARTS

Bager do Gray Princings inspired by the landscape. Mos-Sun Illum-Spm, ands

2. Sep. D., cores E.: Burlington House,
Piccadilly, WI (0.171-3397438)

© Piccadilly Circus. TOTE CALLERY
Less Nessoft Highly terrored pointings of tribus scenes. More-Sat 10am-5.00pm, Sun 2pm-5.50pm, and 1 5ap. 4.4 cores 22.50.
Milibank, SW/10171-8878000) ◆ Piralico.

William Morris Exploration of the life and work of this designer, writer and printer. Morris Exploration of the life and work of this designer, writer and printer. Morris Exploration Faculty (International Supplier, University of the Supplier) (International Supplier) (I

Crossed Road, SW7 (U171-158 SOUU)

South Kenningson.

WHITECHAPEL ANT CALLERY

The Open The bis mount submission exhibition. The-Sun 11m-Spn (West until Spn), ends 15 Sep, free. Whitechapel High Street, E1 (0171-532 7888)

Aldgate East. Oxford

ASHMOLEAN YOUSEIGN Realth and Oxford The life and work of Rusión the art reactionary explored. The Sor 10am-4pm, Sun 2pm-4pm, each 15 Oct, free Beautings Street 181865-2780001 Southampton

SOUTHARD TON CITY ART GALLERY Sir loin Everatt Milais Rain chance to see works from the family collection. Improving Phirfings From Le Horre Inchales Money, Sidey and Piscartt, Tue/Wed/Fri 10am/Sper, Thu 1tlam-Sper, So 10am-Sper, Sun 2pm-Sper, ends 4 Aug, free. Casts Centre (#1702-802151)

COMEDY

BACK 2 BACK - IAM STORE & MARK RAFE THE CLARK OF THE CAME AND A CONTROL OF THE CAME OF T Cheftenbam

BOHFO & CACKED TEPHELL PARK Sally Holl way, Donna McPhad, Vladimir McBrish, Scan Percival, Tonigh; 9,15pn, Tulmil Park, Road, N7 (1071–183 M56) • Tulnell Park, £6, concs £5, m'ship £1. COMEDY STORE MEST IN STUHD IN London Rhom Camerna, Jo Caulfield, Brothby Graffve, Lee Hurst, Sean Peneiral, Krugh Apen & L2mdoight, Oxendon Street, SW1 (0)426-914433) & Piccadilly Circus, £10

COMETY STORE PLATERS Jose Lawrence, Paul Merron, Neil Multurkey, Lee Suppose, Jim Sweet SW1 (01426-91443)1 @ Per Circ (10 THE EXTENSIONE FILMS AT THIS OWN BATES TV has Suret, WC2 (017)-380 3980)

- Lexics of Sq. (7.50, coor 15.50.

GIGGLEPSTI ENDORMENT PREVIEW SEASON AT THE HEX AND CHICKENS THEATRE BAR ASSEW Pape's Mind Condy, Youight Paper, All Classaci Monde, Rather Hench, Son, Apen, St. Paul's Road, N/10171-704 2001) BR-O-Highbury & Islington, ES, conc. E4, JUNEA FIRES BALTTERSEA

Street, Keeth Fields, Al Murray, Paul Kudenson, Kuight 7,15pm & 11,15pm, Lawander Gardens, SW11 (017) 424 2700) BR: Clapham Junction, £10, comes £7, JONELEURS CANDEN Olis Carriction, Jell Green, Mickey Hought Phill Jupitus, Fred MacAnlay, Toolght 7 15/m & 11,15pm, Challs Farm Rd, NWI (0171/924 2766) © Camden, Elf, cross El, LARK IN THE PAIRS AT PESTIVAL TENT AT WILLPOLE PAIRS

Ha Bis of Ha presents as annual charletess, under the targentin in Walpole Park, Tongets, 8,30pm, Mattock Lane, WS 10181-566 4067] BR/O Enting Breadway. LEE EVENS AT CHECKE THEATRE Trought, Arm, Shattesbury Avenue, WI (0)71-44 SV61 & Piccoully Circus. E7 90-E17 90

The week views with a bit of some and dance thrown in. Thu-Sai 10pm, Sun 4pm, Bridge House Pub, Delamere Lerrace, W2 (0171-20/6054) & Buyal Ciak, E5, comes E4. SHORT BAC & SIDES FESTIVAL AT BAC

NEWSKEVUE AT CANAL CAFE TREATRE

Status up require a large Martin Paracley, Creat Ryan and Liz Webb. Romghi & Sun. 9pm, £6, concs.£5. Paul Bushbasan Tonghi & Sun. 10.15pm, Lavender Httl. SW11 10171-223 2223) BR: Clapham Junction, £6, concs.£5. Gosport SER REPORTED CHEMISTY'S CANCERTOR AT SM. HERPOLD CHAMLEY'S CAMESTON AT LOOK OUT STUDIO THEATRE AT THE HART Luces and bis friend Dwirt Williams. Thought, Spin, Marc Street, ES (0181-985 2424) ER: Hackney Central, ES, cones &A.

London DANCE

LOWIGH COLUSTAIN
LOT OF The Brace New dance-drama charcographed by Michael Fatley of Riverdone, Tuday 2-30pm & 7-45pm, ends
17-Aug. £10-53-50. St Martin's Lane, WCZ. 10171-344 0044 J SIG-PF ROBLES HOWD, Sum Types, £17-50. Simpler One Cup, Rend The popular Dive-bomb single should give this Chicago guitar-pop outfit a beadstart over here. The George Highbury Corner N5 (0171-607 1818) $\to$ Highbury & Islington, Tonight 10171-632 8300) & Leionster Square,

BYPESSOE STUDIOS

Jeunt B: Lyrical Feerta Hip-hop dancework shout young black men's lives in Britain.
Tought Sam. £8, comes hi, Crisp Road, W6
(0181-74) 2255) ◆ Hammersmith. BALLBOOM, MAIN POYER, ROYAL FESTIVAL

BALLBOOK, BARR FOYER, ROYAL FESTIMAL HALL BLTZ '98
Community Spirit Groups from Essex in works by choreographers including Jamie Watton, Today J. 15pm-2, 15pm, fire, Bandoon Banee Company Emergra from Jacob's Membrane by Wayne McGregor, Tonight spin-7ym, fire.

They Showcase Highlights from The Marjorie Davies Star Tip Awards, Sun L3Opm-2,15pm & 6,45pm-3, 1900, fires, Scrath Bank Centre, SEI 40171-950 42451 46 Waterdoo. SE (0)71-900 4243) & Waterloo. ROYAL OPERA HOUSE toyal Ballet: Swan Lake Dowell's 1987 production designed by Yolande Sommbend Roday Ipan (Yoshida) Casady) & Tpan (Durante/Revitt), E2-E58,50, Cost Garden, WC2 (0) 71-304 4000) & Oswent Garden.

CLASSICAL

PATTYILLE PRINT ROOM MUSELIN Enerald Chamber Physics/Hadde Works for strings including Eigen's Serenade. Tanight 8pm, £10-£15. Albert Road (01242-227979)

LAMBURY

CHINES'S CHURCH

Coverition Orthodoxy/Sacutifies Copland's Appalations Spring with Mozart's Haffner Symphony, Technic 7-30pm, 55-210.

Piccadilly, W110171-437 St(5.1)

© Piccadilly.

Enropean, Orlen Yorth Orchestro/Sanks Surans: Den Jose, Elgar's Enigeta Vara and Sibelius' And Symphony. Roughs 2 2 June 14.672

And Streeths: And Sylarphony. Tonget 7.30pm. E4-E23. Landon Adversited Choralegister ton Spurinais by Randall Thompson and Shelton E. Kilby HI, plus the world premiere of his Who has 11. Just the work premiere of its Wh. Ser Thy Citys. Sun 4 pm. £3.

BDC Symptomy Drehwelra-Shittle "Not Concernes- Coplaind's Organ and Ada Violin with pieces by Ives and Ethogoe Harlon. Sun 7.30pm. £4.5 ft. Kenning Garc., SW7 [0171-583/C12]

B High Street Kensington.

Lewes GLYNDEBOURNE OPERA HOUSE: GLYNDEBOURNE PESTYAL OPERA Vergency Dispeglis A revival for Graham Vick's actinized stoping of Tehnikovsky, conducted by Germadi Rushdertvensky. Tunight

oy Oceanan Rozmaervezsky, Hungel S. Hope, Eth. Eth. Eth. Com's production of Richard Straues' and Hugo von Hodmonasthal's last collaboration, Sun 4. Pspn. Eth. Eth. Glyndebourne House 10.1273-81 (881*) Landon CHISKYICK BOUSE: FIRST ACT OFERA

Don Glovens Mozer's tragi-comedy. Sun 7pm, Elli, comes £7.50, Burlington Lane, W4 10181-577 6969) BR: Chiswick. HOLLAND PARK THEATRE Post Hierard European Chamber Opera in a production set in Mexico in the early 1900s. Today 2.38 pm & 7.30 pm £20, comes £14.50. Kennington High St, WS 10171-602 7856)

High St Kennington.

Tunbridge Wells ROOLINDS AT MICOMMELL Handed's opera with Nicholas Kramer conducting the Ragdon Barropte Players. Knight 6.30pm, Broomhill Road, Southborough (01892-517737) £12.50-£15.

POP

Ashford Jose Holland & Ma Rhythm & Bloca Orchod hm The boogie-woogie foral leads his 15-piece R&B troupe into activo. South Airk. Stear Center (01323-611304) Tomghi £12.50.

Let Loom Boy hand with big teen following. Thright 7.30pm, £8-£10. Sione gutarist's own project.
Welpole Park Walpole Road (01705-522944)
Sun 7.30pm, ER-E10.

Litting Spice, Marcia Griffiths, Pigrits Dillos, Cornel Campbell Celebration of Jamaica's 34th Year of Independence with top regan names. The Furner Highgaire Road NWS 10171-344 00441 BR/Ф Kontish Town. Sun

1818) & ragnoury & tampton, tonight Spm, £5.
Edde no 1970s R&B singer whose tracks Hook & Shing and Check Your Bucket have gated him calt status.

Jacz Cafe Parlway NWI (0171-344 0044)

& Chanden Town, Tonight 7pm, £12, adv £10.

Birty Tiere Australian bar-room instrume tal trie, The Red Eye Copenhagen Street I 10171-837 1514) ◆ King's Cross, Tonight 8-30pm, £3-50, comes €3. My Life Story, Cratachen Hofeer Jake my Lies Sawig, serimental neither linte Shillingford's John Barry influenced pop orchesion beselfines, while GH use sirings crease their epic, torichy stund. Rounde Sout's Firth Street WI (0)71-439 (747) © Tott C1 Rd, Sun Spin, 47. The Engles, Remy Wayne Shephert Classic Engles line-up which delighted Jans at their US shaws. Newthey Sandam Empire Way. Wembley (10181-900) 1234) @ Wembley Park, Kenght Apm, £25-£50.

Sandaze Fastival Rock (esteral with Scrap Iron Scientess. Craryhead, Stranger Trac-tors, Draw, Konnfusion, Heliotrope and Babylace. Rustwon Half (III536-710)(C) Son 12nora, £6,

Settor Section

Earth Bearry Music Feetbed Donce AdDayer with Orbital, Mad Professor, Jah
Webble, Nightmares Co Witt, Sprecke (Sat), Soul Ad-Dayer with LV. Mice Paris, Alison Limenck, Truce, Position Hearty (Sunt).
Earth Energy Music Feetbed, Beddinger Park Whitington (1027)-705060) Theright Ipm.
121 Sear, 151 Seam.

jazz, world, fo Brighton Lan Kenitz Quintet Cerebral hehop alto Las Besitz Quintel Certival heloop also legend from Chitigo, a weletan of Genry Mulligan, Sum Kenton. Miles Daves and Chet Balort combus. Salik Renney Theatre University of Brighton, Grand Parade (0L273-709709) Sum 7.45pm, £10, comes £8.

London
Scott Hamilton Quartet Fogey-ish US main-stream teterist. Bull's Head Lemadale Read SW13 (0181-876 5241) BR. Barnes Bridge.

Sun Zpas, 27.

Sun Zp Jam Section #4 Acad Jazz jam leanaring Hammond wizard James Taylor, soul diva Hammonto wizaro James Raykov, Note on Dee C Lee and BNH guitario. Sirnon Bartholomew Jos: Cafe Parkway NW1 [0171-344 0044] ◆ Camdon Town, Sun

10171-340 HUND TO THE MARKET WARRISH. Market Warrish. Hern Allison Wie with See Mallen Warrish. understated blues Jazz veteran from Missis sippi. Pesa Envers Dean Street W1 11171-109 8722] © Timenham Coun Roud. 3-5 Aug. Runt. L15.
Las Beaffix Quinted: See Brighton.
The Rhydroic Chapel Market N1 (1171-713 5859) & Angel. Timaght Sym. (11)
Butty Garlier U.S. and Legend, plus amproving consequent Wheelength.

funon sasist Whitehead.

Remair Scott's Frigh Street W1 1017 (-439 0747) ⊕ Tottenham Court Road, Tonight

9pm, £12, mems £7. Lysis Mckole/Pule Photo/Cibe Photo/Claude Lusis Bioleolarus Pherbyllike Pherbyllikes bepurklikes Dean Freaky Sogath African percussionset of Sun Ra and Stevne Wonder lame, here with meyrow-inclined pusson, hose trumper and freaky say support.

Hinter Stoke Newington Church Street Nite (1017-1234 6516) BR: Stoke Newington Sun Spm. 14, 2002 53.

EVENTS

we. Renomenceth International Contr. Easter Road (0) 202-247297), Mon. Sat 2,30pm & Spin, ends 14 Sep. E1+E5.

Cambridge
Summer Fan Dranta, dance, vider, pup-petty, storytellung and animation workhops, for ages 3-11 years. Cambridge Drant Cen-ar Coront Garden, Mill Road (U1223-music, circus, controly, carmyal and street entertainment. Cartiff Summer Festival Information [0] 222-87 [922] Times vary, ends 11 Aug, phone for details.

Chepstow

M Name With Inse Costumes from BBCs
Pride And Prejudice. Chepston Museum
Only House, Budge Street (III.291-62981)
Times vary, ends 1 Sep. phone for details.

Dover Semmer Boliday For Trail Exhibits on with a Samuer Boundy For State Exhibits with a farmous nature competition, goal of roughts set and archery, 19 late Cliffs Experience Market Square (01/04-210/01) Pauly Hambet Square (01/04-210/01) Pauly Hambet Sibpin, ends 1 Sop. 12/90/14/90, child 42/50 1 ages 4-14), under 4s free.

including music, stalls, three theatre and a lea dance: King Alfred Kingsway (1) 273-720371 | Belay 10am-9,30pm, Iree.

London
Power To Read To Your Parends Music. dance and postry for ages seven and over, BAC Lavender Hill SW11 [1071-223 2221] BR: Clapham Junction, Sun 2, Oprn. phone for details. for details.

Discover Dogs in London Event to celebrate the joys of degreemenship, Earls Caert 2.

Warwick Recad SWS [11171-244 1990] Today & Sun, [Camt-spin, F7, come 43.

How To Bo A Striple Workshop A wes kend of unique clowning skills. Hackney Engine Mars, Street Ex (1181-905 2424) BR: (1ack-ney Central, Today & Sun, 10am-5pm, 1181, Sears And Brukent Family Workshop Film Spars And Bridget Family Workshop Fran workshop exploring make-up, for upon service and over. Museum Of London London Will ECZ (0171-90) (API) © Burbican, Sun 12.45pm-4.5pm, £3.50, conce £1.75.

Spanner Boliday Bown Internative Intern Square WC2 (0)71-597 (0.21) to control Chess, Daily 11,30am, ends 30 Aug. free Rids Balverse Top pupper entertainment and so much more Schinder (First Fixer) Orderd Street W1 (III71-62) (234 © Hand rect. Rodov, 12pm-tipm, phone for detail

Surea. today, Lepin-opin, prione in rectains. Bad Bath Sup Interactive bair manu melul-ing a "Salou D'Artiere". Shades Supernandi Kentish Fown Rodd NWS 10171-230 2017. From today, times warv, ends 29 Aug. phone for details. Theatraland Walking Your Thrilling small Theatroland Walling Your Thrilling stroll around celebrated London theatres. Theatre hissonn Russell Streat WC2 (0171-436) 1971) ◆ Covern Garden, San 2pm. E<sup>4</sup> phone for details.

Walpole Firsting Bundahous: Pho-day bounds of stalls, stands and performances. Salpale First Matrock Lane W5 10181-758
5741/ BR/◆ Eating Brnadway, Walay & San, 11. Ourn-open, free. Market Boswerth
Vidag Invasion Bosworth Baulefield recoactment. Boswerth Baulefield 103455

29(424) Sun 2pm. Free. Norwich

Beauty & The Beast In her David Esser's dramn on ice with the Russian Lee Stars.

Theater Royal Theater Street (01603-63001) Eddy & Sun Sym & 7,30pm, 23,50-121.

combs, condies and mouth watering recipes, Stugborough Millord (01889-86) 3881 Today & Sun, Ham-Spin, EA, cone (2.50.

Slimbridge
Puppet Show Find out why so many anomals depend on wetlands for surveya. The Will-food and Hedenda Than (1945).580(3))
Fiday & Sun, Ham-lpm, £4,70, child £2,35 Stratford-upon-Avon Country Craft Paper Medieval (hemed showerse, Charleone Park BARO (01926-813374) Today & San, Dam-opm, Free-E3

Tumbridge Wells
Georgian Factivities Back to 1746 with car-

Church services

Ninth Sunday after Trinity

CARGESTON STREET, S. P. 19. P. P. Marier, Marier, CANTESPART CONSTRUCTION 1. (1) From Mades, Clarity State, Lecture 1. Consider Maller Control of the Construction of the Const

SHISTER, CATHERDER, The end of Section 1 and 1 ft. The movement of the control of the at the Action Regar II (Perchanted Action Section 1) of the Action II (Perchanted Action II) Manager II (Action III) Manager III (Action III)

11 (Son Marie Code countreeds (Howello The Proceeds) Agent Code Code (Marie Code) (

CHEST Limited Estated "Nam Matter and Latary, sam Hob Linderich. The Rock D. K. Court, Nam Park hitchards. The Rock D. K. Court, Han Stone Luchards. Noble in Himmor. The Rev Born-Han Johns, L. E. Epp. Hob; Lucharre, 3. Npm. Choral Interiore. Hansawa in D. C. Npm Farrib Everteeng. The D. D. C. Stone State States.

Carron Mighard Saward, 3 I form Evertromy, Stansleed in G. The Rev John M. Pant.
WELTHREETH MERS Sam I LC, Harn Maxims Codlegrom regale illioneths. The Rev Johnsham Goodel II Sam. Abbre Jeckhand, Codeporturerake Ham. Sh. Canar Asta op Harry, you Everrake Ham. Sh. Canar Asta op Harry, you Eversure, Sorra Control of Ham. Main.
Shyn. Corp. Rectal in Main. Canar Royal
New R. Ham. On all conferent Codeports repair
Hawels i. in an Invel Paster Sport bread Lessure, Collegium regale illowebri. Canar Ham. Canar Shyn. Rev. George Bread.
Canaring N. Ham. Shall Common Paster, Chris.
Landson, Ham. Shall Common Paster, ConHam. May Shall Shall Shall Shall Shall.
Canaring N. Ham. Shall Common Paster, Shall Ham. Shall Shall Shall Shall Shall Shall
Ham. Shall Shall Shall Shall Shall
Ham. Shall Shall Shall Shall Shall
Ham. Shall Shall Shall Shall
Ham. Shall Shall Shall
Ham. Shall Shall Shall
Ham. Shall
H Carem Mechael Salvard, 3 15 on Evernous, Star-levi in G. The Rev John M. Paul.

WESTRICTS ARREL Nam 11C. Harn Matters. Col-legrom regule 11 investion. The Rev Journal of Architecture of the Collegrom re-rule 11 worlds. Care Machae of Lawrey, Jone Even-wage, Short service (Talles, Canam Daved Hatte, Salym Organ Restal by Matt Curke, 9,30 ym. Ex-served Salvard, Salvard Farrey, Softmann Properties of the Collegrom of Salvard, Canam Properties, Salvard Roberts, Calegrom Farrey, Softmann (The Market Salvard, Canam Regul 11 kmg/s L. Lawre Hard Pantert, Salvard For all Leg-avey, Collegrom regule 1 in West David, Canam Regule Fasherson Collegrom regule 1 in weights, Canam Regule Rock.

Cathering to The Strate 19850st Screek Britanded, Market R. Lad W. 2 "Thom Mattire I lam Uring and Freek.

Si Bengiri, Biocanobary Wey, London WCI: 10an Same Enchaptels, Fr Ferry Butter, Saligan Parton Recital by the Tongs of Signa Exeming Prayer.

Biomyri, Hanower Square, W. J. & Bana HC. Han Saligan Prayer.

Biomyri, Hanower Square, W. J. & Bana HC. Han Saligan Prayer.

Biomyri, Hanower Square, W. J. & Bana HC. Han Saligan Hanower, Handware Hand, The Rector, R. James, Pecandily: S. John H. & Bana HC. Han Saligan James, Pecandily: S. John H. & Bana HC. Han Saligan James, Pecandily: S. John H. & Bana HC. Han Saligan James, Prayer Hand, Restanced Boardway, Clif. Han Family: Communion, Fastasquar Crisson, Placett, The Rev John Paul.

Praise, The Rev John Crisson Frayer and Praise, The Rev John Ovender, on Particular Holden May. Fr G. Bright.

Statin Man. Han Man. Fr G. Bright.

Statin M

Ony Jameire, Hothorm Vinduct, ECT 10.30am. The Rev Man Hillborn and Emitto Cumpson. Inside Street Methoded Cheech, Will 10 Jun 11c. Decald Supers: Harm HC. Tuyan's Cranes, co.20pm. 14th; Jame Cranela. Bankson Sursiyo Hill Cheech, Konalyn [14]E. Hompstend. NWA, 11 Jun, The Rev Judith Wallier-Ruger 7pm Eventure Section. N.W.S. 1 Jam, The Ray Judkit Walker-Ragge Tyon Eventing Seyroor. East Balaries Cherch, Poloco, Cardeney T. France, W.Y. Jam, The Keev Schottung Health, Konstigum Beithel Balaries District, Allen Sarcer, W.R. Jam, The Rev Peter Lawerst Publicum Engul RE, Congregation and Prodystrams). SI Marks Church, Uld Morylchop, Bond, W.I. Jam, The Rev Pet Crawdians. Rendered Spirit, Fregord Came, NWS (Santa, The Per-Sarry Jones). Retires a sea, 171 general and 18 general Service; Baltain 1886, Northwest H. Alam Mortony Service; A Jupa Evenage Service; S. James E. St. Palam (Secret of St. Pars X). Subtribut Read, NY. Ham. (Secret of Traditional Latin Mars Blanc & States [Limberau], Freehaat Street, EC2 Blanu S & Agus Lutherau I, Irechant Street, & Ch.
Hant Chard HC. The Rev Pr Johns when edic.
2pm Swahih HC. The Rev John Shahuya.
Imple Lidgs J Christian Community's Queen Carching Street, Wn. In Acts of Connectation of Man, The Rev Li. Capel Weighterist Chapt. By Chingham Gate, 5Wf. 11, nn.
5, Ayra, De R.T. Kepdala.
Biomathory Charle Baylei Grand, Shaheefuya, Avenna, WCZ. 11 am, 6, 3 lpn. The Rev Barberri Stanford, Weighter Besting, Secret of Februds (Queken), S.
5 Martin's Lane, WCZ. 11 am Meeting for Weighter.

With the Soling trio of Andy Beadsworth, Barry Parkin and Adrian Stead battling it nut on the water in match-racing off

Savannah yesterday in the quest for the bronze medal, Britain's sailing contingent are poised to round off a splendid Olympic performance. But yet another thunderstorm threatens to wreck their chances of adding to the silver medals won by Ben

Ainslie in the Laser and John

Sailing with an inadequate wind, the Soling crew were I-1 against Jeff Madrigali of America in their best-of-five series.

The United States has just one by baze from their sailors, by Ceartney Becker-Dey in the Europe, after having won nine medals from the 10 classes in

Barcelone and expecting to

Madrigali had Ed Baird, John

Merricks and Ian Walker in the men's 470.

the American coach, Anthony Dicieco. "I certainly didn't want to let nur fans down.

Every game was difficult." The official attendance was 76,481 people - the biggest ever recorded to watch 6

women's match in the States.

after Brazil saw its men's tesm fail to reach the Olympic final after losing

4-3 to Nigeria in extra time, the Brazilian women's side went down 2-0 to Norway in the bronze medal match after having a goal disallowed.

Midfielder Ann Aarones

scored the first goal in the 21st minute, slotting the ball calm-ly past Brazilian keeper Meg.

and then blasted home a secand just three minutes later.

newed deterination in the second half but had their hopes dashed in the 51st minute when a goal by Roseli was disallowed for handhall.

Huish wins in his back yard

petitions entered since 1972.

. Huish explained that the secret of his success was laziness.

"When I'm at home and I'm feeling lazy and I don't want to drive an hour to the closest range, I shool from across the street, up the driveway, through the garage, out the back door, and across my back yard on to a hill where there's a target about 49 metres away."

The only archer able to get close to the youlhful upstart was Italian Michele Frangilli.

The pair finished their 12-arrow quarter-final level on 112 points apiece, but Frangilli death arrow. In the final, Huish assured gold inner circle. Petersson made Huish's task easier with victory over the favourite.

Jang Yong-ho of South Korea.

Archery

sier ting t by tra Mr g in g in the af-mit, the

Wär

im-

: in the aid

der

nd

81-

ute the

he es-bly

Brazil came out with re-

Earlier, barely 24 hours

YESTERDAY

History for US women

11

Ma.

٠,٠,٠

444

Time .

15 · ·

ei.

4.

47.0

T

S

5

3.

4.5

8 21 4

4.4.4

44.5

10 370

ý" w

, a 2 %

MOMEN: 70m traim ellimination round places one to nightly; Chris 222 bt Japan 217; Germany 245 bt halv 236; Kazakstan 235 bt United States 226; Turkey 240 bt 34 228; Sweden 239 bt Taiwan 227; Poland 49 bt Russia 228; Urane 246 bt Indonesia 708. Byes: South Korea, Quarteeffinalisticuth Korea 249 bt Sweden 226; Poland 44 bt Ukraine 235; Germany 232 bt Chia 231; Entrey 247 bt Kazaketstan 226. Semi-finalist South Korea 245 bt Poland 144; Germany 239 bt Turkey 237.

SS Athletics

eny Zhao (Cinna).
100m relay heats (first two in each heat us six best times to senti-finels): Heat 1 Ukraine 38.90sec: 2 Brazii 38.97; 3 cna 39.47; 3 Nigeria 39.47; 5 Cameroon (.31; 6 St Vincent 40.54; 7 Mauritus
1.92; 6 Laos 44.14.
ust 2: 1 Canada 38.68; 2 Germany 38.77;
Serra Leone 38.98; 4 Sant Witts 40.12;
Equational Guinea 45.63. Did not finish:
pua New Guinea, New Zealand. Disquance.

out. 3: 1 United States 38.58; 2 Sweden 102; 3 Bahamas 39.38; 4 Thailand 180; 5 Fin 40.23. Did not finale Britain. and start: Qutar.

14. 4: 1. Jamaca 39.21; 2 Spain 39.35;
an, Coast 39.33; 4 Roga 39.56; 6 Gabon
197; 6 Bernin 40.79; 7 Gambia 41.80.
I not Tinish: halv.
at $1. Australa 36.93; 2 France 39.00;
Auba 39.14; 4 Greece 39.51; 5 Austra

Britain's only achievers SAILING By Stuart Alexander

> The problem for Beadsworth is that if the storm prevents further racing, the medal would go to the American because he had been second in the fleet-race qualifier to Beadsworth's third.

In their first race, Beadsworth dominated Madrigali, who had earlier gone down 3-0 to Shaiduko. He had led from start to finish and had also won the start of the second race before it was abandoned. After the restart, a 25-degree shift in wind direction gave Madrigali the equaliser.

A little bit of last-ditch aggression cost Beadsworth any chance of a tilt at the gold after his best-of-five racing against Germany's double gold medallist Schumann had been left on hold overnight when storms halted proceedings on Thursday. Beadsworth was 2-0 down, but then he produced a shut-out start to lead the third race before it was abandoned.

Instead of exercising a guillotine, the officials brought racing forward yesterday morning in an attempt to complete the series, with Madrigali also trailing 2-0 to Shaiduko.

The main worry was whether there would be any wind at allor, even then, enough to run all three races before the noon cut-off, when the finals would go ahead with whoever was leading at the time. There was breeze, and Beadsworth again won the start and led round the first mark. But Schumann was able to roll over the top of him on the first spinnaker run. An attack from Beadsworth failed to dislodge him and with a slow rounding of the next mark, Beadsworth was left playing catch-up. He attacked again on the top half of the second upwind leg. tacking underneath then forcing

At the start of the Olympic regatta, the British sailing team manager, Rod Carr, was saying that "we will eventually be judged by how many medals we get, but the reality is thal our preparation has been bloody good, whatever medals we get".

Britain is an old power in yachting, winning at least one medal at every Olympics except the 1980 boycott of Moscow. The intention this time was to win at least three, with the management of that objective left to a smaller, younger team called the Olympic Steering Group. The early selection process returned to a single regatta at home instead of accumulated results from a number of overseas events. Government agencies, including the lottery, poured in more than half of the £630,000 budget for the final year. Carr reflected yesterday on a mission successfully completed. "We have met the goal we set nurselves. It was an excellent result, not just for the medallists, but for the whole team. There has not been one weak link."

Gymnastics

COMMENTED RETYTHMEC INDIVIDUAL COMPETITION Preliminary round (top 20 quality for sensi-finals): 1 E Virtcherko (Ur) 39.200pts (tope 9.800pts, bail 9.800pts, clubs 9.800pts, (bbon 9.800pts); 2 E Sensbyrskape (Uri 39.1.13 (8).799, 9.783, 9.832, 9.699): 3 A Zarpose (Rus) 38.748
(9.715, 9.699, 35.3, 9.750); 4 L Loutesnerito (Bela) 38.481, (9.699, 9.366, 9.716, 9.700); 5 A Cid Tostado (Sp) 38.400
(9.600, 9.600, 9.600, 8.600); 8 M Petrova (Bul) 38.382 (9.666, 9.183, 9.800, 9.733); 7 E Senano (Fr) 38.148 (9.516,
9.800, 9.466, 9.566); a M Parigalou (Gre)
37.983 (9.500, 9.500, 9.533, 2.450); 9
7 Ogydos (Bela) 37.899 (8.766, 9.750, 9.750, 9.633); 10 O Popova (Bul) 37.849
(9.550, 9.500, 9.516, 2.283); 11 A Cartile
Costas (Sp) 37.781 (9.416, 9.433, 9.532,
9.400); 12 A Stoica (Rom) 37.781 (9.316,
9.499, 9.500, 9.468; 121 (Bayrotina (Rus)
37.748 (9.818, 9.266, 9.350, 9.316); 14
K Sroka (Ger) 37.697 (9.432, 9.450, 9.398, 9.416); 15 M Bazeska (Ger) 37.615
(9.566, 8.933, 9.533, 9.533; 18 (Germini
(10) 37.548 (9.438); 15 M Brazeska (Ger) 37.615
(9.566, 8.933); 9.533, 9.533; 18 (M Yarnada
Lopan) 37.131 (9.350, 9.350, 9.249,
9.182; 19 A Yameo (Japan) 37.115 (9.183, 9.366, 9.283, 9.283); 20 K Petrosanti (it)
37.099 (8.983, 9.400, 9.366, 9.350); 21
K Lesidewicz (Pol) 36.962 (9.250, 9.232,
9.250, 9.250); 22 L Outschlows (Cc. Rep)

37.099 (8.383, 9.400, 9.366, 9.350); 21 K Leskiewicz (Poh 36.982 (9.250, 9.232, 9.250, 9.250); 22 L Outenhous (C. Rep) 36.963 (9.252, 9.266, 9.399); 23 V Fratter (Hung) 36.931 (9.233, 9.116, 9.333, 9.249); 24 & Schreim (Aur) 36.881 (9.200, 9.166, 9.266, 9.249); 25 A Abramia (Geo) 36.833 (8.200, 8.250, 9.183, 9.200); 26 E Sotrinou (Gre) 36.698 (9.233, 9.183, 9.299, 8.963; 27 A (Awhineskia (Poh) 36.680 (9.233, 8.932, 9.349, 9.186); 28 A Sebestova (Cz. Rep) 36.598 (9.366, 8.783, 9.248, 9.200; 28 B Naboosky (Aur) 36.665 (9.133, 9.113, 3.068, 3.166; 9.30) J Davis (US) 36.564 (9.135, 9.166, 9.169, 9.266, 9.966, 9.966, 9.368, 33 C Manters (Dan) 36.364 (9.333, 8.969); 33 C Marters (Dan) 36.364 (9.333, 8.999, 9.316, 9.116); 34 K Kolpela (Fin) 36.348 (9.162, 8.800, 9.166, 9.200); 35 Bei Wii (China) 36.297 (9.216, 9.249, 8.933, 8.899); 36 A Szalay (Hun) 35.886 (9.000, 9.033, 8.898); 36 A Szalay (Hun) 35.886 (9.000, 9.033, 8.899), 9.8966, 8.499, 9.0633.

Y E S T E R D A Y 'S RESULTS ROM ATLANTA

Schumann violently up into the wind. Both called for a penalty against the other: the judges flag wagged at Beadsworth, and fo the Briton it was all over.

39.80; 6 Opprus 40.06; 7 Liberia 40.18; a Verger I 41.26. Semi-finaliste: Ukrame, Brani, Cenaria, Gen-Archery

MEN: Tom team elimination (places one to eight): United States 251 bt Indonesia 245: Ultraine 238 bt Canada 225; Finland 245 bt France 244; Iraly 244 bt Talwan 243; Slovenia 242 bt Russia 241; Sweden 247 bt Kazakstan 246; Australia 243 bt China 240. Bye South Korea. Quarast States 253 bt Sweden 241; United States 255 bt Ukraine 240; Iraly 252 bt Finand 236.

3 C Barrett (NC) 4:15:15; 34 C Maddocks 8) 4:18:41; 35 O Zujus (Lith) 4:23:35; 3 J Magalhaes (Por) 4:27:37. Did not fin-h: D Cousins (Aus), G de Benedictis titl, Garcta (Sp), J Lehtmen (Fin), Y Misyulya ebi), A Plotrikov (Riss), Y Popovych (Ukr), Sonnek (CZ Rep), R Weigas (Ger). Did not art F Cumacenco (Mol). Disqualified: Baker (Aus), H Lopez (Gust), Xinyuan Mao hno), H Nelson (US), T Youtan (Fr), Yong-eny Zhoo (Crima).

39.80; 6 Cypnus 40.06; 7 Liberia 40.18; a Vegari 41.26; a Vegari 41.26; a Vegari 41.26; a Likeane, Brani, Carnade, Germany, United Stores. Sweden, Jamaska, Spain, Australia, France, Ghana, Nigeria, Bahaman, Nory Const, Cuba, Siarra Leon. 4x400m relay: Heatt 1: 1 Britain 3min 01.79:sec; 2 Poised 3:01.92; a Brazil 3:02.51; 4 Australia 3:03.73; 5 Sant Lucia 3:10.51; 6 Fiji 3:10.67; 7 Sterns Loone 3:11.85. Heatt 2: 1 United States 3:00.56; 2 Ruseas 3:04.73; a Chena 3:05.53; 4 Cuba 3:05.75; 6 Qutar 3:08.25; 6 Antigus 3:09.46; 7 Leostho 3:15.67; Heatt 2: 1 Nerva 3:02.52; 2 Senegal 3:02.61; a Nigeria 3:02.73; 4 Switzerland 3:03.05; 5 St Viczerla 3:05.26; 6 Verpa 15:3:17.30; 7 Papus New Guinea 3:19.92. Heatt 4: 1.Emaica 3:02.81; 2 Italy 3:03.60; a South Africa 3:03.75; 4 Meuritus 3:08.17; 5 Zhribabwe 3:13.35; 6 Grenade 3:13.67; 7 Maidives 3:24.88; Heat 6: 1 Japan 3:02.82; 2 Bahamas 3:04.09; a Sauth Arabia 3:04.67; 4 Germany 3:05.16; 6 Botswena 3:05.62; 6 Guyana 3:07.19. Did not finish: Gemble, Sensi-finish: Streng, Nesserland, Jamaica, Italy, South Africa, Japan, Bahamas, Saudi Arabia, Japan, Bahamas, Saudi Arabia, Javafin qualifyjing (heat 12 qualify for finish: Gemble, 11 Kefetiva sta (Federal 2) 21 21 and 121 charait Gemble, Sensi-finish: Settishus fa Geologi 21 12m.

gal, Migeria, Sweberland, Jamaica, Italy, South Africa, Japan, Bahamass, Saudi Arabie.

Javelin qualifying (hest 12 qualify for final): Group 1: 1 K Getsloudis Grei 8 7:12m;
2 5 Makamov (Rus), 85.88; 3 5 Raty (Fin) 83.68; 4 R Hecht (Get) 83.24; 6 P Bisnik (Get) 82.68; 6 K Kinunen (Fin) 80.98; 7 M Hill (GB) 80.48; 6 P Fagienes (Nor) 79.78;
9 O Stephens (US) 79.18; 10 E Gorzalez (Cuba) 77.94; 11 E Baumann (Par) 77.74;
12 G Lovegrove (NZ) 77.12; 13 S Voynov (Uzbek) 75.20; 14 O Wennthind (Swe) 75.24; 15 T McHugh (th) 72.84; 16 K-Young Chu (S Koh 71.42; 17 K Thompson (Irm) 68.02.

Group 2: 1 J Zelezny (Cz Rep) 86.52m; 2 T Pulstys (US) 84.70; 3 S Backley (GB) 84.14; 4 B Henry (Get) 83.22; 5 L Zhang (Chua) 79.88; 6 H Hakteramen (Fin) 79.34; 7 V Ovctiminiov (Rus) 78.20; a T Riech (US) 78.02; 9 O Polymerou (Gre) 77.82; 10 A Currey (Aus) 77.28; 11 A Moruyev (Rus) 77.20; 12 N Meland (GB) 75.74; 13 V Perfyonov (Uzbek) 73.96; 34 I Uzeces (Cuba) 73.84; 15 O Std (Est) 72.54; 16 P Bozighe (Nigera) 70.78. No martic V Sastmovich (Belarus).

Finalishs: Gaissodis, Makarov, Raby, Hocht, Blank, Kinnunen, Hill, Zelezny, Pulostyu, Backley, Hanny, Zhang, WOMEN: Act00m relay heate: Host 1: 1 Doited States 42,49, 2 Baharnas 43,14; 8 Australa 43,75; 4 Colombia 44,16; 5 Cuba 44,32; 6 Antigua 45,09; 7 Virgin I 46,09. Did not finish: Camerson, Heat 2: 1 Jamaica 43,36; 2 Migaria 43,54; 3 Britain 43,88; 4 Thailand 45,62; 6 Lesomb 49,52. Did not finish: Germany, Madagascar.

Madagascar. Heet 3: 1 Russia 43,00; 2 France 43,09; 4 Russia 44,19; 4 Finland 44,21; 5 Caneda 44,34; 6 Sierra Leone 47,10. Did not fluishe Saint Now. Finelitets United States, Bahamas, Jameica, Nigeria, Russia, Franco, Australia, Britain.

Basketball

MEN: 11th-12th place play-off: Angole 99 South Korea 61. 9th-10th place: Argenti-na 87 Puerto Rico 77.

firset: 1.A Rossi (it) 1min 30.18sec; 2 K Hol-mann (Nor) 1:39.92; 2 M Koleitmeinen (Fin) 1:40.76; 4 R Erban (Slovek) 1:41.42; 5 P Marklewez (Pol) 1:41.56; 9 R Crichlow (Can) 1:41.74; 7 Z Artal (Hung) 1:41.87; 8 S Kalesnik (Bels) 1:42.50; 9 S Custurin (Bra) 1:43.04, Second semi-firmat: 1 L Dwowski (Ger) 1:40.31; 2 G Magyar (Rom) 1:40.61; 2 M Garcia (Sp) 1:40.68; 4 C McFotzen (Aus) 1:41.08; 6 S Verlan (Rus) 1:41.79; 2 V Iereshcheniko (Ikh) 1:41.88; 7 J Cornes (Prg) 1:42.07; 8 M Herbert (IkS) 1:42.33; 9 P Merkov (Bul) 1:42.37, Finnisiste Rossi, Hornerin, Kolehmennen, Er-ban, Liwowski, Megyer, Garcia, McFadrean, Marklewicz.

Manacevicz.

SoOm kayak pairs semi-finals (first four and best fifth to final): First semi-final: 1 listy 1:29.66; 2 Australia 1:29.93; 8 Bugara 1:30.64; 4 Hungay 1:30.72; 5 Spain 1:31.13; 8 United States 1:32.25; 7 Crech 1:32.51; 8 Uthuania 1:32.69; 8 Argentina 1:37.17.

1:37.17.
Socond semi-final: 1 Germany 1:29.88; 2 Fuscia 1:30.03; 3 Poland 1:30.24; 4 Romania 1:30.61; 5 Denmark 1:30.65; 2 Portuga 1:31.55; 7 Sweden 1:31.81; 6 Belgium 1:34.80; 9 Uzbekisten 1:35.54, Finalishis: Risk, Australia, Bulgaria, Hungary, Germany, Fussia, Poland, Romania, Denmark, Genvery, Russia, Poland, Romania, Denmark, 500st Camedian singlest First semi-final: 1 M Skinsky (Unt 1:52.09; 2 K Negocjeyev (Kazsk) 1:52.42; 3 E Le Leuch (Fr) 1:53.30; 4 J Crespo (Sp) 1:54.12; 5 F Hukdu (Rom) 1:56,73; 8 A Pestchinta (Mol) 1:57.45; 7 S Pereira (Por) 1:57.94.
Second semi-final: 1 S Giles (Can) 1:51.61; 2 N Budhakov (Bul) 1:51.91; 3 C Frederiksen (Den) 1:52.17; 4 J Ferrel (US) 1:54.08; 5 O Funtak (Croe) 1:58.57; 6 Y Astanin (Uzhek) 1:59.04.
Finalists: Silvinsky, Negocyeyev, Giles, Budhalov, Frederiksen.

EURISION, Frederiksen.
500m Cenadien pairs; First semi-final; 1.
Romana 1:41,65; 2. Moldova 1:42,02; 3.
Spein 1:42,39; 4. Russie 1:43,14; 5. Slovakia 1:43,75; 6. Carreda 1:44,21; 7. South Koren 1:44,45; 8. Polend 1:44,76; 8. Italy 1:47,55.

1:47.55.
Second semi-finel; 1, Hungary 1:42.18; 2 Germany 1:43.65; 3 Belanus 1:43.93; 4 Bulgare 1:44.13; 5 Crosto 1:44.77; 6 Czech Republic 1:44.90; 7 Britain (A Train and S Tran) 1:45.65; 6 Kezekhster 1:45.99; B Ukraine 1:51.D1.
Finalistis Romanis. Moldres Crain Dur

Orvante LSILDI.
Finalistics Romenia, Moldova, Spain, Russia, Hungary, Germany, Belarus, Bulgaria, Slovakia.
WOMEN: 500m keyesk alingles: First semi-floate 1 R Koben (Hung) 1:48,84; 2 S Gurharsson (Swe) 1:49,88; 3 U Profamer (Aut) 1:50,08; 4 I Harakemow (Swt) 1:50,83; 5 K Borchert (Aus) 1:51,14; 6 S sanchez (Sp) 1:52,32; 7 A Dellowey (GB) 1:55,84; 6 A Michaut (Fr) 1:55,93; 8 6 Geo (Chine) 1:57,49.
Second semi-finat: 1 J Idem (R) 1:49,07; 2 C Brunet (Car) 1:49,57; 8 6 Fischer (Ger) 1:51,66; 4 A Postusoka (Fo) 1:53,25; 6 R Nortig (SA) 1:53,61; 6 O ven de Venne (Bet) 1:54,68; 7 L Carmi (Br) 1:54,69; 8 S Manuyama (Japan) 1:54,94; 9 T Phillips (US) 1:55,33.
Finalistics Koben, Gunnarsson, Proferiox, Har-

Finalists: Koben, Gunnersson, Profester, Her-alamow, Borchert, Idem, Brunet, Fischer, Pat-suszka. alamow, Borchert, Idem, Burret, Franke, Fast $1500m keyek point: First semi-final: 1 Hun-gay 1:42.78; 2 Germany 1:43.00; 2 Span 1:44.43; 4 Canada 1:44.46; 5 France 1:48.65; 3 Romente 1:47.06; 7 Ukraine 1:48.65; 2 Chrue 1:49.18; 9 Britain (H Ga-by and A Thorogood) 1:49.84. Second semi-final: 1 Sweden 1:43.52; 2 Australia 1:43.72; 2 Polant 1:48.18; 4 Rus-sa 1:45.50; 5 Switzmand 1:46.62; 2 Bul-garia 1:48.31; 7 Czoch Republic 1:49.12; 8 United States 1:49.46; 9 Menteo 1:52.05. 889 Hockey

MEN: 5th-6th place play-off: South Ko-rea 3 (Jeon Jong-ha, Shin Seek-kyo, Song Seung-tae) Pakistan 1 (Kamran Ashraf). W Diving MER: 10m platform semi-final (top 12 to final): 1 D Sautin (Rus) 647.48pts; 2 Hadiang Xiao (Chans) 625.41; 3 Lang Tian (Chans) 611.49; 4 V Timoshran (Rus) 594.90; 6 J Hernye (Ger) 591.39; 6 P Jeffrey (US) 581.16; 7 F Platas (Mar) 570.21; 8 D Pichler (US) 570.12; 9 S Koudravitch: (Bela) 556.53; 10 K Terauchi (Jepen) 555.90; 11. M Kuehna (Cer) 544.38; 12 R Frece (Aut) 521.76; 13 B Morgan (GB) 519.84; 34 J Sjodin (Swe) 557.74; 15 Hyong Gi Choe (N Kor) 516.66; 16 A Kvotzhinski (Bela) 509.84; 37 D Aldmetbelov (Kazak) 505.20; 16 L Teylor (GB) 483.57.

⋘ Tennis

Medals table

. G	S	6	Tot
United States32	31	18	79
Russia21	17	9	47 46
China 16	19	11	46
France 14	6	14	34
Cormony 12	13	23	46
Marks 41	-	-	30
fleat and the contract of the	č	40	20
AUSURES	2	70	30
Poland/	5	3	15
Ukraine	2	6	17
South KoreaB	9	5	20
Romania4	5	6	15
Hungary4	3	6	13
Greece4	3	0	7
Switzerland4	1	0	5
Cuba3	5	6	16
January3	5	3	11
Brezil 3	2	Ğ	1
New Zenland 3	5	1	6
Spoin 3	7	ā	ž
Describe 3	7	ĭ	è
bertand 3	*	•	Ä
Today	×	+	7
illrikey3	×	÷	-4
Canada	ă	έ.	11
Netherlands	4	à	15
Kazakhstan2	3	1
Belgium2	- 2	2	6
North Korea2	1	2	5
South Africa2	1	1	4
Ethiopia2	0	D	2
Betwee1	S	6	14
Great Britain1	5	6	12
Sweden1	3	í	5
tamaica 1	ž	ā	Ā
Czech Remible .1	5	Ă	Ž
Fintend 1	5	ñ	á
Norwey 1	7	ă	5
Indonesia 1	1	ັ້	ă
America 1	•	7	3
Claudel 1	*	¥	ź
SHIVENIA	ă	+	£
Infognation	ă	¥	•
COSTS HOCS	ă	ŏ	;
ECUBOOF	ŏ	ŭ	-
Hong Kong	ŏ	Ď	÷
Syria1	Ŏ.	ů	-
Burgaria0	4	4	a
кепуа	2	1	3
Namikia	2	o	2
Slovenia0	2	o	2
Austria0	ļ	1	2
ran	1	1	2
Malaysia0	1	1	2
Argentina0	1	0	1
Croatia0	1	0	1
Yaiwan	1	0	1
Uzbekistan0	1	0	1
Zaunbia0	1	Õ	1
Nigeria0	ō	2	2
Trinidad	Ď	2	2
Georgia	ō	ī	1
Russia	831796369529533155221100843211055332221110000004222111111111000000	91141683656600636131117911221066104032011000004100111100000221111	3442355172151775161111675449156654214125473542221111183222222111112211111
Mexico	ŏ	ī	ī
Moldows	ŏ	1	7
-TUNNTG	ž	-	=

'Big Mig's' threat to Briton

Chris Boardman, of Britain, is ready to face a backlash from the man they call "Big Mig" when he attempts to claim another Olympic title today. Boardman believes Miguel Indurain, the great Spanish rider, still presents the most serinus challenge to his hopes of winning the individual time-trial over 32.4 miles despite his rival's failure to win a sixth successive Tour de France title. Indurain's reign in the world's toughest race was ended by the Dane, Bjarne Riis, while Boardman finished the 2,000-mile event for the first time in 39th place. Boardman, highly critical nf the Atlanta course, said: "It is a bit rolling which will suit Indurain mure than me. It will also favour him if it's dry. It will be even more difficult if the weather is changeable and the weather here changes hourly. I would hope there is less nil on it otherwise it will he treacherous." Boardman has reason to fear the wet following his crash in the prologue of the Thur last year which left him sidelined for several months. "I've got over that little trauma now," said the Wirral-based rider. "And my hike, which I specifically designed, will be able to cope with the course."

Boardman withdrew from Thursday's road race to give him extra time to prepare though Indurain and the other favourite Evgeny Berzin, the Russian who won the prologue of this year's Tour, both took part.

Mibrett, whose first international cap was against China five years ago. Midfielder MacMillan had put the Americans ahead in the 18th minute when she scored from close range following a de-flection. China's Wen Sun equalised in the 32nd minute with a chip over advancing keeper, Brians Scurry, the defender Brandi Chastain just failing to clear the ball off the line. "I do feel some relief," said

Dream Team made to work

Basketball

Football

ed China 2-1.

A record crowd of more than 75,000 fans roared the United States on to the first women's Olympic gold medal

at football when they defeat-

. Victory was achieved with a

3-year-old forward Tiffeny

Shannnn

goal in the 68th minute by the

For 15 minutes, Australia gave Justin Huish, 6 Californian the US "Dream Team" their student who practises at home toughest test of the Olympic by shooting arrows through his men's tournament, before garage door from across the falling 101-73. As anticipatstreet, yesterday won the Olympic individual gold. Huish, 21, beat Sweden's ed, the Americans now face Yugoslavia in today's final.

This is the providest I've Magnus Petersson to claim the been of this team because we United States's fifth Olympic had to compete," said Charles archery title out of the six com-Barkiey, who led the Americans with 24 points on perfect seven for seven shooting from the field, including a three-"This is the best team we've played in this tournament," Backley said of the Australians, Andrew Gaze led the Australians with 25 points. "We really had nothing to lose," said Gaze, Anstralia now meet Lithuania in the bronze medal decider. Asked how Australia could compete. with the American jugger-naut. Gaze said: "We'll have to grow bigger and get faster."

The Australians stayed close for most of the first could only manage 6 nine half, with the Americans' ultimate 28-point winning mar10 when the contest was exgin was the higgest of the tended in a second sudden-game. In the other semi, Yugoslavia, banned from the 1992 himself of the gold with such Games because of the Bosn-consistent shooting that not ian war, scored the last eight one arrow landed outside the points to edge out Lithuania 66-58. "This was the gold medal for the rest of the an unexpected quarter-final world," said the Yugoslav centre Vlade Divac.

Japan upset their hosts

Japan beat the United States 11-2 on Timrsday, denying the hosts their expected place in the final against Cuba, who beat Nicaragua 8-1.

"We have been looking forward to playing Cuha for the gold medal for 12 years." the Japan coach, Katsuji Kawashimahe, said. "We played almost perfectly." Nicaragua and the United States now play for the bronze. They kept us off balance. We never really hit the ball hard all day," America's coach, Skip Bertman, said. Kris Benson, America's best pitcher, was pounded for ago Japan earned a bronze eight hits and four earned runs with Cuba taking gold and Taiin four-plus innings, giving up a solo home run to Hideaki

Okubo and a two-run secondinning shot to Makoto Imaoka which gave Japan a 3-0

Benson appeared to settle down but ran into trouble in the fifth inning when Takayuki Takabayashi led nff with a home run. When Yasuyuki Saigo followed with a single. Bertman removed Benson in favour of Jeff Weaver but with little more success. In 1984, when baseball became a demonstration sport at the Los Angles Olympics, Japan won the gold with the United States taking silver. In 1988 at Seoul, the Americans won gold and Japan silver. At Barcelona four years wan silver. The Americans were fourth.

WEEKEND TIMETABLE

Today

ATHLEDICS: (2330): (w) high jamp first (2355): (m) jambh first; (0000): (w) 4ct 00m reise line): (0020): (m) 4ct 00m reise line): (0020): (m) 4ct 00m reise line): (0050): (m) 1500m first; (0215): (w) 4ct 00m reise line): (0240): (m) 4ct 00m reise line): (m) 5,000m first; (0215): (w) 4ct 00m reise line): (0240): (m) 4ct 00m
reise line):
BASICERELL: (1500): (w) 11/12 poseton
match: (1700): (w) 97.0 poseton match:
(2000): (w) 789 poseton match: (2200): (w) 56 possion mistric: (0000): (m) trind-piece play-05; (0300): (w) first BROWNER: (1830): Light flyweight, bentermestight, lighthought, websauseger, middisweight and henyweight finals.
CAMPERIOR (1440): (m) largels singles final:
(1540): (m) carioe striffee final; (1450): (w) regals from first: (1545): (m) largels cluster final: (1540): (m) resince clusters final; (1650):
(m) linguis flows final.

(m) Rejon icus mu. CYCLING: (1230); (m) indedquatum trini triaig (i-mi: (1900); (m) indexdati time triais final,

EQUESTRIANISM: (1406): Open individual disasage Seastyle final, FOOTBALL: (2045): Argentina v Algena, (m) Final Polices, Caorgiel. GYMRASTASS (Maythmic): (1500); (m) Induvidual semi-ficals.

vedual sears-fasals.
IONNESSALL: 202007: Norway v Hungary, (w)
that-place play-off; (2215); Denmann v South Notes, (w) Israel.
ISBN 88-12000; F Minigent (Boat v I, Pace Ond),
(m) snafes that-place matrix (1800); A Agesor (US) v S Busquess (Sale, (m) snafes frast(22000); G Fernandez and M J Fernandez (US)
v J Novoman and M Sulcova (Sc Rep), (w) dioubles frast. VOLLEYBALL: (1700): (w) third-place play-off, (w) first. Television coverage

Obstable Grandstand: 19801; 0800-1100; 1230-1710, 8002: 1710-2115, EBC1; 2115-Eurosport: Highlighen 0800-1330. Lant day erage from 1330. Tomorrow ATHLETICS: (1205): (ml Marathor CONSENS (1400-1875): K-2 (nd 500 final, C-1 (nd 500 final, K-1 (nd 500 final, K-1 (nd 500 final, C-2 (m) 500 final, K-2 (nd 500 fi-career after tomorrow? race in Atlanta.

Archery

∞ Athletics

nt 21.16.
set 2: 1 F Fredericis (Norm) 19.98; 2 A Boldon
set 2: 1 F Fredericis (Norm) 19.98; 2 A Boldon set 20.05; 3 M Marsh (NG) 20.26; 4 D Thomon (Reth) 20.35; 6 S Barnecombe (Nus) 20.39; set on Listan) 20.45; 7 S Insalovis (Lot) 20.48;
G Moun (Nor) 20.96.

G MCFRAL
Michael Johnson (US) 19.32 (WF)
Frankie Predoricks (Hum) 19.86
Ato Beldon (Trin) 19.80
- Lompson (Bahr) 20.14.5 J Williams (US)
47.8 I Garan (Cuba) 20.21.7 P Superior (US)
41.70.27; 8 M Marsh (US) 20.48. 91. "0.27; & M Morsh (US) 20.48.

Oom: Semi-finishe: Heart 1: 1 N Morsek (Alg.)
7: 58, 2 F Cacho (Sp.) 333, 12; 2 A She (Sorn)
13: 58, 4 W Tarun (Neri) 3:33, 57; 5 L Rotich rd 3:33, 73; 6 D Mazouza (Mors 3:34,35; 7 14: 60; 68; 3:34,55; 6 N Cheldheman (Fr)
14: 81, 9 8 Zorne (Croe) 3:35,14; 19 8 Tol14: Mari 3:35,57; 21,1 Festera (Por) 3:40,31;
N Sorton (Int.) 3:42,88
18: 19 D General (Mors.) 3:25, 50; 2 S Morsel

N Senton (III) 3-42.88 at 2: 1 H D Guerrou, (Mort 3:35.29; 2 S Kg-or (Kyrl 3:35.52; 3 A Helenn (Ton) 3:35.91; 1 Suchman (Quant 3:36.01; S M kores (North 6:00; 8 1 Victora (Sp) 3:36.11; 7 A Winter (16:0) 3:38.11; 8 C Impens (Ben 3:37.04; McANJion (US) 3:37.81; 10 R Essevez (Sp) 2:4, 11 S Hosby (III) 3:39.81; 12 K McAny 3:43.41 fflors (first pls. in each heat plus three est leaves to finelly Konna, Blob. Lahlot, cdy, Di Napol, Boulary, Nyork, Nyongato, nane, Monna, Sgirr, Bokauri, Bayesa, Ban-

400M HURDLES FINAL 400m Hokottes Finds. 47.54
2 Sourced Mistribe (Zeath) 47.78
3 Calvin Davis (US) 47.98; 47.78
4 S Nytender (Swe) 47.98; 5 R Robinson (Aut) 48.30; 6 F Mori (It) 48.41; 7 E Telesera (Bra) 48.57; 8 E de Arsup (Bra) 48.78

SPRINT MEN: 500m keyek singles semi-finals (first four and best fifth to final): First semi-

45,89sect 8,706 17,90, 8,07, 13,60, 2,04, 48,34, 13,47, 45,04, 480, 65,88, 431,411 3 Yourse Dromit (Ec. Rep) 8,664 (10,64, 7,60, 15,82, 198, 48,29, 13,79, 46,28, 4,70,70,16, 4431,251

45.04, 4.80, 96.88, 4:51.411
3 Toynes Dworski (Er Reb) 48.29, 13.79, 46.28, 4.70, 70.16, 4:51.291
4 Sperz (198, 8.44 (10.90, 7.77, 15.31, 2.04, 50.13, 13.97, 49.84, 5.10, 65.70, 4:38.261; 5 E Henralssone (Bells) 8.613 (11.05, 7.48, 16.32, 1.98, 48.81, 15.95, 49.82, 5.00, 57.86, 4.34, 68.76, 18.95, 49.82, 5.00, 57.86, 4.34, 68.76, 18.95, 49.82, 5.00, 57.86, 4.34, 69.86, 18.95, 49.82, 5.00, 56.48, 4.43.361; 7 R Zmoth, 67, Rep) 3.422 (10.83, 7.64, 13.53, 13.53, 15.8, 49.55, 41.7, 43.44, 5.40, 67.20, 43.45; 8.8 Cerriper (Leb) 8.33 (10.84, 7.64, 13.54, 12.11, 46.14, 14.88, 44.86, 5.20, 53.70, 4.42.74; 6.4 Peneter (Su) 8.307 (10.96, 7.27, 16.91, 2.07, 50.41, 1.435, 4.892, 4.70, 57.08, 4.37, 711, 10.0 C huffere (IS) 8.300 (10.47, 7.49, 15.57, 50.41, 1.435, 4.892, 4.70, 57.08, 4.37, 711, 10.0 C huffere (IS) 8.300 (10.47, 7.49, 15.57, 20.4, 4.80, 51.01, 4.872, 4.70, 60.52, 51.436); 11.0 Penem (F) 8.282 (10.95, 7.52, 14.85, 2.04, 4.907, 14.52, 4.334, 4.90, 52.514, 36); 11.0 Penem (F) 8.282 (10.95, 7.52, 14.85, 14.71, 4.72, 6.95, 2.04, 4.907, 14.52, 4.374, 14.92, 4.70, 60.52, 13.44, 4.90, 60.52, 13.45, 13.45, 13.45, 13.45, 13.45, 13.45, 13.45, 13.45, 14.55, 13.55, 13.75, 14.57,

THURSDAY'S Heet 2: 1 M Oney (Sam) 22.08; 2 G Malching-ine (Rus) 22.36; 3 C Sumup (Baham) 22.54; 4 C Gudry (US) 22.56; 5 M Gensford-Taylor (Aus) 22.76; 6 M Peochie (Ber) 22.81; 7 A Biker (Sloven) 22.82; 8 K Koffa (Gre) 23.20. 200M FINAL 1 Marie-Jose Perec (Fr)

bert (Jam) 22.60; 8 C Gusby (155) 22.61.
ISONers Sensol-Resides Heast 1: 1.7 Keel (Aun)
4:19.44; 2 G Sanbo (Rorn) 4:09.83; 3 6 Meametrous (Paul) 4:10.35; 4 M Rydr (Pol) 4:10.77;
6 G Griffiths (SA) 4:11.12; 8 N Dublemore (Beta)
4:11.43; 7 C Wisstermagen (Gen) 4:11.47; 8 8
Bazzer-Dustre (Fr); 4:12.27; 9 S Debithantly (N)
4:12.52; 10 M Zunige (Sp) 4:14.10; 11 L Repachous (Rus) 4:14.54; 12 H Boulmarte (Alp)
4:23.86.

ATT 2-SC - 20 M Jurigia (Spi 4-114. 10; 12 L Registrose (Rus) 4-14. 54; 12 H Boulmarte (Alp. 4-23.86.

Heat 2: 1 K Holmes (Bill) 4-05.88; 2 R Jacoba (US) 4-16.13; 3 M Creative (Ala) 4-05.88; 2 R Jacoba (US) 4-16.13; 3 M Creative (Ala) 4-05.67; 6 L Borrose (Rus) 4-06.87; 7 A Brazonica (Pol) 4-07.17; 8 K Dulestra (Eri) 4-09.00; 8 M Beverfor (Swe) 4-13.185; 10 S Hohmertura (Ser) 4-15.86; 11 N Mago (Ford) 4-20.01; 26-20.01; 8 M Beverfor (Swe) 4-13.185; 10 S Hohmertura (Ser) 4-15.86; 11 N Mago (Ford) 4-20.01; 26-20.01; (Ford) 4-15.86; (Grighty, Hohmer, Saroto, Crosley, Pels, Sectamento, Borsona, Brownist, Mago. (Const.), Pels, Sectamento, Borsona, Brownist, Mago. (Long Jimes, Capiffly, Hohmer, Jacobs, Crosley, Pels, Sectamento, Borsona, Brownist, Mago. (Long Jimes, Capiffly, Hohmer, Jacobs, Crosley, Pels, Sectamento, Borsona, Brownist, Mago. (Long Jimes, Capiffly, Hohmer, Jacobs, Crosley, Pels, Sectamento, Borsona, Brownist, Mago. (Long Jimes, Capiffly, Hohmer, Jacobs, Crosley, Pels, Sectamento, Borsona, Capiffly, Hohmer, Borsona, Capiffly, Hohmer, Capiffly, Hohmer, Mago. Pels, Sectamento, Capiffly, Hohmer, Capiffly, Hohm

⋘ Baseball ⋘ Basketbali

MEN: Semi-finais: Yugoskwa 66 Lithuana 58; United States 101 Australia 73. WOMEN: Classification: Russe 80 Japan 69; Cuba 78 Italy 70. ∞ Boxing

Lightweight (60kg); Somi-Braits: T Torchev (Bul) of T Courben (US) par; H Sotian (Alg) bt L Dorotte (Rom) pts.
Banksonweight (54lkg); Somi-Finale: ( Kovess (Hun) bt Y Khedoo (Thail) pts: A Mana (Cube) bt R Malainbelov (Rus) pts IN PARAGOMERON (PARA) PCS Westherweight (ATTHER Secon-Firenis: J Hermandez (Cuba) by M Symon (Rom) pts; O Santov (Rus) by D Santos (P Roch) pts
Middlerweight (75kg): Somi-firenis: M Beyterogiu (Turk) by M Bahen (Alg) pts; A Hermandez (Cuba)
by R Walfa (US) pts.

MEN: 11th-12th place play-off: Brazil 31. Kuwait 25. 9th-10th place match: United

LATE RESULTS

∞ Diving

⋘ Handball

MERI: 10m platform preliminary round: Qual-Meris: 1 0 Sauto (Rus) 452.82; 2 Xao Hailang (China) 445.86; 3 Tion Lung (China); 425.73; 4V Timoshima (Rus) 425.43; 5 P Jeffrey (US) 406,74; 6 D Partier (US) 394.59; 7 J Hempel (Ger) 394.17; 8 F Pintier (Mex) 392.51; 9 K Ye-such Uspan) 381.51; 10 8 Koudewich (Bela) 375.90; 11 M Kuhne (Ger) 375.27; 12 R Freez (Au) 373.41; 13 China Hempel (R Nox) 382.40; 14 1 Spoth (Sue) 352.74; 15 R Noxianish (Bela) 349.14; 18 0 Akhmetishero (Vez) 346.5; 21 B Monga (GS) 343.20; 10 L Taylor (GS) 341.70. Non quafficer: 10 K Norreto Lippon 339, 18; 20 R Volodino (Ukr) 335.57; 21.5 Novarior (Nox) 335.43; 22 A Alcosta (Mex) 322.47; 23 D Pason (Sp) 312.76; 24 G Chemiches (Rom) 309.30; 25 D D Fepre (Ven) 307.00; 25 0 Vanchenko (Ukr) 301.92; 22 E D platellov (Max) 254.93; 25 E Liam 301.32; 27 a Lypitanov (Ass); 284,95; 281 Tan-con (Aus); 294, 75; 281 S Pich (Thau); 250.64; 30 7 glaseds (Bol); 250.16; 31 Nuon Nyung-mn (S Non 276.27; 381 Australdym (Am); 776.54; 33 Su Ng RHO 273.30; 34 G Gebraris (Goo); 256.69; 36 A Al-Marous (Run); 293-79; 36 Cham Hung-ping (Tai); 220.99; 37 V Walter (Yugo); 187.17.

Equestrianism

A Kurranska, M Metz, P Leone, L Burr-H 3 Bresti (R. Pessou, A. Johannpeler, L.F. Assedo, A.M. Nison A. Fisance, H. Godgmon, P. Delanesu, R.Y. Bost, A. Ledermenn) 20,250, 5 Spain I.A. Jovin, F. Saraka, R. Lagham, P. Sarethad, 29, 750; B. Sastzerlade, R. Lagham, P. Sarethad, 29, 750; B. Sastzerlade, M. Harting, P. Sarethad, 29, 750; B. Sastzerlade, M. Harting, P. Sarethad, S. Horris, U. Fahild, D. Companio, J. Chosnido, J. Sartin, J. Barton, B. Romp, J. Toosh, 32,250; B. Harner, G. Bartin, C. Sastzerlade, J. Chosnido, J. Sartin, J. Barton, B. Borner, J. Chosnido, J. Sartin, J. Rasterlade, R. G. Bartin, J. Rasterlade, R. G. Bartin, J. Rasterlade, R. G. Bartin, J. Mitteller, M. Myttaley, M.O.000; 12 Begum, S. Van Presenten, L. Phalppserts, M. Biston, E. Walzard, J. Rome, C. Jakeson, J. Bartin, J. Rasterlade, J. Rome, C. J. Sastzi, J. Albertach, J. Rome, J. Too, 18 Canada (I. Mellar, M. Corré, C. Della, L. Southern-Hearthom, 15, 750; 21 Augusta, V. Rastrade, J. Archendon, R.A. Dorthern, K.A. Beld, 120,00; 13 Australe, V. Roycott, R. Johnstone, O. Cooper, J. Parketti, 1280,00. R Passos, A Johannpater, L F Azevedo, A M Netol er, J PeriMetti 129-00. Individual show jumping: Standings after second qualifying round (Qualifiers for fleat): 1.1 Beethaum (Ser, Ranna) 0.25; 2 R Passon (Bra, Tombor) 2.00; 3 I. Phigppeers: Ref. Ning Denoti 4.00; 4 J Tops (Neth, Top Gunh 4.25; 5 U Krchhoff (Gar, Jun De Pommen) 5.50; 6 A Furninsk (US, Eros) 8.00; 7 H Godgnon (Fr, Villing Du Tilland)

8.50; S.F. Serasola (Sp., Enniol 10.25; 9 M Bauer (Aux, Remus) 12.00; 10 V Sozo (h., Gaston M) 12.00; 11 M Mars (BS, Phanel 12.00; 13 G Bairg-ton (GB, Hr. Otton) 12.25; 13 R-V Boos (Fr., Soulewars Tol. 12.75; 14 L Burr-Howard (US, Emerce) 14.00; 15 7 Share (Lagan, Victorina Du Esni) 14.75; 18 H Simon (Aut. ET) 18.00; 12 A Ledermann Fr. Pochart M Ind. (O.); 18 W Mediger Cowl. Calvent 16.00; 23 B Merch (Swa, Cay Burshag) 15.00; 20 U Fah (Swa, Lysurina) 15.00; 21 P Ender (US, Lagano) 15.00; 23 U Fah (Swa, Lysurina) 15.00; 21 P Ender (US, Lagano) 15.00; 23 A Merchan Neto (Bea, Aspan 136.25; 26 P Deloves (US, 23 A Merchan Neto (Bea, Aspan 136.25; 26 P Deloves (US, 23 A Merchan Neto (Bea, Aspan 136.25; 26 P Deloves (US, 24 J Sraf, (E.) Constantia) 15.00; 22 P Ender (US, 23 A Merchan Neto (Bea, Aspan 136.25; 26 P Deloves (US, 24 J Sraf, (E.) Constantia) 15.00; 20 P Mortuse (Par, Rosene De Gauchy) 15.00; 20 P Mortuse (Par, Rosene (D.) Constantia) 15.00; 20 P Mortuse (Par, Rosene) 20.00; 31 R (Chauston) 17.70; 28 A Lobardon (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 32 N Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 33 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 32 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 33 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 33 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 34 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 35 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 35 P Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 36 P R A Dohaston (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 37 P R Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 37 P R Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 38 P R Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 38 P R Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 39 P R Rosene (Roy, Rosene) 20.00; 30 P R

Solution Football

WANTED THAT STANDINGS ⋘ Gymnastics

⋘ Handball

889 Hockey WOMEN'S FINAL STANDINGS

Sailing MEN'S 470 FWAL STANDINGS 38.00

(Olem Pubbolchil/Renham Turan)
4 Linited States 47.00; 5 Germany 49.00; 6 Dermany 56.00; 7 Roy) 64.00; 8 Australia 64.00; 9 Carcate 78.00; 10 Newsy 81.00; 11 Greet Bitain (S Carcife Registed 88.00; 12 Israel 93.00; 13 France 98.00; 18 New Zeoland 101.00; 17 Greece 120.00; 18 Hungary 128.00; 10 Siovena 143.00; 20 Hong Norg 164.00; 21 Chura 169.50; 22 Argantina 170.50. Table tennis

MRN: Singles
1 Liu Guotleng (China). Cold
2 Weed The (China). Sheer
3 Jong Roselsopf (Gerl Stroke:
Fresh Liu Guotleng bit Wang Tao 21.12 22.24 21.
19 15-21 21-6. Strokes models Robelsopf by Pictore (Cz Rept 21.17 19-21.21.18 21.19). ⋘ Tennis

MER: Singles somi-fluxis: S Bruguera (Spi bt F Medigeri (Ba) 7-8 6-2; A Agess (US) Int L Poes (Ins) 7-6 3-3. Doubles third-place play-off: M Gaziner and O Panosi (Ger) bt J Shrigh and P Hashtus (Hest) 6-2 7-5.

⋘ Volleyball

#SNE (1500-2000); Individua HANDBALL: (1600-1940): (m) Third-place play-off and final. PACLE VALLE (1700-2145); (m) Third-place play-off and final. SYMMASTICS (Rhythmic): (1810-2200); (e) Indiadous final.

BOUNC: (1830-2100): 51kg, 57kg, 63.5kg, 71kg, 81kg, super-heavyweight finals.
BASKETBALL: (2100-0140): (w) That-place play-off and final. Olympic Grandstand: 88C1: 0800-0905-0910-1000. 88C2: 1200-1825. 88C1; 1825-2130; 2315-0500.

The number of marathons in which Steve Brace of Wales will have competed when he ends his running

Christie left on sidelines by relay bungle

MIKE ROWBOTTOM

reports from Atlanta

Britain's tale of woe on the track continued yesterday when Linford Christie's Olympics ended as they had begun - in disarray.

Christie, defending his title but disqualified from the 100 metres final through two false starts, and knocked out in the second round of the 200m, saw his championship career ended by default as his colleagues dropped the baton in the opening round of the sprint relay

With the men's captain saving himself for later, Darren Braithwaite and Darren Campbell dropped the baton going into the third leg.

The foul-up revived memories of the European Championships in Helsinki two years ago when Braithwaite let the baton slip on the same change. with Christie a forlorn figure wailing to run the anchor leg in search of the gold medal.

Braithwaite complained later that he felt awkward going out for a while afterwards, as people kept coming up to him to ask if he was the runner who had dropped the baton. It looks like he is in for another trying this season will be his last in toplevel competition. After the débacle, his colleagues were steeling themselves to apologise.

"Linford was without a medal here and we were really going out there to do our best for out there to do our best for him," said Campbell, who has trained regularly with the British captain during the winter. "Now I have to go and face him."

The lead-off man, Tony Jarrett, said: "We practised plenty of times. But these sort of accidents happen in the relay. It would have been nice to get something for Linford."

Braithwaite, part of the Braithwaite, part of the squad that won a World Cham-pionship bronze in Tokyo in 1991 and the World Indoor silver medallist over 60m last year, admitted: "It sums up the whole Olympics for us." Like Christie, Britain's 400m silver medallist Roger Black took a break from the first round of the 4x400m relay, but his team-mates reached the semi-finals safely.

In the javelin qualifying, European champion Steve Back-ky, who was on crutches in June after an Achilles tendon operation, needed only one throw of 84.14m to reach today's final.

But he warned: "II will be But he warned: "If will be an awesome competition – no place for faint hearts or weak bodies. It will take 88 metres to get among the medals, but I have to practise."

More reports, pages 25 and 24 Results, page 25

THE INDEPENDENT CROSSWORD

Christie, 36, is adamant that his season will be his last in topevel competition. After the lébacle, his colleagues were tecling themselves to apologise.

"Linford was without a medal with 80.48, but Nick Nieland" went out on 75.74.

Dennis Mitchell said he would be prepared to relinquish the anchor leg in the United States' 4x100m relay team if Carl Lewis was selected to run.

Lewis, who won his ninth Olympic gold medal in the long jump on Monday, has hinted heavily that he would like the opportunity to go for a record 10th, but he did not make the US squad at the Olympic trials.

He may have moved one place nearer his goal vesterday with the news that Leroy Burrell, his friend and training partner, had withdrawn from the relay squad with injury. Burrell denied that he had acted to give Lewis an oppor-tunity. "Would you give up a Pulitzer Prize?" be snapped. "No. That's ridiculous." Mitchell said: "If Carl is selected to run there is only one place we would be comfortable with him running and that's anchor. I have known and worked with Carl long enough to know if he ran anchor and I ran third, his hand would be there

Lost for words? Turn to the Franklin Bookman" Dictionary and Thesaurus. Farming at Yo arrive Franklin products, any 01252 861500

Like an astronaut newly returned from the first space flight, Michael Johnson was an object of wonder on Thursday

"I knew coming off the kerb,"

he said. "You can always tell when you make the transition from the kerb to the straight. I ever make that thing go fast -

Johnson seen as object of wonder as he sprints into track history

ACROSS Complex character, his wife's mother (7) Bed available (Stuart's off to Malta) (7) No female's enthralled by horseracing – it's a bore (4-3) 10 Something of a flap, according to Biggles (7)

11 Tourist publication girl in uniform viewed with reserve

12 Danip one's found in the majorns of housing (5) 13 Evening's when most of the drink gets knocked back (5) 15 Neglected giving notice about embargo having fin-

17 Trial in meadow beside river 3 14 Rope, see, by which a vessel's

Stout American officer's going round yard (5) 23 French wire consumed (about 0.001 litre?) to pro-teer against disease (9) Cool character important in howls, in summer season? (7) 26 Inauspicious appearance of moon, one that's upset us (7) 27 Undistinguished pupil attends classes (7) 28 Dreadful sameness mostly observed in a group (2,5)

DOWN Figure given a month previously, first item of news (7) Elaborate ring lad offers sweetheart (7) Call about Japanese drama recording having Jurned up

Affect us badly, necessitating intuke of oregen? (9)

Affect us badly, necessitating 24

Old leatures in one obscure dialect (5)

Win a Franklin Bookman Dictionary and Thesaurus worth £100

The first correct solution to this week's puzzle opened next Thursday win a Franklin Book-your own postcode. Last week's winner was B W Tilling. Dunstable.

Polar explorer's half aban-Function exer

 Function exercised by one on catwalk – someone to look up to? (4, 5)
 Twisting effect in roots artistically depicted (7)
 Very small aeronautical drag is recorded (7)

14 Child's comforter and undergarment on stand (5, 4)

16 Lorry man used to carry very good vegetable produce (9)

17 Doubling one's money? (7)

18 Typically, Japanese senate's disrupted after infiltration by

Right (7)
20 It lakes ages to get tickets (7)
21 Boss reading poetry in Old English (7)
23 Watch soldier bearding six-

and the first of the contract of the contract felt at that point that I was running faster than I'd ever run before in my life. As far as describing what that's like... well it's an incredible thrill." He paused, searching for a better means of expression. "My dad bought me a go-kart when I was a kid... and did I down the hill, whoosh. That's the only thing I can think of that compares. So if you want to know how it feels, go get you a gu-kart, find a hill..." At which point the bronze medallist, Ato Boldon, chipped in: "That's my next training method." In the turnult that greeted Johnson's victory, Boldon, an obsessive student of sprinting history, had bowed to him with arms outstretched, as if to say: "We are not worthy. It was a performance which left the Texan's opponents alMike Rowbottom reflects on a momentous occasion at the was a plan for me after all the Olympic Stadium, the like of which has rarely been seen

After a stupendous world unbeaten sequence of 38 races a second. record of 19.32sec had secured the 28-year-old Texan a place in by defeating him at this distance history as the first man to win in Oslo last month, ran the the Olympic 200 and 400 merace of his life to record 19.68. tres double, he was asked to exjust 0.02sec outside the world plain the unexplainable; what record Johnson had set on the did it feel like to be the fastest same track two months earlier man in the world? He did his at the US Olympic trials.

Fredericks ended up five metres adrift, in what looked more like the finish to one of Johnson's 400m races. "I thought when he ran 19.66 it was incredible," Fredericks said. "To run 19.32... I don't know what to say.

The obvious point of comparison is with Bob Beamon, who put the long jump world record out of reach for 23 years in winning the 1968 Olympic ti-tle. Johnson's advance - ramrod-backed, with pattering steps - is just as enormous. No one has ever reduced the 200m record by such a margin. But there is one man who might better the achievement in the next few years - and that man is Michael Johnson.

You could almost see Boldon and Fredericks sinking further into their chairs either side of him as he described how his race could have been better, saying most speechless. Frankie Fred- that a stumble out of the blocks ericks, who had ended Johnson's had cost him a few fractions of

"I didn't use my arms like my coach was telling me to do in practice," he said. "That's what happens when you don't do what your coach tells you." There seemed not a trace of irony in his remark. Johnson does have a wry sense of humour which is becoming increasingly obvious as he works to overcome his innate shyness. But he is a man obsessed with detail. He is so tidy that his sister.

Deirdre, once complained that his condominium in Dallas "looked like no one ever lived there". He is said to keep his passport in the P folder of an impeccably main-tained filing cabinet. His kit is al-ways meticulously laid out before races, including pre-race and post-race snacks.

it was entirely in character that he should shy away from a question asking him if he re-garded himself as "The Man" on track. "That's something that's left up to the fans' opin-ion," he said. "I just concentrate on the things that I can control and look for specific criteria." What Johnson has found hard to control is the stress

© Published by Newspaper Publishing PLC, I Canada Square, Canuty Wharf, London E145DL, and protted at Mirror Colour Front, St

Back issues available from Historic Newtonn

Registered at a new-paper with the Post Office which his double plan has im-posed upon him. The Olympic schedule was altered to ease his path. He took to the track in gold shoes. Self-imposed they may have been, but these stress-

"Pressure," he said. "There's when I picked up newspapers and magazines, there was always something about this double. Every time I went out into the streets, people would mention it.

es were enormous.

"People called me to take the pressure off," he said, adding with a slow grin, "and that was just adding more pressure. That's what it's been like for the last six months. I was afraid out there that maybe I wouldn't be able to get the medal. It makes you get nervous. But that's OK. I like to be nervous. I ran like I was nervous."

His reversal of fortune at the last Olympics, when his position as clear favourite for the 200m was crucially undermined by the effects of food poisoning, has screed, not surprisingly, as a big motivating factor.

"Today is, for me, a big re-lief," be said. "It sums up what my career is all about. After winning the 400m I felt like there setbacks I had had. All I could do was to go out and perform to the best of my ability and leave the rest to God."

How, he was asked, had he found the strength to complete: eight races successfully on a. track so hard that even the sprinters were complaining about its attritional effects?

"It is partly mental strength, never been this much pressure and partly the programme that on me in my entire life. Every day my coach, Clyde Hart, has made up. We welcome multiple rounds. That's the way we train. "A lot of people paid a lot of money to come out and see this, but if they saw me in practice. that's where they get their mon-stell.

導 [ []

Value ...

of th

 $\mathbf{t}_{\pi H_{LS_1}}$

Theren

College Tree

ey's worth, because we are going at it." There was one other significant statistic attached to Johnson's performance. His victory margin of 0.36sec was the biggest in the men's Olympic 200m event since 1936, when 0.4sec separated the secondplaced man, Mack Robinson of the United States, from the champion - Jesse Owens. Shortly after the US Olympic trials, Johnson received a letter from Owens's widow, Ruth, congratulating him upon his achieve-ments on the track, and the way he conducted himself off it.

"It was the greatest honour I have ever received in my life." Johnson said. He had brought the letter along with him on every one of his six visits to the Olympic stadium. And in the end, his greatest honour was honoured.

man Dictionary and Thesanrus worth £100. Answers and the winner's name will be published next Saturday. Send solutions to Saturday Crossword, P. O. Box 4018, The Independent, 1 Canada Square. Canary Wharf, London E14 5BL. Please use the box number and postcode and give

Make the longest word you can from HISCOSESS. Yesterday's Scramble: ILLOGICAL

A SOUVENIR

The MALT

The MAGALILAN

TAKES ITS PLACE AT THE TOP OF

THE WINNER'S PODIUM, THE

RESULT OF MANY A TASTE TEST

SUCCESS. SO IF YOU'RE IN SEARCH OF

A PERSONAL BEST LOOK NO FUR-THER THAN THE MAIL